DR. WYNAND WICHERS

In dedication . . .

Dr. Wynand Wichers came to Western Michigan College as vice-president in 1945, after having served from 1931 to 1945 as president of Hope College, Holland, Michigan.

For many years he has been prominent in educational and religious affairs in Michigan and the nation, having served two years on the state board of education and during 1937 and 1938 as president of the General Synod of the Reformed Church.

He received his AB degree from Hope College in 1909 and took his MA degree at the University of Michigan in 1918. From 1909 to 1925 he taught in the history department at Hope, leaving that position to become executive vice-president of the First State Bank of Holland. He returned to the campus in 1931 to become president.

His educational standing has been recognized by four honorary degrees, receiving LL.D. and D.Ed. degrees from Hope College, a Litt.D. from Rutgers University and an L.H.D. degree from Central (Iowa) College.

Educational posts to which he has been elected include two years as president of the Michigan College Association, heading the Michigan Association of Church Related Colleges and as a member of the North Central Association Commission on Higher Education.

Because of these achievements, and more so because of his splendid leadership as chairman of the Semi-Centennial Committee for the past two years, which makes him largely responsible for the success of same, the staff of the 1954 Brown and Gold dedicate this book to him.

The theme of the 1954 Brown and Gold is, quite aptly, the anniversary theme. It is a comparison of the past and the present — it is the story of Western's first fifty years as well as the fiftieth year. It provides the opportunity to see us as we were and as we are now.

This is truly a history in its own right — we wish it to be a book that will prove itself a valuable reference in this respect to the students, faculty, alumni, and friends.

Ralph Waldo Emerson's observation that "An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man" does not apply to Western Michigan College. In an unusual degree this institution, celebrating its Semi-Centennial, is the product of the efforts of two men.

In its half century of existence there have been but two presidents: Dwight B. Waldo and Paul V. Sangren. In assaying each personality, it is logical to attach the term Pathfinder to the first president. His restless inquisitive spirit always was seeking new ways. It is in his memory that the dome of the old Administration building is lighted every night, for this building was where his campus activities were centered, and where his ashes lie in the cornerstone.

We can best describe the current president by designating him as a Pioneer. Picking up the torch from the hands of his predecessor, he not only brought to successful completionmajor projects already begun, but he pioneered in many others. His leadership has been positive — never faltering. In continuing recognition of these numerous significant achievements and accomplishments of the second president, and especially in honor of his efforts in building Western's new campus, the tower of the Chapel is illuminated every night.

A college is more than buildings, students, instructors, books and equipment . . .

A college is more than buildings, students, instructors, books and equipment. It is more than courses offered, grades recorded and diplomas granted. All of these may be seen, but what is not seen is just as important, perhaps even more so. What is not seen is the past and the future, the tradition and the change. These are the things that give a purpose and direction to a college beyond the immediate efforts of the students and faculty and administration.

The fiftieth anniversary of Western is a good time to look at the college and see what it has been, to better understand what Western is today, and what it will be in the future. Western has been most fortunate in having Dr. James O. Knauss compile both the 25th and 50th anniversary histories of the college, for in both instances Dr. Knauss gathered much information that would have been lost other wise and wrote it into very readable and informative books. Anyone who wishes to learn about Western must begin with Dr. Knauss' book, "The First Fifty Years 1903-1953." The material for this article has been drawn from that book.

About 1903.

In the Beginning

By 1900, the state of Michigan had teacher training schools at Ypsilanti, Mt. Pleasant, and Marquette. These schools served the eastern, central, and northern parts of the state, but there was no teacher training school in the western part of the state, which had about one-fifth of the population at that time. A bill was passed by the legislature to establish such a school, but it was vetoed by the governor. Another bill was passed, and this one was signed by the governor on May 27, 1903, establishing Western State Normal School.

The location of the school was not specified. It was therefore left to the State Board of Education to select the town. A large number of communities wanted the new school, but Kalamazoo was quick to organize an active campaign to secure it. The city offered the State Board of Education a free building site, $40,000 for building, and offered to pay half of the salaries of the trainingschool teachers for five years.

Kalamazoo was a transportation center for Western Michigan, and in addition to its geographical advantages, the offer of the city was most attractive. The State Board voted August 28, 1903, to select Kalamazoo. Work was then begun to establish the new school. Several places in the city were considered as building sites, and in November, Prospect Hill was selected. It took until March of 1904 to secure a clear title to the land, so it was not until May that the actual work began on the hill. The school was scheduled to open on June 27, 1904. Before that time a president and faculty had to be found, also a building for classes to meet in until the new school on Prospect Hill was ready.

The first position to be filled was that of the principal. On April 1, 1904, the State Board named Dwight Bryant Waldo to that office. Waldo had been principal of Northern State Normal School at Marquette (from its opening). Before that he had taught all levels of school, from the ungraded rural schools to college classes. He was an excellent man for the job. Even though he had less than three months before the opening of school, he went to work carefully.

The school would teach the same subjects as the other state normal schools, but the choice of personnel was important, and a multitude of details had to be studied. Waldo saw that the chief function of the school would be to prepare teachers for the rural schools. Consequently, he asked the State Board to create a rural school department at the new school. On May 19, 1904, the Kalamazoo newspaper carried a statement by Waldo, which read in part: "In creating a rural school department the new normal will become unique among normal schools of the country. No other normal school has such a department, although the idea is endorsed by well-known men . . . Our plan will be different from that of any other normal school." To head this new and important department, Waldo appointed Ernest Burnham, who was to be a valuable teacher at Western until his retirement in 1940.

Waldo secured other faculty members, some of them on a temporary basis, and on June 27, 1904, Western became a functioning institution. There were eleven faculty members and 117 students, coming from thirteen Michigan counties, enrolled for the six week session. The students were pleased with the new school and with the cordiality of the staff. After the summer school closed, there were still plenty of problems to be solved. The most urgent was that of finding buildings. Then came the selection of qualified teachers for several of the first appointments had been for the summer only.

Rooms were found in four different buildings, including the city high school, the Methodist Church House, the Y.M.C.A., and in the old Kalamazoo College building between Lovell and South streets. The latter housed most of the classes, and all of the administration, which consisted of Waldo and one secretary. Seven new teachers were hired, and the first fall term of the school opened on Monday, September 26, 1904, with an enrollment of 107 students. This was the time when the school really began, for the six week summer session did not include many of the usual things associated with a regular normal school.

Numerous faculty committees were appointed to handle questions concerning the course of study, the year book, the bulletin, athletics, a teachers bureau, lectures, entertainments, and students' accommodations. That fall the school colors, brown and gold, were selected by a committee, and another one offered five dollars for the best school song written to the tune of the "Heidleberg Stein Song."

School spirit was evidenced in various ways, especially when the classes got into a bitter and open war over which of the class colors should fly over the building. The Juniors gave the Seniors a reception when the argument was over, and thus the first Junior-Senior dinner dance might be said to have taken place.

There were only twenty men enrolled in the fall term, but they formed an athletic association early in October. Only six students had ever played football, but they were enthusiastic about getting up a game with the High School. Waldo had a strong interest in athletics and he backed the group, promising them a paid football coach as soon as funds were available. No schedules were entered into, but occasional football, basketball and baseball games were played and some track events held.

The students organized two literary groups, one for men and one for women. These were the forerunners of the social fraternities and sororities that came years later. The Rural Sociology Seminar

From these beginnings, Western grew. The building on top of Prospect Hill was under con-

was founded, and under another name is the oldest student group in the college today. A Young Womens Christian Association was also begun at this time.

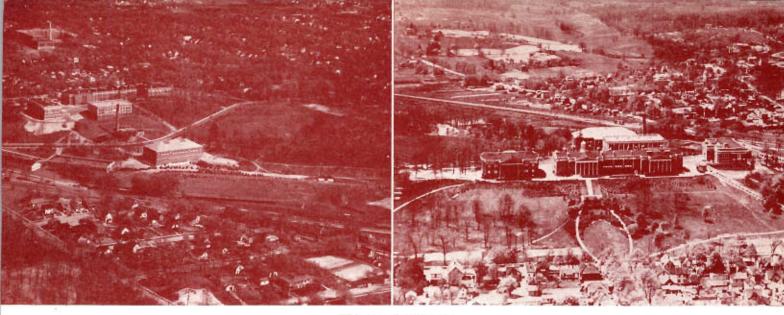

At the end of the term, plans were made for the commencement week, which began on Sunday with a baccalaureate sermon. Class day exercises and a school picnic were held Tuesday. The faculty held a reception for the seniors on Wednesday evening. On Thursday morning in the city's new public school on Vine Street, life certificates were given to four women and four others received three year rural certificates. The first graduating class then left Western State Normal School.

stantly prodded by Waldo, appropriated $60,000 for a gym and $12,000 for additional class rooms. These additions were built onto the main building, and all three were joined together. They were first opened for use in the spring of 1908. At this time a railroad was built up Prospect Hill to serve the students and visitors. It should be remembered that there were no dormitories, all students lived in rooming houses at the foot of the hill, and thus, had to climb it daily. The Normal Railroad was used for years and was famous until after World War II, when it was discontinued.

The next building that was needed was a training school. The city schools were used from the beginning, but this arrangement was due to expire by 1909. Therefore, Waldo got $60,000 from the state to build the training school, which was opened in 1909.

After this, nothing was built until 1913 when funds of $75,000, for a science building and $10,000, for its equipment were appropriated. A central heating plant was needed, and $40,000 was marked for its construction. Both buildings were completed in the spring of 1915. That year the legislature voted $480,000 for permanent improvements at Western, but the war interfered, and the ambitious program was not carried out. During the war, the U.S. government built barracks to house the Student Army Training Corps, but the end of the war, in 1918, came before the barracks were used. It was converted into classrooms, and irony named the building "Temporary" but necessity forced it to be used until torn down in 1953.

The fall of 1921 saw the opening of the Manual Trades building, and that year the legislature appropriated another $480,000 for a library and a men's gym. The library was finished in 1925 and dedicated in June. The men's gym had been started after the library, but was finished at the same time, and dedicated with the library. As the number of buildings grew, so did the size of the campus. Starting with twenty acres, land was acquired in several directions so that eventually the campus included fifty-seven acres before Waldo retired.

No further building or acquisition of land took place for some time after 1925. The college continued to grow in other ways, as will be told later, but it was not until the retirement of president Waldo in 1936, and the appointment of Paul V. Sangren to that position, that the building program started again. The depression had caused a drop in enrollment and the money available from the state was curtailed. Indeed, the college was almost closed by the state, but this short sighted economy move was blocked.

In December of 1936, the State Board approved the construction of a football field and stadium, which was estimated to cost $196,000. Of this sum, the Federal government provided $162,000 and the college sold some land to the State Highway Department for $36,000. A baseball field and grandstands were added. This completed the athletic plant in 1939. Very few colleges the size of Western, either at that time or the present, have outdoor athletic facilities of this size.

Western still had no dormitories, so it was decided to build a combination Union building and girls' dormitory, which was finished by the fall of 1938 and named Walwood Hall. A men's dormitory, Vandercook Hall, was also built plus a student health and personnel building. Both of these were partly built with Federal money as P.W.A. projects. Another women's dormitory was planned and built by the end of 1940-Spindler Hall. During 1940, two more buildings were started. A gift of $60,000 from the Upjohn Unemployment Trust was used to construct the Mechanical Trades Building. The Theater was completed in 1942, and the old mill (which stood by the side of the temporary building) was torn down. The mill had been used as a theater for some time.

Early in 1944, the college was given $50,000 by Mrs. Anna C. Kanley, widow of a Kalamazoo business man, for the purchase of land lying west of the railroad tracks. President Sangren took this opportunity to secure the needed room for expansion that the postwar growth of the college would bring about. Accordingly, he asked the legislature for additional money, and received $75,000, which with the $50,000 given by Mrs. Kanley, went to buy all of the land in the triangle formed by the railroad, West Michigan avenue, and VandeGiessen road. Later, the Gateway Golf course was bought from the city of Kalamazoo, thus extending the campus beyond VandeGiessen road. There was then enough land for the future growth of Western. The college bought about 40 acres on the other side of West Michigan avenue, across from the Administration building, during 1953-54, and this will provide room for even further expansion. The total acreage of the campus is now about 300 acres.

The building program at Western started again after the war, and the Maintenance building was the first to be completed in 1947. Two faculty apartment houses were built on West Michigan avenue in 1948. The training school and the administration building were connected by construction of offices for the training school in 1948. Also, in 1948, Arcadia Club House was remodeled and enlarged into a cafeteria.

More dormitories were needed, as there was room for only about 200 men and 300 women. Facilities for 1000 more students were planned. The first two units to be finished were Ernest Burnham and Smith Burnham Halls, in 1948-49 and 1949-50. The two units of the women's dorm, Draper Hall and Siedschlag Hall, were finished in February and September of 1950.

A bequest from the estate of William Kanley helped build a chapel, construction of which started in 1949 and which was finished in 1951. Additional classroom space being needed, McCracken Hall was completed in the summer of 1949, and Maybee Hall was finished in September. McCrack en Hall provides outstanding facilities for science and the arts. Maybee Hall is one of the best music buildings belonging to any college of Western's size in the country.

The new administration building was completed in the summer of 1952, providing room for all of the administrative offices and twenty-four classrooms, as well as a campus store, a branch library and a college post office.

After the war, a number of veteran's housing units and numerous trailers were placed at the college by the government. The trailers were taken away over a period of time, with the last being removed in 1953. At that time, construction of a new women's dormitory and of apartments for married students caused the removal of a number of the hutments. The apartment buildings have been finished and occupied since the spring semester of 1954. The land on which the trailers were parked is being cleared in readiness for construction of the new physical education buildings and fieldhouse.

The interior of the Chapel finished in 1951.

Three Growth of Curricula

We have traced the material growth of Western during its first fifty years, but the story of a college is not written in buildings and land, for it is the classes offered and the educational policy behind those classes that shape a college. We have seen how Western was established as a part of the Michigan teacher training system, and how Dwight Waldo as one of his first acts established the first rural education department in the normal schools of the United States. The story of Western is largely told in two areas: the requirements for teaching and how Western was affected by them; also the preparation of students for other fields than teaching.

At the beginning, Western offered three courses: A life certificate course, a three year course, and a rural school course. Of these the life certificate was to be the most important course. The requirements for entering students are significant: for the life certificate course, two years of high school, to be followed by four years at Western, or four years of high school to be followed by two years at Western. The three year course required four years of high school, but only took one year and one summer at Western. The rural course was open to anyone who completed the eighth grade, and took seven terms at Western to complete.

The growth of Western was dependent upon the laws governing teacher certification, and these laws gradually made the requirements higher and higher. The changes were meant to secure better teachers, but better teachers meant more professional training than the normal schools offered.

In 1917 the curricula were overhauled extensively, and the requirements were made stiffer. In addition, the normal schools of Michigan were authorized to offer a third year of work beyond the customary two years leading to the life certificate. This was not required, but was made so within the next decade, especially in light of what happened next.

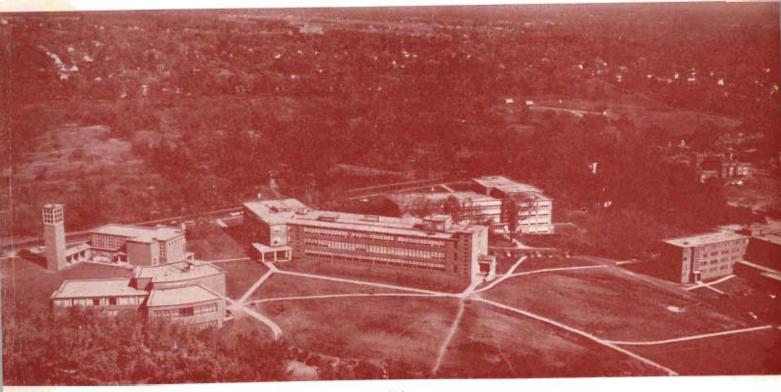

In 1918 the State Board authorized the teacher training schools to draw up curricula leading to the bachelors degree. Students could begin working for this degree in 1919. In 1920 it was no longer possible to enter Western without graduation from high school, for in that year the rural Course II was ended. Also, no more certificates were granted by means of extension work. All students now had to attend classes on the campus for a certain time. In 1924 the first bachelor of science degrees were offered, in manual arts and in physical education for women. No languages were required for the BS degree, as were required for the BA.

