President Proclaims June 28th as National War Savings

Washington, D. C., May 30, 1918.

A Proclamation By the President of the United States:

This war is one of nations, not of armies, and all of our one hundred million people must be economically and industrially adjusted to war conditions if this nation is to play its full part in the conflict. The problem before us is not primarily a financial problem, but rather a problem of increased production of war essentials and the saving of the materials and the labor necessary for the support and equipment of our army and pavy. Thoughtless expenditure of money for nonessentials uses up the labor of men, the products of the farms, mines and factories, and overburdens transportation, all of which must be used to the utmost and at their best for war

The great results which we seek can be obtained only by the participation of every member of the nation, young and old, in a national concerted thrift movement. I therefore urge that our people everywhere pledge themselves, as suggested by the Secretary of the Treasury, to the practice of thrift, to serve the Government to their utmost in increasing production in all fields necessary to the winning of the war, to conserve food and fuel and useful materials of every kind, to devote their labor only to the most necessary tasks, and to buy only those things which are essential to individual health and efficiency, and that the people, as evidence of their loy-alty, invest all that they can save in Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. The securities issued by the Treasury Department are so many of them within the reach of every one that the door of opportunity in this matter is widle open to all of us. To practice thrift in peace times is a virtue and brings great benefit to the individual at all times; with the desperate need of the civilized world today for materials and labor with which to end the war, the practice of individual thrift is a patriotic duty and a necessity.

I appeal to all who now own either Liberty Bonds or War Savings Stamps to continue to practice economy and thrift, and to appeal to all who do not own government securities to do likewise, and purchase them to the extent of their means. The man who buys government securities transfers the purchasing power of his money to the United States Government until after this war, and to that same degree does not buy in competition with the Government.

I earnestly appeal to every man, woman and child to pledge themselves on or before the 28th of June to save constantly and to buy as regularly as possibly the securities of the government, and to do this as far as possible through membership in War Savings Societies. The 28th of June ends this special period of enlistment in the great volunteer army of production and saving here at home. May there be none unenlisted on that day.

AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT

ARTHUR BUY ETPEY

EMPEY HAS NARROW ESCAPE WHILE ON PATROL DUTY IN NO MAN'S LAND.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty.

CHAPTER XVI-Continued. -13-Quite a contrast to Wilson was another character in our brigade named Scott; we called him "Old Scotty" on account of his age. He was fifty-seven, although looking forty. "Old Scotty" had been born in the Northwest and had served in the Northwest Mounted police. He was a typical cowpuncher and Indian fighter and was a dead shot with the rifle, and took no pains to disguise this fact from us. He used to take care of his rifle as if it were a baby. In his spare moments you could always see him cleaning it or polishing the stock. Woe betide the man who by mistake happened to get hold of this rifle; he soon found out his error. Scott was as deaf as a mule, and it was amusing at parade to watch him in the manual of arms, slyly glancing out of the corner of his eye at the man next to him to see what the order was. How he passed the doctor was a mystery to us; he must have bluffed his way through, because he certainly was independent. Beside him the Fourth of July looked like Good Friday. He wore at the time a large sombrero, had a Mexican stock saddle over his shoulder, a lariat on his arm, and a "forty-five" hanging from his hip. Dumping this parapher-nalla on the floor he went up to the recruiting officer and shouted: "I'm whole platoon to fags. Being a Yank, Old Scotty took a liking to me and used to spin some great yarns about the plains, and the whole platoon would drink these in and ask for more. Ananias was a rookle compared with him.

The ex-plainsman and discipline could not agree, but the officers all liked him, even if he was hard to manage, so when he was detailed as a sniper a sigh of relief went up from the officers' mess,

Old Scotty had the freedom of the brigade. He used to draw two or three days' rations and disappear with his glass, range finder and rifle, and we would see or hear no more of him until suddenly he would reappear with a couple of notches added to those already on the butt of his rifle. Every time he got a German it meant another notch. He was proud of these

But after a few months Father Rheumatism got him and he was sent to Blighty; the air in the wake of his stretcher was blue with curses. Old Beotty surely could swear; some of his outbursts actually burned you.

No doubt, at this writing, he is "somewhere in Blighty" pussy footing it on a bridge or along the wall of some munition plant with the "G. R." or Home Defense corps.

CHAPTER XVII.

Out in Front. After ten Lieutenant Stores of our section came into the dugout and informed me that I was "for" a reconnoitering patrol and would carry six Mills bombs

At 11:80 that night twelve men, our lieutenant and myself went out in front on a patrol in No Man's Land.

We cruised around in the dark for about two hours, just knocking about looking for trouble, on the lookout for Boche working parties to see what they were doing.

