COUNTY NEWS.

Sam Corbet has gone to Albuquerque.

These cold mornings makes a fellow hug the stove.

G. M. Danner's new house is about ready for the shingles.

Notice new ad. of Davis & Dunna-hoo in another column.

J. J. Dolan moved into his new house the first of the week.

Jerry Hoerule and Charley Dean were in from Nogal Tuesday.

Charley Buford has moved his family from White Oaks to the Salado.

Mrs. W. H. H. Llewellyn presented the Major with twins last week.

Died.—At Upper Penasco, on the 16th inst., Joe Curtis, Jr., aged about 17 years, of rupture.

M. Branham, of White Oaks, will receive the ERA at 29 east Pearson St., Chicago, for awhile.

Mr. P. J. Maker and Miss Nettie Wall were married by Rev. James Hunter, in James Canon recently.

The hills and mountains are looking their prettiest. Jack Frost points with the brush of nature to perfection.

The school children are in their own building now, and Mr. Rudisille has his hands full in learning them how to hit the bull's eye.

F. C. Cronk, of Silver City, a pleasant little gentleman, was in Lincoln several days last week. We did not learn his business.

S. A. Johnson will build his livery stable on ground belonging to Mrs. B. H. Ellis. Himself and family are now residents of this place.

D. C. Nowlin, one of Lincoln county's popular surveyors, arrived in the county seat Tuesday from a surveying trip in the vicinity of Roswell.

John Eaker, Capt. Wilkerson, P. Miller, J. A. Browning, W. S. Davis, A. C. McDonald and A. T. Gunter, all Penasco and Agua Chiquita men, were in to court.

Bennett Howell, Chisum's old foreman, who now has a ranch on the lines of New Mexico and Texas, stopped Monday night in Lincoln. It's reported Bennett intends getting married soon.

Johnnie Thomas, an old White Oaks boy, but now on the Lea Cattle Co. range, paid his respects to the ERA while in town the first of the week. Johnnie looks fat, hearty and good-natured.

"Deeps," our Ft. Stanton correspondent, has been ordered to join his troop in the field, and a letter from him will be missed by our readers at least this week. If there is any important happenings in the field, he promises us a letter.

Cy. Davidson and wife returned to White Oaks Tuesday. Cy had the misfortune to lose a horse just after he reached Spring Ranch, the property of Ki Harrison. He said he would not regret the loss so much had the animal been his own.

Charley Buford met with a painful accident one day last week. He was on his way to this place, and when just on this side of the Fort his horse fell with almost its full weight on Charley's right leg. He came on to Lincoln, arriving after dark. He returned to the ranch the following day.

J. A. Browning is the possessor of one of the prettiest ranches on the Upper Penasco. He has moved into his new house and has plenty of room to accommodate his friends. Some time during the holidays Mr. B. will give a dance. We predict a large crowd will participate in the festivities.

Lost, between the Salado and the first crossing of the Rio Bonito, one hand satchel. There was a gold watch in the satchel, with these initials engraved thereon: B. J. B. to T. B. The property can be left at this office or with B. J. Baca, and a suitable reward will be paid and no questions asked.

Quite a number of people from all over the county were in Lincoln Monday morning to attend court. Several were from Seven Rivers and Lookout and the Penasco country was well represented. It is a shame those people were put to that expense and loss of time for nothing. We blame Judge Henderson for not notifying the people in time. There will probably be a special term held soon.

E. W. Parker was in town Wednesday.

Wanted, a situation as cook at $40 a month. SAM. WORTLEY, Lincoln, N. M.

Uncle David Penrod was in the first of the week to appear as the prosecuting witness against the Holcombe boys for housebreaking. This old gentleman has had more than his share of trouble of late. After everything was stolen from his house, two men he had taken in and was feeding, tried to poison him with strychnine. He went to El Paso to secure work, and while absent from home, in the Penasco country, his ranch was jumped. We hope the Penasco people will show their appreciation for this ranch jumper by making him get off this property at once. We think Mr. Penrod has had enough trouble, and we believe the good people of Penasco think so, too.