In 1925 it was possible to get a teacher's life certificate by attending Western for two years. In 1935 the minimum requirement was four years. This change had been urged by President Waldo for many years, and in 1923 he published an article in the national "Education Review" entitled "Should the Two Year Normal Schools Become Four Year Teachers Colleges? Why?" He offered 14 reasons why they should, and argued his case well. The stature of Western was rising. In 1927 the legislature changed the name of the school to Western State Teachers College.

The state continued to tighten up certification requirements, thus automatically forcing the advancement of Western as a college. On April 27, 1934, the State Board of Education gave the state colleges of education the right to grant general degrees of bachelor of arts and bachelor of science to students who had taken four years of approved work even though they had no courses in professional education. science, and education, ended with a wide variety of courses in education from kindergarten to high school, many courses in pre-professional two and three year curricula as well as a few four year, nonteaching degree courses.

In 1904 twelve departments offered seventyeight courses. In 1936 twenty-three departments offered about 580 courses. The faculty increased accordingly, and today Western has more than 300 faculty members in 29 departments that offer more than a thousand courses.

When Paul Sangren was appointed president in 1936, the standards previously mentioned were beginning to change the college. In 1938 the University of Michigan began graduate divisions in each of the colleges of education, and the mas-

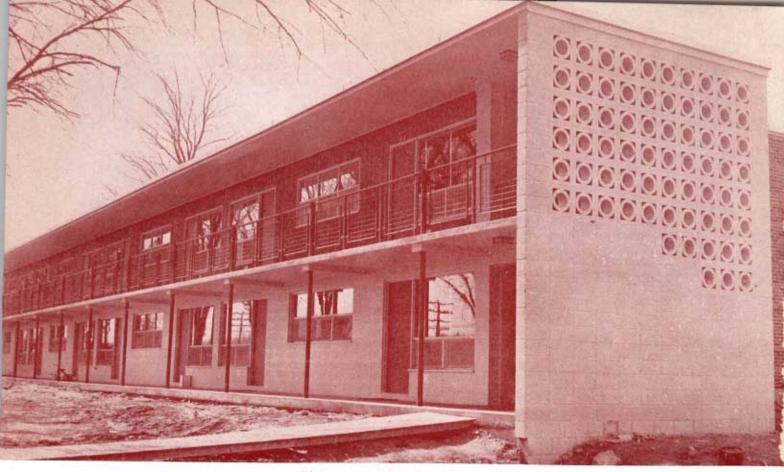

A recent air view of the new campus.

Upon this ruling the future development of the college rested. Western started in 1904 by enrolling students who had gone through the eighth grade, and after seven terms it graduated them as rural teachers. In 1936 it enrolled no one but high school graduates, and could offer them both education courses and non-education courses. The first four year non-teaching curriculum was social work.

In thirty years Western had seen professional education standards raised to a high level, and finally, the beginning of the granting of nonteaching degrees. In both of these areas the college enlarged the number of subjects taught. As a result this thirty year period which began with rudimentary courses in drawing, music, natural ters degree in education could be worked for at Western. In September of 1952 graduate work was entirely separated from the University, and Western granted its own masters degrees.

In the field of undergraduate education curricula the greatest change came in the business education, music, home economics, and the special education areas. The most important changes were in the non-teaching curricula. In 1936 there were only two four-year courses, social work and the general degree. Pre-professional curricula were offered in medicine, business administration, dentistry, engineering, forestry, journalism, law, and pharmacy. Today the non-teaching curricula are divided into two groups—those which prepare the student to go to other schools for professional training, and those which are terminal, and prepare the student for his life work in a special area. The pre-professional courses have changed little, but have been lengthened to three years, with the exception of business administration.

The terminal curricula have grown rapidly. In addition to the general degree, there are twentyfour courses offered, half of which are four year and half two year. The four year courses lead to a bachelors degree and the two year terminal courses to a certificate. Many of the veterans who came to college after the war sought courses that had the practical advantage of giving them skills to work with, and increasingly high school graduates look to the college for short courses.

The variety of courses offered at Western is in keeping with the motto of the school, adopted in

Besides providing buildings, teachers, and equipment for the students, the college also provides a number of services that are of great value. The service that all students come in contact with is the guidance program, which assists the entering student in making his decisions about what to take. Until 1918 undoubtedly the guidance of students was done by all of the faculty members, but in that year the first candidates for the bachelors degree were advised by the head of the Eng-

1944: "That all may learn." But in addition to specialized courses there is a serious need for persons who have a broad general background of information. That realization was the reason why a series of general education courses was instituted at Western. These are inter-departmental, and stress the individual's relationship to the world. Foundations of western civilization, offered by the history department, shows the past history of man and how it has contributed to the modern world. Introduction to contemporary society, offered by the departments of economics, political science, and sociology, consideres the world about us today and its meaning. The science departments offer an interdepartmental course in physical science. The general education movement will undoubtedly increase in the future.

lish department, George Sprau. With the larger number of courses offered, Lavina Spindler became a freshman counselor in 1928. From 1932, all entering students have been given the Ohio State University psychological tests. In 1941 the division of Student Personnel and Guidance was established, and it has continued to provide specialized counselors for all students.

The Health Service began in 1927, but since all students lived in boarding houses, the nurses visited the students who were sick. This became quite an operation, reaching a climax for the Waldo era in 1931-32, when the total number of calls amounted to 3933 and the home visits to 1046. The building of the health and personnel building in 1939 was the beginning of a real clinic at Western, which occupies the whole second floor of that building.

The Psycho-Educational clinic began in the fall of 1931, with the aim of providing psychological service for maladjusted children and adults, both students and non-students. The clinic helps numerous college students who have problems with slow reading or faulty study habits, and its services are available for tests to supplement the counseling program.

The Speech Correction clinic is very famous at Western, both in aiding those with speech de-

Turning from services to the students, we shall now consider that part of the college which is the most important of all the things that we have mentioned before. The foundation of the college, the buildings, the classes and the services all were aimed at one thing—the students. fects and in training special education students in speech correction techniques.

Western has always encouraged foreign students to attend, and since the end of the war an increasing number have done so. To advise and assist them the college has provided a special foreign student advisor.

The library is the oldest service to the students, and has been a most important factor in the growth of the college. Its value to the whole student body and to the faculty is great, and the history of the library is one of steady growth. It will mark the semi-centennial by the accession of the 100,000th volume.

The campus store began in 1912 and has since served the college in many ways other than selling text books. The invaluable one, to many of the students (and faculty) is the mid-morning and afternoon snack!

Western's Students

Western was established for the purpose of providing trained teachers, but as we have seen it soon evolved into a college whose purpose was preparing educated people for all walks of life. The student body and its activities is the subject with which we shall close this commentary upon Western's history, for it is with this group that the college is centered about—that all may learn.

The student body is one of the hardest things to capture in description. Easy to count—we have statistics. Readily observable—they are easy to watch. Students are the most apparent thing about a campus, but when it comes time to set down the history they are the hardest to write about. They defy generalization and invite it at the same time. They change with the wind and they are conservative as only the young can be.

In short they are what make the college go, and they are the spirit that cannot be confined by description. However, something can be done to show how Western students have changed in the past fifty years.

We must remember that the majority of the early students were women, and it was only with the increase in teacher's pay and the addition of non-teaching courses that men were attracted in large numbers. In fact, nothing indicates that better than what happened on November 4, 1913. On that day Western defeated Albion College in a football game by the resounding score of 20 to 3. This so enthused the students that they held a parade from the campus to the business district, tying up all traffic and causing general pandemonium. As an after thought of the parade they crashed the gates of a movie theater. The whole affair caused such a furore among the conservative citizenry that Waldo was submerged by complaints. He called a mass meeting of the women students, who outnumbered the men, and endeavored to find out what caused them to devastate the countryside. Out of this meeting the Associated Women Students developed.

To anyone reading the old yearbooks and volumes of the school newspaper the impression is very strong that the students of yesteryear were uncomplicated and unsophisticated. Whether these are virtues or not is another matter. The point is that years ago Western in many ways resembled what we think of today as a rural consolidated high school. Perhaps what this process of sophistication amounts to is the relationship between a grade school, a high school, and a college, imagined as steps on a ladder. Forty to fifty years ago-and even much later-Western was one place on this ladder, today it is another. The sophistication process has affected all of the schools-even the first graders watch television. When we think of the students of Western's early days we must think of them as simpler and less sophisticated than those of today.

Another factor affecting the character of college students is the size of the college. Western began with an enrollment of 107. It did not reach 1000 until 1921-22 (not counting the one war year 1918-19). There were not 2000 students until 1924-25; for seven years during the depression and after it until 1938-39 the enrollment dropped below 2000. In 1945-46 the enrollment was 1,840. The next year it shot to 4,034, which is only slightly under the current enrollment.

Now it will be seen that while Western since the was has become a college with an enrollment of about 4500 students, for many years it was a college between 1000 and 2000 students. The difference was very great in the character of the student body, in subtle ways that are difficult to record. A small college is not so much a matter of number of students as of atmosphere. Western was a small college—or at least a different college—before the war.

A third factor, that for most of these fifty years Western was a teacher training institute, meant that there was a homogenity of interests and abilities at Western. This tended to set it apart from the more diversified college that resulted from the introduction of the general degree in non-teaching fields.

And finally, since a college mirrors that world that is about it, Western students have changed because the world has changed.

To best understand the students at Western for this fifty year period, turn to the Herald and the Brown and Gold. There you will see them as they saw themselves. Beyond this is almost impossible, for the million odd memories that are stored away in four years cannot be remembered by anyone. The smell of fresh paint in a new building can come across the years from 1904- or 1954. The faces of the girls and the fellows are flashes in the mind's eye as you think back about them. A summer's afternoon during exam week is the same in 1924 as in 1954—but for the person that remembers it, the experience cannot be separated from the whole. It is part of a much larger thing—his life.

Western's history is carried in the memories of those who leave it, for to them this college has meant something that only they can know. The student can see the past about him at Western. Prospect Hill still surveys the Kalamazoo valley. The old administration building is still there, and so are the remains of the cable car. And if the present day student looks more deeply he can trace the development of the school, as we have done here. The history of fifty years of service to education cannot delineate what that service is. If those who leave Western today do so with a clearer understanding of themselves and the world they live in than when they entered Western, then this fifty years may be understood; for that is the goal that this institution has been striving for -the understanding from which all else derives.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps is a means of procuring future Army Officers, for the Regular Army and the Army Reserve. In turn, the program offers an opportunity to prepare for service with the Armed Forces.

The ROTC Unit has continued to expand, and was the largest Quartermaster unit in the United States this year. Lt. Colonel Comet Gibson assumed the duty as Professor of Military Science and Tactics in July of 1953, replacing Lt. Colonel Emil Mosheim who is attending the Command and General Staff College.

This year will include the first graduates who have completed their four years of ROTC study at Western, since the program was initiated in the Fall of 1950.

An outstanding accomplishment of Western's ROTC Unit is that they have won the rifle marksmanship award for three consecutive years at the Fort Lee, Virginia, Summer Camp.

prepared ourselves for the ways of man.

The honorary Cadet Colonel, Miss Barbara Mensing and her court: Carol States, Janean McEwing, Jackie Andrus, and Jackie Slaughter, were elected by the Cadet Corps and were announced at the Military Ball on April 10.

ROTC

Mr. C. B. MacDonald, representing the college, visited summer camp at the invitation of the Camp Commander to observe training of WMC cadets.

Training in using the minimum essentials at the disposal of the soldier in the field was a part of the Summer training program.

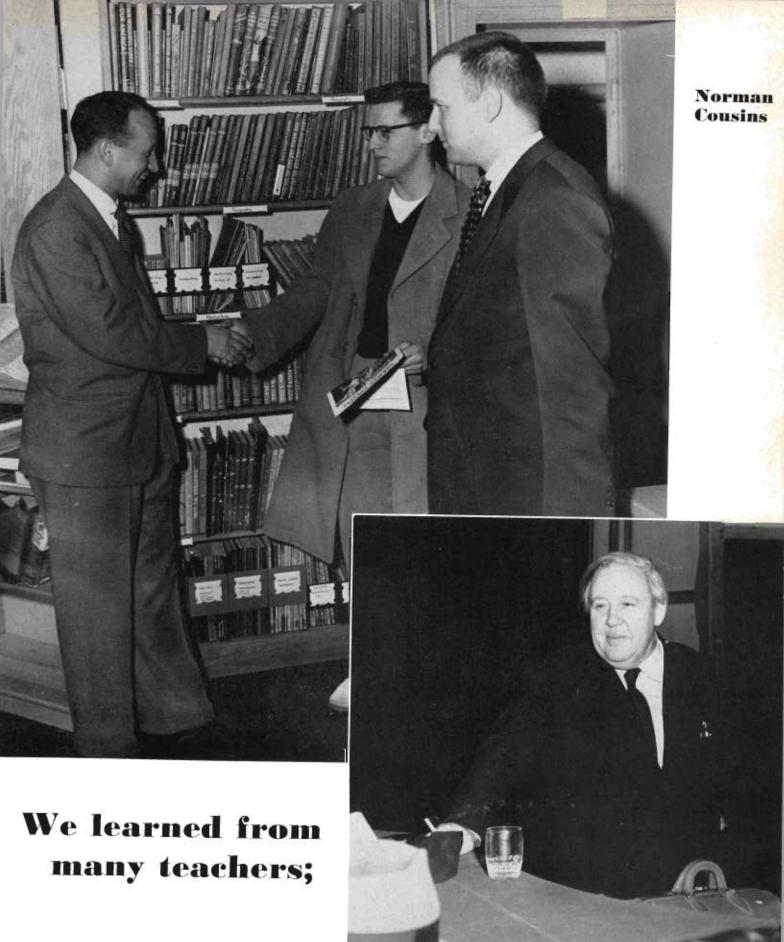

The Rifle Team has received notice, their supremacy has been challenged by the newly formed Coeds Rifle Team. Interest is high among the coeds, and their Rifle Team is expected to bring added distinction to the campus from competition with other schools.

One of the outstanding events of the season was the Military Ball, on 10 April, at which the Honorary Cadet Colonel and her attendants were announced. At Comissioning Exercises, on 11 June, Western made final delivery to the Armed Forces of a highly qualified group of Second Lieutenants, and we know each of them will serve our country well.

With continued emphasis on the higher standards required of ROTC cadets, the unit may be expected to remain relatively stable in size. We are proud of the exceptionally fine achievements of the Western ROTC Unit!

And saw our most talented.

The 1953 Brown and Gold Fantasies was a departure from the comedy theme that has generally prevailed. Philip Faustman authored a serious and moody musical, "Moon on the Bayou." One of the highlights of the show was the second scene which was done completely to music—opera-like.

For the first time, there were two complete casts each of which played two nights of the four night run at the Civic Auditorium.

The 1954 show, "Goodness and Lite" is also double cast. It returns to the comedy theme again with an undercurrent of philosophy developed by the main characters.

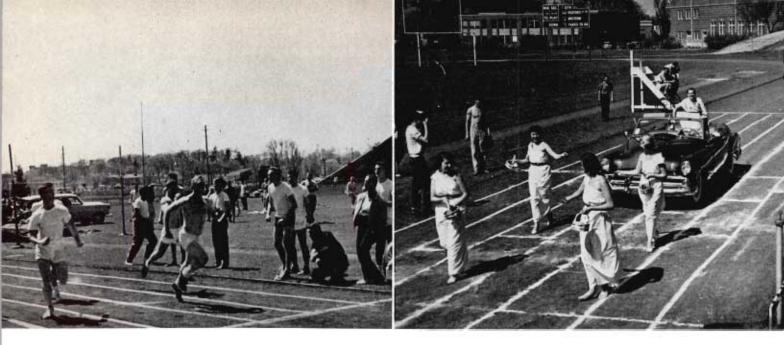

This year marks the first time that the Fantasies came back to the Little Theater. As a result, there will be six performances instead of last year's four.

For next year the Student Council is offering a prize of $50.00 for the best script submitted for the 1955 Brown and Gold Fantasies. The winner will also see his show produced. Jean Artesani, ass't director: Dave Holcomb, script writer; and Jan Rivard, director.

