NOTICE OF CONTEST

P. S. 07658
Cont. 2755
DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, U. S. LAND OFFICE at Fort Sumner, N. M., April 14th, 1917.
 To Charley Howl, of Lone Wolf, Okla., Contestee:
 You are hereby notified that David C. Harris, who gives Kenna, N. M., as his post-office address, did on Jan. 9th, 1917, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your H. E. Entry Serial No. 07658, made March 14th, 1910, for SW1/4 Sec. 8, NW1/4 Section 7, Township 1 S., Range 22 E., N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said entryman has wholly abandoned said land for since date of filing, and has failed to cultivate and improve said land since date of filing to this date Jan. 8th, 1917. That said absence was not due to military service the army or navy of the United States, or in connection with operations in Mexico, or along the borders thereof, or in mobilization camps elsewhere in the Military or Naval organizations of the U. S., or the National Guard of any of the several States.
 You are therefore further notified that said allegations will be taken as confessed, and your said entry will be canceled without further right to be heard, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically responding to these allegations of contest, together with due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail.

NOTICE OF CONTEST

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, U. S. LAND OFFICE at Roswell, N. M., April 18, 1917.
 To William F. Hines, of Boca, N. M., record address, Contestee:
 You are hereby notified that George P. Taylor, who gives Kenna, N. M., as his post office address, did on March 13th, 1917, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your Homestead entry, Serial No. 091700 made Jan. 31, 1910, for SW1/4 Sec. 20, and the SE1/4 Sec. 20, Township 6 S., Range 29 E., N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that you have wholly abandoned said tract of land for more than 22 years last past; that you have never established residence on the land; that your absence is not due to employment in military services rendered in connection with operations in Mexico, or along the borders thereof, or in mobilization camps elsewhere, in the military or naval organizations of the United States or the National Guard of any of the several States.
 You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office, as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be canceled thereunder without your further right to be heard therein, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the contestant's written acknowledgment of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and where the copy was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter. You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

War and Prosperity.

Let us get out of the notion that the war will bring hard times. In that particular, this country is fortunately situated. The government is preparing to issue bonds to the tune of five billion dollars. All of that money will be used in the United States, even if three billion of it is loaned to the allies in Europe. Not a dollar of it will ever go to Europe. It will be paid for labor and material in America.

Under the present plan about two billions will be raised annually from extra sources of taxation, and Mr. Rockefeller's pocket book will be hit rather hard. But he can stand it. So can the man with the salary of $1,800, who probably will be called upon to give up about five per cent of it to Uncle Sam. Excess profits are to be taxed heavily. This means not destruction of money but merely a re-distribution of it, and it means prices of necessities can be held down and the 'common geezer' will have more money in the saving banks before the war is over than he ever had before, and will have more to spend. The aggregate wealth of the country will suffer, because so many people will be engaged in destructive rather than productive pursuits, but the re-distribution of money will be at worst, much like the rebuilding operations of a big and prosperous factory whose building and equipment, fully insured has been destroyed by fire. There is a loss, but it falls upon the insurance companies which have apportioned it among the insured everywhere but always among those who can afford to pay it.—Albuquerque Morning Journal.

New Mexico Beans

The following on New Mexico Beans is taken from Bulletin No. 105 of March, 1917, by Fabian Garcia, Director and Horticulturalist.

"While beans have been grown in New Mexico for probably the past three centuries, not until the past few years has much interest been taken in this crop. The bean has been, and is at the present time, one of the most staple foods of the native population. This crop is getting to be an important one in the irrigated as well as in the dry-farming communities. According to the United States Census Report for 1910, 5,147,580 pounds of beans were raised in New Mexico in 1909, valued at $232,023. During the past four years the output has been very materially increased and for 1916 New Mexico was reported as fourth among the states in the production of beans. According to the United States Department of Agriculture Crop Report for December, 1916, New Mexico produced in 1914, 16,326,000 pounds, valued at $615,000; in 1915, 22,080,000 pounds valued at $928,000, and in 1916, 22,500,000 pounds, valued at $1,488,000. From this it will be seen that the increase in production, as well as in value, of the New Mexico bean crop, since 1910, has been marked. About 90 per cent of the beans of the New Mexico Pinto variety.

"The following table show yields per acre, planted by same method.

Variety	date planted	yield per acre, lbs.
College yellow,	June 13,	1333
Tepary,	" 13,	2032
Bayo,	May 17,	1048
N. M. Pinto,	June 17,	1111

Nutritive Value.

"The bean is a leguminous plant and is, therefore, quite rich in protein. The native varieties—Bayo, Ancient Yellow, and New Mexico Pinto—are rich in proteid, cook easily, and are very palatable. The Tepary bean is not quite as rich in proteid, does not cook quite as readily as the native varieties, and is hardly so palatable. The following figures show the percentage of proteid obtained by analyses made recently by Dr. L. A. Higley of the Department of Chemistry:—

Ancient Yellow	21.88 per cent proteid
New Mexico Pinto	21.88 per cent proteid
Bayo	23.19 per cent proteid
Tepary	19.09 per cent proteid
Navy	21.44 per cent proteid
Black Eye	19.60 per cent proteid

The Man Without A Country

By Edward Everett Hale

[No document in actual American history conveys a more powerful lesson of what citizenship in this republic means, none delivers a more scorching appeal to loyalty, than this fanciful fable of the Man Without a Country. The unhappy creature whose living death it has graven upon the memory of mankind was but a figure born of a writer's imagination. Yet, the account of his passionate outburst and of his dreadful expiation stirs the dulled soul, and will awaken emotion in the minds of readers of generations yet unborn. There can be no more arresting lesson for the disloyal or the heedless, no more inspiring appeal to the spirit of true Americanism, than this memorable work of literary art and high-souled patriotism.]

