The CAMPUS TODAY

Life at the college got back to normal on January 5 following the two-week break for Christmas vacation.

"Kiss Me Kate"

A big event on the TC agenda prior to the end of the first semester was the three-night performance of "Kiss Me Kate," one of Broadway's most successful musical comedy hits of the past decade. Directed by Jane Birkhead and Harald Holst of the music department, "Kiss Me Kate" featured top-notch individual performances by 18 members of the cast and professional backing by three other groups, the orchestra, chorus, and the orchesis. Capacity audiences enjoyed the show.

Musical Entertainment Fare Is Tops

Carlos Salzedo, a nationally-known harpist, entertained in a lecture-concert series program on Jan. 28th, one day after the start of the spring semester.

The concert band under the direction of Dr. Karl Holvik played selections from Rossini and Shostakovich in the group's winter concert Jan. 29, and the Association of Men's Residence Halls put on a talent show Jan. 31.

Conferences Draw Students, Teachers

Seventy-five high school students from all sections of the state debated the topic, "Resolved, That the U.S. Should Adopt the Essential Features of the British Educational System" at the annual Brindley Debate and Discussion Conference Jan. 30 and 31. The students were also judged on their performances in discussion and extemporaneous speaking. Medals were given to those who finished in the top five scoring brackets.

Annual Alumni Reunion Set for May 31

GRADUATES, former students, and former faculty personnel from all sections of the country will return to the campus Sunday, May 31 for the 76th annual spring alumni reunion.

Special class reunions will be held for the classes of 1899, 1909, and 1934. Dr. Edward Goetch, emiterus consultant in the placement bureau, and Robert Brown of Waterloo will be chairmen for the '09 and '34 reunions.

Alumni from all classes will meet in the Commons building at 12:30 p.m. for a joint luncheon and business meeting. Alumni president Caryl Middleton will preside. President Maucker will present gold medals to members of the 50 and 60 year classes. Other plans are tentative at this time although a 1909 class party will probably be held the preceding Saturday evening according to alumni director Milo Lawton. Class pictures will be taken at noon Sunday after the Baccalaureate service. Prints may be ordered through the alumni office.

To add an extra touch of nostalgia to the reunion, the office suggests that alumni bring photographs, dance tickets, scrap books etc., to add to a display for showing to former classmates.

Graduates will find that a lot of changes have taken place at Teachers College. If the depression-hit class of '34 could be seniors once again, they would probably be most impressed by the change in job opportunities. Most of the graduating seniors this June will have accepted a teaching contract to their liking without ever having left the campus.

Few, if any, of the 1959 grads will ever have heard about "making a personal" (interview). But the 1934 folks can well remember borrowing some friend's jalopy and driving miles from the campus to be interviewed by a superintendent of schools. They will remember, also, sitting in some dingy board office answering questions like, "Do you smoke?" asked by members of the school board leaning back in their chairs with their feet on the table and smoking long, black stogies.

Those were the days when you went out looking for a teaching job and made perhaps three or four trips for interviews before you finally got hired. And if you succeeded, you learned that you would draw a fat paycheck ranging from $100 to $140 a month.

MANY ANXIOUS FACES were seen in the placement bureau back in 1934, when job prospects were anything but bright. Seniors in this group seem to be asking, "Is there anything for me?"

Perhaps the biggest distinction made by the '34 class is the fact that it had any graduates at all. It took a lot of scrimping and saving 25 years ago for a young man or woman to finish four years of college. With ten million in the unemployed ranks, the future didn't look bright. Many students in that era asked themselves, "What good is a degree going to do me?" Looking back, they have found their degrees have paid off rather well.

Speaking of distinctions, we note the following modest claims made by the class of naught nine as reported in the Old Gold of that year.

"The class of 1909 outnumbers all of its predecessors. It has made itself famous as the originator of the cap and gown movement at Normal; it claims to be the first class to leave a gift with the Alma Mater; it is the first class to graduate from the Iowa State Teachers College; it is the first class to have the honor of being entertained in the President's new home in his annual reception to the seniors, and it is the first class to have played the faculty in basketball."

We haven't verified all of these firsts, but we hope you'll be the first class to have 50 classmates on hand for your 50th reunion.