Sunday night, in a certain store in this town, two old friends were talking over war times. One was in the northern and the other in the southern army. The conversation opened by the southern man telling about killing Indians in a certain gap in western Texas. The northern man told of a fight with the red men that was just a little stronger and more dangerous. The southern man, becoming excited and seeing that his friend was getting the best of the story telling, jumped up and said: "You can talk about your Indian wars, but they are tame in comparison with the battles us southern fellows fought, and I was in the confederate army seven years!" They wet up and dispersed.

THE SKUNK.

Of all the songsters of the forest, there is no bird that so attracts the attention as the skunk. It is very, very seldom that this species of bird is sufficiently well tamed to place in a canary cage and hang out in the sun to sing for the neighborhood. There is a whereness of the damn that ever suggests itself when one feels the absorbing presence of the skunk.

They are very rare as domestic pets and one never knows the sex of the bird, and I never knew any body who wanted to know. I don't suppose any body ever noted the difference between the singing of a male skunk and the female skunk, and it is my impression that they sing exactly similar, only one sings louder than the other. Some times they sing with such precision and accuracy that it is totally impossible to distinguish male from female, but at such times no one seems anxious to make any delaying distinctions.

The voice of the skunk is so peculiarly strong that one who is near the bird when it sings will think that the bird has eaten something that soured its stomach and made its breath smell as though it were loaded for blasting rock.

The tame skunk will fool around a wood-pile a long time, but a man don't saw wood just then. I never had a tame skunk, but I have frequently looked upon their beautiful striped forms and listened to their songs. But I did not listen too close—I never listen to a skunk sing too close. I have known people who listened too close to a skunk and then everybody thought they were dead and begun to decay. I have thought so myself.

The skunk doesn't perch himself on anything smaller than a cord of wood to sing. One peculiarity is that it sings whenever you come upon it suddenly, and the more suddenly the more sing, and a man is just as sorry to stumble over a poor, little skunk as he can be. I never knew a man who was glad that he had stepped on a skunk. No other bird is so listless and careless of its comfort as to loaf about under people's feet; but the skunk, sometimes, can sing under a fat man's foot as well as under a blackberry bush.

But the man would much rather listen to the bird sing under the bush.

The large, bushy tail of the skunk is the largest I ever noticed on a bird, and, strange to relate, the bird can take half a brick in that bushy tail and hit a man hard enough to make him look tired. I never saw a skunk throw a brick, but people who have been hit tell me it is true. I do not doubt but that the bird can throw a whole brick; and for my part I would prefer to be hit with adobes by some giant than trust to luck dodging a skunk when it begins to throw rocks. Like the beaver, the tail of the skunk means business every time; the one throws mud with its tail; nobody knows what the skunk throws; all they know is that whatever it throws hits so hard that a fellow don't wait to find out what struck him. No other bird, I believe, has these peculiarities—no other bird should have them. One such bird is enough in a neighborhood; if more and they should begin to fight each other, it would be dangerous to go out of the house; a person might be hit, and once hit, it's all day with you—or all night—and the rest of the month. I have never received a letter asking me to send a skunk to anyone as a present, and if I should receive such a letter I would get out a warrant and hand it to a deputy sheriff to serve on the skunk. I would be afraid that the skunk would question my authority and hit me with something.

The theme is one upon which a scientist could dwell for a whole day, and if he had been bit by a skunk he couldn't help but dwell on the subject for a week, hence I close abruptly. THURSDAY FRIDAY.

ROSWELL—Oct. 18.

J. D. Lea arrived from Peos Station yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Carrie Hays, of Knoxville, Tennessee. Mrs. Hays is in New Mexico for a while for her health and we confidently hope and believe she will be greatly benefited by her trip to this land of sunshine and pure air. She meets her brother A. E. Lea here for the first time in 23 years.

The "Professor Sly" seems to have about succeeded in precipitating a war on his "devoted" head judging from the article in your last week's issue. We think at this point it would be appropriate to "lay on McDuff," etc. and also to quote some author who says: "The man who attempts to bring down those who are above him does not thereby elevate himself. He rather sinks himself while those whom he traduces are benefited rather than injured by the slander of one so base as he." What perplexes us most, however, is how the "Professor" can possibly arrogate to himself the power or influence (where he is known) to injure any man's character. But this is one of his inconsistencies.