DR. PAUL V. SANGREN President Dr. Sangren and the First Lady of Western relax near their home.

A message from our President

The theme of the 1954 Brown and Gold, dealing with the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of Western Michigan College is, of course, both timely and uplifting. This fiftieth year of the growth of Western marks a significant mile post in its development. This is a time for self-appraisal and thrilling discovery. We are anxious to know how well we are doing, and we are always pleased to discover an assurance that we are better than we dared to hope.

The readers of the Brown and Gold can also well afford to make this a time for appraisal of their own mental and spiritual advances. Their accomplishments, their shortcomings, and their ambitions should pass in review. We have learned some things this year which are well worth remembering. We have learned that accomplishment means patience and continued effort over a long period of time. We have learned that the greatest success results from cooperation with interested and capable people. We have learned that the greatest joy in achievements results from appreciation by and encouragement of one's friends. We have learned that mistakes will be made but that, if we are humble, we will not feel ashamed to acknowledge and correct our shortcomings.

I hope that the numerous readers of the 1954 Brown and Gold — faculty, students, alumni, and friends — will find in its pages that inspiration which accompanies sincerity and truthfulness.

Athletic Board

Carmen Seats, Jim Stevenson, Dave Newsome.

Directing Western's intercollegiate athletic activities and policies this past year was the eight man Athletic Board of Control. This group was primarily concerned with schedule and eligibility problems, and the issuing of awards.

As usual, the Board was composed of five faculty members and three students. The athletic department was represented by Mike Gary. Cornelius MacDonald, William Berry and Charles Smith sat in for the faculty. The student members were Carmen Seats, Dave Newsome and Jim Stevenson. Chairman of the Board was Dean John C. Hoekje.

After the wholesale staff changes of last year, most of the Athletic Department was getting a good chance to settle into their job routines, to more deeply entrench their systems. Jack Petoskey was the only new-comer to the coach's circle.

Don Boven, former Bronco great in basketball, football, and baseball, returned to Western for graduate work. He assisted Coach Joseph Hoy with the basketball team, and a hard-working, valuable assistant he was. Boven left the professional basketball Milwaukee Hawks just before coming to Western.

Physical Education Department

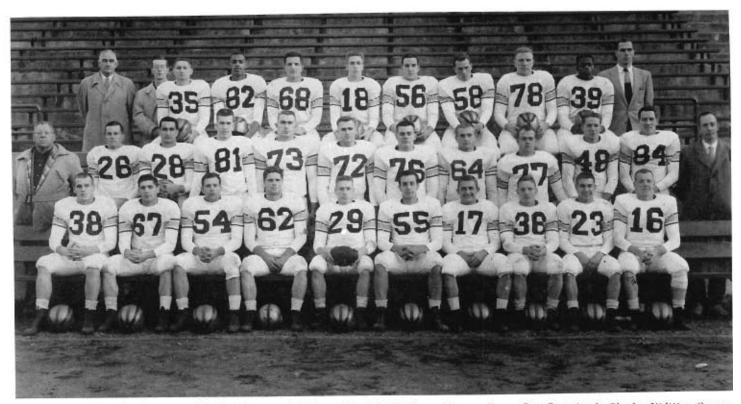

Western's physical education department directs the instructional program for those seeking majors or minors in physical education. Potential coaches can take technical courses in baseball, basketball, football, track and a comprehensive study of minor sports.

Western's Physical Education staff conducts the general physical education program—a program from which Western men (except ROTC members) are required to earn four semester hours of credit. The department also sponsors a very popular intramural program.

FLOYD STOLLSTEIMER, Captain

The '53 Broncos learned that the Mid America Conference is not a sophomore league. The conference was loaded with power this season, and a young Western outfit found the going too rough. However, the Broncos did stay out of last place, and, in spots, looked good.

No one knew quite what to expect when the season opened. It was a young team-almost half of those on the starting lineup were sophomores-with a new coach and a new system. But it was apparent after the first game that Western would suffer because of its collective inexperience. Western was beaten in the season opener by Central Michigan. This was only Western's third loss to Central in 28 games. Things brightened a bit the next week when the Broncos beat a perennially outclassed Illinois Wesleyan. But the Wesleyan waltz was to be Western's only victory in 1953.

Five of the six games remaining after the Wesleyan contest were against conference opponents.

Floyd Stollsteimer receiving recognition as team captain at Football dinner. Leslie Kosters, Western's most valuable player, looks on.

Western lost four straight after their lone win. Included in that forlorn string was a prodigious 52-6 clobbering from Miami and the classic Ohio U debacle, a 62-12 affair. Washington U, a team that had never given the Broncos much trouble, also beat the Broncos. That defeat was all the more galling because Washington, also under a new coach, (Carl Snavely of North Carolina fame) turned the trick at Western's homecoming. But on November in the mud at Cleveland the Broncos hit a peak. The whole team played inspired football as it came from behind to earn a surprising 14-14 tie with Western Reserve. In this one the Broncos were down 14-0 at the end of the first quarter and the game was beginning to look like another massacre. But early in the second period, the Broncos climaxed a 34 yard push when Bosma scored on a short plunge. A few plays later, a Westerner grabbed a Reserve fumble on the Bobcat's 11. From there, Finnefrock slashed to the one and, on the next play, Bosma went over tackle for his second TD of the period. The extra point was made, the score was tied and the game ended that way. Most of the second half was played in the quagmire of midfield, though Western had carried to the Reserve 10 when time ran out. This game proved to be quite crucial for the Broncos. Since Bowling Green lost all four of its conference games, this tie was enough to keep Western out of the league cellar.

The season's few bright spots were provided by such players as Leslie Koster. Koster, a tackle, Tracy, all alone in the flat, grabbing a short one from Feirens.

Western's Porter featured in the "Ballet of the Intercepted Pass."

was chosen the teams most valuable player and was elected next year's captain. Koster was tops in line play, something that cannot be expressed statistically. But, among Western's leaders in the facts and figures department was the team's top scorer, Bruce Bosma. Bosma racked up 18 points on three touchdowns. Jack Kelder, running from the fullback slot, gained the most yardage on the ground with 220 yards in 66 carries. That's a very decent 3.3 yard per try average.

Best among the passers was Lou Fierens who completed 9 out of 30. End Bernie Porter was on the receiving end of most of those tosses. He grabbed 9 altogether, one for a TD, gaining 190 yards in the process. Porter also returned a punt for a score. It is these three men who will comprise the nucleus of the '54 Bronco team.

This season was certainly among Western's poorest. But with most of the better players returning next year and with some support promised from a good freshman team, prospects for next year aren't too dismal.

Porter zigged when he should have and got away for a TD against Washington in the Homecoming game.

Coach Tom Slaughter again came up with a first rate outfit. The Ponies won three out of four, losing only a tough 14-12 decision to Detroit. In that lone loss Western outgained the junior Tians, topped them 9-6 in first downs, but just didn't make those crucial conversions. At that, Detroit's winning score was set up on an intercepted pass.

It's quite impossible to single out one or two stars from this year's edition of the grid Ponies. To mention the really promising players on the squad would require a rather long list. But the list would include backs Laverne Baxter, Jim Shedd, Bill Bernard, Leland David; ends Lew Secory, and Jim Roberts; and, in the line, Fred Bolthouse, Don Cook, Jim Walker, Lee Villisades and Honorary captain Robert Soderman. The success of Western's '54 Varsity depends largely on how completely these people realize the potentialities they indicated during the past senson.

WESTERN-47 NOTRE DAME-50 WHEATON-50 MARQUETTE-72 Western was eleventh in the NCAA Championship Meet. 22 minutes and 15 seconds after the starting shot, Marquette's Bob Allen rounded a clump of bushes and sprinted the last 150 yards to break the tape. 30 seconds later Western's Tom Coyne crossed the finish line. Close behind Coyne was another Marquette runner. But then in rapid succession four gold-shirted Westerners finished to give the Broncos a decisive victory.

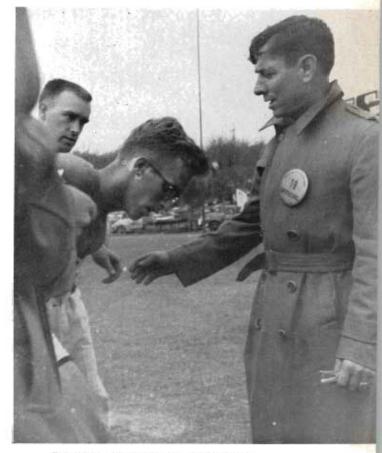

This was about the way the Broncos had been doing it all year; taking no place higher than second or third, but bunching four or five runners among the top seven. And the formula paid off. Without a really oustanding man on the squad, Western won four of six dual meets, captured the Central Collegiate Conference title, finished second in the MAC and 11th in the nation.

The high point of the year was the CCC victory. Western edged Notre Dame 47-51 to win that one. Again it was a case of great team balance overcoming outfits with one or two exceptional runners and not much else. Western's top finisher, Jim Arnold was a mere eighth, but his teammates took the important tenth and eleventh spots and Western was in. This victory, won on a beautiful mid-November day at Chicago's Washington Park, was especially appreciated by the Broncos. Pre-meet articles in Chicago papers predicted a battle between Notre Dame and Wheaton for first place and didn't mention Western.

As has often been the case, Miami proved more than troublesome. The Redskins shut out Western in a dual, 15-45, and beat the Bronco's 15-45 in the Mid-American Conference Meet. Bowling Green was the only other entrant and so was an automatic third. Miami, built about a nucleus of talented Sophomores, provided the meet's individual winner, Dave Woods, also a second year man.

Western's other defeat, a 28-29 affair, came at the hands of Michigan Normal in the annual homecoming meet. Normal, as well as Michigan State, also outscored Western in the Michigan AAU run.

Next year's team shows promise of being even better. Jim Arnold, Carl Ramsay, Jim Sheehan and John Leitch, all Sophomores and team mainstays, should have improved with a year's experience. The other regulars, Tom Coyne, Val Eichenlaub and Bob Bailey are Juniors. Tom Taube, Western's eighth man, ran consistently under 23 minutes, which, though not quite good enough to win a letter, would have placed him among the top five on most teams.

There was little in the way of performance differences to distinguish Western's '53 frosh cross country team from the varsity. Bill Pyle, Byron Skinner, Dick Teugh, Jim De Graff and Lynn Mailand; all were on a par with Western's senior harriers.

The ponies ran two meets against other frosh teams. They shut out Bowling Green, but were beaten by Miami. Their true ability was best indicated when they outran Wayne University's varsity in an early season, non-official meeting.

If basketball teams had personalities, Western's '53-'54 outfit would be said to have a split personality. On different nights, the team, though consisting of the same individuals, didn't look like the same organism.

The strange Jekyll-Hyde nature of the Broncos became apparent early. In the season's third game, Western lost to a Western Reserve team that went on to finish last in the conference and was one of the really poor teams in this part of the country.

But a few nights later Hoy's boys astonished everyone by knocking off extra-rugged Bowling Green. At the time Bowling Green was ranked among the nation's ten best college teams and at season's end was invited to the National Invitational Tournament. But that night at Kalamazoo they were just another loser. During the first half, the Broncos played with the abandon of a team that didn't think it had a chance to win, but still wanted to enjoy the game. They tried the improbable and the spectacular and found that everything they did worked. By hitting on more than 50% of its shots, Western, at the game's midway point, had a 45-30 lead; a lead that was held more conservatively through the game's second half.

Western Reserve's Howard about to lose the ball to sneaky Nowinski.

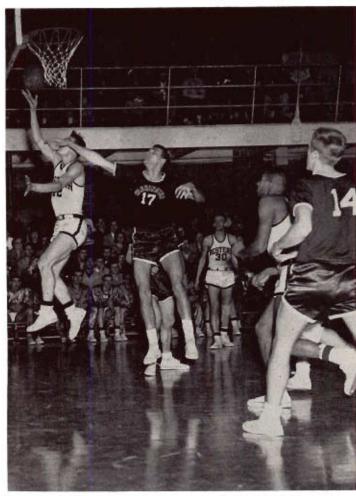

Varsity Basketball

It was like that throughout the season. The locals swamped Valporaiso by 30 points, but in a return match the Hoosiers edged Western. The same happened in the Loyola series. And Western eventually split the home series with already mentioned Bowling Green and Western Reserve. Considering everything, it was a better than Western's ten win - 11 loss record indicates. This edition of the Broncos set an all-time Western scoring mark, when they riddled the nets for 103 points against Valporaiso. Big Ron Jackson picked up a couple of individual school records. picked up 414 points for one of his marks, and tied the single game scoring record when he tossed in 33 against Valporaiso.

Jackson carried most of the team's offensive load for the entire season. But from time to time after losing streaks and after especially dismal performances, when it seemed as if the Broncos were washed up, someone would come off the bench, play really inspired basketball for several games and the team would look like world beaters again. Less spectacular, but doggedly consistent was Don Coleman, who never really hit his scoring stride, was nevertheless invaluable for his rebounding.

As has been usual for the last few years, Western's frosh hoopsters were very tough. Led by top scorers Larry Pedracine and Jack Smith, each with a 12.5 point average, the Ponies won all but two of their contests. Their only losses were tight affairs that could have gone either way.

At the start of the second semester, Western yearlings Fred Corbus, Fred Heiser and Herb Goll moved up to the varsity and at season's end were giving good accounts of themselves. It seems quite probable that others of this year's freshman team will do as well when they move up.

Western's baseball team continued its tradition of being one of the best in the conference. Winning 8 of 10 games played against Big Ten teams gave Western the prestige of having a better record than most of the big ten schools.

A rained out game stood between Western and the conference championship. Ohio finished the season with a 9-1 record for the championship and Western was second with 8-1. This rained out game prevented the Broncos from being named to the N.C.A.A. district play-offs. Michigan and Ohio were named over Western. Michigan took district honors and then won the national championship at Omaha.

Duane Emaar was named to the All-Conference first team, while Ron Jackson and Bud Brotebeck were named to the second team.

The fine pitching of Ron Davies made him the number one hurler with a 6-0 record. Graham posted a 4-1 record and was followed by Urda who split with a 3-3 record. Tucker contributed two games without losing any, with Eggers and Emaar posting 1-0 records. The slugging of Ron Jackson, Ron Heaveland and Duane Emaar led the way to many of the Westernite's victories. Jackson hit a very respectable .435 average which was followed closely by Heaveland's .404 average. But most surprising of all was Duane Emaar's incredible .688 season average.

Coach Charlie Maher has in a host of returning veterans and sophomores, the material to make Western again in '54, a strong threat in the MAC race.

> Western's frosh baseball team showed plenty of sparkle as they went through a seven game season without a loss. The fine pitching of Jerry Sposito, Ed Louchey, Paul Nagelson, Larry Martin, Ron Kenniston and Mike Schwartzcoff proved to be a great determining factor in the team's perfect season. Coach John Gill was able to substitute pitchers freely, and no one pitcher had to throw for an entire game.

> Western's pitching power was well complemented by the clubbing of Stuifbergen, Kiengs and Dobbeck. In six games, Dobbeck knocked in 16 runs, to lead the way among the sluggers.

1954 Baseball

As the start of the '54 season drew near, coach Maher was faced with the problem of finding replacements for four of last year's departed regulars. The loss of Dave Gottschalk, a Western institution at second base, will be especially hard to remedy. But the absence of Bud Brotebeck, Al Horn and Western's top hurler for 1953, Ron Davies, certainly won't further Maher's campaign to regain the conference title.

Western's 1953 track team, though extremely weak in certain spots, compiled a fine 4 win-11 loss record. In one triangular and four dual meets, Western lost only to Miami, a fate shared by many a good team in the last five years. Miami again, in the MAC Meet, was the only team to outscore second place Western.

Contributing most to the success of the past season was Western's great hurdling duo of Albert Renick and Russel Henderson. Between them Renick and Henderson won both hurdle events at every meet, as well as most runner-up spots. Renick's best in the high hurdles, a blazing 14.5, was good enough to rank among the 10 best college times of the year. He has also ripped off a 23.8 in the 220 lows, and, going slightly afield, turned in a 9.9 100 yard dash. Renick's speed was fully displayed in the conference meet in which he won the 220 lows, finished second in the highs, and fourth in the hundred. Henderson, running the highs with remarkable consistency, hit 14.7 on three different occasions and took the conference title in the event.