Around two in the morning we were carefully picking our way about thirty yards in front of the German barbed wire, when we walked into a Boche covering party nearly thirty strong. Then the music started, the fiddler rendered his bill, and we paid. Fighting in the dark with a bayonet is not very pleasant. The Germans took it on the run, but our officer was no novice at the game and didn't follow them. He gave the order "down on the ground, hug it close." Just in time, too, because a volley skimmed over our heads. Then in low tones we were told to separate and crawl back to our trenches, each man on his own.

We could see the flashes of their rifles in the darkness, but the bullets were going over our heads. We lost three men killed and one wounded in the arm. If it hadn't been for our officer's quick thinking the whole patrol would have probably been wiped out,

After about twenty minutes' wait we went out again and discovered that the Germans had a wiring party working on their barbed wire. We returned to our trenches unobserved with the a d-d mud-crunching outfit, but the information and our machine guns immediately got busy.

The next night four men were sent out to go over and examine the German barbed wire and see if they had cut lanes through it; if so, this presaged an early morning attack on our trenches.

Of course I had to be one of the four selected for the job. It was just like sending a fellow to the undertaker's to order his own coffin.

At ten o'clock we started out, armed with three bombs, a bayonet and revolver. After getting into No Man's Land we separated. Crawling four or five feet at a time, ducking star shells, with strays cracking overhead, I reached their wire. I scouted along this inch by inch, scarcely breathing. I could hear them talking in their trench, my heart was pounding against my ribs. One false move or the least noise from me meant discovery and almost certain death.

After covering my sector I quietly crawled back. I had gotten about half way when I noticed that my revolver was missing. It was pitch dark, I turned about to see if I could find it: It couldn't be far away, because about three or four minutes previously I had felt the butt in the holster. I crawled around in circles and at last found it. then started on my way back to our trenches, as I thought.

Pretty soon I reached barbed wire, and was just going to give the password when something told me not to. I put out my hand and touched one of the barbed wire stakes. It was iron. The British are of wood, while the German are iron. My heart stopped Saloon." Upon the suggestion of one beating; by mistake I had crawled back to the German lines.

I turned slowly about and my tunic caught on the wire and made a loud ripping noise.

A sharp challenge rang out. sprang to my feet, ducking low, and ran madly back toward our lines. The Germans started firing. The bullets were biting all around me, when bang! or a Southern negro.

I ran smash into our wire, and a sharp challenge, "'Alt, who comes there?" rang out. I gasped out the password, and, groping my way through the lane in the wire, tearing my hands and uniform, I tumbled into our trench and was safe, but I was a nervous wreck for an hour, until a drink of rum brought me round.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Staged Under Fire.

Three days after the incident just related our company was relieved from the front line and carried. We stayed in reserve billets for about two weeks when we received the welcome news that our division would go back of the line "to rest billets." We would remain in these billets for at least two months, this in order to be restored to our full strength by drafts of recruits from Blighty.

Everyone was happy and contented at these tidings; all you could hear around the billets was whistling and singing. The day after the receipt of the order we hiked for five days, making an average of about twelve kilos per day until we arrived at the small town of O'-

It took us about three days to get settled, and from then on our cushy time started. We would parade from 8:45 in the morning until 12 noon Then except for an occasional billet or brigade guard we were on our own For the first four or five afternoons I spent my time in bringing up to date my neglected correspondence.

Tommy loves to be amused, and being a Yank, they turned to me for something new in this line. I taught them how to pitch horseshoes, and this game made a great hit for about ten days. Then Tommy turned to America for a new diversion. I was up in the air until a happy thought came to me. Why not write a sketch and break Tommy in as an actor?

One evening after "lights out," when you are not supposed to talk, I imparted my scheme in whispers to the section. They eagerly accepted the idea of forming a stock company and could hardly wait until the morning for further details.

After parade, the next afternoon I was almost mobbed. Everyone in the section wanted a part in the proposed sketch. When I informed them that it would take at least ten days of hard work to write the plot, they were bitterly disappointed. I immediately got busy, made a desk out of biscuit tins in the corner of the billet, and put up a sign "Empey & Wallace Theatrical Co." About twenty of the section, upon reading this sign, immediately applied for the position of office boy. I accepted the twenty applicants, and sent them on scouting parties throughout the deserted French village. These parties were to search all the attics for discarded civilian clothes, and anything that we could use in the props of our proposed company.

About five that night they returned covered with grime and dust, but loaded down with a miscellaneous assortment of everything under the sun. They must have thought that I was going to start a department store, judging from the different things they brought back from their pillage.

After eight days' constant writing I completed a two-act farce comedy which I called "The Diamond Palace of the boys in the section I sent a proof of the program to a printing house in London. Then I assigned the different parts and started rehearsing. David Belasco would have thrown up his hands in despair at the material which I had to use. Just imagine trying to teach a Tommy, with a strong cockney accent, to impersonate a Bowery tough Adjacent to our billet was an op field. We got busy at one end of it and constructed a stage. We secured the lumber for the stage by demolishing an old wooden shack in the rear of our billet.