On the evening of the 16th inst., Justice Lea was notified to be at Chisum's rancho at 7 p. m. He readily divined the object of the call and was on hand promptly, where and when he found two candidates for matrimony, ready, waiting and anxious for the matrimonial knot to be tied which was done in short order. The parties were Mr. Chas. Aber and Miss Lizzie Henry, both of Chisum's ranch. This was veritably a cowboy's wedding. The outfits of Robert, Lea Cattle Co., Milne and Anderson having just combined on that day to start on the last round-up of the season. A number of the boys formed in a line behind the Justice, each with a lighted candle during the ceremony. We failed to learn what significance they attached to this part of the proceedings, but it certainly made it a brilliant affair. We spent an hour very pleasantly in social converse with Mrs. Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Howell and the boys and it is but justice to say that we were very forcibly impressed with the quiet, gentlemanly and polite manners of the outfit of cowboys. We were then invited to the handsome residence of Mr. P. M. Chisum, near by, where we were royally entertained, a part of the programme being music on the piano and violin. Mrs. C. performs splendidly on the piano, and Jim Brent, who was there well, all know what Jim can do with a violin after which we returned home with best wishes for the newly married couple. N. X. AGUA CHIQUITA—Oct 16.

The weather is getting pretty cold in this locality. Jack Frost is a diurnal visitor, and we have had ice to the thickness of half an inch several times. A small slice of sheol, hades, hell or some other warm locality would help us out considerably.

McDonald and Capt. Wilkerson made a trade: Mac was to teach the Captain to whistle, and, by way of reciprocity, the Captain was to teach Mac to sing. Wilkerson gave the first lesson, and sang "Old Aunt Jemima," but Mac behaved more like a first-class critic at the opera than a musical pupil, so Wilkerson demanded a lesson in whistling before he would proceed. Mac said the secret of good whistling was in correctly puckering the mouth, and made several efforts to get the Captain's mouth into shape, but without success.

"Pshaw! You'll never learn to whistle with that mouth of yours."

"The less said about that mouth the better, you bald-eyed terapin, you. How do you expect to sing with a voice that sounds like a saw-mill with a cold?"

"My voice is way yonder ahead of you mouth, you white-headed possum."

The Captain "shucked" his coat and Mac spat on his hands; friends intervened, and no blood was spilt. But they don't speak any more.

The Rev. Mr. Sly, in his paper of the 30th ult., makes a dirty fling at the stock association of precinct No. 9. In speaking of the resolution adopted by the association that a man must own water in proportion to the amount of stock he has on the range, he closes with the insinuation: "Now look out for Indians; something is going to drop." There can be but one construction placed on that sentence, and that is this: that the members of the association intend, disguised as Indians, to run off the stock of men who fail to comply with the regulation. Mr. Sly is informed that there is a standing committee to attend to those waterless fellows that impose on their neighbors, and said committee are ever ready to move the stock of aforesaid dead-beats from the waters of the association in broad daylight; and if Mr. Sly doubts it, let him try the experiment of placing stock on the range without first purchasing water for the same.

The dance at the residence of A. C. McDonald, Esq., on the evening of the 14th inst., given in compliment to those popular back-bros, James A. Davis and John Woods, was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all who participated. Dancing commenced at sun down and ended only when that charming young lady, the Morning, was dancing across the hills. The Agua Chiquita can show up more pretty girls than any portion of Lincoln county, and on this occasion they looked their very best. Among the young ladies, your correspondent noted Misses Josie Ferrel, Sadie Lewis, Josie Black, Zona Lewis, Ida Davis, Mollie Cox and many others whose names are unknown to him. Many married ladies participated in the festivities. Particularly may be mentioned Mesdames Bunting, Miller, McDonald, Harrison and Ratliff, who, with their better halves, were untiring in their efforts to promote the enjoyment of the young folks. Much credit is due to Mrs. A. C. McDonald and Mrs. Wm. Harrison for the splendid supper that was set before the guests. At 8 p. m. supper was announced and it lasted all night long. Dave Bunting and your correspondent got in four or five "squares" apiece before the morning's dawn. We are sorer feeble like to-day. W. S. Davis has pronounced us young fellows another dance before long.

