LOCAL and PERSONAL HAPPENINGS.

FOR SALE—Thoroughbred young Plymouth Rock Roosters Ringlet Strain. Price $1.50. Mail orders to Mrs. J. T. Teague, Rt. 3, Box 11, Elida, N. M.

W. T. Boatright of Valley View, was in town Saturday with a load of watermelons.

Geo. Rorie, A. W. Stanford and Mrs. More of Valley View, were Kenna, visitors Saturday.

Tom Neely called at this office Saturday and ordered the Record sent to his father, G. W. Neely at Greer South Carolina. Tom is very busy these days harvesting his crop which is one of the best in the country.

Mrs. Lindsay White and baby returned home Saturday after a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. White in Elida.

Rev. Todd filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

Ed and Joe Jett have bought the Bob Ackers ranch twenty-five miles north east of Elida, and part of the cattle which they took charge of yesterday.

W. K. Britton of Lubbock, Texas formerly of Valley View, N. M., spent Saturday and Sunday here with his son Ollie. Mr. Britton has many friends here who were pleased to see him.

Will Crume lost a fine yearling Sunday. He had started to drive it home from the Dave Howell ranch when it ran through a fence and broke its neck.

J. H. Rector of Judson, transacted business in Kenna, Monday.

W. J. (Bud) Wilkinson, Dave Howell and son, Guy, were Elida visitors Monday.

L. E. Wasson arrived Saturday from Lamesa, Texas, with a nice herd of cattle, which he took to his ranch south of town. Mr. Wasson went to Clovis Monday after some cattle that he has had on pasture there.

John Keller has sold his interest in the Denton and Keller ranch near Olive, to P. A. Edmonson of Roswell.

W. T. Cooper who lives 12 miles south of town is bringing from one to two loads of bear grass to town every day in the week except Sunday. If the parties who are buying it don't go to shipping soon Mr. Cooper will have the town site covered. He is getting from $8.50 to $9.00 per ton. So bring on the weed Mr. Cooper and get the dough while it last.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Crosby and Mrs. C. S. Crosby of Rock Valley, were the guest of Lee Crosby and family Sunday.

It's something new. Try it. Wonder Pudding, sold by all merchants in Kenna, 10 cents.

W. H. Cooper considers himself one of the best farmers in town. If you could have seen him digging trenches for collards (not soldiers) Sunday night you would have seen some of the products that he claims to have raised. But we have our ideas as to who was the producer of that garden.

Winter is here and if any one has a cow to get weak in the knees so that she will need assistance to arise in the morning just call on R. R. Kimbrel for he has begun practicing for the work.

A. M. Gaffey was attending to land business before Commissioner D. C. Savage Monday.

Jim Clubb went to Elida Tuesday to have the doctor remove a piece of steel from his eye that became lodged in it while he was working on the engine of his well drill. His wife, father and mother accompanied him. While in Kenna, Jim ordered the Record sent to Bert Harter at Amarillo, Texas.

J. W. Webb and W. A. Paul were business visitors from Milnesand, Tuesday.

Doc Townsend and Jake Collier of Loving on, visited Mr. Townsend's brother-in-law Lee Crosby, Tuesday.

Wonder Pudding is sold in three flavors, Raspberry, Chocolate and Lemon.

Tom Good arrived Tuesday from Midland, Texas, to take charge of the ranch that he recently purchased from Lee Robertson and Jett brothers.

A. H. Eaves of Rock Valley, was in town the first of the week buying a supply of coal for the winter.

W. H. Childres, vice president of the Drovers Cattle Loan Co., Kansas City, Mo., Texas, Representative, of Amarillo, Texas, was a business visitor in Kenna, yesterday.

Duff Jones stopped in Kenna, while en route to Arizona, and spent the night with his brother W. B. Jones and family Wednesday. Bill Jones who has been here several weeks left with his father.

Blue Browning of Lovington, attended the Halloween social, Wednesday night.

Wonder Pudding can be made in a jiffy. One 10 cent package contains enough for five or six persons. Buy it from your Kenna, Merchants.

P. T. Bell and W. H. Cooper were business visitors in Elida, Thursday.

E. E. Lee transacted business in Elida, Monday.

J. R. Alsup of Need, was in Kenna, Thursday with a load of dressed hogs.

Hershel Rickard returned from Texas, Thursday.