Incidentally, you probably would be interested in knowing where some of the former campus leaders from the 1934 and 1909 classes are located. We couldn't find all the necessary information but we did learn that several of the graduates are enjoying the mild winter weather in California.

Fifty years ago, S. A. Cohagan, Naomi Fletcher, and R. A. Grossman served as senior class presidents for the fall, winter, and spring terms. Cohagan now lives in Waterloo, Miss Fletcher (Naomi Caldwell) in Carmel, Cal., and Grossman in Marshalltown.

C. F. Schweiker, now of Turlock, Cal., was the Old Gold editor for that year and John McDonald, now of Chicago, his business manager. Julia Porter (Mrs. Milton Bergman, El Cajon, Cal.) was the YWCA president.

Marcella Colburn, now Mrs. Stanley C. Benz of San Jose, Cal., served as Women's League president during the 1933-34 school year. Robert Burch was the senior class president. Burch later received his M.A. from the University of Iowa and his PhD from Duke University. He is currently professor of education at Boston University.

Robert Brown, '34 class reunion chairman, is in the insurance business in Waterloo. Twenty five years ago, he edited the Old Gold.

Richard Rickert of Davenport was the College Eye editor.

Tour Deadline April 1

Persons interested in joining the social science department tour into Mexico and South America this summer must file applications with the college registrar by April 1.

Tour members will fly to Mexico City on June 19 after completion of a three-day briefing session on the campus. The group will visit a variety of historical and cultural points of interest in Mexico before flying to Panama City on July 2.

According to Dr. Louis Bultena, associate professor of sociology and director of the tour, plans are being made for the students to hear several lectures at the University of San Marcos in Lima, Peru, called the oldest university in the western hemisphere. Tentative subjects include Inca and other pre-European cultural developments, Peruvian history, religion, and educational trends.

The cost for the tour will be $900 plus $65 tuition for undergraduates and $900 plus $75 tuition for graduate students.

TWENTY-FOUR COUPLES recently moved into 12 new units in the College Courts, a modern housing area for married students at the college. Each unit contains two bedrooms, a living room, and kitchen-dining room.

Married Student Duplexes Now in Use

JANUARY 22 was a red-letter day for 24 fortunate married students at the college.

On this day, they packed their suitcases, loaded the family stove into a trailer, picked up the children, and moved into 24 new units in the College Courts, a married student housing area. Twenty four additional units in this area have been in operation since 1956. An older married student area, Sunset Village, has been in operation since the end of the war.

Twenty-five years ago, married students on college campuses were rarities. The same situation applied at ISTC. But starting with the fall of 1946 when the World War II veterans came swarming back to school with their wives, children, and war souvenirs, the number of married students increased sharply. This trend has continued throughout the postwar years.

The lucky 24 will find their quarters of low cost construction but "plush" in comparison with those occupied by the GIs several years ago. Back then, students had to grab anything available; the college wasn't prepared to accommodate this sizable group.

Thanks to careful planning on the part of the college in the subsequent years, this situation has changed.

Now, for example, when a student comes home after a hard day of class and laboratory work, he'll return to a modern, five-room home containing two 11' by 10' bedrooms, a 17'10" by 11'7" living room, a 12'3" by 12'8" kitchen-dining room, and a 4'6" by 7'11" bath. The bedrooms are off the kitchen and can be utilized as playrooms during the day.

Each home, representing half of 12 new duplexes, has a gas furnace, grey fleck tiling, and an exterior color of red, buff, or light green. Colors inside vary widely.

As far as social life is concerned, College Courts residents will probably find that its a bit different than that enjoyed by the single students, but just as full.

Elementary principals, supervisors, and consultants will be on the campus Feb. 12 and 13 for the annual Elementary Leaders Conference. Members will discuss the topic, "The Pursuit of Excellence in the Elementary School." This topic is based upon a report made recently by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Old Gold Chooses Annual Queen

The Old Gold beauty queen and her three attendants will be chosen at the Old Gold formal dance on February 14. Contending for the crown are Priscilla Hake of Cedar Falls, Jan Magel of Danville, Carolyn Bruce of Hamburg, and Jo Meyer of Oelwein. The girls were picked from an original field of 70 candidates, later narrowed down to 16.

Religion in Life Week

Five visitors representing five religious faiths—Hinduism, Confucianism, Shintoism, Bahaism, and Roman Catholicism—will speak during Religion in Life Week Feb. 15-18.