The first scene was supposed to represent a street on the Bowery in New York, while the scene of the second act was the interior of the Diamond Palace saloon, also on the Bowery.

In the play I took the part of Abe Switch, a farmer, who had come from Pumpkinville Center, Tenn., to make his first visit to New York.

In the first scene Abe Switch meets the proprietor of the Diamond Palace saloon, a ramshackle affair which to the owner was a financial loss.

The proprietor's name was Tom Twistem, his bartender being named Fillem Up.

After meeting Abe, Tom and Fillem Up persuaded him to buy the place, praising it to the skies and telling wondrous tales of the money taken over the bar.

NO OUTWARD SIGN OF GRIEF

Dumb Agony of Cossack Woman, Tak-ing Leave of Mate, More Impressive Than Flow of Tears.

It was the square of Yurievets (on the Volga) that one of those tragic fragments which life casts up like driftwood was flung at our feet. A Cossack's leave-taking of his mate: that was all, a million times repeated in a million different izbas, in that one summer. But it was more—symbol of woman's ancient and inarticulate grief.

These shawled and booted women of the North are too burdened with earth's sorrow to weep; they are like dumb cattle in their woe. The soldier himself was openly wiping his eyes on his coarse, dusty, brown sleeve, while under both arms he clutched absurdly two enormous loaves of black bread. A dingy little child in its mother's arms fluttered uncomprehending hands in the direction of the steamer; but from the Mongol-cheeked, gray-eyed woman there was no sign.

She neither touched her man in farewell, nor offered any of those small caresses by which we seek to mitigate our grief. The sullen silence of the North had laid its finger upon her, but her eyes followed her mate with the wild, unreasonable grief of the forest sprung. She stood still star-ing, unaware of the baby in her arms, while the steamer moved slowly out into the gray mists. Long after dusk had closed down, I could see her face straining in the gloaming like a mask of despair .- Olive Gilbreath in the Yale Review.

"Redhead" Is Farmers' Friend.

"Redhead" is a regular doctor of the fruit orchard, systematically searching every crack and crevice in the bark, and testing with his sharp little augur every spot which looks as though it might conceal beneath the bark a tree-borer. The hundreds of little holes drilled in the bark do not hurt the apple trees, but they mean that many an apple-borer has been discovered and transfixed on redhead's spearlike tongue, to be swallowed a second later with keen relish, or taken away to a gaping fledgling.

The red-headed woodpecker usually, selects a partly decayed tree in which to chisel a hole for its nest. Both father and mother bird take turns in the excavating. The one that is off duty forages in the vicinity for grubs, beetles, a little corn, and preferably beech nuts. At a loving call from its mate it returns promptly to take its turn on the job-about 20 minutes or half an hour to the shift. "Redhead" has a thrifty habit of storing away nuts for the winter, frequently to be appropriated, however, by the squir-

To Make Your Shoes Last

When your shoe leather gets dry ov hard, you should oil or grease it, says the popular Science Monthly. To do this, first brush off all mud and then wash the shoe in warm water, drying it with a soft cloth.

While the shoe is still wet, apply the oll or grease, rubbing it in with a swab of wool, or better still, with the palm of the hand. After treatment, the shoes should be left to dry in a warm but not in a hot place. Castor oil is recommended for shoes that are to be polished. For plainer footgear, fish oil and oleine or any one of the less expensive oils may be substituted with very good results.

It has been estimated that the wire in the cores and sheathing of the world's submarine cables that have been made since they were first used in 1857, would reach from the earth to the moon.

CHIROPRACTIC

What the Science is and what it has accomplished

Within recent years sensible people in all parts of the world have awakened to the fact that the science of chiropractic is the most remarkable and wonderful discovery of the twentith century. At first the sceptical refused to believe that the causes of various diseases could be removed, and the disease itself cured, by the simple science of chiroproctic, but the results that have been obtained in recent years have cast aside all semblence of doubt. Today the science is recognized as the most remarkable discovery of the medical world, and every day brings new converts to the new, but thoroly tried, method of curing.

And there is a reason why the science of chiropractic should have a large following. Common sense tells us that the brain is the power plant of the body, a wonderful dynamo that radiates the power to give us life-and the spinal column is the medium thru which the brain conducts its life-giving power, Any pressure on the nerve where it leaves the vertebral column must necessarily cause disease in that organ or tissue at which the nerve ends. In order to control this disease it is necessary to get at and relieve this presure, and right there is where the science of chiropractic performs a wonderful service. Chiropractic is a simple study of the spinal column and the brain-the nerve center of the human body. Chiropractors are successfully removing the causes of stomach, bowel liver, kidney, head, throat and lung trouble. Even acute and chronic cases are yielding readily to this science. Patients who have long suffered and who have given up all hope of recovering from various disease have found relief and in many cases complete cure from chiropractic methods.

