

ACCULTURATION EXPERIENCE OF FIRST GENERATION
MUSLIM IMMIGRANT WOMEN IN A CANADIAN PRAIRIE CITY

A Thesis Submitted to the College of Graduate Studies and Research in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Master of Arts in the Department of Psychology
University of Saskatchewan
Saskatoon

By

Farzana Nizar Karim-Tessem

© Copyright Farzana Karim-Tessem, December 2008. All rights reserved.

PERMISSION TO USE

In presenting this thesis in partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Postgraduate degree from the University of Saskatchewan, I agree that the Libraries of this University may make it freely available for inspection. I further agree that permission for copying of this thesis in any manner, in whole or in part, for scholarly purposes may be granted by the professor or professors who supervised my thesis work or, in their absence, by the Head of the Department or the Dean of the College in which my thesis work was done. It is understood that any copying or publication or use of this thesis or parts thereof for financial gain shall not be allowed without my written permission. It is also understood that due recognition shall be given to me and to the University of Saskatchewan in any scholarly use which may be made of any material in my thesis.

Requests for permission to copy or to make other use of material in this thesis in whole or part should be addressed to:

Head of the Department of Psychology
University of Saskatchewan
Saskatoon, Saskatchewan S7N 5A5
Canada

OR

Dean
College of Graduate Studies and Research
University of Saskatchewan
107 Administration Place
Saskatoon, Saskatchewan S7N 5A2
Canada

ABSTRACT

This thesis explores first generation Muslim immigrant women's acculturation experiences and strategies from a religious, cultural and gender perspective. It aims to increase our understanding of the diverse and confounding roles and expectations of their heritage culture and host Canadian culture. Qualitative interviews with eight married with children, English-speaking Muslim immigrant women who have lived in Canada for at least three years explored: (a) their overall experiences living in a Canadian Prairie city; (b) their experience transitioning from their role in the family in a traditional non-Western culture to their role in the family in an egalitarian Canadian culture; and (c) factors that hinder and facilitate their adaptation in Canada. Findings demonstrated that although women's acculturation experiences and strategies are unique and dynamic, all women expressed the interconnectivity and significance of God, community and family in their lives. Women's personal experiences and goals related to work, family, and community influence how and to what degree they negotiate and reconcile the diverse and confounding roles and expectations of their heritage and Canadian cultures. Their acculturation experiences are constantly evolving, and their adaptation in Canada is largely influenced by their daily experiences, including the supports they have and do not have both at home and in their local heritage and host communities. Women also face the central challenge of raising their children in a culture that promotes a set of values that compromises the transmission of their own core religious/cultural values. Thus, they employ strategies such as conscientiously modeling devotion to Islam through practice and teaching, restricting their children's personal freedom and independence, and monitoring and limiting their children's Canadian friendships, while increasing contact with their local heritage community. This research contributes to cross-cultural inquiry via a cultural comparison that established cultural aspects of women's traditional heritage cultures, which was subsequently compared to Canadian culture as a tool for gauging cultural discrepancies. Future research may explore the whole family unit through a longitudinal lens to facilitate both the adaptation and integration of immigrants from collectivistic cultures into Canadian culture, and improved policies and programs that mark Canada as a pluralistic and egalitarian culture.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My heartfelt thanks to the eight Muslim women who graciously shared their precious time and experiences with me.

A special thank you to my supervisor, Dr. Valery Chirkov, for providing me with invaluable expertise, and contributing to my growth as a researcher.

Thank you to my Advisory Committee members, Dr. James Waldram and Dr. Karen Lawson, for their support and guidance during the process; to Dr. Ayla Raazi, Ashraf Mir, Nayyar Javed, and Judy White for their assistance with participant recruitment; and to Shannon Durand, Sarah Kretschmann, and Whitney Schiefner for their assistance with transcription of the interviews.

Thank you to my parents who have endured so much by unconditionally placing their children's happiness before theirs.

I would also like to acknowledge and express my support for the Global Centre for Pluralism, a new international initiative of His Highness the Aga Khan, 49th hereditary Imam (spiritual leader) of Ismaili Muslims. In October 2006 the Government of Canada became partners with the Ismaili Imam and the Aga Khan Development Network (AKDN) in the Global Centre for Pluralism. Dedicated to the creation of successful societies, the Centre is founded on the premise that tolerance, openness and understanding towards the cultures, social structures, values and faiths of other peoples are now essential to the very survival of an interdependent world. Pluralism is no longer simply an asset or a prerequisite for progress and development. It is vital to our existence.

“...we cannot make the world safe for democracy unless we also make the world safe for diversity.”

