BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Many Yoruba people believe names are meaningful and powerful. It is felt that the names children bear can influence their behavior. For example, if a child has the name of a thief, it will become a thief. A name can make or mar a person; therefore, naming a child is taken very seriously.

A child may also have more than one name. They may get names from their father, mother, and grandparents. They may also receive a Christian name when baptized in the church.

According to Yoruba tradition within seven to nine days after birth a baby must be named or it will die before its parent of the same sex.

Guests arrive for the special Naming Ceremony bringing gifts for the baby. Everyone gathers for the ceremony where special kinds of ritual food and objects have been placed. The ceremony begins with a hymn. Then each of the foods and objects are given to the child to taste or touch while the symbolic meaning of each is stated. Next there are prayers for the child's well being and good character and the baby's name is announced. The ceremony is followed with an evening of music and dance.

The following quotes denote the importance of a child's name.

"Names are important! They have meanings"

- Dr. Gilbert Ogunfeditimi

"A Name is an edifying emblem given to a child at birth by the parents, or brought from heaven by the child, during that child's birth. "

- Rev. Fred Ogunfeditimi