Clayton and Union County people are particularly fortunate in having Dr. Morietta Murphy, a graduate chiropractor, in this community. Dr. Murphy has made an extensive study of the science of chiropractic and the fet that she is producing excelent results from the practice science is evidenced by the large number of patients she has in this and neighboring counties. Many sufferers come to Dr. Murphy from neighboring tates for tratment.

BRITISHER HAS CROP DOUBLER

Farmer Proposes New Method to Increase the Yield of the Soil.

Proves Successful in the Experimental Stage-British Government Exports Are Much Impressed With Possibilities.

London.-In these days of cereal and ceeds in growing two blades where one grew before would be looked upon as a public benefactor, but an English farmer has succeeded in going one fodder. The great convenience of July better and writes to the Times to give details of the new method.

He suggests that if his plan is adopted there will be more grazing this year, more beef next winter, more oats, wheat and hay in 1919, and more grazin 1919. If the new method is as successful over a large acreage as it has proved to be in the experimental stage it may rightly be termed a discovery in agriculture.

The new method is as follows: In July, by the use of a specially devised drill, a winter cereal and an artificial fertilizer are simultaneously drilled through any grass land intended for haying the following year. By September or October the cereal will have made a top growth of from eight to ten inches. This is then grazed off with the grass by whatever live stock is turned out upon it, and the grain, nominally an annual, is thus turned into a blennial by virtue of its yield of valuable grazing in the autumn preceding the year of the normal grain

Double Crop.

The autumn grazing encourages and strengthens the roots of the cereal. Owing to the protection from frost given by the covering of turf, normal spring growth begins earlier, more heads are thrown up, development is more rapid, and the grain ripens at the same time as the hay, both being harvested together. The harvesting is done by means of an ordinary mowing machine fitted with an extra knife at the proper height above the grass to cut the heads of the grain. The lower knife cuts the hay as usual and the upper knife acts as a header.

A carrier behind the "header" knife deposits the grain in a separate is doubled. Old and valuable grass lands are not only not destroyed, but CLAIMS MANY ADVANTAGES are improved. Economy of labor throughout; plowing and harrowing are not needed; both crops are gathered together, planting and rolling are done at the same time, and the grain crop is gathered with ease and certainty, as there is no green growth with the grain to be stood in the sun to dry. > planting for the farmer. Saves Permanent Pasture.

It is asserted that under this method no permanent pasture need be broken up, rather that the larger part of the arable land might be put down to permanent pasture. The permanent pastures are in hay and corn one year and grazed the next. In the spring of the grazing year seeds of annual legumes can be planted through the pastures with the same machine as is used to drill in the grain, not only on account of their feeding value, but also to increase the nitrogen in the soil for the following cereal crop.

The drilling of the seed through the turf is accomplished by a small knife bladed foot that can be attached to any drill in place of the disk.

Government experts have been so impressed with the possibilities of the method that priority certificates have been granted for the manufacture of the fittings or the import of any parts which may be necessary if they cannot be obtained here in time for this season's planting.

TREES FOR PALESTINE

Civilian Commission Will Make Recommendation.

Aforestation and Improvement of Water Supplies Greatest of Country's Needs.

London.-Two principal recommendations which the civilian commission now in Palestine will make for the reconstruction of that country will be a scheme for beginning aforestation, and a proposal for the conservation of water supply by storage and by opening up old springs.

A preliminary statement from a member of the committee says: "The greatest of all Palestine's needs is aforestation. For centuries the land has been denuded of its trees, with most disastrous consequences. For the heavy rains at certain seasons, instead of benefiting the soil, over more than four-fifths of the area carry away in rushing torrents much of the little soil that remains on the high lands and valley stopes.

"Palestine has not always been treeless. The Roman emperors had valable forest in the country, and Absalom was caught by the hair among the trees, but today one might gallop from Dan to Beersheba without having to duck one's head to avoid a branch.

"Trees of rapid growth will be planted, and for the more cultivable districts fruit-bearing trees will be utilized.

"The storage of water in lakes and reservoirs is comparatively simple. By erecting small dams across certain ways, a series of small reservoirs can be constructed at little expense, creating a supply that will last throughout the dry season. In southern Palestine hundreds of natural springs can be opened which under centuries of misrule have been allowed to choke up and fall into disuse.

"Palestine today possesses an advantage it never had before in a firstclass railway connection with Egypt. All the surplus crops will find a ready market in the growing Egyptian

The consolidated school system is being tried out in some districts in the county and is proving to be very successful. The consolidated school at Sedan is one of the most efficient schools in the county. The school employs four teachers and includes ten grades. It is a consolidation of six one-room schools. This year four automobile trucks were used in the district hauling the children to and from school, and the district is growing so rapidly that it is expected that four trucks will have to be used next year.