Sophomore Bob Bailey continued his outstanding running in the half-mile. His times were consistently around two minutes and he ran a 1.57.5 to win the conference title. In addition Bailey ran excellently as anchor man on Western's strong mile relay team. In his role as anchor man in the last event in the Central Michigan meet, Bailey came from behind to give Western victory in the relay and the meet when it looked as if Central would earn a tie.

Another Westernite prominent in the 440 was Bob Azkoul who finished second in the conference. He usually covered the distance in about 50 seconds. Azkoul also ran the 220 and ran it well enough to earn a fifth in the conference.

Western's best in the field events was Al Manne who scored heavily in the shot put with lofts of about 45 feet and in the discus with throws of between 120 and 130 feet. In three meets he won both the shot put and the discus.

Other steady scorers for Western, included Burt Jones and Don Johnson in the sprints and Gordon Spencer in the hurdles and 440.

But all was not points and victories for Western. During the entire season the Broncos didn't capture a single first in the high jump, broad jump, or in the mile and two mile runs. Though Tom Coyne invariably scored in the two and several times ran close to 9:50, he couldn't quite eke out a win. Coyne did come back in the conference meet to place fourth in a good field. Gordon Hope and Bob Wagner scored often with jumps of about six feet and they participated in a four way tie for second through fifth place in the conference meet by clearing 6' 2". Mace Clark, also victoryless, got a fourth in the broad jump. But there were no consoling performances in the mile. It was Western's big give-away all season, as none of the varied assortment of half-milers and two-milers that ran it, found it to their liking.

That Western had such a successful season is really surprising when it is pointed out that such front-line competitors as team captain Ron Cole, pole vaulter; Frank Nugent, Val Eichenlaub and Don Lynch, middle distance men; sprinter Burt Jones, and high jumper Gordon Hope either sat out the entire season or were severly handicapped because of injuries.

The MAC meet held at Kalamazoo, was, to no one's great surprise, an all-Miami affair. Nearly duplicating their 1952 conference meet score, Miami rolled up 891/2 points to Western's 46. Bowling Green finished a feeble third with 241/2 points.

At the Drake Relays Western was equal to a fourth. In the less renowned Bowling Green Relays the Broncos fared better. Western walked off with most of the honors in competition with a field that included Wayne, Baldwin Wallace and the host team.

Row 2: Coach Dales, Charles Wentz, Ron Kasher, Wendell Leist, Len Eason, John Spoelman, Richard Parkman, Jim Shepan. The 1953 edition of Western's frosh track team was the best ever. Undefeated in a four meet season that included runnings against Wayne and Bowling Green, the Pony tracksters breezed to the conference freshman track title and thoroughly dominated the second annual Grand Rapids Junior College Relays. At Grand Rapids, Western captured 12 of a possible 17 firsts.

Outstanding individual performances were plentiful. All-time school frosh records were broken or tied by Fred Bean who ran the hundred in 9.9; Len Eason's 45' 6" shot put; Will Wright's 12' pole vault; a broad jump of 21' 11½" by Fred Beane; Richard Parkman who covered the low hurdles in 24.5; and Wright and Parkman who both topped the highs in 15.3. New freshman meet records were broken more often than not. Great things are expected of this crop of freshmen and it's not hard to see why.

1954 Track

Western's track team in its second season with George Dales as mentor racked up two victories against two defeats on the indoor ovals. Upholding the tradition of never losing to Central Michigan, the trackmen edged the Chips by winning the mile relay to prevent a tie.

In the Bronco's only home meet they swamped Albion 851/3 to 142/3. The team placed fourth in the Central Collegiate conference closed meet, which was won by the host, Notre Dame.

The sparkling performances of Bob Bailey, Russ Henderson, Ira Murchison and John Hudson were the highlights of the season. These runners did a good job of representing Western by placing high in the Michigan State Relays, Milwaukee Journal, Chicago Daily News, Michigan A.A.U., and the Cleveland Knights of Columbus meets.

CONFERENCE

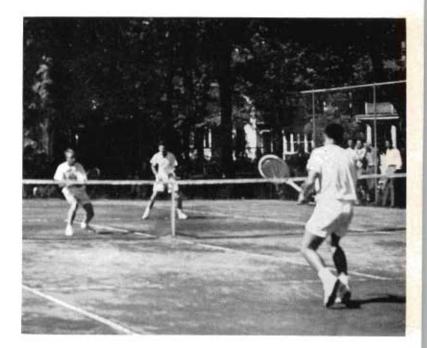

Miami

Since Ray Sorenson assumed the coaching duties in 1950, Western has been a potent tennis power in the MAC. In 1950 and '52 Western won the conference title and in '51 they were second. This year they again finished in the runner-up slot. Prior to the conference tournament, the Broncos ran amuck through league opponents, shutting out Toledo and Ohio University, and smashing Cincinnati 8 to 1,

But the ambitious locals had it much rougher outside of the conference. In eight non-league encounters against some of the toughest collegiate outfits in the country Western won only once. Half of those matches, however, were played on Western's early-season southern tour, before the Broncos had played enough outdoor tennis to be sufficiently sharp. In their outing against Tulane, Sorenson and company got a shot at the great Ham Richardson, a challenging, though futile experience.

In the conference tourney, though Miami won the team title, Western's number one player, Jack Vredevelt, came through as the individual champ. In the decision match, Vredevelt rallied to down Miami's Dick Klitch 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Vredevelt also had the top record on the team with 10 wins in 16 matches. Dick Hendershott, number two man, won 6 out of 15 and on occasion played much better than that record would seem to indicate. Bob Nuding with 7 in 16 and George Church, who won 9 while losing 7 were other Western top rankers.

George Carpenter, Charles Donnelly, Max Allen, Jack Vredevelt, Vernon Johnson, Dick Norton, Jim Farrell, Ed Foster.

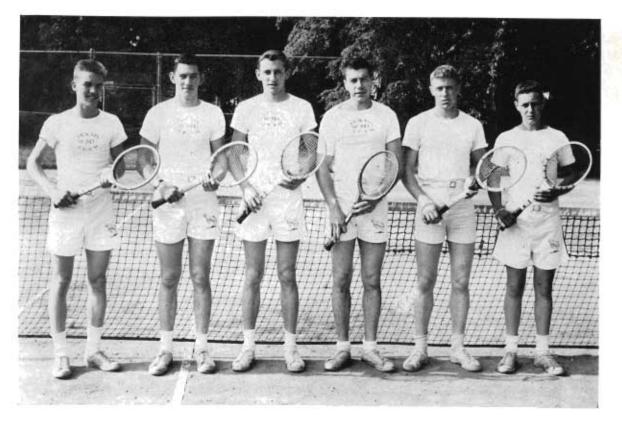

> Western's tennis prospects have never seemed brighter than as the team readied for the coming year's competition. This season's team will include present conference single titlist Jack Vredevelt; Ed Foster, a leading member of the '52 league championship team; and a flock of good sophomores, veterans of last year's really tough freshmen team. The Broncos stand a sreal threats to regain the title they held in 1950 and in 1952.

1953 Freshman Tennis

Edward Knuth, Richard Norton, Jim Farrell, Vernon Johnson, Max Allen, and Charles Donnelly.

The '53 frosh tennis team was probably the best from among the crop of outstanding yearling outfits on campus. Not only did they romp over Grand Rapids Junior College twice, but were good enough to beat the varsity quite often in practice matches. The '54 varsity should be strengthened by such top notch tennis freshmen as Jim Farrell. who was nationally recognized as a junior; Max Allen, state Class B titlist; and Bud Donnely, one of the better players to come out of Michigan high schools.

Western

Western's golfers, led by conference medalist Don Kelly, compiled a fine record of 13 wins and 5 losses. The team took second place in the M.A.C. conference with a 618 score. Ohio posted a 605 to win their third straight conference title.

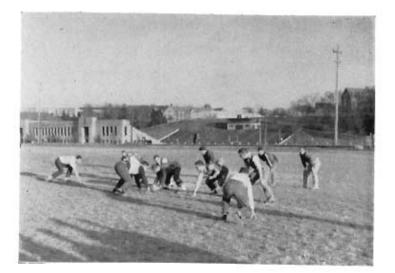

Team balance was the secret of the successful season. No one man occupied the number one spot throughout the season. Western's success in the extra heavy 18-match season gave hint to a team that should again be a conference power in 1954.

Intramurals

Women's Physical Education

The health, educational, and recreational aspects of physical education are all considered in providing instruction in all types of sports—both individual and team, all kinds of dance, corrective posture classes, and swimming. The Modern Dance

Club and the Water Sprites interest those students wishing further work in the dance and in swimming.

Department members directing this program were Miss Isabel Crane, Miss Mary Bottje, Miss Crystal Worner, Miss Margaret Large, Miss Doris Hussey, Miss Joette Hainks, Miss Eleanor Douglass, and Mrs. Helen Brown.

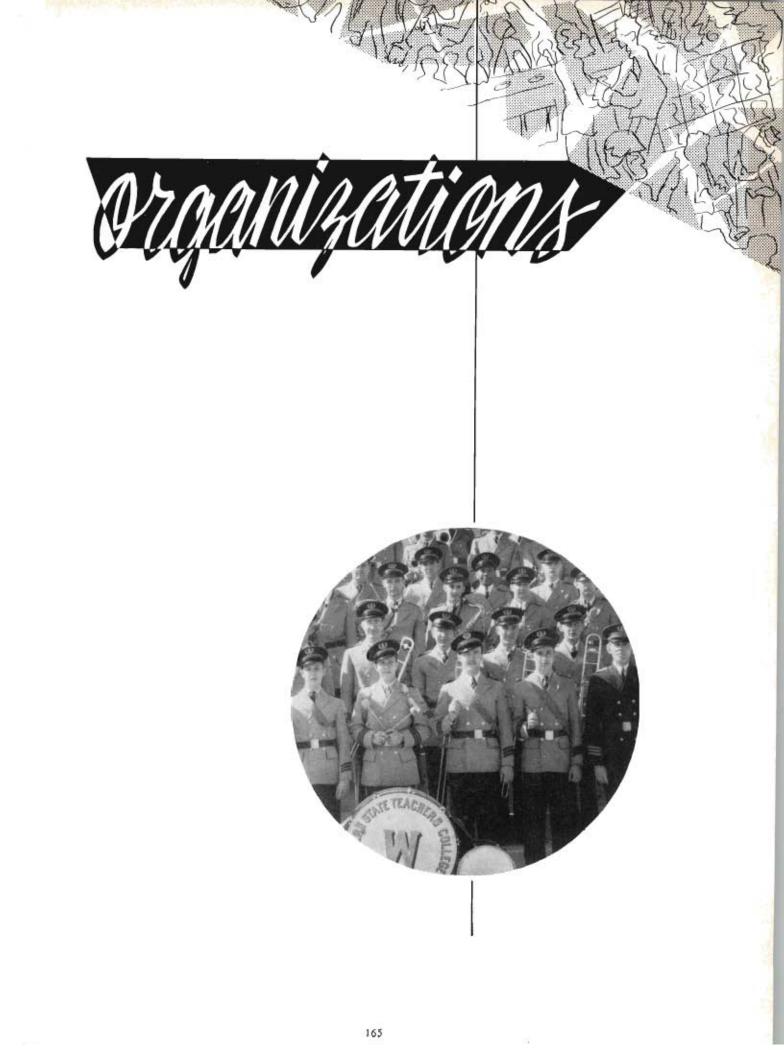

Cheerleaders

Bruce Crowley, Barbara Parham, Judy Henderson, Jo Wahlstrom, Lois Umbenhaur.

"One, two, three—let's go!"yelled the energetic five who comprised last year's cheerleaders. Always present at the games—in snow and in sunshine—these four gals and a guy led sports viewers in the 'hip, hip, hoorah' yells that are such a part of college football and basketball games.

Assisting captain Barbara Parham were Bruce Crowley, Joan Wahlstrom, Judy Henderson and Lois Umbenhaur. Next year's cheerleaders were elected in the late spring.

The Open House dances promoted by the Men's Union seemed to have taken the fancy of many here. These week-night dances cover only a part of the Union's social functions. Their activities were felt by the young and old alike, for they also sponsored the Frosh-Soph games and a Dad's Day coffee. The Union tries to cover every phase of collge social life and ended the year with the annual "Cotillion Ball." The band that played was chosen from dance bands of renown. Last year, for instance, the fellas and girls danced to the music of Stan Kenton.

Off the purely social side of the calendar, the Men's Union dedicated a war memorial at Kanley Chapel May 20th. This was only one of their efforts to bear out their aim of developing campus leadership. And in sponsoring their social activities the Union hopes it has provided wholesome recreation for students.

Men's Union, through the medium of appointed committee-heads: Dick Hanschu, Ed Kahn, Irv Hamilton, Gary Hershoren, Bob Dion, and Bruce Crowley and the respective committees, expanded the membership and effectiveness by 40 (members) to 5.

Aside from governing the female students, AWS had a whirl of social activities. The school year saw new students receiving helpful hints of every sort from their Senior Sisters. But that wasn't all.

Even the bashful girls asked fellows for a date when AWS sponsored the Twirp season dances. And right at the opening of the fall semester there was an all-student carnival with the true atmosphere of festivity and revelry.

During the season of good cheer AWS provided a Christmas Chocolate for the girls and the faculty women. Spring activities included a marriage conference and a Mother's Day Tea.

Traditionally, AWS terminated its year with the June Breakfast which honored outstanding students. The Daisy Chain, consisting of honor freshmen, led the procession of women to the Union where prominent junior women were "tapped" for Artista. This occasion rounded out the year for the Women's governing, and social organization.

Friday morning classes suffered, as always, this year, and many a frustrated professor puzzled over the appeal of "that Herald" thing, in contrast to his chosen textbook. For out of what must be described as the most incredibly disorganized jumble of papers and personnel west of Washington came the weekly Western Herald with an expanded feature department and broad coverage and comment on all angles and aspects of campus activity.

Showing steady improvement throughout this major year in the history of the college, the Herald recorded such significant events as Homecoming, "the Borely case," the Harrsen Radiothon, major changes in administration and student government, the Fiftieth Anniversary Festival, Greek Week, assemblies, elections, and all the collegiate etceteras.

During the first semester the front-office consisted of Nolan L. Payne, editor; Frank VanDeventer, managing editor; and James E. Zagelmeyer, business manager.

Stepping into the top jobs for Semester II were Pete Cooper, editor; Pauline Karling, associate editor; and Robert Copping, business manager.

About sixty other students lent their efforts directly to the production of the student-faculty newspaper in Western's fiftieth year.

The ingredients? Merely take $16,000; get a staff of over 40 persons; work them a total of about 7,000 hours; add a dozen students who are not on the staff, but help anyway; and sprinkle well with fun and good nature. Out of this conflagration come 4,000 servings of the 1954 Brown and Gold —larger than we're used to, and complete with a history of Western, as well as our depiction of the 1953-54 school year's most significant events.

Out of the red, gray and black office of the editor came such unheard of things as the limiting of ALL organizations to two pages and including the pictures of all of Western's faculty in the book. And out of his office come heaps of thanks to the staff and friends that worked so hard, and, each in their own way, made it possible to publish the best of all Western yearbooks. Thanks especially to the typists who never get the credit deserved; to Gene Clysdale, last year's editor, who was most helpful during the doldrums and deadlines of the first semester; to Carl Ramsay, who unflinchingly wrote (and rewrote) the sports copy, and to Jack McCarthy, who struggled with the cover, division and title page pendulums.

Julane George

When junior women are elected to Arista in June, it's not only because they have high scholarship. The importance of leadership and service to Western are also uppermost in the minds of the old members who choose new recipients. Each year, since 1940, the new members have been tapped at the A. W. S. "June Breakfast." The Aristonians are continuing work on affiliation with "Mortarboard," the national honorary society for senior women.

These gals really carried on an active year. They made cookies for the A.W.S. Christmas Chocolate, ushered at the mid-year graduation, filed class cards for student Council, had a homecoming breakfast, honor chocolate for Sophomores, and entertained a foreign student at their Christmas Party.

