PRIORITIES DISLOCATIONS

Impact of priorities dislocations in industry has been so gradual that few persons are aware of the full implications of the system that reserves all needed basic materials for war production. But the priorities plan is just beginning to function and when it becomes fully effective everyone will know that Mars is insatiable.

To some, realization of the effect of war on their manner of living will be brought by shortages of the things they have always bought.
Stores will no longer have the desired items and perhaps not even substitutes for them. It will be a case of doing without things that were formerly regarded as necessities.

To others, realization that priorities will affect everyday life will be brought in a more drastic manner. Their jobs or other means of livelihood will be summarily cut off because the activities in which they were engaged were labeled non-essential and denied priorities ratings that would have enabled their continuance.

Priorities, to most persons, are still something vague and far off—something necessary to the war effort, but something that does not affect them personally. This detached attitude toward priorities may remain almost general for another three months. By January the system of allocating all needed materials and services to war production, with civilian demands forced to depend on left-over scraps, will be in full force. In many lines, in addition to manufacture of new automobiles, production for civilian use will be reduced to one-half the potential demand. Other articles will no longer be manufactured at all for civilian use.

It will be extremely difficult to relocate workers who will be thrown out of employment by this shift from peacetime production to war production. Some of them have worked all their lives at their present jobs, or at least in the industry by which they are now employed. Others are too old to fit readily into the war production effort.

But here and there throughout the country factories are closing due to priorities and for the men and women who earned their living within their walls, the term "priorities" has taken on a very literal meaning. Of course, many of these factories will be closed only temporarily while changing over to war production, but others do not seem to be adapted to defense work.

There is, for instance, the world's largest zipper plant at Meadville, Pa. This is a comparatively new industry which has enjoyed phenomenal prosperity in recent years and employed 4,000 workers.
Now priorities have closed it. Zippers are not necessary to defense, it seems. Apparently this factory is unable to handle war orders and the businessmen of Meadville have protested long and loudly to Washington against the order which brings real depression to Meadville and misery to its workers.

Sherman said a mouthful, and they didn't have priorities in his day.—Exchange.

Uncertain World Conditions
Make Systematic Saving
Wise

It is not a time to rock the boat—but all of us know that in the face of conditions today systematic saving is wise. We know, too, that nothing is as safe as real estate.

The Building and Loan Association is based on the solidness of property. Our loans are made on it and our deposits are insured by the Federal Government.
We offer the best method of real, systematic saving that is now available; we also are in position to help any frugal person own a home.

We will be glad to talk over these things with any person who wishes to provide for the future at any time.

SPORT TALK

Coach Giles is concentrating on the problem of bringing his Bulldogs down to the Armistice Day game with Mayfield in good physical condition. During the past few days the squad has been bothered with minor illness, such as colds, and the weather had not been very good for getting these cases cured. One day the team was forced to practice indoors, and Coach Giles felt that the team needed all the hard, contact practice possible before Tuesday. In the main, the practice this week has been satisfactory, with the boys showing lots of spirit and confidence and a lot of work has been devoted to certain new plays which are being prepared. An effort is being made in certain plays to develop more crashing power in line plays, and this has involved some drastic changes in the lineup. Whether this play will be used or not is problematical, for it involves a lot of changing around and Coach Giles may decide that not enough time has been available for the boys to properly assimilate the play.

A lot of attention has also been given the passing attack, for the Bulldogs have never been remarkable at passing. Pass defense is another weakness which has been taken up, for the Bulldogs have looked weak on this many times. Many times passes have gone for big gains against the Bulldogs, when they should have been intercepted or batted down. Coach Giles hopes the lessons given this week will bear some fruit next Tuesday, for Mayfield is known to have a potent passing game. The Cards also have used laterals with devastating effect, and the local team has been coached on this rather intensively this week. The main thing which has been stressed in practice is that the Bulldogs must follow the ball and not be sucked away in the wrong direction. Reports from Mayfield indicate that several trick plays, working from spinners, have been planned, and the Cards hope to do considerable execution with these plays. To date, the Bulldogs have not been baffled by tricks a great deal. In the Russellville game they were somewhat baffled by the man in motion, and this really gave the Panthers their first touchdown. After that the Bulldogs appeared to have solved the problem. It isn't likely that the Cardinals will be able to fool the local team very much, for they have been better than average on spotting trick plays in all other games this season. It is a fact, however, that the Cardinals have two backs who are extraordinarily fast, and if they get into the open they will likely go for big gains and probable markers.

If the regular line is in top condition Coach Giles does not have a great deal of fear of power plays. The Bulldog line has been able to stand up to every team encountered thus far, and while Mayfield has a big, seasoned line, the backs are not giants by any means. On straight football it is believed the Bulldogs will be able to hold the Cardinals, but the Mayfield outfit does have more speed than the local team.

The Bulldogs have a lot of confidence—confidence which is born of some sturdy goal line stands—and they do not believe that the Cards are going to run away with them. They also believe they have the power to do some scoring also, and while most of the boys know that a victory over Mayfield would be a great upset, they do not feel that it is impossible for them to register this upset. They are hoping in this final game to get some of the breaks which have been denied them all season, and they really believe that if they can get their share of breaks they have an excellent chance of whipping the Cardinals. One and all, they are determined to carry the fight to the Cards. This is one game which the Bulldogs are not giving up before it is played. "We've got the same number of players as the Cards," they say. "We have as good coaching, we have as good players, and we have the determination. Why should we not win?"