Plans are under way and money has been provided for many improvemnts in the rural schools this year. These improvements will include play-ground equipment, new library books, new desks and other things that will bring about a higher degree of efficiency.

Taken as a whole the schools in Union County are well up to the state, and within a few more years this county should be recognized as the best school county in the state.

ABOUT THE WAR

Another "peace offensive" by Germany and Austria-Hungary apparently is in the air.

On June 10 four German planes and one captive balloon were brought down by French pursuit machines.

Von Hindenburg is showing a bloody determination to pay General Foch's ghastly price for the capture of Compiegne.

British airmen brought down 336 Germans in less than three weeks, up to June 2, of which 283 were totally destroyed

Gen. Semenoff, leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces in Siberia, has driven back the Russian troops which had crossed the Onon river, in Transbalk-

Torpedoing of the Harpathian brought the German sinking record on the Atlantic coast to fourteen-six steamers and eight schooners, with a loss of thirty lives.

Nine hundred and forty-one casualties have been inflicted by German air raids on allied hospitals in the last three weeks, J. I. Macpherson, under secretary of the admiralty, announced in the House of Commons.

Since the new offensive began along the Soissons-Rheims sector May 27, it is asserted by the German official communication that the army group of the German crown prince has taken about 75,000 allied troops captive.

Near Busslares, northwest of Chateau Thierry, the Americans and French on Monday again delivered strong attacks against the Germans and took more ground. They also captured a number of prisoners and thirty machine guns. On the remainder of the front in France and Belgium the operations have been of a minor nature, although south of the Somme the British near Bouzencourt have carried out an operation which straightened out a threatening salient that sagged in their line.

The French have struck the Germans a hard blow along a front of about seven and a half miles, between Rubescourt and St. Maure, recapturing Belloy, Genlis wood and the heights between Courcells and Mortemer. The official announcement by the Paris war office of this gain says that the Germans suffered heavy losses and left more than 1,000 prisoners and some guns in the hands of the French. Several violent enemy attacks on Chevincourt were repulsed, but the Germans gained a footing in Machemont and Bethancourt, which places are being bitterly disputed. "American troops brilliantly carried Bellau wood taking 300 prisoners."

Indications that the freight rates effective June 25 under the McAdoo order are to be modified, so far as they concern Colorado, have been received at the statehouse in a telegram to George T. Bradley, chairman of the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, from Max Thelen, chairman of the war committee of the National Association of Railway and Utility Commission-

A blasting hot wind for two days with the thermometer at 97 degrees in the shade has given a setback to the wheat crop in northern Montana.

Denver's Colorado day celebration will include a massive historical pageant, in which the earliest days of the region now known as Colorado, beginning with the time of the cliff dwellers, the Indians and the Mexicans, will be revived. Early statehood scenes. pioneer activities and, finally, the present-day agricultural and mineral activities will be included in the pageant which is to be held Aug. 1 at the Auditorium.

WASHINGTON

A call for 9,000 selective men of Class 1, for limited military service, was issued by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

Men of the 1918 class of draft registrants may enlist in the navy and marine corps, according to a new ruling by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

The real objective of the whole German offensive program still lies between Amiens and Arras, in the opinion of many army observers in Washington.

A military convention between America and Great Britain will be ratified soon, Lord Cecil, minister of blockade, announced in the House of Commons in London.

A serious revolt has broken out among the Austrian troops concentrated on the east front, according to an undated dispatch from Kieff, received through Moscow,

The long distance bombardment of Paris was resumed Tuesday morning. Two persons were killed and nine were wounded in Monday's bombardment, according to Paris Eclair.

A Belfast steamship torpedoed by a German submarine while bound from England has reached an Irish port badly damaged. Three of the crew were killed by the explosion of the torpedo.

A dispatch to the London Times from The Hague quotes a neutral who has arrived there from Germany as stating that an epidemic of black smallpox is raging among the workmen of the Krupp plant at Essen.

How the captors of three American soldiers on the sector northwest of Chateau-Thierry unwittingly led them back into the allied lines owing to the tangled conditions of the fighting front there, is told by the correspondent of the London Times with the American army in France. Corporal Sidney W. Rogers and Privates Raymond Howard and Frank P. Ridgway were captured at Hill 204. Two Germans started with them to the rear, but became confused and walked straight into the French lines and themselves were taken prisoner.

Commenting on the new German offensive the London Star says: "The third phase of the battles which commenced March 21 may well decide the fate of Germany. It cannot decide the fate of the allies, for whatever may be the issue they will fight on until America and the American armies can turn the scale and deliver the world forever from Prussian hegemony. The Germans are not going to win. There are great armies of the French and the British between them and Paris. We expect those armies, with the rapidly-increasing American army, to beat them flat. We decline to go half way toward defeat of any kind. We believe in victory and nothing but victory. We have beaten the Germans in a hundred battles since Mons. We shall beat them now."