Explaining the fundamentals of their various faiths will be Mr. K. R. Nagarajan of Chicago University, Dr. Wing-tsit Chan of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H.; Dr. George Beckman of the University of Kansas, Mrs. Velma Sherrill of St. Louis, and the Rev. Charles E. Sheedy of Notre Dame University, South Bend.

Farrell, Peerce to Sing

Soprano Eileen Farrell and tenor Jan Peerce, two internationally recognized artists, will sing with the Bach Aria Group in a lecture-concert series program Feb. 25. Other members of the group will play the piano, violin, flute, and cello.

Winding up the February calendar is the Tallcorn Music Conference, scheduled for the 27th and 28th. Clinics and demonstration sessions will be held for high school teachers and students in three areas, band, vocal, and strings.

The A Cappella choir, under the direction of Mr. Charles Matheson, will sing in a southeast Iowa tour March 3, 4, and 5. Iowa communities on a tentative agenda are Cedar Rapids, Keokuk, Fairfield, Eldora, Olds, Oskaloosa, and Sigourney.

T.C. Gets 2 More Grants

Two grants totaling nearly $100,000 were awarded to the college recently by the National Science Foundation and the Atomic Energy Commission.

A $91,300 grant from the Foundation will be used to support an eight-week institute program this summer for 75 junior high school science and mathematics teachers. Dr. H. C. Trimble, head of the department of mathematics and Dr. Dorothy Matala, associate professor of biology, will be co-directors. In addition to courses and demonstration classes with junior high school students, students will hear lectures from outstanding visiting scientists and mathematicians. Tentative subjects include space travel, radiation, weather control, origin of the universe, tranquilizing drugs, and energy sources of the future. Half of the students will be from Iowa, the other half from states throughout the nation.

Said Dr. Trimble, "One trend in junior high school curriculums seems clear. Science concepts per se, rather than social applications of these concepts, will be the new points of focus."

Nuclear technology laboratories at the college were well equipped when second semester classes opened Jan. 27. The bulk of a $7000 grant awarded by the Commission was used to buy nine geiger counters for experimental purposes. The grant also covered the costs of tubes, radioisotopes, and measures. Most of the equipment will be used in the graduate level radiochemistry course.

"Greensleeves" Delights Youngsters for Christmas

ALL EYES ARE UPON the cold-hearted Grand Duchess in this scene from "Greensleeve's Magic," a December children's theater production at Teachers College. According to many reports, the small critics loved the show.

"Kiss Me Kate" Rates Audience Accolade

PHIL RASH OF NEW PROVIDENCE decides he's had enough of Becky Guernsey's (Waterloo) nonsense in this scene from "Kiss Me Kate." Three enthusiastic audiences applauded the show on Jan. 15, 16, and 17.

The PANTHER ROUNDUP

By GEORGE WINE

WITH WINTER sports at Iowa State Teachers College in full swing, it appears the Panthers are headed toward successful basketball and wrestling campaigns.

A pair of big, rugged sophomores—Jim Jackson and Cliff Svoboda—have helped the upswing in Panther cage fortunes. Jackson, a 6-4, 205 pounder, is the first Negro to ever play regular for Iowa Teachers. He's been among the top rebounders in the nation since the start of the season, and leads the team in scoring.

Svoboda, a giant 6-8, hasn't yet blossomed into his full potential, but he's still been among the leading scorers and rebounders. Other players who have seen most of the action are Ron LaFrentz, Dennis Filliman, Frank Stotts, Dean Jensen, Gene Nichols and Jack Mully.

Coach Bill Koll's wrestlers opened their season in a sparkling fashion by taking three championships in the annual ISTC Invitational tournament. Individual titles went to Bill McNiel (123 pounds), Jerry Lane (130), and Chuck Patton (147), all underclassmen.

The matmen have another ambitious schedule lined up, but indications point toward another great season, possibly better than the 8-2-1 record of last year. Highlight of the winter will be the N.C.A.A. tournament, held in Iowa City this year (Mar. 26-28). Iowa Teachers, Iowa State and Iowa all have strong teams, and it looks like an interesting intrastate battle will develop.

The return of Jim Harmon, former national champion, has also brightened the Panther mat picture. Harmon, who spent four years flying navy jets, appears to be regaining the same form that brought him a national title before entering the service.

