EARLE C. CLEMENTS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN IN GLASGOW ON JUNE 28; SAYS HE WILL NOT INJECT PERSONALITIES INTO CAMPAIGN

Raps Republicans in Congress Leadership

Louisville, Ky., June 20—A comprehensive and detailed statement of his position concerning various activities of state government, its agencies and departments will be made by Congressman Earle C. Clements, Democratic candidate for the nomination for governor when he formally opens his speaking tour in an address at Glasgow on Saturday, June 28th at 2 o'clock.

Arrangements for the meeting which is expected to attract Democrats from throughout western Kentucky are in charge of County Judge Carroll Redford, and Winn Davis, state finance chairman of the Clements campaign committee. Both Judge Redford and Davis are residents of Glasgow.

Congressman Clements Glasgow speech will be carried over Radio Station WHAS and additional stations in a state-wide hookup. He plans to make a number of speeches in every congressional district before the August primary.

Charging that his opponent Harry Lee Waterfield is making an effort to make the Rea an issue in the present campaign. Mr. Clements said the statement "has the ring of a counterfeit coin."

The second district congressman also sharply criticized the Courier-Journal, which is supporting his opponent, for deserting Democratic nominees in the past and openly espousing the cause of Republican candidates for the U. S. Senate and the national house of representatives.

Clements attacked Republican leadership in Congress and also declared he would not engage in personalities in the present campaign. "I have seen the utter ruthlessness with which Republicans consider measures designed to accomplish the social betterment of the great masses of our people," Clements declared.

Declaring that he would work and do everything possible to achieve unity which he said was necessary for party victory, Clements said he had noted that "here and there abortive efforts are being made to receive old dissensions—to reopen old wounds, and to inject false issues."

Little Phoebe

"This little perch went to market
This little brim stayed home
This little cat ate minnows
This little bass had bones."
"That's wrong mamma," wailed the six-month old son of Dr. and Mrs. Dyer, "the rhyme should be about pigs."

But little Phoebe just laughed and laughed because she knew mamma had been to Hog's to buy fish and was slightly confused, what with Mother Goose, too.

KENTUCKY VETERANS URGED TO REPORT FOR VA PHYSICAL EXAMS

Kentucky veterans who receive disability compensation and fail to report promptly for physical examinations when notified by the Veterans Administration, face the loss of such payments under new procedures authorized May 1, it was announced today by the VA's Regional Chief Medical Officer, Dr. Miller. Veterans who have filed new applications for disability compensation will indefinitely delay all action on their claims when they fail to keep examination appointments.

During the past two months, approximately 20 per cent of all veterans scheduled for physical examinations failed to report. Dr. Miller said records of delinquent veterans will be endorsed "Failure to Cooperate" and all payments or further action will be subject to immediate discontinuance. Payments will not be restored unless an examination by VA indicates such payments are justified.

Dr. Miller pointed out that rigid enforcement of the new regulation is necessary to provide improved service to all veterans. He urged veterans to report promptly for all examinations in order to prevent increases in backlogs and assure full utilization of professional personnel.

TIME OUT . . . MEET THE FOLKS

What a big family the News staff is getting to be. Each week more and more members join the group so we thought we'd better take time off to introduce our family as it stands today.

Of course you've met little Phoebe, that impish little brat who sits on the left-hand side of the front page and laughs and laughs at the antics of our readers. We'd like to spank that young 'un sometimes, but she just laughs and laughs because she's got us wrapped around her chubby little fingers.

You've noticed our Woman's Page growing from week to week . . . thanks to Elizabeth Witty, that incomparable Fulton society editor whose knowledge of the goings-on of Fultonians is uncanny.

Today, Mary Alice Clark moves in with her "Round-house Round-ups" and the things that she doesn't know about railroads and railroading just don't happen.

Then there's Louisa with her letters about all kinds of trouble. Louisa doesn't live in this neck of the woods, but she is one of our children who certainly gets an awful lot of letter-writing done.

Sarah Anne is our domestic off-spring who enjoys the kitchen more than anyone we ever saw. She invites you to send in your favorite recipes for publication in the News, so folks will know what a handy person you are around the kitchen.