L. C. Denton has purchased the W. H. Cooper stock of merchandise. Mr. Denton will continue to do business at both stores, and appreciate your trade.

Eggnit takes the place of eggs. It's cheaper and better. Sold by all Kenna, merchants.

D. C. Savage is spending a few days on his ranch at Boaz this week.

W. B. McCombs, Benny Good and John Howell returned from Kansas City this morning after marketing several car loads of cattle.

M. O. Mills was a business visitor from Boaz Wednesday.

Howell and McCombs are shipping six car loads of cattle to the Kansas City market today.

You can not realize the bargains you will miss if you fail to read L. C. Denton's ad and then buy.

School Notes.

Do you know that a ten cent package of eggnit is equal to one dozen eggs. Sold by all Kenna, merchants.

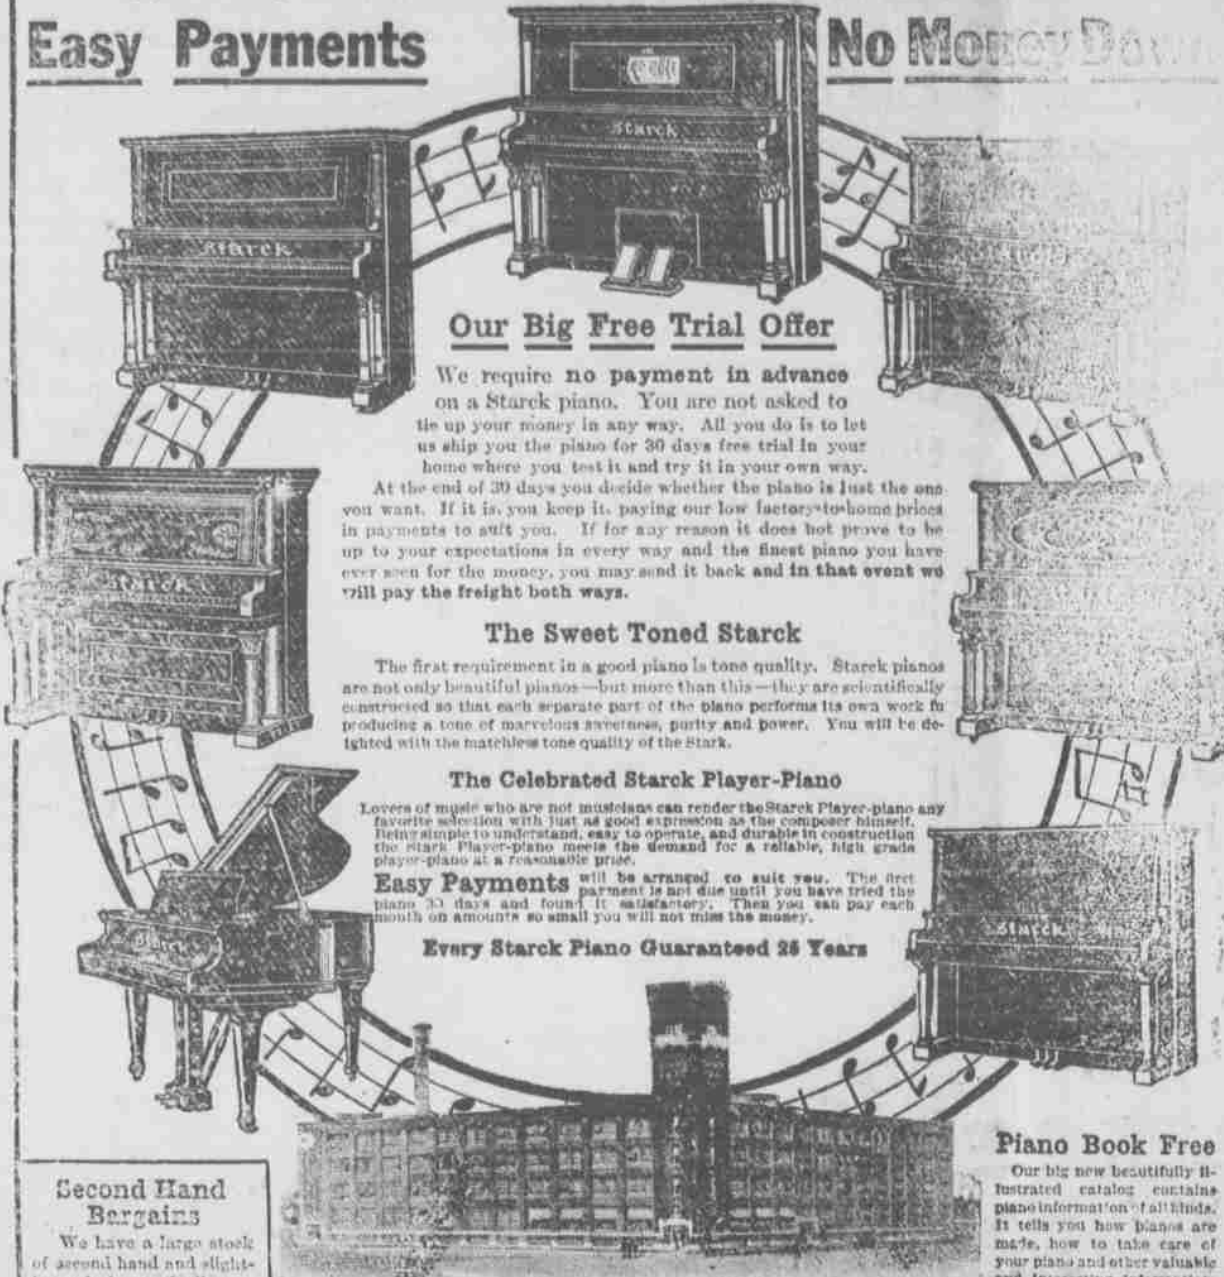

Some few pupils have not made as good grades this month as last. Parents should look over their report cards and cooperate with the teachers and try to prevent poorer grades instead of better grades.

Mildred White from Elida visited school this week.

Prof. E. R. Frost, Beatrice Cooper, Helen Elrod, Georgia Smith and Price and Will Crume left this morning for Portales to attend the Roosevelt County Teachers Association. The following prominent educators of the state will address the teachers Dr. Boyd of the University at Albuquerque, Jonathan Wagner state Supt., Dr. Roberts Pres. Las Vegas Normal and Dr. Entice Pres. of Silver City Normal.

Famous Starck Piano

Shipped Anywhere in the United States on 30 Days' Free Trial
Easy Payments No Money Down

Our Big Free Trial Offer