B. T. Richardson has sold his ranch to a gentleman by the name of Rodey, from Ft. Concho, Texas. We are glad to learn that neither Mr. Richardson or Mr. Miller, who sold to Capt. Bennett, intend to leave the country. Such men are valuable to any community and their departure would create a vacuum hard to fill. VICH IAN VOHR.

Stolen, between Lincoln and Ft. Stanton, on or about the 26th ult., one roan horse about 15 hands high, branded flare H (see brand Ryerson & Co. on second page) on left shoulder. Fifteen dollars reward for the return of the horse and $50 for the arrest and conviction of the thief.

A TEXAS COW-BOY;

Or Fifteen Years on the Hurricane Deck of a Spanish Pony.

Taken from real life by CHAS. A. SIMCOX, an old stove-up "cow-puncher," who has drifted over the ranges of Texas, Indian Territory, Kansas, New Mexico and part of old Mexico ever since the spring of 1867. The book is now in press and will be sold only by subscription. Order early, as there are only a limited number in the forthcoming edition. Price $1.00. Address the publishers, M. STOCK NEWS.

There are said to have not less than 50,000 head of cattle crossed the Yellowstone this season at Miles City, enroute to northern ranges. These cattle are valued at $20 each—$1,000,000.

In all of Arizona there was scarcely a more unpromising spot in which to seek for water than in the broad valley that stretches eastward from the Quijotas. But the sinking of an artesian well to the depth of several hundred feet by the mining company there developed an abundant supply to run its mine and mill, and further demonstrates the fact that a little capital invested in producing water will change some of the so-called deserts of Arizona into the finest cattle ranges in the world.—[Wilcox (Arizona) Stockman.

The Grand Junction (Colo.) New makes a statement for the benefit of small cattle owners: "The fact that large cattle owners simply aim to bring cattle through the winter alive, is the great reason why small owners can compete with them. By building shelter and raising alfalfa the small bunch of cattle is kept in all winter, while the large herd, that rustles, drops thirty per cent. of actual numbers, and can be placed on the market only when there is a glut. The small owner who is wise will not follow the system of the heavy owner."

The Stock Grower's Journal puts it in this shape: "There are over twenty millions of animals grazing over about 120,000,000 acres of western lands practically unfit for any other purpose. This live stock is worth more than $400,000,000. Is this industry then not of sufficient importance to attract the attention of Congress? Taking into consideration the fact that a great portion of this vast domain is totally unfit for anything but grazing purposes, it does seem that we ought to get such legislation as would give stability to the business." This seems logical.

Many cattlemen are selling off stock at present that it would pay well to keep for another year. Such wholesale disposal of cattle as have been made throughout eastern Oregon this season will result in higher prices next year. Parties from Montana have been buying and driving to that section and it would not surprise us to hear that these same cattle will be sold in the San Francisco and Portland markets next spring at double what they now bring. If the shipments continue for another month as they have in the past, the ranges will be used only by horses and sheep and there will not be enough beef to supply the home market.—[Baker City (Oregon) Democrat.

It is remarked that according to the census of 1880, Texas had more horses than Iowa, nearly twice as many cattle, three times as many mules and four times as sheep, while Iowa, outranked Texas only in the number of swine. Yet the total value of the live stock in Texas is placed at $60,000,000 while that of Iowa, with a less number, is placed at $124,000,000. There is an important lesson in these figures for the individual farmer. Values are not determined by numbers, but by quality. It is the superior quality of the Iowa stock which makes it worth more than twice as much per head as that of Texas. A farmer stocked with common scrub stock may not be as well off as he would be if he had but half the number of choice grades. All pure blooded animals of all breeds and kinds of stock are now going so cheap that these is little excuse for farmer who neglects the grading of his stock.—[Planter and Stockman.