SPORT

Charlie White, lightweight boxer, has become boxing instructor at Fort Sheridan, Ill. He formerly served at Camps Grant and Custer.

Arthur Duray, the noted French driver, entered the 100-mile automobile derby to be raced over the Chicago speedway course on June 22.

Directors of the Southern Association of Professional Baseball Clubs at Birmingham, Ala., voted unanimously to end the present season on June 28. Lack of interest in the game, increased transportation costs under the new passenger rates and the draft expected pledges for war savings stamps. to be made on players as the result of Provost Marshal General Crowder's 'work or fight" regulations were assigned as reasons for the action.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

West Point, N. Y., June 13 .- More than a million American men will be in service in France in the near future, declared Secretary of War Baker in an address to 137 graduates of the United States Military Academy. Supplementing his recent announcement in Washington that United States troops "exceeding 700,000 in number" have disembarked on French soil, the secretary told the cadets "it is not unfair to speculate that we will shortly pass the million mark."

Secretary Baker, who awarded the diplomas to the graduates, told them they were destined to have a part in leading the armies of the nation to a victorious peace. "After that," he said, "as officers of the regular army, you will prepare, not for war, but be ready for another war if anybody wants to make it."

Paris, June 12.—Further gains have been made by the French trops in the fighting in the region between Montdidier and Noyon, where, in addltion to the capture of territory near Belloy and St. Maur, the center of the line, 400 additional Germans have been made prisoner and some guns and machine guns have been taken. Numerous German counter attacks have been repulsed, but the enemy succeeded at one point in crossing the Matz river. On the eastern side of the Oise river the French have carried out a strategic retirement along the line of Belloy, Tracy-le-Val and Nampcel, unobserved by the enemy.

Further south, north of the Marne, in the region of Chateau Thierry, the French have recaptured the village of Montcourt and a portion of the village of Brussiares.

In violent fighting between the Aisne river and the forest of Villers Cotterets the enemy made slight gains against the French.

To the north of Montdidier the Germans several times have tried to drive out the Americans from the village of Cantigny, but each time they have been repulsed. One party of forty Germans was routed by the revolver fire of the defenders of the village.

Northwest of Chateau Thierry the Germans have thrown five divisions against the Americans fighting side by side with the French, but without avail. Attempts by the enemy to recapture the village of Bouresches went

South of the Aisne river there has been fierce fighting down to the region of Villers Cotterets, where the Germans are attempting to break through and bring their line west of Solssons toward Complegue. Except that the combats were particularly severe on the front of Domniers, Cutry and south of Ambleny, no further details are available.

Bold U-Boat Captain Keeps Submarine on Surface for Two Days Transferring Cargoes.

New York, June 13 .- The audacity of a German submarine captain, who kept his vessel on the surface for two days while transferring to the U-boat eighty tons of copper from the Norwegian steamship Vindeggen, which was halted 120 miles off Cape Hatteras. was described by officers of the freighter. The Vindeggen's crew and that of the Henrik Lund, also a Norwegian, numbering 68, were brought to this port aboard the Danish steamship Brosund, after their craft had been sunk by the Teuton raider.

The Henrik Land hove in sight and was signaled by the submarine just at the latter was finishing its looting of the Vindeggen cargo, said members of the crews. The German commander ordered both the ship's companies into their boats and sent the two vessels to the bottom with bombs.

This brings the total of vessels sunk by U-boats since they began their campaign in these waters to eighteen, Registered Men in Defered Classes May Be Inducted into the "Army Behind the Army in Front' as Volunteer War Workers ...

TO ALL LOCAL BOARDS

Gentlemen:

Governor Lindsey is in receipt of the following telegram which quote for your information:

No. E. 1318. The Military Aeronoutics Branch is in need of certain skilled men. Men qualified for special or limited military service only will or limited military service only will be accepted under this call. Men qualified for general military service are not desired for this service.

Repeated requests have been received at this office for an opportunity for limited service men to enter the service. These men will be engaged in spruce production work. If properly presented should appeal strongly to qualified registrants. The following types of men are desired:

Locomotive engineers, Firemen Railroad grade foremen, Railroad track foremen, Wooden bridge carpenters, Locomotive repairmen, Telephone, linemen, Surveyors or railroad instrument men. Telegraphers, Draftsmen, Pile driver formen, Stationery engineers for donkey engines Steamshovel, operators, Carpenters, Steamfitters, Electricians, Auto Mechanics, Auto drivers, Cooks Bailroad brakemen, Railroad conductors, Clerks and a large number of labor-

Please give the widest publicity to this matter, using the Nation's Want Column method while was recently so successful, and urge technically qualifled registrants to present themselves to their Local Board forlistening. If sufficient number of volunteers are not secured, involuntary induction will be used. On June seventh wire thi office the number of qualified volunteers listed on each of the above occupations which we may expect from your stat.. Upon receipt of this information we will make definite allotments and advise complete moblization details.