Which is pretty good philosophy, and which might give them power to win.

Red Devils Swamp Hayti Here Last Night In Homecoming Game

In the annual homecoming six-man football team for the South Fulton Red Devils, played last night at Southside field, the South Fulton boys tramped over Hayti, Missouri by the score of 32-12. Preceding the game a parade was held, in charge of the Young Men's Business Club, and headed by Miss Mozelle Harwood, sponsor, and Misses Elnor Jane Bowen and Nell Bizzie, attendants.

A revised and greatly improved team was sent onto the field by Coach Jess Haynes and fans were particularly interested because of the improved team work among the boys.

In the first quarter Hayti scored early, with Perry going over for the touchdown. The extra point failed. South Fulton then took the ball and came back for a touchdown with Browder going around the end. The extra point was made. Mallard then started a drive of line bucks and end runs and behind excellent blocking ran the ball into scoring territory and it was also Mallard who went over for the touchdown.

In the second quarter the ball was switched around mid-field for several minutes but late in that period Mallard again took the ball, receiving a pass over center, and ran forty yards for a touchdown. Again in the third quarter, Mallard took Hayti's kick and from behind his own goal line ran seventy-five yards, and again scored another touchdown. A pass was good for the point. Mallard again scored late in the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter Hayti got back into the ball game, pushing deep into South Fulton territory in four plays, and Perry went over their second and last touchdown.

Starting lineup for South Fulton was McConnell RE, Greer C, Brooks LE, Dalton QB, Browder HB and Mallard FB, with the entire squad seeing action. Because of an injured leg, Dalton played only five minutes being replaced by Browder, with Long went to half.

Score by quarters:
S. Fulton 13 8 13 0—32
Hayti 6 6 0 0—12

STUDENT DEVISES I-MAN LANGUAGE; BIG DIARY'S SAFE
Hanover, N. H. — Peter Weston Dartmouth College sophomore from Wilton, Conn., doesn't mind leaving his personal diary around where others might read it, because his entries are made in a one-man language which he alone understands.

A brilliant student in languages, Weston has devised his model tongue as a hobby. He calls it Sil-eijhiano and denies it is a form of pig Latin or double-talk.

About half of his 500-word Sil-eijhiano vocabulary is of Latin origin, the rest from his own head. The result is a smooth-sounding

SUBMARINE MENACE MAY FORCE CHANGE IN SHIP DEFENSES

Nazi Wolf Pack Is Reported Now More Daring

Washington. —The menace of German submarine raids in the North Atlantic raised speculation in naval circles today that a complete turnabout in strategy, subordinating the use of convoys, might prove the eventual answer to the U-boat wolf pack technique.

The central theory in the various methods being explored was that mass submarine attacks would be rendered largely ineffective if armed merchantmen traveled singly instead of being bunched in convoys.

The discussions accompanied two fresh developments in the battle of the Atlantic—the announcement that 17 American civilian technicians had been lost en route to England, and the disclosure that U-boats have been operating close to Newfoundland.

The latest American casualties were men who had enlisted in the British civilian technical corps for non-combatant duty abroad. Their loss was made public last night by the British press service on behalf of the Royal Air Force delegation here.

The ship which carried the technicians "is presumed to have been sunk," the British said, and "telegrams have been sent to the next of kin." The name of the ship and the approximate date of the sinking were not disclosed.

language. The only drawback is the whole business is that Weston occasionally would like to talk to somebody besides himself.

NEUTRALITY LAW MISUSE LAID TO ROOSEVELT

Washington. —Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), denounced President Roosevelt today for not applying the neutrality act to the Russo-German war, and said the President was using that law to "play power politics anywhere in the world."

The Senate's leading opponent of administration foreign policy spoke in opposition to revising the neutrality law, while senatorial temper showed signs of cracking and the voting stage of the controversy drew near.

Two Points At Issue
Tomorrow or Friday party leaders expect the Senate to reach a decision on the two points at issue: whether the law's restrictions against arming merchant ships and against their entering combat zones or belligerent ports are to be rescinded.

speedy field transfusions. Another Red Cross service is the distribution of $1,000,000 worth of athletic and recreation equipment to Army and Navy posts, an important item in building morale among service men. Production volunteers in 3,700 local chapters throughout the country are making 40,000,000 surgical dressings to bolster military reserves of medical supplies.

"It is imperative that our community contribute its full share to the upkeep of these and all other Red Cross services connected with national defense," Mr. Lewis declared. "We can do this only by going over the top in the Roll Call to be held throughout the country from November 11 to 30."

1941 LOOKS AT 1916

THINGS have changed a lot in 25 years—yet there is much that is the same.

In 1916 it was Preparedness; in 1941, National Defense. But now the scale is bigger, the pace is faster. There was pressure on the telephone business then. The pressure is infinitely greater now. New training camps; new aviation fields; new munition plants; new shipyards and many other defense industries—all need telephones. Everyone is moving faster . . . and, when a nation hurries, it does so by telephone. Southern Bell spent about $4,600,000 on new construction in 1916. It is spending over $51,000,000 in 1941.

The entire Southern Bell organization serving nine Southern states, is giving "first call" to Defense. We believe you would want it that way.