Then there are our faithful correspondents such as Mrs. Carey Fields, Mrs. Hamp Clark, Mrs. Ira Sadler, Mrs. J. C. Foster, Mrs. Nettie Lee Copelen, Mrs. Martha Cannon, Mrs. W. C. Morrison, Mrs. Roy Collins, Mrs. Leslie Nugent, Mrs. Frank Sellers and many others.

A trio without whom the News could never function are Mr. Gordon Baird, Mr. A. J. Dameron and Mr. Robert Jackson, whose faithful efforts to please you are too numerous to mention.

We often wonder if we are pleasing you, so why not drop us a card sometimes and tell us if we are, and if we're not, tell us too. We'll welcome your constructive criticisms.

Thank you . . . the editors.

JANE WHITE TAKES HONORS AT HORSE SHOW IN JACKSON; COMPETES WITH SOUTH'S BEST

When a professional horseman wins in a horse show that's not news, but when a twelve-year old young lady wins in a horse show competing with professional horsemen, well, that's news. But that's the accomplishment of Jane White, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob White who took the highest honor in the show at Jackson, Tenn., on Monday night. Mounted on "Marjorie Day" she was awarded first prize of $25 and was the only woman rider in that event, competing with some of the best men riders of Tennessee and Kentucky.

On Tuesday night, again mounted on "Marjorie Day" she took fifth place honors in the 500 championship five-gaited open stakes. Her prize was $50 in cash.

Winning trophies is getting to be a habit with Jane White. She won her first award 2 years ago at Union City when she was presented with first place honors in the pleasure class competition. At the Humboldt Strawberry festival early this summer she won first place in the pleasure class and was presented with a cash prize and a silver trophy that makes a strong bid for being almost as tall as she is. Other prizes, ribbons and trophies constitute her fast growing collection of awards.

While most young ladies her age are sleeping soundly, Jane is up each morning at six riding her favorite horse. She rides for nearly two hours each day and that means summer and winter, too. She has been well acquainted with, horseback riding since she was three years old, the age when most children are getting adept at mastering the tricycle.

Jane's favorite horse is "Royal Serenade," but that should be no great compliment to that good animal, for Jane loves horses, period. She has never had an accident, but last week she had a pretty bad headache. Her little pony, "Dimples," who handled her very carefully in those very early years when she was learning to ride, died last week. He was found dead in the pasture.

He must have been a proud pony, and died a very peaceful and happy death, knowing that his little Jane had grown to be a young lady and had repaid him by becoming one of the South's most accomplished young riders.

But we wish with Jane, that "Dimples" could have lived long enough to hear about her winning that first prize on Monday night.

H. J. FRENCH LEADS FIVE STATES SELLING COUNTY FARM BUREAU MEMBERS INSURANCE

H. J. French, Fulton County Agent for the Kentucky Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company was honored recently by the organization of producing the largest amount of charter life insurance business in five states, it was announced that company today. Mr. French produced $401,500 worth of life insurance and was presented with a pen and pencil set by the company.

Kentucky agents went way out in front in the production of charter life insurance and finished far in the lead of the five states who participated in organizing the company, announced Owen Cooper, secretary, Mississippi Farm Bureau and director of the Life Insurance Company during the organizing period.

About 30 per cent of all the farm vehicles in Kentucky are insured in the Kentucky Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company, it was disclosed at the Victory Meeting of agents and county presidents held May 15 in Louisville. The company has grown 400 per cent since Sept. 1, 1946.

The important thing about these insurance services is that, while a few years ago Kentucky had three or four full-time employees telling the story of Farm Bureau, you now have about 200 who practically full-time are telling the story, said David C. Miehler, executive vice president Southern Farm Bureau Life Insurance Company.

It was emphasized repeatedly by those on the program that building Farm Bureau—its strength, prestige and influence was the most important job of all—that the need of a strong united farm organization was paramount.

The Fulton County Farm Bureau is one of the outstanding farm organizations in the country and has a long list of "firsts" to its credit. Among the many distinctions is the fact that it is among the top in the nation in membership percentage having a membership of 99.4% of all farms in the county.

C. E. Wright is president of the county group.

WON'T RUN OR LISTEN PAUL REVERE SELLS PROUD OLE MARE

Don't worry folks, things are tough everywhere. Even modern-day Paul Reverses are chucking the whole business.