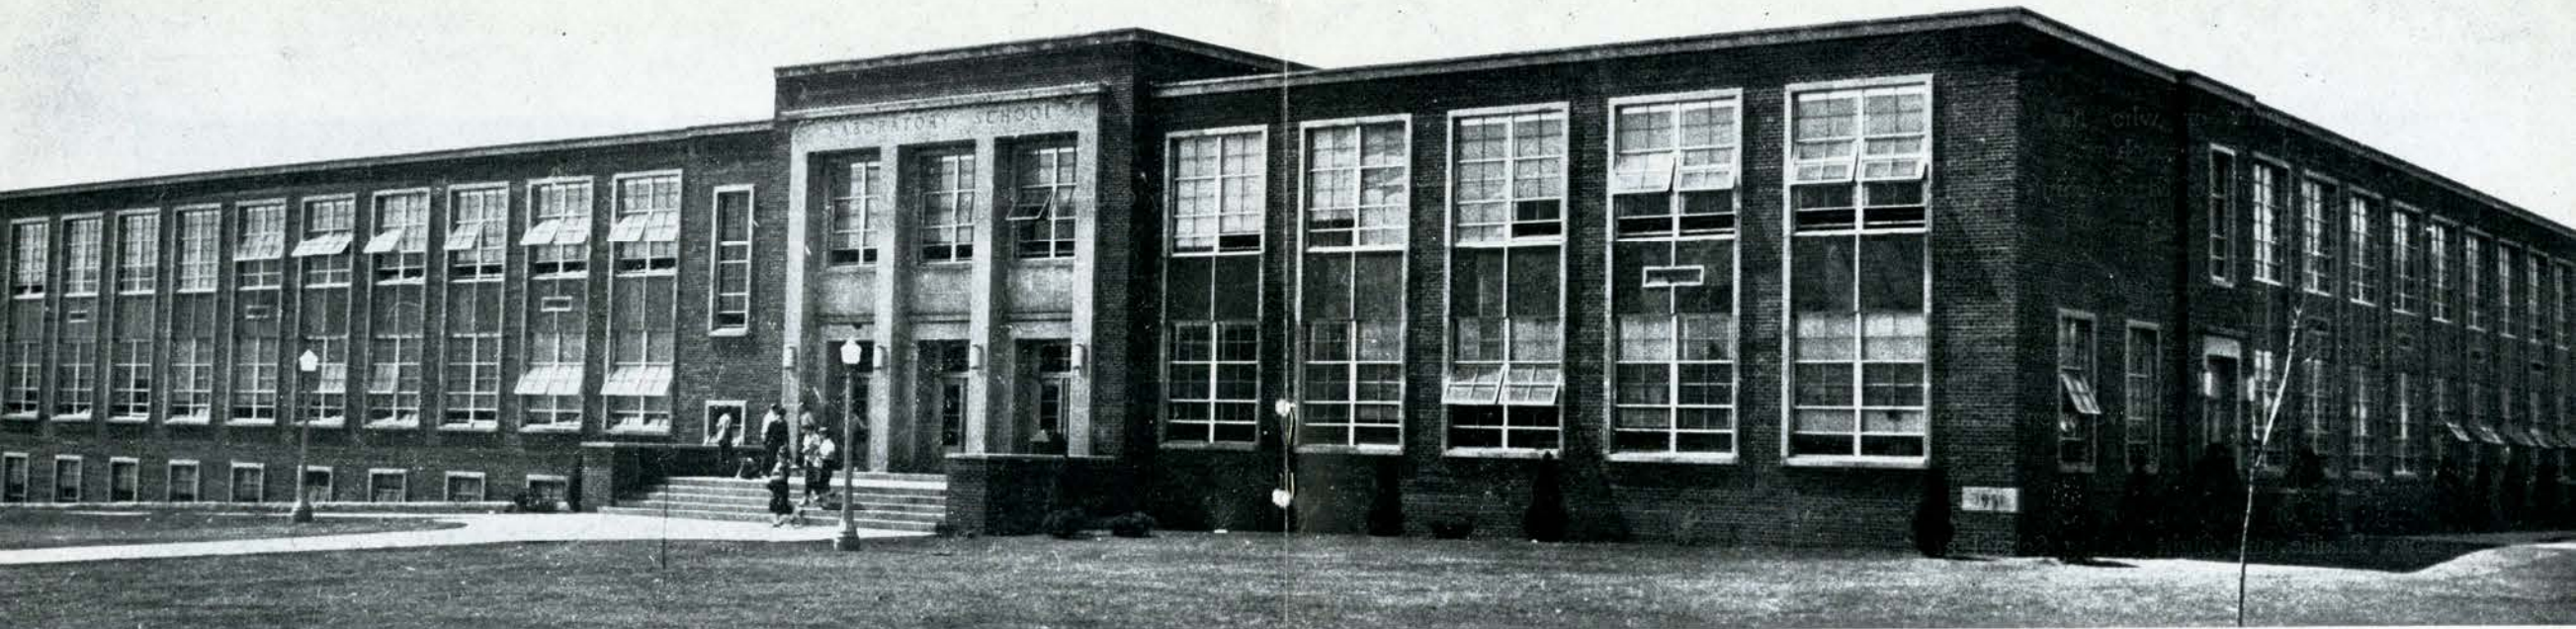

FORWARD JIM JACKSON (No. 50) watches tensely as Cliff Svoboda battles for the tipoff in TC's first game. Northeast Missouri won, 54-53.

Other regulars on the wrestling team are Dave Maher and Dave Dodge (137), Jerry Ray (157), Gerry Gienger (177) and Jack Smith (hwt). The wrestlers also boast a strong frosh squad which has made some fine performances in competition.

The indoor track season will get underway the middle of February. Coach Art Dickinson has several able lettermen returning and is expected to field another strong cinder squad. Biggest shoes to fill will be those left by the incomparable Ron Sturch, the most versatile track performer ever to compete for Teachers.

The baseball team, defending North Central Conference champions, lost several key performers from its N.C.A.A. regional playoff team last season. Coach Mon Whitford has a rebuilding job ahead this spring, but a pitching staff returning almost intact should ease the problem.

CAMPUS LABORATORY SCHOOL

A Complete Grade and High School
Located on the College Campus

Center for One of Largest Student Teaching Programs in the Country

DEDICATION of the Campus Laboratory School, one of the finest teaching laboratories in the country, will take place at the College Monday, March 23.

Educators, townsfolk of Cedar Falls and Waterloo, students, alumni, leading state officials and representatives from other Iowa colleges will assemble at Cedar Falls to pay tribute to the completion of the school.

The dedication program will mark final completion of a series of units planned with the architects by the faculty of the school and first begun in 1950. Formerly housed in what is now known as Sabin Hall, near the college library, the Campus School has grown by sections during the last six years. The first section, completed in August of 1953, contained the elementary classrooms, some of the high school rooms, the music rooms, the cafeteria, and the library.