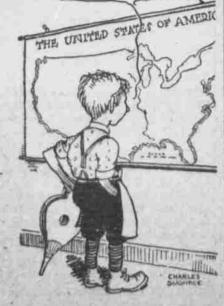

Local boards must thoroly understand that these registrants are not to be inducted ino service until orders are received as to allottments, and that only white, limited service men are to be considered.

Crowder. Please wire me on June 6th, the number of men who have volunteered under the various trades. Any registrant fit to do a day's work ean qualify. This will be an exceptional they mature. Such Must Be Plan of Victorious Army, Says Foch.

Allied Generalissimo Declares Well On ganized Reserves, Delivering Bludgeon Blow at Proper Time and Place Will Destroy the Enemy.

London.-Victory can be won in the end only by the army that takes the offensive, and success in this depends on husbanding and instructing the reserves. So declares General Foch in the weekly journal, the Field.

"Modern warfare, to arrive at its end and to impose its will on the enemy," General Foch says, "recognizes only one means-destruction of the enemy's organized forces.

"War undertakes and prepares this destruction by battle, which brings about the overthrow of the adversary, disorganizes his command, destroys his discipline, and nullifies his units as far as their fighting power is concerned.

No Victory in Defense.

"Our first axiom must be that to achieve its object a battle must not be purely defensive. A purely defensive battle, even well conducted, does not result in a victor and a vanquished. It is simply a game that must be begun over again.

"From this it is an obvious corollary that an offensive, whether started at the beginning of an action or whether it follows the defensive, can only give results, and, in consequence, must always be adopted at the finish.

"To maintain our position is not synonymous with being victorious and even prepares for a defeat. If we remain where we are and do not pass to the offensive to fix the direction of attack, to guard against the plans of the enemy, and prevent him from carrying out the same maneuver, we must undertake to carry on and sustain numerous combats, each with determined

All Depends on Reserve.

"But since there remains no doubt that decisive attack is the very keystone of a battle, all other actions which make up a battle must be envisaged, considered, organized, provided with forces in the measure in which they will prepare, facilitate, and guarantee development of a decisive attack characterized by its mass, its surprise, its speed, and for which, in consequence, it is essential that there shall be the maximum reserve force possible of troops of maneuver.

"The reserve—that is to say, the prepared bludgeon-is organized and kept carefully instructed to execute the single act of battle from which results are expected-namely, the decisive attack.

Surprise, Mass and Speed.

"Reserves must be husbanded with the most extreme parsimony so that the bludgeon may be strong enough to make the blow as violent as possible. Let loose at the finish, without any lurking idea of saving them, with a well thought out plan for winning the battle at a point chosen and detergether in an action surpassing in violence and energy all other phases of battle, an action with proper characteristics—surprise, mass, and speed. All our forces really participate, either by preparing it or by carrying it out.

"In this, our supreme aim, we must not be deceived by appearances. Although theory fails when applied by feeble hands and when accessories obscure the main principle, history and reason show us that in battle there is a single argument which is worth while -namely, decisive attack, which is alone capable of assuring the desired result-the overthrow of the adversary."

Inverted Point of View.

There was a rush of wind, a cloud of dust, and the car rushed on, leaving the old gentleman sprawling in the roadway. He picked himself up and dashed up to a policeman, yelling excitedly:

"That motorcar knocked me down!" The policeman took out a businesslike notebook and said:

"Did you notice the number, sir?"
"Yes," said the injured one. "It was number 66."

Just then another policeman, who had seen the accident, came hurrying up and said: "No, no! The number's 99. This gentieman was standing on his head when he noticed it!"

Work That Will Pass.

Some young people are satisfied if they are doing work that will "pass." They are conscious of its defects, but if these are passed over without a challenge, they feel that they have done well enough. Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.) PLANT DISEASES AT MARKETS

This Excellent Food Has Been Converted Into Waste by Disease Germs Whose Ravages Could Have Been Prevented.

TO PREVENT LOSS

Inspectors Detect Diseased Vegetables and Fruit Arriving at Destination.

COUNTY AGENT IS NOTIFIED

Belling Value of Inferior Product Is Decreased When Arriving on Market-Steps Taken to Combat Various Disorders.

To check the loss from plant diseases in shipments—which also means a loss of time, labor, material, and transportation-the food products inspectors of the bureau of markets stationed in most of the large receiving centers now keep close watch for plant diseases on fruits and vegetables arriving on the markets,

Bad Product Not Wanted.

Diseased fruits and vegetables are not wanted in the markets any more than on the farm, and when carlot shipments arrive showing evidence of plant diseases their selling value is decreased even if none of the produce must be thrown away. Sometimes, in the case of very perishable crops, like berries or lettuce, there are serious losses of food because the shipments mined, reserves are thrown in all to- carried plant diseases when loaded. While no shipper would knowingly load badly infected fruits or vege tables, such produce may reach the markets in poor condition because the disease was present when loaded and developed in transit. This is especially true where shipments are made without providing proper ventilation or refrigeration.

