

The Prairie Light Review

---

Volume 14 | Number 2

Article 67

---

Spring 5-1-1995

Ice

Steve Anderson
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

---

Recommended Citation

Anderson, Steve (1995) "Ice," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 14 : No. 2 , Article 67.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol14/iss2/67>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

Ice

The water fallen,
a forest frozen,
a winters day,
the mist settles.

A pain has fallen,
a beauty frozen,
trees only feel,
we only see.

Covered, coated,
shiny, sparkle,
covered, coated,
weighted, strain.

A gift, a blessing,
a once in a lifetime,
a burden, a punishment,
the end of a lifetime.

Should we not
feel their pain,
should they not see their beauty?

We see the tree,
we know it is frozen.
The tree feels our stare,
it knows we too are frozen.

By: Steve Anderson

Between Heaven and Earth

*I could find in earth
your eyes
but in heaven
your sight.*

*Down on earth
I've got your lips
but in heaven
your smile.*

*So, for all of those reasons
I don't care if in earth
I lack of your eyes and lips, if here where we are I own your sight
and smile.*

By: Paty Ochoa