As additional funds became available, a second section was completed in November 1955, containing the rest of the high school classrooms plus rooms for art, industrial arts, and driver education.

The fieldhouse, recreational rooms and swimming pools were completed in October of 1957. With the addition of this latest wing, the Campus School now occupies approximately 35 acres in the area north and west of the main campus.

Campus School officials will explain the history and function of the school when the visitors gather next month for the formal dedication. An open house will be held throughout the day, giving the guests an opportunity to visit the classrooms, laboratories, shops, and physical education facilities.

"The state has spent $2,500,000 for this school," said Dr. Dwight Curtis, head of the department of student teaching. "We want to show the people of Iowa what they are getting for their money."

Dr. John Emens, president of the Ball State Teachers College in Muncie, Indiana, will be the dedication speaker in an afternoon assembly in the fieldhouse.

Blessed by a well-equipped physical plant, the school currently has an enrollment of 800 and provides a nursery school, three kindergartens, two grades, each from the first through the sixth, and all regular high school subjects.

What kind of a school is this teaching laboratory?

What a campus hospital is to a medical school, a college laboratory school is to a teachers college. Here the soon-to-be classroom teacher has an opportunity to observe both expert teachers at work and to participate in actual classroom teaching.

The qualifications of this expert staff are of the highest order. About one-third of the staff hold doctorate degrees and another one-third have taken at least a year's study beyond the master's degree. All have been selected from among candidates with outstanding records or who have shown promise as classroom teachers.