A rather forlorn darkie, bare-footed, battered felt hat and riding bare-back on a red mare horse that we thought looked fairly good, stopped in front of the News office Wednesday and asked if we could recommend a good place to sell the old good-for-nothing, lazy animal.

"Whadda you want to sell him for," asked a congenial farmer who reposed against the wall in front of the office.

"Jes ain't worth a darn. Won't run, won't plow, won't listen to a thing I tells him. Jes tired of foolin' with 'im," that's why he wanted to get rid of him he said. We pointed the way to the local stock auction yards and on hearing that the mare proudly cocked his head into the air and trotted his way down Lake street with his forlorn rider, bareback with the battered hat, barefeet and all.

We won't say for sure, it was Wednesday afternoon with the usual quiet that permeates the city with all the stores closed, but hones' injun we thought we heard that horse say:

"Himph, weren't meant to work and plow. Ole man's kin to War Admiral and I'm aiming to get back in the blue-grass where I belong."

Honest'ly folks, not a word of lie. The guy did stop in front of the News office.

Round House Round-Up

Ed's Note: We take great pleasure this week in introducing this new member of the News' growing family of features. Our correspondent is amiable, likeable Mary Alice Clark, who once chose a machinist career in preference to beauty culture or business administration.

Alice, as she is affectionately called by the hundreds of employees of the Illinois Central System here, is general foreman's clerk at the roundhouse.

A look-see into the life of our correspondent tells us that she started with the IC on June 16, 1942 as a water-tester. She held this position for about a year and was then made call-girl, the only girl caller at Jackson, Tenn., her home-town. She came to Fulton on Sept. 13, 1944 to accept the position she now holds, and it is our guess that she is the bright spot in the railroad man's work-a-day world.

Alice is a go-getter. When she came to Fulton there were approximately 25 copies of the IC magazine coming into this town. With a little initiative and boosting the circulation now is about 350.

None of Present Office Holders Seek Re-election

Ten prominent businessmen, all Democrats, have filed with the County Court Clerk at Hickman as candidates for the six positions as councilmen of the City of Fulton to serve a two-year term. None of the retiring members sought re-election. Selection of the candidates to fill the office will be made in the Democratic primary on August 2.

The candidates are:

- Mansfield Martin, City Electric Co.
- G. B. Butterworth, Illinois Central ticket agent.
- Don W. Hill, contractor.
- J. Ward Johnson, M. Livingston Co.
- W. T. Browning, Franklin's.
- Grady Varden, wholesale confectioner.
- J. C. Earle, City Motor Co.
- J. E. Hannephin, retired.
- J. C. Wiggins, Manager, National Stores.

Pete Green, Railway Express. Meanwhile, in the realm of city politics, a group of 12 Fulton businessmen loaned $20,000 to the City of Fulton to help underwrite the $40,000 needed to repair the Harris Fork Creek improvement project. The loan, to be held in escrow at the City National Bank, is to guarantee to the highway department that funds for the project will be available at any time.

The $20,000 loan had been subscribed in October 1946 and was approved at a call meeting of the city council held recently.

The money will be repaid when city bonds are issued to finance the work.

The Illinois Central railroad will contribute $5,000 toward the creek project, the Tennessee Highway Department will give $7,000 and the Kentucky Highway Department is expected to add $8,000.

The Memphis District, Army Corps of Engineers, announced that it is without authority to undertake cleaning out Harris Fork Creek below the Kentucky-Tennessee state line south of South Fulton.

A letter from Col. E. P. Lock, Jr., of the Memphis Engineers office, to Maxwell McDade, chairman of Fulton's flood control committee, said the Army officials felt that the proposed flood control project in Fulton and South Fulton would be adequate to stop the periodic over-flow of Harris Fork Creek within the two cities.

She is the daughter of Mrs. John Travis of Jackson, Tenn. She attended the city schools of that city and completed her higher education at Lambuth College and West Tennessee Business College. Following that she entered Jackson Vocational Training School and took a machinist's course.

She was the first girl to be employed at the IC shops in Jackson.

Take it away, Alice.

Hello gang, here we are again in print. This space will appear each week in this paper. Come on, all you railroaders, get a paper each week and see who our man or woman of the week will be, along with all of the other happenings. Anytime you have any news call Alice Clark at 2900 or 3600.