It is strange but nevertheless a fact, that there are thousands of people who have little comprehension of the significance of small sums that come within the range of their every day experience. For instance, we read in the markets that steers are selling all the way from three to five cents. It seems a trifling matter which most people read about without comprehending that each cent's difference in the price represents a difference of $10 in the value of a 1,000 pound steer, and that taking the three-cent cattle and five-cent cattle as they come, the heavier grades will carry an additional $10 worth of meat for each cent difference in price.—[Hoof and Horn.

THE NEUTRAL STRIP.

An organization has been formed at Englewood, Clark county, for the colonization of the Neutral Strip. It has obtained a charter, one of the provisions of which is to "survey and locate towns on the public lands in western Kansas and the Neutral Strip and to colonize and make settlement on government lands in southwestern Kansas and the Neutral Strip, subject to settlement under the land laws of the United States."

The Englewood Chief, in referring to the "Strip," says: "This, by nature, highly favored section of country, is 35 miles wide and 190 miles long, is bounded on the north by Kansas and Colorado; west, New Mexico; south, Panhandle of Texas, and east by the Indian Territory. It is well watered by the Beaver and Cimarron rivers, with their tributaries, the former having considerable timber."

The country is bound to prove a great agricultural and stock raising country, the valleys and level lands for the former, the more broken portions the latter. These lands being unquestionably government lands, with no Indian right or title hanging over them, the boomers are quietly taking it by squatter's rights, who will then have a prior right to homestead when it is opened, as it surely will be within a few months.

The Chief furthermore says that "already boomers are pouring in, passing through Englewood, to get first choice of land."—[Dodge (Kansas) Cowboy.

TEXAS FEVER IN THE PANHANDLE.

The loss of cattle in the Panhandle from Texas Fever promises to be greater this summer than ever before. Daily the reports of cattle dying reach this place and already hundreds have succumbed to the dread disease. Such state of affairs in the face of the strenuous efforts made by the Panhandle Stock Association to prevent the importation of the southern cattle, shows clearly that had it not been for such action the losses would have been more than many of our stockmen could stand, and they would have been driven out of the business. On the Sweetwater the fever has broken out in several small bunches of cattle owned by men to whom the loss of half a dozen cows means a very serious curtailment of their means of livelihood, and that such should be made to suffer for the carelessness or cupidity of others seem hard. We venture the prediction that the number of southern Texas cattle driven into the country by trail next summer can be eaten by any healthy cowboy at one meal. If we misjudge not, the southern Texas dogies' time for traveling is past, once for all.—[Moberly (Tex.) Panhandle.

LINCOLN COUNTY DIRECTORY. Sheriff—J. W. Poe. Probate Clerk—J. W. Taliaferro.

DESPISED ACCOMPLISHMENT. Old Mr. Brown stood in his private office with his back to the fire and his feet balanced in either hand.

"And you want something to do?" "Yes, please." "Humph!" said Mr. Brown. Nelly glanced shyly into his face.

"You mean that you would like to do canvass, or now yellow sun-flowers on green plush screens," satirically observed the old gentleman. "I don't call that work."

And Nelly Torrance went home too a little second-hand room, the cheap watch the widow and her daughters could possibly find.

"These rich people are always miserly," said Miss Lucetta. "And I've understood," said the gentle little widow, "that he was not pleased when poor, dear Adrian married me instead of Miss Goldbags, the rich pawnbroker's daughter."

"What does he say?" questioned Lucetta, dropping the fold of crape which she was vainly endeavoring to fashion into what the fashion-plate called an "oblong bow."

symptoms. "If your Cousin Brown intends to insult us—" "But he doesn't intend to insult us," pleaded Nelly. "He intended the offer in all good faith, and I accepted it in the same good spirit."

It was six exactly when Mr. Brown let himself into his house with his latch-key, which always depended from his watch-chain. The gas-jet burned softly behind the rose-colored shade in the hall; the fire clicked cheerfully in the grate in the parlor beyond.

At the same moment a light, white aproned little figure came out of the dining-room beyond, and Nelly Torrance's voice uttered the words: "Dinner is ready, Cousin John."

Mr. Brown patted her hand as she helped him with his overcoat, and he decided to put up with any deficiencies in the cooking; but, to his infinite amazement, there were no deficiencies to overlook. He ate and relished and was pleased by turns.