Jackie Slaughter, president, led the year's activities. Julane George served as vice-president; Rita McClumpha, secretary; Katie Reid, treasurer; Barbara Kilburn, A. W. S. representative; Martha Smith, historian; and Elizabeth Snyder as publicity director.

With the need for capable teachers still prevalent, one of Western's organizations is attempting to do its share of furthering an interest in the teaching field. Kappa Delta Pi, an honorary society in education, encourages high professional, intellecual, and personal standards. They also have a goal to recognize outstanding contributions to education.

The Beta Iota chapter recently initiated sixtynine new members. At the banquet following initiation, Dr. James O. Knauss spoke on "Fifty Years of Service to Education." These future educators also have had movies, speakers, and a Chocolate honoring freshman honor students. Their annual national convocation was held this March at Purdue University.

For a science of mathematics student to wear a Kappa Rho Sigma Key is a great honor. This means the wearer has been selected by the Faculty Science club as an outstanding student in both fields.

At the annual initiation banquet in the spring the new members were honored. The permanent secretary is Mr. Herbert Hannon of the Mathematics department. It's a bird, it's a plane, no—it's a member of Sigma Alpha Tau, an honorary fraternity. It was organized in December of 1950 to promote air transportation in schools and industry, as well as to develop high moral character, integrity, and leadership.

This year, many of the members attended a banquet at the national headquarters at Purdue University.

Marshall Boynton was president; Theodore Holman, secretary; James Eccles, treasurer. Mr. William Wichers and Mr. Robert Ring served as their advisors.

A little refreshment on meeting night.

It's been five years since this chapter made its national affiliation and one of the functions they have initiated here is the Sorority Sing. For their members, SAI held monthly musicales, including the traditional "Rose Musicale" performed by the pledges. And not forgetting the alumni, they celebrated homecoming with a breakfast. In the spirit of their aims to further American music and to raise their own productive standards, the SAI's collaborated with Phi Mu Alpha to present an American Musicale in the spring.

The SAI's were led this year by Martha Smith, president; Marcelle Gillespie, vice-president; Elizabeth Tomchak, recording secretary; Marie Seifert, corresponding secretary; Carolyn Chapin, treasurer; Evelyn Sowers, chaplain; Mary Ann Keyser, editor. Sponsors included Miss Ethel Green, Mrs. Philip Faustman; and Mrs. Angelo LaMariana.

This is their meat.

Records show that Sig Tau Chi is one of the largest co-educational organizations on campus. It is composed of students enrolled in any one of the business curriculums.

The meetings are both social and educational. Several prominent business men and women of Kalamazoo were invited to speak to the club during the year. As well as making trips to local con-

Gamma Theta Upsilon . . .

If anyone was interested in travel—via geography films—they had an opportunity to do so by joining Gamma Theta Upsilon. Every month this type of film, supplemented by travel talks and field trips, was on the agenda for members of this group. Gamma Thetas also held a homecoming coffee for the alumni and ended the activities this June with an annual picnic. Leading Gamma Theta for the first semester

Leading Gamma Theta for the first semester were: Jane Hughes, president; James Zugelmeyer, vice-president; Richmond Kingman, corresponding secretary; Lou Scobey, recording secretary; and Doreen Dethmers, treasurer. Dr. Berry, Dr. Stout, and Miss Logan were the sponsors.

. . . Country Life

The name of this club is misleading. Don't envision a group of nature-lovers who take crosscountry hikes, hold fish-fries and who, in general, revert back to the comfortable arms of Mother Nature. Country Life is an organization of students who have an educational purpose which is to promote a better understanding of rural life. Members are interested in matters concerning the character of rural communities so that they can better adapt their teaching programs to the educational needs of rural students.

Established in the same year that Western was founded, the members expressed much pride in the club as they jointly celebrated the fiftieth anniversary. Early in the fall, delegates represented the club at an annual conference of rural youth of the U.S.A. at Camp Bloomington, Ill. A workshop was conducted at Christmas time in which toys were either made or repaired and given to families selected through the Council of Social Agencies. Among several other time-consuming activities, members of the club sponsored the annual Rural Retreat. Because social enjoyment is an important consideration of the group, a club choir was established last year.

Officers for the fall semester were: Audry Hill, president; Mary Hamilton, vice-president; Diana Springett, secretary; and Joyce Julian, treasurer. Spring semester officers were: Peggy Birkhold, president; Ginger Dunlop, vice-president; Carol Middlebush, secretary; and Marie Wieland, treasurer. The sponsor of the club was Dr. James Ansel and Dr. William Robinson was club advisor.

For music that was really "hot." folks listened to a "Jazz Concert" given by the Phi Mu boys in March. They also sponsored the Fraternity Sing, an all-student dance, American Musicale, Music Education Symposium, and Alumni Day Social.

The purposes which united these music majors since December, 1946 are to advance the cause of music in America, to foster the mutual welfare and Campbell Club . .

To give one a feeling of spiritual growth and to study and grow in the Christian way of life are the aims of the Campbell Club. In providing this fellowship, the Campbell Club through its affiliation with the Central Christian Church and the Kalamazoo Christian Church has had a series of studies on different religions, visited other churches, had a wiener roast, went to Lake Michigan for a retreat, and honored their National Youth Worker with a special dinner meeting.

The group, founded at Western in 1953, had for their officers: Dora Lee Kohn, president; Phyllis Chapman, vice-president; Beth Ward, secretarytreasurer; John Adams, worship chairman; Grace Burgess, Religious Council representative; Ruth Randall, recreation chairman; and Kenneth Storey, publicity chairman. Mr. Kenneth Seeley and Mr. Al Watterworth were sponsors.

In 1948, the Canterbury Club was founded on Western's campus. Since then, the club has taken trips to Three Rivers to the Priory, had picnics, informal meetings at which they have had marriage series with a doctor, minister, home maker, and economist.

The Club is open for membership to all Episcopal students and faculty, as well as those interested in learning about the Episcopal Church. This group has had Sunday meetings and small groups meet for study and service projects.

Dave Wild has been president; Don French secretary; Gerry Post, treasurer; and Mr. Howard Bigelow, faculty sponsor. Rev. John Cottrell served as chaplain.

With Western's celebration of its Fiftieth Birthday, Gamma Delta celebrated it tenth year of Lutheran student work at a special service at Kanley Chapel. The year's activities included an annual fall initiation banquet, Christmas caroling, Sunday school canvasing for Zion Lutheran Church, Tuesday evening Bible study at Kanley Chapel, and Regional winter camp at St. Mary's Lake.

President Patricia Boynton has lead the Lutheran students to find Christian knowledge, Christian service, and Christian socialibility. Those lending assistance were: Rita Mahder, vice-president; Gretchen Dorn, secretary, Bruce Arney, treasurer; Lorene Elsie, representative to Religious Council, Pastor Louis W. Grother and Dr. Arthur J. Manske were sponsors and Del Thussius was student worker.

. . Hillel

Row 1: Amelia Fox, Arlene Lando, Louise Ziff, Sue Skolnick, Seema Gross. Row 2: Franklin Friedman, Robert Rutten, Robert Graff, Rabbi Grossman, Morris Richman, Dr. Manis, Ed Stewart.

It's a small but determined group of people who comprise Hillel. In 1945 it became affiliated with the National Hillel Foundation which is sponsored by B'nai B'rith, the National Jewish Fraternal organization. Since its location on our campus, Hillel has furthered the knowledge of the Jewish religion, provided an opportunity for informal social activities for its members, and worked with the other religious groups here at Western and "K" College. On the social calendar, the Hillelites have held potato pancake parties, movies on Modern Israel, and discussions on different religious culture subjects.

The group was headed by Edward Stewart, president; Seema Gross, vice-president; Louise Ziff, secretary-treasurer. The Faculty advisors were Dr. Jerome Manis and Mr. Julius Stulberg; Rabbi Herman Grossman was their religious advisor.

Inter-Church Student Fellowship

"The Christian Student and the University" was one of the many topics studied by the many members of Western, "K" College, and Bronson nurses. Through the sponsorship of the First Baptist, First Congregational, First Methodist, and First Presbyterian Churches, the ICSF members have united Christians of all faiths and denominations in study, work, and play.

Besides regular Sunday evening programs, retreats, workcamps, faculty fireside gatherings, and their big project of a pancake supper to raise money for a yearly project, the Student-Fellowshipers publish nine issues of AGAPE, a newspaper of Student Christian opinion.

With Phyllis Alspach serving as president, Joan Dygert as vice-president, Barbara Avery secretary, and Arvalea Bunning as treasurer, the Rev. William Rogers participated as student director for the group. Row 1:Linda Crondall, Peggy Rfister, Lois Wheeler, Gloria Smith, Barbara Garrett, Edward Hart, Lorrie Brakeman, Joan Dygert. . . Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

"Every-one is welcome — for in this organization all students at Western have the opportunity of fellowship with others who adhere to a conservative christian faith." Through Bible study, prayer, and daily prayer meetings, members of this group try to achieve their goal of a fuller Christian life.

President Mildred Bergmans, Vice-President Barbara Anderson, Secretary Joyce Norton, Treasurer Katherine Egnatuk, and Mr. Herbert Hannan, sponsor, believe that social activities can lead them to their goal, too! Toboggan parties at Echo Valley, Christmas caroling, spring retreats, and a February conferette with the chapters of all colleges in Michigan were the main activities for the I-V.C.F. members this past year.

Newmanites Host to Ohio Valley Province Convention

In November, representatives from non-secular colleges and universities from five states met in Kalamazoo for their convention. Here they discussed the aims of the organization, the promotion of religious, social, and intellectual programs for Catholic students, as well as having various social activities.

Newman Club members have the Washington Bears up a goal post at Homecoming time.

Our Western Newmanites had Retreats, Communion Breakfasts, a Christmas party, a Spring party, and general business meetings. Each year they have sponsored the Mardi Gras Costume Ball.

During this, their eighth year on campus, they were headed by Jack McCarthy, president; Margaret Brozevich, vice-president; Joanne Haslem, recording secretary; Sally Wines, corresponding secretary; Darlene Ryor, treasurer; and Dr. Stanley Kuffel, Fr. James O'Meara, sponsors.

The Newmanites have some pure social pleasure.

Pre-Ministerial . .

Donald Fitzgerald, Audrey Campbell, Gloria Smith, Keith Palmerton, Marilyn Mumford, Harvey Beach, Edward Hart, Barbara Crabtree, Mr. Bill Rogers, advisor, Julie Keiley, Neviv Smith.

"Through Faith comes a deeper, and richer understanding of life!" This belief is held by the members of the Pre-Ministerial Club who are preparing themselves for full time Christian service.

When, in 1952, the club was organized it was decided to have its programs include speakers from various fields of service along with discussions on the Bible and religious problems in the world today.

Leading its members were Don Fitzgerald, president; Audrey Campbell, vice-president; and Julia Keiley, secretary.

... YWCA

Oldest religious club on campus it the distinction held by the Young Women's Christian Association. The YWCA first came to Western in 1906 and since that time it has tried to help the community as well as its individual members. Through the methods of worship, study, and action, they seek to find God's purpose for all areas in the individual and common life.

Service projects, such as parties for orphan's homes, Christmas baskets, ushering at Chapel Services, Christmas caroling, retreats, and a monthly newspaper are some of the functions that are important to any "Y" member.

Sponsors were Mrs. George Bradley, Mrs. Russell Seibert, and Miss Myrtle Powers. Jean Randall served as president, Jacqueline Baas is vicepresident, Barbara Sutton is secretary, and Diana Springett served as treasurer.

Epsilon Delta Gamma . .

This was the fourth year that Epsilon Delta Gamma gave its services to Western in the military matters. In stressing their aims of achieving efficiency and representing Western at various functions, members of the drill team participated in many civic parades — Memorial Day, Armistice Day, and Armed Forces day functions. During homecoming the queen and the court received the attention of Epsilon Delta Gamma escorts. And last—only too familiar to many students—members of Epsilon Delta Gamma took part in the flag raising ceremony at the football games.

Taking care of the command first semester were: Frank Nugent, president; Eric Peterson, secretary; Richard MacDonald, treasurer; Marshal Boynton, drill team commander; and Chester Kowalczyk, assistant drill team CO. Sponsors who served last year were Capt. Eugene Bierer and SFC John Baker.

The Phi Chi Eta men, bedecked in their full dress uniforms, stood at attention as the homecoming court—followed by the queen—made its entry into the crowded gymnasium. This was one of the more familiar functions of this national quartermaster's fraternity.

Organized three years ago, Phi Chi Eta attempts to promote an interest among the cadets in the ROTC program and to improve their professional knowledge.

Last fall these boys wore a button to indicate their willingness to sell "Life" and "Time" subscription franchises to students. This was one of the newer projects for the school season. Along with this, Phi Chi Eta members participated in standard activities such as homecoming, besides holding parties, movies, and hearing guest speakers.

Officers were: James Hoejke, president; Donald Wayne, secretary; and John Cristie, treasurer. Major E. L. Chipley was the 1953-54 sponsor.

Saber & Key

A very young organization is the Saber and Key society, a military honor fraternity. Membership is by invitation and members are chosen from advanced ROTC cadets with a 2.0 ratio in ROTC and a 1.0 ratio in their other courses. The specific purposes of the group are to promote military events on the campus and also to improve, through discussions, their military ability.

An important annual award which ROTC members look forward to possibly receiving is the Col. Varner Military Appearance Award, which is presented to the best dressed cadet.

Socially, they sponsored the Witches Windup dance in the fall, second is the Military Ball in April. Saber and Key took charge of the banquet preceding the ball.

The group elected for its officers: Frank Spitters, president; John Adams, vice-president; Burns Seeley, recording secretary; Don Paloynski, corresponding secretary; Gar Van Geissen, treasurer; and Tom Holdship, sergeant-at-arms. Sponsors were: Colonel Comet Gibson, Major Robert Crowe, and Sergeant Kenneth McClure.

Ever since ROTC was established at Western there has been a rifle team which has participated in different competitions throughout the years. This year the team competed in the Intercollegiate, Interscholastic and William Randolph Hearst matches. Special targets from these matches were sent to the Fifth army headquarters for examination and placement. Then, the fellows sent, and received, challenges from different college rifle teams for their other competitive activities.

This group was supervised by M/Sgt. William Sullivan for the 1953-54 season.

Perhaps Western's Art Club isn't molding potential Michelangelos but it is helping to broaden the student's art experience. This is accomplished by giving the members contact with art through lectures, gallery tours, and trips to art centers.

Social feeling among these students is promoted by various methods. The annual banquet was presented again this year for the faculty, who in turn treated the club to a picnic. Many a busy hour was spent constructing a float for the homecoming parade and preparing the Christmas sale. Other activities included the "Chat 'n Chew" for homecoming alumni, the annual Christmas party, and the art exhibit which was given in connection with the Student Festival of Arts.

Chosen to lead this little band of future talent were: Douglas Teller, president; Katherine Burk, vice-president; Barbara Childs, secretary; Georgann Coffeen, treasurer; Jack McCarthy, publicity director; Arlene Richards and Gene Chute, group leaders. The sponsors were Lydia Siedschlag and Harry Hefner.

Bronson Nurses

At Bronson's "Winter Whirl" dance.

They worked day and night, these girls in white —and attempted to symbolize competence. The Bronson School of Nursing is affiliated with Western on a five-year plan which leads to a B.S. degree. The three year students also take much of their academic work the first year on the campus at Western.

The student nurse receives practical clinical experience and advanced theoretical knowledge from the doctors and nurses at Bronson Methodist Hospital. Affiliations in psychiatric and rural community nursing give added experience.

Row 5: Joanne Gschwindt, Mary Ann Halstead, Connie Rolfe, Doris Dockter, Beverly Stokes, Joanne Woodhams, Margery Trapp, Sally Rose, Joan Jolley, Betsy Hanna, Janie Fenwick.

A student association, class organizations, monthly parties and dances, including two formal dances a year gave the student nurse a well rounded program for extra curricular activities.

Bronson's choir has been a tradition of the nursing school for many years, approximately half of the school's enrollment being choir members. This year a song festival was held at Western's theater, with choruses from Mercy at Benton Harbor and Borgess and Bronson Schools of Nursing, Kalamazoo, participating.

In the fall the school will celebrate its Sesqui-Centennial with the alumnae having an important part in planning the program.