The greatest use of the teaching laboratory by far is its service as an observation center for the college and public schools. The number of students now doing their actual classroom or "student teaching" is so large that the laboratory alone can no longer accommodate them. Therefore student teaching "centers" have been set up in schools in seven Iowa communities, Waterloo, Newton, Independence, Fort Dodge, Mason City, Charles City, and the Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School at Vinton. Students are assigned to the various elementary and high schools in these centers according to current needs and loads.

This year, based on fall enrollments and anticipated spring semester enrollments, 661 students will have done nine weeks of student teaching in preparation for their careers as teachers. Of these, 192 will have received their teaching experience at the Campus School and 469 will have taught in the off campus centers.

In addition to providing ISTC seniors with the opportunity to take over a classroom for the first time, the Campus School enables students to observe newest and best techniques in teaching.

Through a series of demonstration programs, students get a first hand glimpse into the many problems faced by the teacher. Students enrolled in a course entitled, "Methods of Teaching Arithmetic to Lower Elementary Children," for example, can visit a third grade arithmetic class to find out how the methods work in actual practice.

In the fall of 1957, a total of 3,669 students (some visited classes several times) watched 190 demonstrations at the school. In the spring of 1958, more than 4,800 saw 148 demonstrations and in the summer session, 973 observed 35 demonstrations.

Students are also encouraged to visit the school on an individual basis. Several thou-

Six Classrooms Updated in Campus Improvement Jobs

In physical improvement actions at the college in 1958, a practice football field, a cinder track, a baseball diamond, a parking lot, and tennis courts were included in a grading project near the Campus Laboratory School.

Installation of an eight inch water line increased hydrant pressure for fire protection on the main campus and a hike from 2,400 to 4,160 volts increased campus power in the electrical distribution system.

Six classrooms in the auditorium got a face lifting after they had been modernized with new ceilings, lights, asphalt tiling, re-wiring, and redecorated walls. All the student rooms in Lawther Hall, a dormitory for sophomore women, were replastered.

Alumni who haven't visited the campus recently will find the familiar railroad tracks missing. The Waterloo Railroad Company abandoned its spur line to the power plant, so now coal is transported by truck.

A former classroom in the men's gymnasium was converted into five offices for athletic department coaches.

Two entrances to the campus from the 27th street side were widened and paved, streets in Sunset Village were also paved, and a lecture room in the science building was remodeled to provide a more attractive setting for students in the Academic Year Institute.

sand did so last year.

Many of the programs and projects of both the Campus School and the college operate to mutual advantage. Many examples can be cited.

College students taking courses in educational measurements for example, often use Campus School children for subjects in mental maturity tests. Other students can observe work done with children at the college educational clinic.

Eventful Year at College in 1958

TEACHERS College officials examined methods of upgrading educational standards and curriculums in the light of the Soviet educational challenge in 1958 to highlight a busy, stimulating school year.

Russia's educational, economic, and social systems were thoroughly studied in a special faculty seminar set up early in the year. Volunteer lecturers from various departments gave two-hour talks to give the staff an insight into three highly-significant problems.

Teaching experiments were conducted in all of the college's 14 departments. The mathematics department, for example, discovered it could teach students in some courses as effectively in large classes as it could in small.

Speech instructors gave their students reading lists featuring such fundamental problems as democracy and American-Russian relations. This meant that the speech topics covered highly significant information.

The National Science Foundation of Washington, D.C. helped the college take another step toward meeting the Soviet challenge when it granted money for a second Academic Year Institute beginning in September 1959. As a result, 50 additional science and mathematics teachers from all sections of the country will receive advanced training and updating in modern scientific developments.

The 15,000 persons who attended the All-College Conference on International Affairs in April heard top flight representatives from six nations give their viewpoints on the knotty question, "Germany and the Fate of Europe." The nations were the United States, Great Britain, West Germany, Russia, Poland, and Yugoslavia.

In June, 342 students earned bachelor's degrees, 16 master's degrees. Fifty students and faculty members left Montreal that same month to attend a month's social science seminar at England's Oxford University.

On an Iowa level, the college played host to hundreds of high school students and teachers in the Elementary Education Conference, the Tallcorn Music Conference, State Day, the Elementary Leaders Conference, and the Governor's Conference on Children and Youth.

Entertainment wise, two of the biggest names in show business, Benny Goodman and Louis Armstrong, performed to packed houses in the auditorium. First-class performances were also staged by music and drama department students.