I suppose that very few casual readers of the New York Herald of August 13th observed, in an obscure corner, among the "Deaths," the announcement:

"NOLAN. Died, on board U. S. Corvette Levant, Lat. 2° 11' S., Long. 131° W., on the 11th of May, Philip Nolan."

I happened to observe it, because I was stranded at the old Mission-house in Mackinac, waiting for a Lake Superior steamer which did not choose to come, and I was devouring, to the very stubble, all the current literature I could get hold of, even down to the deaths and marriages in the "Herald." My memory for names and people is good, and the reader will see, as he goes on, that I had reason enough to remember Philip Nolan. There are hundreds of readers who would have paused at that announcement, if the officer of the Levant who reported it had chosen to make it thus: "Died, May 11th, 'The Man without a Country.'" For it was as "The Man without a Country" that poor Philip Nolan had generally been known by the officers who had him in charge during some fifty years, as, indeed, by all the men who had sailed under them. I dare say there is many a man who has taken wine with him once a fortnight, in a three years' cruise, who never knew that his name was "Nolan," or whether the poor wretch had any name at all.

There can now be no possible harm in telling this poor creature's story. Reason enough there has been till now, ever since Madison's administration went out in 1817, for very strict secrecy, the secrecy of honor itself, among the gentlemen of the navy who have had Nolan in successive charge. And certainly it speaks well for the esprit de corps of the profession and the personal honor of its members, that to the press this man's story has been wholly unknown, and, I think, to the country at large also.

I have reason to think, from some investigations I made in the naval archives when I was attached to the bureau of construction, that every official report relating to him was burned when Ross burned the public buildings at Washington. One of the Tuckers, or possibly one of the Watsons, had Nolan in charge at the end of the war; and when, on returning from his cruise, he reported at Washington to one of the Crownshields—who was in the navy department when he came home—he found that the department ignored the whole business. Whether they really knew nothing about it, or whether it was a non mi ricordo, determined on as a piece of policy, I do not know. But this I do know, that since 1817, and possibly before, no naval officer has mentioned Nolan in his report of a cruise.

As I say, there is no need for secrecy any longer. And now the poor creature is dead, it seems to me worth while to tell a little of his story, by way of showing young Americans of today what it is to be

A MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. Philip Nolan was as fine a young officer as there was in the "Legion of the West," as the western division of our army was then called. When Aaron Burr made his first dashing expedition down to New Orleans in 1805, at Fort Massac, of somewhere above on the river, he met, as the devil would have to this day, dashing, bright young fellow, at some dinner party. I think Burr marked him, talked to him, walked with him, took him a day or two's voyage in his flatboat, and in short, fascinated him. For the next year barrack life was very tame to poor Nolan. He occasionally availed of the permission the great man had given him to write to him. Long, high-winded, stilted letters the poor boy wrote and re-wrote and copied. But never a line did he have in reply from the gay deceiver. The other boys in the garrison sneered at him, because he sacrificed in this unrequited affection for a politician the time which they devoted to Monongahela, sledge, and high-low-jack. Bourbon, culture, and poker were still unknown. But one day Nolan had his revenge. This time Burr came down the river, not as an attorney seeking a place for his office, but as a disguised conqueror. He had defeated I know not how many district attorneys; he had dined at I know not how many public dinners; he had been heralded in I know not how many Weekly Arguses; and it was rumored that he had an army behind him and an empire before him. It was a great day—his arrival—to poor Nolan. Burr had not been at the fort an hour before he sent for him. That evening he asked Nolan to take him out in his skiff, to show him a cane-brake or a cottonwood tree, as he said, really to seduce him; and by the time the sail was over, Nolan was enlisted body and soul. From that time, though he did not yet know it, he lived as "A Man without a Country."

What Burr meant to do I know no more than you, dear reader. It is none of our business just now. Only, when the grand catastrophe came, that Jefferson and the House of Virginia of that day undertook to break on the wheel all the possible Clarencees of the then House of York, by the great treason trial at Richmond, some of the lesser fry in that distant Mississippi valley, which was farther from us than Puget Sound is today, introduced the like novelty on their provincial stage, and, to while away the monotony of the summer at Fort Adams, got up, for spectacles, a string of court-martials on the officers there. One and another of the colonels and majors were tried, and, to fill out the list, little Nolan, against whom, heaven knows, there was evidence enough, that he was sick of the service, had been willing to be false to it, and would have obeyed any order to march anywhere with anyone who would follow him, had the order only been signed, "By command of His Exc. A. Burr." The courts dragged on. The big flies escaped, rightly for all I know. Nolan was proved guilty enough, as I say; yet you and I would never have heard of him, reader, but that, when the president of the court asked him at the close, whether he wished to say anything to show that he had always been faithful to the United States, he cried out, in a fit of frenzy:

"I Wish I May Never Hear of the United States Again!"

"D—n the United States! I wish I may never hear of the United States again!"