His Highness the Aga Khan, 15 May 2006

(Retrieved September 2, 2008 from the Global Centre for Pluralism website www.pluralism.ca)

DEDICATION

For Mummy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PERMISSION TO USE.....	i
ABSTRACT.....	ii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.....	iii
DEDICATION.....	iv
TABLE OF CONTENTS.....	v
LIST OF TABLES.....	viii
1. INTRODUCTION.....	1
1.1 Statement of the Problem.....	1
1.2 Purpose and Aims of the Study.....	2
1.3 Study Overview.....	3
2. LITERATURE REVIEW.....	5
2.1 Islam.....	5
2.2 Women in Traditional Muslim Culture.....	6
2.3 Egalitarian Canadian Culture.....	10
2.4 Divergent Cultural Values.....	13
2.5 Acculturation and Adaptation.....	15
2.6 Multiculturalism, Canada, and Integration.....	17
2.7 Among Cultures.....	18
3. METHODOLOGY.....	23
3.1 Research Questions and Nature of Study.....	23
3.2 Participants and Recruitment Procedure.....	23
3.3 Data Collection Materials.....	24
3.4 Procedures.....	25
3.5 Data Analysis Strategy.....	26
3.5.1 Data Analysis Technique.....	28
3.6 Data Quality and Reflexivity.....	28

4. ANALYSIS OF INTERVIEWS.....	30
4.1 Grounding Themes.....	30
4.1.1 Women’s Contexts.....	30
4.1.1.1 Afsar – Iran.....	30
4.1.1.2 Bani – Bangladesh.....	31
4.1.1.3 Cala – Sudan.....	32
4.1.1.4 Daliya – Pakistan.....	33
4.1.1.5 Geena – India.....	33
4.1.1.6 Erum – Pakistan.....	34
4.1.1.7 Faiza – Pakistan.....	35
4.1.1.8 Shahla – Afghanistan.....	35
4.1.2 Predominant Themes.....	36
4.1.2.1 Muslim Immigrant Women’s Overall Experiences Living in a Canadian Prairie City.....	37
4.1.2.1.1 Increased Freedom of Choice.....	37
4.1.2.1.1.1 Positive Experiences: Greater Independence and Opportunities.....	37
4.1.2.1.1.2 Negative Experiences: Lack of Familial Support and Accustomed Conveniences.....	41
4.1.2.1.2 More Work, Less Time.....	43
4.1.2.1.2.1 Schedules are Necessary: Need to Plan Ahead to Accomplish Work.....	43
4.1.2.1.3 Islam is a ‘Different’ Way of Life.....	45
4.1.2.1.3.1 New Cultural Milieu: Maintaining the ‘Old’ Islam is a Challenge.....	46
4.1.2.1.3.2 New Cultural Milieu: Women Attend Mosque with Men.....	49
4.1.2.2 Women’s Experiences Transitioning From Their Role In The Family in a Traditional Non-Western Culture To Their Role In The Family in an Egalitarian Canadian Culture.....	51

4.1.2.2.1 Working In and Out of the Home: Traditional and New Shared Roles/Duties.....	51
4.1.2.2.2 Maintenance of Traditional Role: Unshared Duties.....	54
4.1.2.2.3 Marital Tension/Conflict: Exhibiting Independence is Questionable by Traditional Standards.....	56
4.1.2.2.4 Instilling Tradition Values in Children: Increased Heritage Culture Contact.....	58
4.1.2.3 Factors that Hinder and Facilitate Women’s Adaptation in Canada.....	61
4.1.2.3.1 Cultural Contrasts: Less Sense of Family and Community Among Canadians.....	62
4.1.2.3.2 Familial/Social Support: Feelings of Identity Loss and Isolation.....	73
4.1.2.3.3 Familial/Social Support: Approval and Relatedness Fosters Feelings of Cultural Fit.....	75
5. DISCUSSION.....	77
5.1 Purpose and Nature of Study.....	77
5.2 Muslim Immigrant Women’s Overall Experiences Living in a Canadian Prairie City.....	77
5.3 Women’s Experiences Transitioning From Their Role In The Family in a Traditional Non-Western Culture To Their Role In The Family in an Egalitarian Canadian Culture.....	79
5.4 Factors that Hinder and Facilitate Women’s Adaptation in Canada.....	81
5.5 Research Limitations and Future Research.....	83
5.6 Conclusion.....	84
REFERENCES.....	87
APPENDICES.....	95
APPENDIX A

Interview Schedule.....	95
APPENDIX B
Demographic Sheet.....	97
APPENDIX C
Brief Description of Study with Muslim Immigrant Women.....	98
APPENDIX D
Statement of Information Conveyed in the Consent Process.....	99
APPENDIX E
Modified Data/Transcript Release Form.....	101
APPENDIX F
Debriefing Sheet.....	102
APPENDIX G
Transcription Notation.....	103

LIST OF TABLES

Table 1 Research Aims, Predominant Sub-Themes, and Components.....	38
--	----