Colophon Club . .

Beverly Allen, vice-president; Bill Hessel, treasurer; Joan Pierson, president; Lorraine Erickson, secretary.

Colophon—an interesting word isn't it? Western's library club has taken its name from this Greek word which is the inscription or emblem placed on the title page or at the end of a book or manuscript.

Colophon is a social and educational club for students majoring and minoring in librarianship. It is a relatively new organization, being founded in 1947.

Heading the list of various social activities was the homecoming chocolate for the alumni, a spring picnic, and a Christmas party at the home of Miss Alice Louise LeFevre. The speakers chosen for the year were Mrs. Frances Clarks Sayers, author of children's books, and Miss Lucille Nobbs, a member of the English Department as Western Michigan College.

Miss Mate Gray Hunt and Miss Alice Louise LeFevre were sponsors for the group.

It has been said that a language in the classroom grows as dusty as a discarded textbook, unless it is kept in use. So, in the congenial atmosphere of "la table rounde", where only French is spoken, a hesitant "Frenchman" attempts to become nearly as fluent as a native.

Le Cercle Francais, Western's local French club, is one of the oldest clubs on campus. It was founded in 1914. Here, persons interested in the French language and culture enjoy films and lectures and benefit by a deeper appreciation of the spirit of the colorful French. The unity of the group is expressed in the title of its semester publication, "Entre Nous."

This year the club won second prize for its Homecoming float, "Moulin Rouge." In Lansing, the group heard a famous band from Paris. Early in the school year Joseph Torak, Western instructor, spoke on his teaching year in Nantes. In the spring, the annual French play was produced.

This year's officers included: Margaret Perry, president; Jack Hopkins, vice-president; Alice Teugh, recording secretary; Katherine Howard, corresponding secretary; Lynn Osen, treasurer. Sponsors for the club were Dr. Frances Noble and Miss Marion Tamin.

World War II brought us into closer contact with foreign countries, and Americans as well as foreign people learned that an understanding and tolerance for the ways of others are essential for peace. Western students try to make this knowledge a working principle. The German club, Der Deutsche Verein, has long been established to further a better insight into the mind of the German people, their language and country. The nature of the club is social as well as educational. As a German student sits beside a fellow American class-mate discussing Nazism of the meaning of democracy, differences diminish, a friendship flourishes, and a nationality becomes a human being.

Leading the club's activities this year were: William Hessel, president; Carl Ramsey, vice-president; Nancy Hoeft, secretary; and Max Allen, treasurer. Miss Mathilde Steckelberg and Dr. Hermann Rothfuss were the sponsors.

Ecos Espanoles

From Don Quixote to Don Juan, Ecos Espanoles is the Spanish club where interested students explore the many facets which comprise the Spanish nation. An increased knowledge of Spanish culture and general practice in the spoken language are educational profits of the club.

Members of Ecos Espanoles will remember such activities as the fall and spring banquet, the homecoming coffee, and the annual Christmas party. The group took a trip to Ann Arbor to see a play in Spanish and heard several guest speakers. After collaborating with UNESCO and Foreign Students, students from Mexico were entertained. Education and fun were interwoven into all the club's projects.

Delores Thorson was this year's president. Other officers were: Delia DeMaso, vice-president; Mary Ann Hallenbeck, secretary; Doris Grant, treasurer. Miss Windsor and Mr. Jones were sponsors for the club.

Foreign Students .

With a membership of fifty-six students, the Foreign Students' Club represents nineteen different nationalities, including displaced persons and American citizens from overseas.

Entertainment for the Foreign Students furnished by the Rotary Club of Kalamazoo was among the activities on this year's agenda. During regular meetings members presented programs pertaining to their own regional and cultural background.

An active group, members gave various and numerous speeches and participated in programs for organizations both on and off campus.

Executive powers for the year were carried out by: Isam Taji, president; Karmena Lubavs, vicepresident; Erika Klungsts, secretary; Rafael Marchena, treasurer. Dr. and Mrs. Fred A. Beeler and Dr. and Mrs. George E. Bradley were sponsors.

Forensics . . .

Between car accidents and engine trouble, the Men's Debate Team had time to participate in 57 debates, both decision and non-decision. No tournament championships were won, but at The Navy Pier, Chicago Tournament, Richard Howe was awarded a certificate for excellence in debating. At the Michigan Intercollegiate Speech League Tournament, awards of excellent in debating were presented to Harold Whipple, Karl Flessner, Edward Gavney, and Fred Mathis.

The Debators also had time to play host to the National Tau Kappa Alpha Forensic Conference on campus this year, comprised of over 200 students from all parts of the nation.

On February 13, Western was host to the Michigan Peace Speech Associataion, at which time Myra Brieve spoke on "Hearths Aglow or the World Aflame" in the oratory contest; Pat Carpenter and Ed Gavney spoke in the Extempore speaking contest, each winning third place and a check for ten dollars.

In the M.I.S.L. contests in extempore speaking, held at Alma, Sylvia Superits and Myrl Wilkinson were our speakers. When they were held at Hope College on March 5th, Western was represented by Bobby Parham and Dave Holcomb. Speaking on "Number One Menace," Bobby placed in the preliminaries and obtained 2nd place in the finals. Dave entered the finals with his speech on "The Third Kitchen War,"

Association of Childhood Education

With the need for capable teachers as demanding as ever, the Elementary Club is considered by many to be one of the most beneficial clubs on campus to prospective teachers. Members of this group are brought together by a common interest in the education of children. It was founded as recently as 1925 and became affiliated in 1953 with the Association of Childhood Education. At this time it adopted the new name of The Association of Childhood Education of Western Michigan College.

Projects which kept members very active this year included the ball toss booth at the Carnival, the "Three Bears" homecoming float and the Get-Acquainted party. In December a Christmas party was given for local school students. A workshop in areas of music, art, and dramatization for classroom use was initiated, and in the following months, an art workshop under the direction of Mr. Hefner and a program on aviation composed many hours of interesting work. May climaxed the club's active year with the Annual Banquet and installation of newly elected officers.

Miss Emeline McGowan and Dr. Sara Swickard were sponsors this year, and officers were: Norma Crane, president; Carol Oelz, vice-president; Mary Ann Keyser, recording secretary; Maribeth Day, corresponding secretary; Mary Woodard, treasurer; and Patricia Powell, publicity.

Some of Kalamazoo's underprivileged children had a real party—thanks to the Future Teachers.

Future Teachers

The Future Teachers are those that someday hope to possess skill in guiding our children as we have been guided through the year.

Aware that a teacher must have a ready wellspring of knowledge at his command and that travel is educational, the club plans a trip to interesting cities every year. This year, the end of the day's journey found members of F.T.A. in Washington, D. C. and New York City. "Do as well as know" appears to be a motto of this group for some of their other activities included radio broadcasts and dramatic skits which were related to the interests of the club, organizing high school F.T.A. clubs, and participating with other college chapters of F.T.A. A highlight of this year which was thought to be very worthwhile and rewarding to members was a Christmas party for a group of underprivileged children of Kalamazoo.

Mr. Carl Cooper and Mr. Carl Snow sponsored the club. Officers for 1953-1954 were: Gretta Pryor, president; Shirley Smith, vice-president; Shirley Schriber, secretary; and Ingrid Rampoldt, treasurer.

> 1948 brought to Western, Epsilon Pi Tau. which is a chapter of Alpha Kappa, national industrial arts fraternity.

> The purpose which unites these men is the promotion of scholarships, research, and skill. One of their main interests has been helping to finance and instruct in the arts and crafts shop at the Hegee Myrthl Community Center in Kalamazoo.

> Mr. Fred Stickler, from the National Association of Manufacturers was a guest speaker at a dinner meeting at the Hotel Harris. The other activities of the year included movies, two formal initiation dinners, and speakers who are leaders in the field of industrial arts and education.

> John Koenig led the group as president; Robert Seuss, vice-president; Dan Stevens, secretary; William Wilcox, treasurer; and Mr. Lawrence Brink and Dr. John Feirer were sponsors.

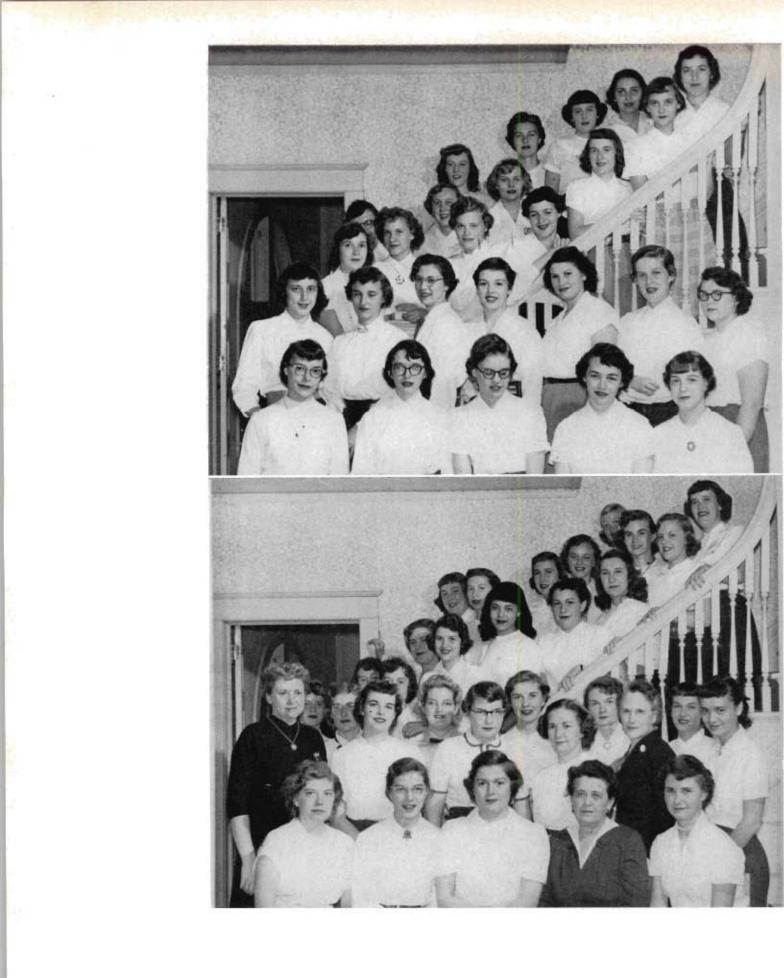

Industrial Arts

Between the regular professional meetings, members of the Association took field trips, participated in the homecoming activities, and held on Open House for alumni. The highlight of the season was this May 1, when the fellows donned their dress clothes for the annual Industrial Arts dinner-dance.

In the lead for the year were: Phil Bailey, president; Conrad Fisher, vice-president; and Alan Seuss, secretary-treasurer. Sponsors who aided the group were Mr. Lindsey Farnan and Mr. John Feirer.

. . . Home Economics

If a cake-mix isn't handy, these girls will still not be at a loss! They have a ready knowledge of the intricacies of home-making.

As members of the Home Economics Club, these girls have learned to do many things that will be utilized in their homes of the future, as well as in their professional careers. The year's activities, which have included Career Day, Christmas Bazaar and the Style Show, gave the girls experience in developing leadership in their chosen field. An important aim of the club, which was to stimulate greater interest in the State and National Home Economics Association, was successfully achieved, members felt.

Officers for the year were: Nita Brumm, president; Joan Fox, vice-president; Merlyn Mott, secretary; Alice Holmes, treasurer. Miss O. Stamm and Dr. L. Galbraith were the sponsors of the Home Economics Club.

Modern Dance . . .

Western students who went to the AWS Christmas Chocolate and the Spring Festival of Arts saw the finished products of the Modern Dance Club. Professional planning and ability were demonstrated by the performances of its members. Emotional expression and creativeness were outstanding features of the art which these girls presented to their audiences.

Modern Dance Club officers were: Pearl Trestrail, president; Mary Jane Vegors, secretary; Jackie Slaughter, treasurer; Dot Allers, AWS representative; Gita Gertsons, costume committee. Mrs. Helen Brown was sponsor.

> "It wasn't the most pleasant sight," said one of the Pre-Med members, "but it was so different from anything I've ever witnessed, that I found it fascinating," This was one opinion about the autopsy the club saw during last year. The club also watched an operation and had films in the spring. Doctors from different medical fields spoke to the group on the various aspects of medicine.

> The club was organized in 1941 to further student interest and understanding of medicine and its closely related areas. With a look to graduate school days, the club has as one of its aims the preparation of students for the transition between undergraduate and graduate study.

> Officers were: Lee Waters, president; Roger Hawkins, vice-president; John De Liefde, treasurer; and John Worden, secretary. Mr. Roy Joyce of the Biology Department and Harry Lawson, Student Personnel Counselor were the sponsors.

O.T. students enjoyed the friendships in the circle of the Occupational Therapy Club. Often, a difficult knot in a trick of the trade is unravelled as these students participated in the club's activities. Useful knowledge was obtained from programs and discussions connected with this field of interest. Students who had been out on their affiliations often rendered helpful information and know-how to students on campus. Social activities which took place included the homecoming coffee, making stockings for children at the cerebral palsy clinic for Christmas time, and the spring picnic.

Mariellen DeLong served as president for the group and Vilma Ching was vice-president. Others serving as officers were: Jane McClusky, secretary; Mary Braman, treasurer; Bonnie Romeunce, social chairman; Carlene Wertz, program chairman; and Janet Knight, and Bonnie Benkelman pooled efforts as publicity chairmen. Friendship and understanding are among the values of good sportsmanship. The girls of the physical education department believe inso they have joined together in the Phi Epsilon group where they might strive toward a better social relationship among themselves.

Another quality which Phi Eps strive to emphasize is loyalty to one's own team. This group is one of Western's biggest boosters to keep alumni interested in our campus sports life.

Their programs this year have included outside speakers from the physical education field, and persons who have demonstrated special activities for them. Week-end camp-outs and tournaments were among their activities.

Officers were: Patricia Brown, president; Carolyn Koonman, vice-president; Mavis Berry, secretary; and Gerri Thompson, treasurer.

Philosophy Forum .

"To be a philosopher is not merely to have subtle thoughts, nor even to found a school, but to love wisdom as to live, according to its dictates, a life of simplicity, independence, magnanimity, and trust." — Thoreau

The Philosophy Forum is composed of students who are interested in this age old pursuit of knowledge and wisdom. Essentially an informal discussion group, the Forum has been treated to a number of outside speakers who have contributed by posing new problems and by giving new insights into old ones. In order to become more familiar with the philosophers and their various approaches to philosophical problems the Forum called upon Dr. Hemmes of Kalamazoo College who spoke on the philosophy of Santayana; Dr. D. C. Van Deventer of the biology department whose topic was "The Basic Assumptions of Science," and Dr. Sam Clark of the political science department who spoke on "The Scholastic Philosopher's Proofs of God." The climax of the Forum's activities was the Intercollegiate Philosophy Convention between Western Michigan College, Kalamazoo College, and Nazareth. The topic for this discussion was "Philosophy Looks at Culture."

Officers of the seven year old Forum were: Howard Morrison, President; Janet Schaus, secretary (1st sem.); Dan Borley (2nd sem.); and Winston Wessels, publicity manager.

Ski Broncos

A new coeducational club was organized on Western's campus this year under the title of "Ski Broncos." But don't let the title fool you. Not only did these members ski, they organized other varied activities for their members in water skiing, softball, fishing, and skating. Besides these numerous activities the club socially sponsored and held private dances, had hayrides, and picnics.

With their purpose in mind—"to create an active interest in skiing"—the group tried to carry this out by teaching and improving the ability of members through special movies and lessons for beginners and experts. Trips to Boyne Mountain and Cadillac gave the skiers a chance to try and exhibit their skills. Another important feature of the group was the constant cooperation between the "Ski Broncos" and the Kalamazoo Ski Club.

This new group elected for its first officers: Lawton Smith, president; Fred Osner, vice-president; Kaye Meeder, secretary; Dave Forsman, treasurer; Marie Warner, publicity. Sponsors for the group were: Mr. Paul Newton and Captain and Mrs. Donald Carson.

> A club whose name has a very interesting origin is Ts'ai Lun. It seems this group, whose members are interested in papermaking, has taken for its own the name of the Chinese royal court servant who invented paper in 105 B.C. Papermaking courses at Western are fairly new and so is Ts'ai Lun, which began in 1951.