"My dear," he said, at last, when the cloth was removed and the wine and walnuts brought on, "all is very nice. I'll concede that you are a tip-top housekeeper; but, of course, you ordered all this from Monerato's restaurant!"

"But of course I didn't, Cousin Brown," said Nelly decidedly. "I cooked it all myself." "Did you prepare that trout sauce and broil that pigeon?" "Yes, Cousin Brown."

"And that giblet pie—was that yours?" "Yes, and the giblet pie. Don't look so astonished, Cousin Brown," she added, laughing. "I may as well confess that I took a course of cooking lessons last summer; and I like it of all things, especially in a household like this, where one can command the very best materials."

THE EXPLORES OF THE CONGO valley are surprised by the crudity of life there. The natives have no domesticated beasts of any sort, nor do they raise or catch any animals to eat, as they know nothing of flesh as food.

and asked what they were looking at. "New family moving in there today," replied one. "Well, what of it?" "They've got a boy about as big as us."

"Well, what of that?" "Nothing, only we was trying him." At that moment the new boy appeared on the grass about twenty feet away. One of the boys on the fence made up a face at him. He promptly responded. Then another boy threw a stone at him. He hurled it back.

"Say, I'll lick you," called the biggest boy. "You can't do it." The four boys made as if they would jump over the fence, but the new boy stood firm.

"I'll dare you up here." "I'll dare you down here." "He's all right—he's game," said the big boy to the pedestrian. "If he was a coward we was going to lick him, but now we'll go over and let him have a whiff on our cigar stump."—[Detroit Free Press.

"Well, Robert, and how did you like Hamerica?" "Oh, Hi liked it well enough, ye know, only they live so blasted fast over there." "Do they, though?" "Aye, an' they do that. Why, blast if they don't live so fast that when they send a man to the prison for ten years he serves out his term in seven, ye know."

"So Mr. Witness, you swear that the time this theft was committed on the south side you saw the prisoner on the north side?" "Yes, sir." "Was he going toward the south side or was he coming from that direction?" "I can't answer that now."

EX-Postmaster-General Frank Hutton has a 14 year old son who resembles his distinguished father in many particulars. "Pa," said he the other day, "I've made up my mind where I would like to go to college." "Aha," replied his father, "and where is it, my boy?" "To Vassar," said the precocious child.

"Humph!" ejaculated the proud father, "darned if I wouldn't like to go there myself!"—[Chicago News.

FORAKER'S plurality in Ohio reaches about 18,500

AN Iowa man has recently left for England to take possession of a fortune of $15,000,000. Who wouldn't go away from home for that snug sum?

WITH the Ohio election came the usual frauds. Several Democratic clubs of that state have raised $5,000 to contest the election in Hamilton county.

THE Optic, by far the newsiest every-day-in-the-week paper published in the territory, will be sold soon to satisfy creditors. We hope Kistler may save himself yet.

IN REGARD to that legal notice being nearer White Oaks, we will only say that "two wrongs never make a right." When the editor comes over we will "whack up." As the late register is now out of public life, we have nothing more to say about him.

PAUL WAGNER, of the Rio Grande Republican, dropped in on us fellows Friday. He was around soliciting work for his paper, and was meeting with good success here. He didn't whack up that $40 with us, but he "set up" the cigars and we suppose that will have to suffice.

To show how mean some Republicans are, and what they will do to carry their point, we will call attention to one of the many tricks played by them in Ohio last week. The Republican Central Committee had a physician go to the soldier's home near Dayton, the evening before the election, and administer to all Democratic soldiers a big dose of croton oil, or enough to prevent their going to the polls next day. Wasn't that taking advantage of the poor soldier?

JUDGE VINCENT our Chief Justice, has been suspended by the President for appointing, it is supposed, Stephen W. Dorsey a commissioner to select grand and petit jurors. We will not comment on this removal, for such it is supposed to mean, only to remark that the young judge should have a chance to explain matters. If he has done anything grave enough to cause his removal, he should be asked to resign by all means, upon the other hand, if he has been lied about, he should be retained. He has given the best of satisfaction, and, although young, his rulings have been just and he has never shown any partiality. What will become of Webb?