Death took five faculty members, A. C. Fuller, emeritus director of alumni service and public school relations; Harold Palmer, professor and former head of the industrial arts department, I. H. Hart, emeritus college archivist and former director of the extension service, Bert Woodcock, associate professor and director of safety education, and Waldemar Gjerde, specialist in audio-visual education.

As the Alumnus goes to press, indications are plentiful that 1959 will be another action-packed year. Among many items on TC's agenda are additional work in the fields of testing, research, and classroom experimentation. Purpose of the agenda? To maintain the school's reputation as being one of the leading teacher colleges in the country.

CORRECTION

In the births section in the December issue of the Alumnus, under the heading " '39," we reported that Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cleveland were the parents of a son born July 10, 1958. The name Cleveland should read Bovee.

Richard H. Plock

Long-Time Regents Member Resigns From State Board

Richard H. Plock, a member of the State Board of Regents since 1937, resigned that post recently to devote more time to his Burlington law practice.

His resignation represents a great loss to the board which directs and establishes policies of the state institutions for higher education. Any of the nine-members would be quick to attest to the intense personal interest and broad understanding of problems of state-supported higher education that this man has brought to the board.

Said President Maucker, "Mr. Plock's wide acquaintance with governing boards throughout the nation qualified him uniquely for board service. We found his broad perspective particularly valuable at the time of the anonymous letter flare-up at TC in 1953."

A member of the firm of Pryor, Hale, Plock, Riley, and Jones, he is married to the former Helen Swisher of Waterloo. The

President Maucker Lists 'Hopes' for Coming Year

What's going to take place at the Iowa State Teachers College in 1959? President J. W. Maucker says he "hopes" to see:

1. Faculty adoption of an improved four-year program for elementary teachers and a continued general strengthening of standards.

2. Increased staff salaries and the inauguration of a large-scale building program through a substantial legislative appropriation. "It is doubtful that actual construction will be begun during 1959," he said, "but definite progress should be made in detailed project planning in consultation with engineers and architects.

3. Beginning of actual construction of a men's residence hall and a student center.

4. Experimental summer programs for academically superior high school and college students.

5. Greater opportunities for high ranking students to receive loans on liberal terms.

6. Greater opportunities for additional scholarship programs, research projects, and instructional program improvements through funds contributed to the newly-organized ISTC Foundation.

Said Dr. Maucker, "It should be a good year."

couple has two daughters, Carolyn Ann and Susan, and a son, Richard Jr.

Plock received his bachelor's degree from Amherst College in Massachusetts and his law degree from Harvard. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, and Delta Sigma Rho.

L.A., Frisco, Chicago Alumni to Meet

Los Angeles Area Meeting

March 21, 1959 has been set as the date for the annual meeting of the Los Angeles Area Alumni Club. A dinner will be held at Knott's Berry Farm at 6:30 p.m. which will be preceded by a social hour at 5:30. Mr. E. G. Brockman is head of the following committee which is making plans for the meeting: Esther Bley Foy, C. J. College Awarded Grant of $1,000 For Ten Air Age Scholarships

Ten $100 scholarships made possible by a $1000 grant from the Iowa Aeronautics Commission are available to students enrolled in the Air Education Workshop at Teachers College this summer.

Graduates and undergraduates will receive four hours credit for the course, to be directed by Dr. William Dreier, assistant professor of education. Scholarship application blanks may be obtained by writing to Dr. Dreier. The applications will be reviewed by a faculty scholarship committee before May 1.

Former Student Honored as 'March of Dimes' Mother

Mrs. James F. Fox, a student in 1945-46 and the wife of a former TC football and wrestling performer, has been named state March of Dimes Mother for 1959.

Mrs. Fox won the state honor for her courageous fight against the dread disease, bulbar polio. She first became ill in October 1954. Her youngest son was born during a subsequent six month stay in the University Hospital in Iowa City.

At one time, Mrs. Fox could not smile. Every facial muscle was paralyzed. She has been able, however, through a lot of hard work and perseverance to build up some of her facial muscles. Constant practice in front of a mirror did the trick.

Mr. Fox, a 1943 graduate and a wartime Marine, received his master's degree from Colorado State College in 1947. After coaching for two years at Britt, he moved to Davenport High School where he is currently wrestling coach and a physical education instructor.