> The specific purpose of the group is to help the members develop and extend their knowledge of the art and science of papermaking in our present day society. To acquire this knowledge the organization invited the executives of several paper companies to speak, observed in Western's pulp and paper department, and took an inspection tour through the Panelyte Division of the St. Regis Paper Company,

It wasn't all work and no play though. Socially the group held a picnic in the fall and a spring banquet to honor graduating senior students.

These future papermakers chose for its officers: Ron Hamilton, president; William Fondow, vicepresident; Curt Thies, secretary; David Forsman, treasurer; Robert Walker, alumni secretary. Sponsors for the group were Dr. Alfred Nadelman and Robert Elias.

Since 1920 the lettermen of Western's campus have tried to bolster the school spirit and also be of service to the school. As an organization ther're known as the "W" Club. The club, this year, has continued many annual events and also undertaken several new projects.

The traditional "W" Club vs. Faculty baskeball game found a capacity crowd viewing a purely "entertaining" game in which the faculty triumphed with a score of 28-25. Proceeds from this and the sock hop, held before the first home football game, for the most part went for the "W" Club Scholarship Fund.

the club, required a few extra dollars in the treasury. To obtain these funds the club sponsored all games broadcasted on WKMI and accepted advertising of dances and other social events from any clubs or organizations on campus. They also sold programs at the football and basketball games. Socially the lettermen held their annual "W"

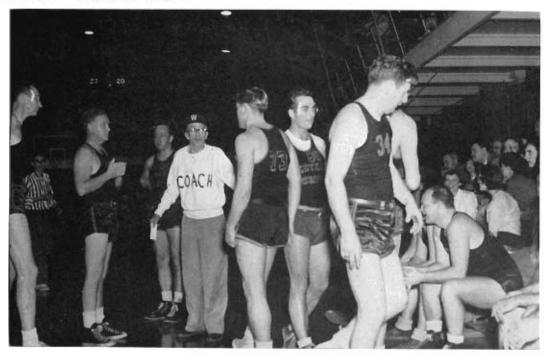

Club dinner dance in the spring.

These numerous activities were managed this year by the following officers: Jim Stevenson, president; Ron Heaviland, vice-president; Don Kelly, secretary; Bob Bailey, corresponding secretary; Charles Metzcus, treasurer. Sponsors were Ed Gabel and Jack Petoskey.

> Right away, the water sprites members started work on their spring show. The new members were chosen in the fall.

> "Collegiate Capers" was the title chosen for the spring show in March. A medley of numbers depicting campus life were the scenes of activity they presented.

> Leaders for the year were: Helen Niederstadt, president; Lola Hammond, vice-president; Darlene Ball, secretary; and Louise Sundstrom, treasurer. Miss Margaret Large was the sponsor for the group.

"I want to be a friend of yours." This is a familiar little tune to many of us, isn't it? It might very easily serve as a motto for this organization whose purpose is promotion of friendship among married Western students.

Many members felt that two of the most exciting events to members of the group were the recognition programs of January and June 1954. This was an honorary graduation service held in Kanley Chapel for the graduates' wives.

The first prize for the most humorous float in the homecoming parade was bestowed upon the organization.

On December 22, the group went Christmas caroling at the Home for the Aged. A Thanksgiving potluck dinner was held with Dr. Kuffel of the Psychology department as quest speaker.

Nancy Case served as president; Marge Seppela, vice-president; Mary Tidwell, secretary; Audrey Whipple, treasurer; Betty Lakenen, social chairman; Jackie DeLiefde, historian; and Miss Elizabeth Lichty was the group's sponsor.

. Women's Debate

Diani Seeley, Patricia Zasadny, Barbara Millar, Nancy Hoffius, Karen Camburn, Patricia Carpenter.

Does discussing the different aspects of a question interest you? It interests Western's women debaters.

Women's Intercollegiate Debate strives to develop skill in logical thinking and analysis, research, critical listening, and evaluation. The speaker also learns how to communicate arguments effectively.

Western was host of the 1954 National Conference of Tau Kappa Alpha. Incoming groups were welcomed as they arrived by train, bus, plane, and automobile. Mixers, various tours about Kalamazoo, and a play in the Campus Theatre composed a part of the entertainment program. One of the highlights of this annual conference was the announcement of the Speaker-of-the-Year awards. Speakers were chosen in the fields of business and commerce, labor, religion, national affairs and education, and science and culture.

Other events in a busy schedule included the Fifth annual H.S. Debate Clinic in September, the TKA Regional Conference in October, the MISL Novice Debate Tournaments in November and February, the Split-Team Debate Tournament, and the MISL Varsity Debate Tournament in February.

. . . Band

Stepping off at each home football game with fancy steps, figures, and lively music was Western's marching band and their twirlers, Dick Swinsick, Claine Higgins, Grace Murphy, and Ruth Rooks, and the drum major, Bob Bolthouse. Assisting Mr. Leonard V. Meretta with the marching band was Mr. Russell Brown, of the music faculty.

The marching band also added spirit to all the pep rallies and the Semi-Centennial Homecoming Parade. A performance for the Toledo-Western game made a trip possible for the band members. Basketball games at home had music from two alternating pep bands.

The main event for the one-hundred-piece Concert Band was the ninth annual winter band concert with Erik Kiedzen, nationally known composer and arranger, as guest conductor.

Tours during the spring took the band to various high schools in southwestern Michigan for concert appearances. The band presented an outdoor concert in Kanley Court and for their final appearance the band played for the vesper service and June Commencement.

Officers for the year were: Edward Smith, president; William Worra, vice-president; Richard Swinsick, secretary-treasurer.

Anyone who is interested in playing a diverse selection of classical music, not only for personal enjoyment but for concerts too, is welcomed into the Western Michigan College Orchestra. During some rehearsals Mr. Julius Stulberg, the director, handed the baton over to students of the conducting class and gave them an opportunity to conduct the orchestra.

These rehearsals held twice weekly, prepare the members for numerous concerts. The first was the traditional fall concert given at the Civic Auditorium. Selections for this program were chosen from Bach, Glinka, Liadov, and Dvrorak. Following the fall concert the orchestra participated in the annual Christmas program at Central High School. Spring brought another concert, the Festival of Arts program, which this year, was very special. Because this year was Western's fiftieth anniversary, the orchestra was augmented by a number of alumni; the affair was held in the Central High auditorium. The orchestra had the honor of accompanying Alexander Schuster, cellist for the music department, in a Haydn cello concerto. The orchestra ended the year by playing at the Honors Convocation. Interspersing all these concerts were visits to schools in outlaying areas, a trip to Cadillac in April, and social events among orchestra members.

Presiding this year were: Marilyn Bryant, president; Ross VanNess, vice-president; and Irving Johnson, treasurer. Margaret Perry and Nancy Williams were librarians and Gerritt Van Ravenswaay and Glenn Gould equipment managers.

At the Festival of Arts program put on by the over 100 piece orchestra made up of undergraduate and graduate members. The concert by far outclassed Kalamazoo's own Symphony Orchestra,

The College Choir at Western is one of the few organizations on campus that is almost as old as the school. This selected group of mixed voices receives the opportunity to sing the finest music available and also gives prospective music teachers a chance to become acquainted with an excellent repertoire for future use. Senior music students, as in many other musical organizations on campus, were able to conduct the group. The choir also holds, as one of its aims, the desire to improve relations throughout southwestern Michigan and has made numerous trips to neighboring high schools to try to do this.

The highlight of the fall activities was the choir's fourth performance with the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra. The choir sang chorus parts and accompanied soloists from the New York Opera Company in "Pagliacci." The annual Christmas program gave a presentation of Handel's "Messiah." In the spring the choir sang with the Auxilliary Choir and the two glee clubs, "The Hymn of Praise" for the Festival of Arts.

Climaxing these numerous performances was a social event, the spring picnic, held with the Orchestra during the last week in May.

Officers for the group were: Dave Gillet, president; Jill Johnston, vice-president; Fred Richardson, secretary-treasurer.

Row 1: Pauline Shook, Janet Nelson, Marcia Reed, Jo Prybylski, Marcelle Gillespie, Jill Johnston, Joan McMurtry, Martha Smith. Row 2: Ralph Merritt, Ken Hansen, Ted Pasma, Gerry Olson, Phil Steen, Lee Vaught.

During the 16th century many lyric poems were set to music and they were called madrigals. The madrigals are part-songs and are sung without any instrumental accompaniment. These songs hold a certain fascination for a chosen group of singers here and they rightfully call themselves the Madrigal Singers.

Mrs. Dorothea Snyder helped the group study and sing these songs. The Singers have presented programs this past year at the Christmas and Easter seasons, for churches, and other civic organizations. The programs consisted mainly of madrigals but were interspersed with some modern songs.

The Madrigal Singers have functioned, whenever there was enough talent, for the past fifteen years.

A Contraction of

Men's Glee Club . . .

The chance of serenading the girls' dormitories, a tradition on Western's campus, went to a group of men who form the Men's Glee Club. The glee club is open to any male student at Western who is really interested in singing and is willing to sing not only for pleasure but for concerts too. The numerous engagements which Mr. Jack Frey, the director, accepted for the glee club included fall and spring programs for nearby high schools, concerts for local churches and programs for, and participation in school activities.

The Christmas season found the glee club taking part in the presentation of Mandel's Messiah, and spring brought the Festival of Arts in which the Men's Glee Club combined with the College Choir and Women's Glee Club to sing the "Hymn of Praise." The annual event for the glee club was the banquet held in spring.

Officers presiding were: Edward McKensie, president; Ted Pasma, secretary-treasurer; Robert Azkoul, accompanist.

A variety of performances and social events filled the calendar of the Women's Glee Club this year. This group of girls chosen by their director, Mrs. Dorothea Sage Snyder, began the year by presenting a program at the Parchment Old Timer's Party. Other engagements throughout the year included a program combining the Modern Dance Club with the Glee Club for the Christmas Chocolate, and trips to nearby high schools. Music for these and other programs was selected from a library of musical literature and was largely directed by senior members. In the line of social events the girls had an initiation banquet, a Christmas party, went caroling, and held a picnic in the spring. The Glee Club celebrated its fortieth anniversary this year. Officiating for this anniversary year were: Elizabeth Tomchak, president; Jane Goldwood, vice-president; Wanda Kietzer, secretary; Janet Nelson, treasurer; Marie Seifert, publicity manager,

Ernest Burnham

In the dimmed light, the knights and their ladies danced for hours at the "Knights of Burnham Hall" ball which is an annual feature of the dorm. At homecoming the boys set out, as lawn decoration, a villian to greet alumni (and for any members of the opposing team in case they ventured to walk nearby). Exchange dinners with Draper-Siedschlag girls was a previous habit the boys continued this

Smith Burnham

The fellows in the Smith faction of Burnham Halls are avid sportsmen. During the year they held dorm ping-pong tournaments and competed against other dorms in football. In conjunction with Ernest Burnham, the Smith boys presented the "Knights of Burnham Hall" dance in January. And not shunning their female neighbors, Burnhamites had exchange dinners with Draper and Siedschlag girls.

Officers were: Robert Browning, president; Paul Sullivan, vice-president; Ray Eddy, secretary; and Larry Brendle, treasurer. Mr. Archie Potter is the director and is assisted by Mr. Herbert Jones from the language department.

Girls reported it was the usual Draper year with the rounds of exchange dinners with Burnham . . . open houses . . Draper Siedschlag formal . . . Christmas party . . . senior dinner . . . and allround fun of living near friends. So, although nothing special happened, the Draper girls were kept busy with their annual activities which covered the year's calendar.

Holding the top positions were: Bev Partington, president; Janet Shaffer, first vice-president; Jean Tarr, second vice-president; Pat Kelly, secretary; Marilyn Bryant, treasurer. Mrs. Helen Inman and Marilyn Morren were the housemother and assistant housemother.

The girls went "Down Yonder" when they gave their annual open house last year. And to start the year off there was a PJ party during the first week of school. Sharing in homecoming activities was continued as Siedschlag participated in the parade and lawn decorations. Special dinners such as the Christmas, Easter, and birthday meals were held. And, as customary, Siedschlag and Draper had their "ask-the-man" formal.

In the officers roster were: Katie Reid, president; Marilyn Hain, first vice-president; Marilyn Hamilton, second vice-president; Barbara Place, secretary; Gretta Pryor, treasurer. Housemother and assistant director were Mrs. Katherine Chapman and Mrs. Virginia Carter respectively.

Vandercook

To keep in memory two favored house directors, the boys at Vandercook named one of their halls after Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Myers who terminated their directorship last year.

During the homecoming festivities the residents set out their lawn decorations and took their place in the float parade. A Christmas party was held before the vacation and smokers were held at different times so that the fellows could get to-

Walwood

One of the most exciting events to go down in the book of memories, expressed some Walwood girls, was the Open House which this year portrayed the gala scenes of the Mardi Gras. As a reward for ingenuity and hard work, the big white anniversary cake on the lawn took second place in lawn decorations during the homecoming celebration. Joining together for the Thanksgiving dinner by candlelight was another Walwood special occasion. And then the girls celebrated Christmas and Easter with breakfast. Giving the family an opportunity to become familiar with the campus, fathers became better acquainted with Western on Dad's Day, and Mothers, had their turn during the Mother's Day week-end. At the close of the year seniors were honored by freshmen at the annual Senior Dinner affair. Everyone dressed in formals and each senior was accompanied by a freshman.

Officers of the dorm were: Pat Ryan, president; Claudine Pier, first vice-president; Mary Lou Mader, secretary; Grace Burges, treasurer. Mrs. Mable Hinkle was again the housemother for the girls, and she was assisted by Miss Mary Reath.

The open motto "Together let us seek the heights," expresses the desire of Alpha Chi Omega to seek the finer things in life and to promote scholarship and leadership. They believe a well-rounded social life should be an integral part of the college career and that meeting and getting along well with people is one of the finest qualities a woman can possess. Alpha Chi is the oldest sorority at Western, first known as Senate in 1916, and then nationally the Gamma Xi chapter of Alpha Chi Omega in 1951.

The Alpha Chi girls had the honor of being presented two trophies for scholarship—one for having the highest average scholastically of any sorority on Western's campus during the year 1952-53, and the second a national scholastic award. Gamma Xi had the highest average of the eighty chapters of Alpha Chi Omega. This year seemed especially good for awards and trophies for the girls took third place at the allstudent carnival with a freak show and second place in the homecoming parade for original floats. Other activities included activities parties with Delta Sigma Phi and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternities, a dance in the fall, teas with alumni, rushing, initiation, and a Mother's Day luncheon. The climax of the year was their annual house party in the spring.

The Alpha Chi project is Cerebral Palsy aid and they help out at Western's C. P. clinic each week.

The officers for the year were Moyra McNeill, president; Patricia Pearsall and Ava Hathaway, vice-presidents; Joan Yntema, corresponding secretary; Marilyn Slentz, recording secretary; and Nancy McIntryre, treasurer. The sponsors were Miss Margaret Feather, Mrs. Roscoe Snyder, and Miss Dorothy Sedlacek.

Junior Campus Couple.

Alpha Omicron Pi was organized as a local chapter in 1934, and was installed as Kappa Rho Chapter of its national affiliation in September, 1951. Its purposes are to develop strong character, dignity, and scholarship.

Kappa Rho was awarded the McCausland Scholarship Cup at the national convention held in Memphis, Tennessee.

The first activity of the year was participation in the all-student carnival.

In October they presented their annual dance, the "Campus Couple Fling," where Ann Brooks and Jack Fricke were elected the campus couple.

On Dad's Day Alpha Omicron Pi entertained their dads with a luncheon and then took them to the football game.

During November they held their annual stuffed animal sale, the proceeds of which were contributed to their philanthropic project which is frontier nursing in Kentucky. In this way, Alpha Omicron Pi tries to help the needy people and raise living standards wherever possible.

Just before Christmas they joined the Panhellenic Caroling and then had a get-together in the Arcadia Brook Cafeteria.

The major spring event was rushing, followed by the pledge formal and the customary rose banquet.

During the Mother's Day week-end, they entertained their mothers with a luncheon and tea. The crowning event of the year was the annual house party.