The following taken from an exchange shows the sentiments expressed in the sermons of Sam Jones in a nutshell. How any true Christian can sanction such utterances is beyond our understanding. The preacher in White Oaks is made on the same plan: "Any man who takes a drink is a thief. The woman who goes to a theatre will go to hell. If I had a creed I would tie a tin can to its tail and chase it down the street. I am going to make it hot for some of you, and if there's a man in this congregation that don't want to be skinned from head to foot, let him git for I am coming. Father Abraham, about a hundred thousand strong, and with my coat tail sweeping the earth. Oh, you old bald-headed whiskey soak, I am after you. You smell like a demijohn. I'll bet a pair of country knit socks and a linsy shirt that you are about half full now. Your arms look like the handle of a jug, you old galoot. I wouldn't be in your place for a bushel of corn. You ain't got the sense of a mule steer, and converting you is about as slow a process as running a gallon of sorghum molasses through a goose quill in January. Oh, I've got you down fine. Now, brethren let us love the Lord awhile. We owe it all to Him, and we don't know how soon His collector will come around."

The second trial of Mrs. Minnie Wallace Walkup began Monday at Emporia, Kansas. She is accused of poisoning her husband and at the first trial the evidence was strongly against her. She is reported as being a handsome woman, which will have a great deal to do in clearing her.

LET HIM IN, LET HIM IN.

There is a man—a "Professor" man—who is engaged in running a paper—not a newspaper, but just a paper—at White Oaks who is hunting for a cattle ring.

If there be such a ring we give it our advice: take that man in! He wants to get in very much, and if there be such a ring, he will keep barking at it weekly until his mouth be closed by admission. So, let him in.

We well know such men; they are everywhere a paper can be found, or for a few dollars started. We found them, and in great numbers, in the great metropolis of the east, the city of the lakes, the queen-city and city of the mound.

Yes, we are familiar with such men in journalism, but the name we gave them was one very much uglier than we can give here to the one who is walking on the head of the cattle ring! When in the cities a journalist goes to work against any particular interest or business, with no other purpose than to attract attention, we dream that "blackmail" is in the air; and when, some days after that writer shuts his mouth and has no more to say, it is concluded that he has been "seen"—then we know it is different here. A man and a "Professor" at that, could be actuated only by the purest motives in this country, and yet we think of it, this territory has been the recognized home of more dishonest and unscrupulous adventurers than any state or territory in the west. But the time is at hand, when the good of men will be the peoples guide and not what possible nondescripts may say.

When the White Oaks "Professor" intimates that he even might be acquainted with the private views and intentions of Governor Ross as to the laws relative to cattle ranging, he willfully and with words that deceive (therefore lie) misleads the people of the good town of White Oaks and such others as read his paper. We speak by the card and tell the people of Lincoln county that the Interpreter of White Oaks will not receive the confidence of territorial or governmental administration.

We have examined into this "Professor's" record as a citizen of this county and find he is a shouter from the woods and a kicker from the fantastic limits of Kickersburg;—a political place hunter, sore-head and—just here we pause to remark that if we had that head we would cut it off and trade it for a calf's, for we could bellow louder and that's about all that head is good for.

The Stock Grower is the sore-eye of the earth to the "Professor" and he calls it the "mouthpiece" of the cattlemen.

Now if the Interpreter were selected as that mouthpiece! Ah! We are of the conclusion that it's all a case of "if-you-don't-keep-me-quiet-I'll-make-noise."

"Professor," we are of the sub-conclusion that you'll have to "beller."

HENRY W. SHAW, better known as "Josh Billings," died in California last week.

If some young man wants a good deal of wife and can wait a few years, he can get one in Hartford, Conn. The young miss is now but 14 years old, and pulls down the scale at 304 pounds.

A bed-room rocking chair is well known to be one of the most vicious articles in the domestic economy. How many bruised shins has it caused, how many profane oaths has it evoked? A young man in New York City was found dead in his room Monday morning, after a fatal wrestle with this terrible foe. His neck was tightly wedged between the rungs, and it was plain that he had fought bravely before being overcome.