Steps to Combat Disease.

Whenever shipments of produce suffering from plant diseases arrive the inspectors immediately notify the shipper, and through the pathologists of the department of agriculture the county agent in the locality where the diseased shipment originated is instructed to take steps to combat the

Although the inspection service has been in operation only a few months as a part of the general inspection work of the department in certifying to shippers the condition of carlot shipments as they arrive at markets, already it has resulted in the detection of diseases in many shipments, and has aided growers and plant pathclogists of the department in controlling the outbreaks of diseases and preventing their spreading to other sections of the country.

Shortage of Harvest Labor.

Of all the agricultural labor problems confronting the farmers of the country at this time, probably the most serious is that of getting enough help to harvest the wheat crop. In normal times there was a shifting population of from 30,000 to 50,000 men who followed the harvest season from the South to the North of the wheat belt. Floating labor is no longer available to any such great extent, and the matter of harvest labor, always a problem, is now a more serious one. Mr. E. H. Frizell, the department of agriculture's farm help specialist for Kansas, recently wrote: "After full and complete investigation, I am free to say it appreciates manure.

that the farmers of Kansas will not be able to save the wheat crop unless they can get help from some of the surrounding states." What is true of Kansas is probably true of most of the other wheat states. The department of agriculture and the department of labor, with fairly adequate funds available, are using their best efforts to solve the problem, which they undoubtedly will do. But the city people of the states involved, by proper organization and co-operation, can help a great deal. If they care at all for more wheat bread and less war bread during the next 12 months, they will help a great deal. If their patriotism is at all manifest, not to say militant, they will help a great deal. For the nation to mature a wheat crop and then fall to harvest it would be exactly as bad policy as for the government to mobilize and train an army and then poison it.

 дуворвуворвуворвуворвуворвувор PLANT FOOD DISEASES

You know something of how the United States department of Agriculture protects America's 100,000,000 consumers against diseased animal products.

Do you know that the department is just as vigilant in protecting the same consumers against diseased vegetable products?

That, anyhow, is true.

But do not be too conceited over what the department is doing for you.

The department is interested in the consumer as an individual-in his personal welfare, in seeing that he has ge some foods.

But it is also interested in the population en masse-in seeing that everybody gets ENOUGH

Diseased vegetable products, of course, are not good for the individual. But there is another element. When vegetables are allowed to become diseased, in transit or otherwise, and have to be thrown away, the total supply of available food is reduced by just that much, and somebody has to do some more scrimping.

Those are the two reasons why the United States department of agriculture devotes a good deal of attention to protecting vegetable foods against diseases found at markets.

 Your County Agent.

Do not forget that there is a sort of deputy secretary of agriculture who is always ready to help you with your poultry problems. He is the farm demonstrator for the United States department of agriculture. He is commonly known as "the county agent." If there are young people in your household he would no doubt like to enroll them in the clubs for poultry raising which are carried on in most of the states. He is a good man to get in touch with-and to keep in touch with.

Thorough cultivation in the garden is of much greater value than artificial watering.

Excessive clipping of young alfalfa often does more harm than good.

Alfalfa is hardy and long-lived. But

If you Knew There Was to Be a Terrible Hail Storm Right In your Very Section What would you Do?--what Could you Do?

You can't cover your crops, neither can you shield them from the "cobble stones of the sky."

So---

Even if you knew there was to be a hailstorm--a ruinous, raging storm-one that was bound to destroy your entire source of income--you couldn't do a thing to prevent it. No power on earth could save your property, and you know it.

Consequently, what's to be done? You can't afford to run your business on a "my-crops-may-be-ruinedany-day" basis, can you? You don't wan't to feel that the harvest of months of hard work may be swept away in a few minutes, do you? Of course not.

You may argue that the storm MAY not come. Quite true; it may not-for a day, or a week, or two weeks. But when it DOES, then what? There's only one safe answer: Hartford Hail Insurance"

CLAYTON.

If you cannot prevent hail-storms, you can protect yourself against loss caused by them. And the best protection you can possibly secure is an insurance policy in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company.

Let the "Hartford" assume all the risk. It can afford it. You cannot. The Hartford has millions of dollars of assets. You haven't. The "Hartford" will cheerfully guarantee you against all loss by hail-storm, and do it for a comparatively small amount per year.

Now that you know how to protect yourself against hail-storms, what are you going to do? Are you going to keep putting it off? Are you going to wait and wait for the BIG storm that will completely ruin your crop? Are you going to undergo the suffering and worry that comes with such a big catastropae?

Save yourself all this. Insure your crops. Protect your business. Protect your family.