TEXTILE MILL TURNS COLLEGIATE TO TRAIN WORKERS FOR JOBS

By styling itself a college and advertising for "students" to "earn while learning," a Rhode Island textile mill has solved one of its woman-power problems.

The mill landscaped its grounds, installed glass-enclosed smoking rooms in every department, furnished the rooms with lounge chairs. Every shift is visited by a mobile canteen bearing milk, coffee, soups, and sandwiches. And the workers actually take courses in spinning, winding, carding, weaving, loomfixing, etc.

"Women don't like to work in a mill, but they'll do mill work in a place called a college," said an official. "And we've got to have greater technical knowledge, more efficient workers, and a higher rate of production."

SALT STILL BASIC IN PRESENT-DAY USAGES

Salt is just as important a commodity today as it was in the days of the ancients—if not more so. The average person in the U. S. eats about six pounds of salt per year and uses 190 pounds additional in his clothing, in freezing foods, and in keeping on his feet on icy streets—to mention a few of modern day usages.

4-H LEAF SHOW

POOR LAND GROWS FESCUE

On land so poor that little vegetation would grow a year ago, Clarence Oldfield of Clark county expects to harvest at least 200 bushels of meadow fescue seed this year, according to Charles D. Shouse, county agent. On his 30-acre field, Mr. Oldfield used 200 pounds of mixed fertilizer at the time of sowing, and top-dressed it this spring with 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate. On May 1, the grass was six to eight inches high.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I am a member of a church where one of the members gossips and lies on the minister and even gets up and tries to correct his speech in church. She has been doing this to all the ministers so they won't stay here.

What can be done with her. Member

Answer:

I should think that your deacons or stewards or whoever happens to be the governing board of your church could ask her to appear before the board and tell her that she would be put out of the church if she didn't mend her ways. There is certainly no excuse for letting one old harridan upset your worship and make it hard to keep a minister.

Louisa.

Dear Louisa:

I am a widow of eleven years, have married children. Met a man and kept very close company with him for three years. During the war he went away for work and I didn't see him for three years, although he wrote me on an average of three letters a week, sent gifts, cablegrams on special occasions and large check. He asked me to wait and marry him on his return. When he came home he was drinking quite a lot and a few days before he left he said in a sort of joking way about getting married, but I didn't give a very good answer as I was hurt and undecided. He wanted me to give up my position, said he could finance my house until he could come back and asking me not to go out with anyone. I didn't accept the money as I thought it was better to carry on as I had been doing. I bought furniture.

Since the afternoon he left I have never had a single word from him. I kept writing thinking he might be sick or hurt, but didn't find out until a year ago. I received a nasty letter from a woman claiming to be his wife.

He had always addressed me as his wife and asked me to use his name and got angry when I didn't do so. I have some bonds here made out to him and me. Is there anything I can do. I've tried very hard to forget all this but as time goes on it gets worse. I can't think straight. When he was broke here at home. I gave him money.

Can I do anything about the bonds or the way he jilted me, leaving me flat? I would like to know if he was using me and my family for income reductions?

Puzzled—Conn.

Answer:

There are so many things about your case of which I am ignorant. If you were recognized where you lived as his wife, there are some states that recognize this as a common law marriage and you should certainly have no trouble in keeping the bonds. Certainly, if you advanced him money there is no reason to return any that he sent you. Just accept it as payment on what you loaned him.

You could probably sue him for breach of promise but, after all if he has gone away and left you flat, there is not much point in stirring up a commotion and probably hurting your children by bringing all this before the public unless you are forced to.

Louisa.

Believes In Retonga Now, States Farmer

"My Mother Is Now Taking Retonga and She Praises It As Much As I Do," Declares Mr. Mills. Felt So Bad He Often Couldn't Work A Full Day.

"Retonga proved so grand for me that I want to tell others about such a fine medicine," declares Mr. Carlo Mills, well-known farmer and veteran of World War II, of Harmons, Ky. Discussing Retonga Mr. Mills gratefully states:

"Nervous indigestion got me to where I often could not do a full days work. My appetite was gone and what little I ate seemed to turn to acid in my stomach. I felt restless and high strung, and Constipation kept me taking harsh laxatives, and the more I took the more I had to take. Mornings I often got up feeling so weakened I couldn't hold out to work all day.