Officers for the past year were: Miriam Roeder, president; Sue Johnson, vice-president; Cleora Fletcher, recording secretary; Margaret Manny, corresponding secretary; and Kay Dobbs, treasurer. Sponsors were Mrs. Frank Hinds and Mrs. William Berry. Jack Fricke and Ann Brooks, Western's Campus Couple.

The pledges.

December 1951 saw the organization of Alpha Pi Beta on Western's campus, with the purposes and aims of promoting leadership, cooperation, and scholarship.

First on the social agenda for the year was a hayride and hot dog roast. Next came Homecoming with the many hours building their float and giving a tea. The girls' fathers were honored at a Dad's Day Banquet and shortly following Alpha Pi sponsored an all school dance. The Christmas season was celebrated with the annual party. Rushing and pledging was climaxed with a party in honor of the pledges and the annual banquet before the Panhellenic Ball. The Alpha Pi's entertained their mothers at a Mother's Day dinner in May and the year ended with the Memorial Day Houseparty and Senior dinner. Officers for the year were: Barbara Parham, president; Donna Moran, vicepresident; MariAlice Lugar, secretary; Doris Pyle, treasurer; Cecelia Sagar, historian and chaplain; Dorothy Williams, corresponding secretary.

Delta Zeta sorority was founded on Western's campus in March, 1950, and became nationally affiliated with Delta Zeta in July, 1950 as the Gamma Pi chapter. The promotion of firm and lasting friendships, high scholarship, and maintenance of fine social and moral standards, and whole-hearted cooperation with the college's ideals for student life are the aims which guide the chapter's activities.

The Delta Zetas began the year socially with their annual all-student dance "Buttons and Bows." At homecoming they were hostesses at a coffee for the alumni, and at Christmas the Kalamazoo alumni gave the D.Z. girls a party. On Dad's Day the fathers were honored at a coffee after the game, and on Mother's week-end the mothers were honored at a luncheon at the Red Brick Tavern. Other activities during the year included parties with various fraternities, entertaining the newly chosen patronesses at a tea, guest speakers at meetings, and the annual house party at St. Mary's Lake, Battle Creek, during Memorial Day week-end.

The officers for the year were Joyce Bailey, president; Nina Gaffke and Joan Fox, vice-presidents; Helen Spaulding, recording secretary; Marilyn Bomers, corresponding secretary; and Carole Oelz, treasurer. The sponsors were Mrs. Clayton Maus and Mrs. Orville Wensley.

Omega Chi Gamma is a sorority for the offcampus girls at Western. The purpose of Omega Chi is to promote better contacts and friendships with campus through informal meetings with other off-campus girls.

The activities for Omega Chi during the year were an informal dance, a tea and picnic for new freshmen girls, a homecoming float, the collection of food for families, Thanksgiving dinners, parties for the Lake Farm boys and for the girls at the Children's Home, a workshop for state hospital patients and hospitalized veterans, a caroling party at Christmas time, rolling bandages for the Cancer Center, and the big annual Omega Chi Gamma banquet in the spring.

The officers of the sorority were: Suzanne Sawyer, president; Mary Lou Robbins and Catherine Powell, vice-presidents; Patricia Boynkin, secretary; and Eleanor Alman, treasurer. The sponsors were Mrs. Louis Govatos and Mrs. Robert Trader.

At homecoming the Sigma Kappas worked with the theme of "50 Years of Service to Education" as the theme for their float. In October they sponsored a dance called Neptune's Nocturne, where a King Neptune was crowned. Before Thanksgiving the Sigma Kappas invited the Tekes to join with them on a scavenger hunt to gather food for the Family Center in Kalamazoo. The traditional Christmas Party was a feature of the holiday season. Spring Mother's Day luncheon, and Memorial Day was spent at Clear Lake where they held their house party.

Sigma Kappa, one of the oldest sororities on campus, was founded as Academy in 1921 and affiliated nationally with Sigma Kappa in 1950 as the Gamma Beta chapter. Scholarship, service, cultural development, and fine spiritual standards are the aims and purposes of Sigma Kappa.

The officers were Barbara Kilburn, president; Patricia Powell and Marie Seifert, vice-presidents; Lois Klenk, recording secretary; and Sylvia Anderson, treasurer. The sponsors were Mrs. Louis Saye, Miss Betty Taylor, and Miss Mathilde Steckleberg.

"Topsy Turvey" Dance pennies go to the polio fund.

The Tri Sigma girls began their year socially by giving a homecoming breakfast for their alumni. Shortly after, they entertained Tau Kappa Epsilon at a barbeque where they spent their time singing and having informal fun. During the Christmas season the Tri Sigs tried to make the holiday a happier one for the underprivileged children of Kalamazoo by giving them a party at the Jaqua home. In February the annual Topsy Turvy dance proved to be a financial success, and there was a Mother's Day luncheon. The biggest event, however, for all the girls was the annual house party their last social event for the year.

Sigma Sigma Sigma is a women's national social sorority with aims of self-improvement, leadership, and social poise. The national service project is the Robbie Page Memorial Fund—a polio project. Beta Rho chapter was installed April 25, 1952.

The group followed the leadership of: Joyce Boske, president; Barbara Kay and Gretta Pryor, vice-presidents; Marcia Reed, treasurer; Jane Drilling, corresponding secretary; and Pat Rollyson, recording secretary. The sponsors were Mrs. Theodore Carlson and Mrs. Willis Dunbar.

House party at Selkirk Lake.

Theta Pi Alpha was organized on Western's campus in 1930. Its aims and purposes are to encourage individual expression, to stimulate the reading and intelligent criticism of good literature, and to promote an appreciation of the fine arts. Other aims for this group are to promote toleration of the ideas of others, to broaden the perspective of life, and to build up a general atmosphere of good fellowship.

Theta Pi's activities for the year included a fishing well at the all student carnival, a World Affairs Week speaker, picnics, a Mother's Day luncheon, and the traditional house party.

The Theta Pi's were under the leadership of Kathleen Piket, president; Jean Acuna, vice president; Wanda Fowle, treasurer; and Wanda Kietzer, secretary. The sponsors were Miss Helen Master and Miss Harriet Kilroe.

Delta Sigma Theta . .

Mrs. Samuel Dunlap, Mrs. Theodore Chavis, Gloria Lewis, Donna Jeffries, Betty Anderson, Dr. Frances Noble, Shirley Smith.

The aims of Delta Sigma Theta are to promote in women character development, high scholarship, and citizenship. On the national scene it stresses and has worked with other organizations for social education and legislation directed toward civil and human rights. Delta Sigma Theta became affiliated on May 24, 1953, which made it the youngest and largest national sorority on campus.

During the year the Deltas participated in many activities beginning with a homecoming coffee with their brother fraernity, Kappa Alpha Psi. During "World Affairs Week" they entertained a speaker from Sweden, and at Christmas they sent a basket to their adopted family, and participated in Panhellenic caroling. They sponsored two dances the "Fall Platter Chatter" and the "Blue Jean Twirl." Spring brought rushing and pledging and at Easter they sent a gift basket to a needy family.

The officers were Gloria Lewis, president; Marianne Hoggatt, vice-president; Betty Anderson, secretary; and Sandra Flagg, treasurer. The sponsors were Dr. Frances Noble and Mrs. Monteis Chavis.

Governing all social fraternities on campus is a tough job in anyone's book. The council attempts to further cooperation between the six member fraternities and acquaint new students with fraternities. A watermelon bust for the incoming freshmen, two mass rushes for prospective pledges, were only part of the I.F.C. jobs. One of its most difficult and noteworthy accomplishments was the running of the Homecoming Queen Contest.

In the spring there was Greek Week. Along with Panhellenic Council, it sponsored track and field events, a chariot race, an open air dance, and a closed formal dance.

Last year's officers were: Lyle Dornan, president; Gene Miller, vice-president; Ivan Crawford, secretary; and Frank Paniccia, treasurer. Dean Towner Smith and Dr. Ellsworth Woods were sponsors for the year.

. . Delta Sigma Phi

The Brotherhood of Delta Sigma means just that —a true brotherhood of college fraternity men. With the ideals of promoting active participation in college activities and providing for a well rounded education, Beta Tau chapter of Delta Sigma Phi came into being at Western in 1948.

Last year was a busy year for the Delt Sigs. They started by winning third place for their house decorations and float during homecoming. Later in the year, their annual formal, the Carnation Ball, was held. They also sponsored the "Sailor's Ball" in the spring. Sorority parties, serenades, honoring faculty members at dinner also found their way to the Delt Sig agenda.

Bill Milnes was the Delt Sig president last year; Don Tapert, vice-president; Keith Vandercook, recording secretary; George Carpenter, treasurer; and Don Cain, corresponding secretary. Dr. George Hilliard and Mr. Robert Wetnight were sponsors for the year. Housemother was Mrs. Dewey Reynolds.

Since their founding in 1950 the S.A.D.'s have purchased a fraternity house, and now sponsor the annual Christmas ball. They also sponsored an outing for the Lake Farm boys and had parties with sororities. In intramural sports they copped first place in the fraternity league basketball this year. Their third annual Founder's Day dinner was another highlight of the year for the fraternity.

This year's officers were Paul Crossley, president, Charles Stedron, vice-president; Kent Dickerman, corresponding secretary; Jack Humphries, recording secretary; and Don Meitz, treasurer.

. . . Sigma Epsilon

Founded on Western's campus only three years ago, Sigma Epsilon proved it was here to stay. Living up to their ideals of the promotion of brotherhood, scholarship, interest in other organizations and interest in social activities, the Sig Eps enjoyed a banner year.

Starting with homecoming in which their float won first prize as most beautiful in the homecoming parade, the Sig Eps continued the good work with their "Heartbeat" dance, which was one of the highlights of the social season. Later in the year, the pledge dinner dance was held. As a philanthropic project, the Sig Eps entertained the Lake Farm boys at a Christmas party. Parties with sororities were also an integral part of their social year.

Morrie Walters was at the helm as president of the farternity last year; Dick Hanschu was vicepresident; Ed Birch, secretary; and Bill Rockhold was treasurer. Sponsors were Robert Trader and Emil Sokolowski.

. . . Sigma Tau Gamma

There was silence for a moment, then to the tune of the "White Rose," the fraternity song, Sigma Tau Gamma opened its fortieth year on Western's campus. It was with considerable pride that the members looked back on how their fraternity had grown with the school. Founded as the Hickey Debate Society in 1913, then the Forum in 1919, Phi Sigma Rho in 1931 and finally Sigma Tau Gamma in 1941, the Sig Tau's hold a number firsts. They are the oldest social fraternity on campus, and the first local and national fraternity to be installed here.

Their homecoming dinner opened the Sig Tau social year last fall. In January, they brought their Jack McCaul dance back on campus. Parties with sororities filled in the social calendar until May, when their annual formal dinner-dance, "The White Rose" was held.

Stressing academic work, the Sig Tau's have won the interfraternity scholarship cup eleven out of fourteen years.

Last year's officers were: Phil Faustman, president; Don Wank, vice-president; Lawton Smith, secretary; and Lee Waters, treasurer. Sponsoring the fraternity were Dr. Jack Murphy, Mr. Howard Bigelow, and Mr. Charles Starring.

. . . Tau Kappa Epsilon

The history of Delta Alpha Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon dates back to the fall of 1920, when the fraternity was founded as a debating society. Soon it took on the characteristics of a social fraternity, and was known for 31 years as Theta Chi Delta. The fraternity was installed as TKE's 97th chapter in the spring of 1952. Founded in the belief that man is a social being, the Tekes strive for moral strength, fellowship, and scholastic achievement.

Homecoming was an event of particular importance. Teke's candidate Myra Brieve, was chosen from among 30 candidates to reign over Western's Semicentennial. The Tekes won first place award for the most original float in the homecoming parade, and our house decorations picked up another first place.

The social calendar for the 1953-54 school year was highlighted by: Dad's Day; Alumni Homecoming Banquet; the annual TKE-Sigma Epsilon dance; First and Second Semester's Initiation Dinner-Dances; our annual closed formal "The Ides of March"; and parties with the majority of the sororities. Weekly Sunday night parties at the Fraternity House were a tradition with the Tekes.

Notable activities of the fraternity included: first place award at the Zeta Delt Variety Show, second place in the fraternity sing, Thanksgiving Day food gathering project with Sigma Kappa for the needy.

Officers for the year were: President, Myrl Wilkinson; Vice-Pres., Ron Hutson; Secretary, Dave Powell; Treasurer, Charles Church; Historian, Peter Lindquist. Sponsors were Dr. William Van Devender and Dr. George G. Mallinson.

Row 1: Mrs. Thelma Slaughter, Dot LaDuke, Queen. Row 2: Glo Hungerink, Jan Riley, Katherine Heidenreich. . . . Zeta Delta Epsilon

One of the special type of banquets one finds on campus is Zeta Delta Epsilon's "Steak and Mush Dinner." At this affair the members in the upper half, scholastically, eat steak, while those not so bright eat mush. This is just one of the many functions of the Zeta Delts throughout the year.

Founded in 1941, the Zeta Delts have provided for their members a chance to develop intellectaually, socially, spiritually, and physically.

Besides their "Steak and Mush" dinner, the Zeta Delts sponsored their annual Sweetheart Ball and Variety Night as part of their activities. Homecoming banquets, pledge banquets, and dinner dances, parties with sororities were also on the Zeta Delt schedule. Athletically, the Zeta Delt football players won the all campus and fraternity league intramural championship last fall.

The officers for the year were: Bill Rice, president; Charles Smith, vice-president; Patrick Fitzgerold, secretary, Larry Symmons, treasurer, and Jack Paterek, house manager. Dr. Plano and Mr. Farnan were the sponsors for the year; while Mrs. Thelma Slaughter was housemother.

WESTERN MICHIGAN COLLEGE

PARTICIPATION

EDUCATION

estern Michigan College is fifty years old. As American colleges go, this is not a remarkably old age. But we at the Gazette, your hometown newspaper, feel that this fiftieth anniversary is particularly worthy of celebration.

This birthday is not just an occasion for a recital of past achievements. It is rather, we think, an occasion or dramatizing Western's established place in the community today.

We who cherish a free press in a free land are appreciative of the constant enrichment of your educational program; and of your dedication to the task of training our young men and women for better and more useful citizenship.

May your progressive mission in life, which has been a potent and continuing force, go on to an even greater destiny.

OF TWO COLLEGE ALUMNI

who have found an attractive, rewarding career at the telephone company.

Each year about this time, Michigan Bell opens wide its doors to many young college men and women interested in a worthwhile career.

It takes good people to provide good telephone service, and they are constantly moving ahead, finding new ways for even faster, better means of communication.

From college to career is an easy natural step when that career is with the telephone company. We'll be glad to discuss opportunities with you at any time.

Good Luck GRADUATES!

Today the goal you aimed for more than a decade ago is at hand. For most of you this is a fitting climax to years of study and hard work — graduation. Some of you may choose to continue your formal education, others will go into industry or the business and professional world. But wherever you go and whatever you do the experience you had, the knowledge and understanding you have acquired, and the principles you have lived by during the past four years, applied to your new endeavor, will make your life richer and fuller.

CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

Reflection of good taste . . .

A fine paper like a fine mirror, adds its own character to every image. Thus, good taste in printing begins with the selection of paper — paper just right for the occasion.

Cellugloss Enamel reflects the quality and prestige that the yearbook staff of the Brown and Gold regularly incorporate in this annual.

This outstanding paper is made in Kalamazoo, Michigan by the St. Regis Paper Company. Quality in St. Regis' broad range of printing papers begins with the growing of trees in St. Regis' forests and continues through exacting control of every step of production to assure — paper just right for every occasion.

Bermingham & Prosser Company of Kalamazoo, Michigan carries a complete line of fine papers for fine printing . . . paper like Cellugloss Enamel on which this outstanding annual is printed.

Acknowledgment

Our thanks to Dr. James O. Knauss for his book, The First Fifty Years, which Winston Wessels used as the main reference for historical review . . . to John C. Hoekje for the use of parts of his speech written for the unveiling of President Sangren's portrait . . . and to Russell Strong, the faculty co-chairman of the Brown and Gold sub-committee, who supplied a wealth of pictures and current information.

Ted Dickerson, editor, and the staff.