We require no payment in advance on a Starck piano. You are not asked to tie up your money in any way. All you do is to let us ship you the piano for 30 days free trial in your home where you test it and try it in your own way. At the end of 30 days you decide whether the piano is just the one you want. If it is, you keep it, paying our low factory-to-home prices in payments to suit you. If for any reason it does not prove to be up to your expectations in every way and the finest piano you have ever seen for the money, you may send it back and in that event we will pay the freight both ways.

The Sweet Toned Starck

The first requirement in a good piano is tone quality. Starck pianos are not only beautiful pianos—but more than this—they are scientifically constructed so that each separate part of the piano performs its own work in producing a tone of marvelous sweetness, purity and power. You will be delighted with the matchless tone quality of the Starck.

The Celebrated Starck Player-Piano

Lovers of music who are not musicians can render the Starck Player-piano any favorite selection with just as good expression as the composer himself. Being simple to understand, easy to operate, and durable in construction the Starck Player-piano meets the demand for a reliable, high grade player-piano at a reasonable price.

Easy Payments will be arranged to suit you. The first payment is not due until you have tried the piano 30 days and found it satisfactory. Then you can pay each month on amounts so small you will not miss the money.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MOON'S BAD DREAM. What are you doing up at this time of day? asked Mr. Sun. Well, said Mr. Moon, most folks think this is the time of day to be up. Maybe they do, said Mr. Sun, and of course I agree with them. I like the daytime. But you like the nighttime. That is why it is so extremely funny to see you up now.

Began to Grow Red With Anger. I suppose it does seem funny to see the Moon in the daytime. But I was wakened, that's all. I didn't feel sleepy. I had a dream that I was watching the Sun trying to keep everyone warm, and the first thing I knew was that the dream was coming true and that I really was watching the Sun. So the dreams of the Moon come true, do they? asked the Sun. Often, often, said Mr. Moon, and now that we are talking about dreaming, let me tell you of one I had the other day. The other night, you mean, corrected Mr. Sun. No, that is right, of course you do mean the other day. That is when you do your dreaming. I can't help thinking of the night-time for dreaming. Well, go on, Mr. Moon. I didn't mean to interrupt you. I was asleep over yonder, pointed Mr. Moon. Yes, yes, said Mr. Sun, go on. And I had the most awful dream. Oh, was it a bad dream? asked Mr. Sun kindly, how very sad. Tell me about it. It is a good scheme to tell a bad dream and then forget all about it. I think so, too, said Mr. Moon. I don't think I was snoring, and I don't believe I was lying on my back. You see if my shape is half-sized, I lie on one side. If I am a Crescent Moon I curve and curl up in just that beautiful way. And when I'm a full Moon I can't lie on my back very well, as I don't know just which my back is. I'm so round and fat you know. It's very hard to know just where one's back is, very hard, sometimes.

"Of course," said Mr. Sun. "Get on with your story of the bad dream." "And I was lying there asleep—" "Yes, yes," said Mr. Sun impatiently. "Naturally you were asleep. No one dreams when they're awake—at least not a bad dream!" "I must lead up to my story slowly," said Mr. Moon. "I notice that," said Mr. Sun. "But I hope you get there soon." "And I thought," continued Mr. Moon, "that I was made of green cheese! Oh, it was so awful! I was soft and squishy and horrid!" "No, that wasn't a nice dream," agreed Mr. Sun. "And I thought in my dream," continued Mr. Moon, "that I was being cut up with knives and that folks were spending me upon crackers and biscuits. Ugh, it was awful. And how soft and horrid I did feel. And such a color—green—just imagine!" "Well," said Mr. Sun, "I know all about it." "You know all about what?" asked Mr. Moon. "My dream, do you mean? Of course you know all about my dream when I have just told you. That's quite simple." "Ah, no," said Mr. Sun. "I know why you should have had this dream. There was someone who once said as a joke that the Moon was made of green cheese." "Did anyone ever say that?" asked Mr. Moon who began to grow red with anger. "Yes," said Mr. Sun, whose voice kept getting lower and lower for he was very sleepy, "someone once did say that. And so you had to dream it, just to prove that it was a joke! A great, big, jolly joke. For you're not made of green cheese, are you?" "I should just say I'm not," said Mr. Moon. "And he was large and red now." "Good-night," said Mr. Sun. "It's my bedtime, and you've taken off that thin white robe for this bright red one. No one will notice me now. It's the time for you. And cheer up! You'll never have another dream like that. For you see, yourself, what a silly joke it is. You're a great red moon, and you're not made of green cheese. Not you!" "Not I," echoed Mr. Moon, who was now alone in the sky.

Feed the Birds. Birds like suet, bread crumbs, and pieces of nut meats at this time of year. Build a small feeding box near one of the house windows or in a tree and keep a record of the different birds that eat from it. It will prove interesting to the children, as well as those who are old.

He Was Very Sleepy.

Make-Up of Character. What we allow to go into the mind goes also into the character.

IT WAS DIFFERENT By LOUISE OLIVER.

Margaret left the girls at the corner and cut across lots to her own house. It was a lovely, soft spring night with a moon, and the perfume of a million blossoms. Her thoughts were busy. She was thinking of the film she had just seen at the moving picture theater, of poor rebellious little Maggie Tuiliver. How like Maggie she was herself, she thought, impulsive, loving, misunderstood, and always in trouble through no fault of her own. Just now she wanted to do something that seemed to find nothing but ridicule from the people at home. She wanted to have a fresh-air camp for children down on the lake where they could play and wade and frolic all summer. "But, Peggy, dear," her aunt had expostulated, "there is a lovely big home for little city children up on the hill." "Well, there are more children in town, aren't there?" "But that isn't it, dear. You don't understand. It would take hundreds of dollars and many people to do the work. There would be washing and ironing and cooking and dish washing and bed making. It wouldn't be all play. And the lake is full of malaria and they'd all be sick and maybe some of them would die. Then what?" "Get some more," said Margaret, not to be discouraged. "No, dear, it isn't possible. You'll have to get over this notion just as you got over wanting to be an aviator, and a missionary and all the other things. You'll find your calling some day. I'm sure, and in the meantime just try to be contented with Uncle Ben and me and be your own little sweet self." Margaret still thinking sympathetically of Maggie, crossed the smooth, moonlit lawn. "I'm just as sure as I can be," she declared, "that by finding my calling some day, Aunt Emma means that I'll get married. And that is the one thing on earth I won't do. I consider it weak-minded, this marrying business, when there are so many real things to do in the world." The soft grass and shrubs concealed her approach, and as she went lightly up the side steps of the porch, she heard voices around front. Evidently no one knew she had come, for the talking went on. She tiptoed to the dining room door, opened the screen and went in. "Even this hot place is better than sitting out there and being told that I ought to get married. I'll just have a saucer of strawberries and cream and then go to bed." She went back to the icebox, got the berries and switched off the light. Then she stepped out into the inviting coolness of the garden. "Hello!" said a masculine voice from the swing. "Hello," answered Margaret, surprised. "I thought Katrina had gone out. Excuse me!" And she prepared to depart. "Don't go!" said the voice. "I don't know who Katrina is, but she's not here. There is just me—only I—I mean to say, I only am present." "Who are you? I have a habit of being particular about my friends. Were you about to break in? Perhaps you have the flat silver about you now?" "I don't believe I can talk much, my mouth's watering so at the smell of those strawberries." "Just wait a minute and I'll get you some." She was back in an instant, this time leaving on the kitchen light. She wanted to see what her vis-a-vis looked like. She was agreeably surprised to find as he sprang forward to hold the door that he was tall, slender, young and nicely and quietly dressed, and his face satisfied her completely. She settled herself in the swing and he sat down beside her. "Well?" she asked. "Am I to have the story?" "There's nothing to it—except that I'm misunderstood." "How interesting!" exclaimed Margaret, biting a berry. "So am I." "I've always done pretty much as I pleased, though," said the young man. "That is, I wanted to write instead of going into business, but it hasn't more than paid expenses. So now Uncle Dick insists that I come and live with him and be his heir and marry some girl he's picked out for me. Isn't it awful? I'd rather go to Alaska." "Do you mean that Mr. Dixon Prothero is your uncle?" "Yes."

"And he brought you here to see the girl he wants you to marry?" "Yes." "And you're hiding?" "Yes." "Good for you. So am I! I'm the girl!" "Good heavens!" She nodded. "But if you're the girl, it's—it's different. You see, I didn't know, I—I—really, I'd love to have you marry me." "If I did, would you let me have a fresh-air camp for children, and have a lying machine, and be a missionary, and everything?" "Sure thing. And we'd go to Alaska, and I'd write, and we'd have a perpetual plenty." "All right," said Margaret, happily. "I'll just do it. It never occurred to me before that marriage might mean that at last I should be understood." Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

There is a breed of cattle in the Samson Islands—the bulls of which seldom weigh more than 200 pounds and the cows seldom more than 100 pounds.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Maids were hired girls. Men did not wear belts. New Mexico was a territory. Khaki had not been invented. No one had seen a motion picture. As went main, so went the Union. Mail was not delivered in the country. The I. W. W. had not found America. France was called a frivolous nation. The Kaiser was thought to be human. Roosevelt and Taft loved each other. Wrist watches were pinned to dirt waists. Food conservation was a sign of poverty. Railroads thought themselves above the law. Singers had no tremolo voice attachment. Fruit was sold by measure instead of weight. Dresses dragged three inches on the ground. Germany was not murdering innocent people. Appendicitis was "inflammation of the bowels." President Wilson was an obscure schoolmaster. The Pecos Valley was terrorized by "Billy the Kid." Millionaires rode bicycles instead of automobiles. Fourth of July was a day of noise and slaughter. Bryan thought the people wanted him to be president. Some of the best farms in this valley were barren wastes. All shoes were black and heels broad enough to stand on. Hens and hogs commanded less than one-half of the present prices. The Kaiser was preparing to cooperate with the Almighty in ruling the world. —W. M. Todd