"My relief by Retonga is so great that I once more crave food and eat anything I want. I sleep, restfully and get up feeling good. I don't need harsh laxatives. My family surely believe in Retonga. My mother is now taking and praising it as much as I do. It's a grand medicine."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at City Drug Co.

DOES FULTON REALLY WANT INDUSTRY?

Ever hear the old saying attributed to Mark Twain that goes something like "everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

That old adage is in our minds today while we enjoy this delightful weather and think about industry for Fulton.

The thing that hits us hardest though is a very important question, and that is . . . does Fulton really want industry.

We're newcomers here. We like this town. We think that it has the finest people, the most cooperative merchants, the very best churches, and with all its attributes the greatest potential for advancement of any town its size in the country. With all the progress the town has made, the great majority of the people want to progress even further so that the schools will be larger, the church congregations greater, a greater city government for cleaner alleys, more paved streets and public improvements. But to do this the population must grow and to grow there must be new business, new industry, greater employment. Everybody knows this and everybody talks about it, but . . .

We're not criticizing Fulton. To do that is the remotest thought in our minds. You know how we feel. We've told you in these columns and in others ways. Nor do we want you to think that we're not 100 per cent for doing our share for bringing more business to Fulton.

But as public servants we feel it our duty to bring to you an observation that we've made about the good people here and that as such public servants we stand ready to help with even more than our share.

The observation is that the industry movement in Fulton needs a leader. A citizen who has lived here for many years; who has the respect and confidence of the merchants and lay people alike; who is interested in his town because he wants to do something for all the people instead of watching his personal bank account grow; and lastly a citizen who wants to show grateful appreciation to the young business men who devoted many years in service by giving him a helping and guiding hand to get him started again.

Who is the first to say "I will serve."

THE SALESMAN

In a recent address, Dr. Paul H. Nystrom, Professor of Marketing at Columbia University, dealt with selling problems that confront manufacturers and retailers.

Modern selling, he observed, makes more and better use of advertising and of display. Marked advances have been made in visualizing and demonstrating the worth of products. On the other hand, he continued, there has been "a serious decline in efficiency in personal selling." By and large, salesmen for manufacturers, wholesale houses and retail stores no wdo less selling, perform fewer services for their customers, know less about their goods, and cost more than in prewar days. This is due in part to reduced hours of work, coupled with higher pay. It is also true, however, that too many salespeople lack drive, and tend to lean more and more heavily for results upon the aids of advertising, display and packaging.

The remedy, Dr. Nystrom believes, is long-range training to build up the knowledge, habits, attitudes and enthusiasms which are necessary to successful human contact work. That training will require years in many cases, and campaigns which are limited to a few days or weeks, of the "six easy lessons variety," will not work. The "born salesman," who can sell anything, is a rare bird, and there will never be enough of him to meet the needs of American business. The average salesman, who is the backbone of any sales organization, learns relatively slowly, and he must be carefully guided and trained.

Dr. Nystrom has pointed to one more way in which all kinds of retail business, chain and independent, can make further achievements in holding down its overhead costs as a means of controlling the cost of goods to the consumer. In the days ahead, stores with the most efficient sales staffs will have a substantial competitive edge over those where sales personnel lack knowledge and drive.

THE AMERICAN WAY

If you are only slightly mixed up over the way things are going these days, you're doing better than most of us. One day President Truman insists taxes cannot be reduced, that not even one thin dime can safely be cut out of his $37 1/2 billion budget for fiscal '48; the next day he says prices are too high and must be reduced at once. Maybe he should be told the high taxes he doesn't want cut are responsible for a good share of the high prices he does want cut.

Then before the week is over, several large corporations grant wage increases of 15 1/4 an hour, setting the pattern for another general wage increase. Some of the companies that increased wages already have announced they will be forced to raise prices, while others say they expect to be able to absorb the higher labor cost. On top of this buyer resistance is developing, but fast, causing many kinds of merchandise, including some durable goods and building materials, especially lumber, to pile up at various points in the channels of distribution. The National City Bank of N. Y. reports 385 leading corporations had profits after all charges and taxes of $670,875,000 in the first quarter of '47 compared with $290,803,000 in the same period of '46.

Prices, wages, earning are up; Federal government spending is several times higher than in any previous peacetime year; and more and more people all over the country every day are refusing to buy more and more over-priced goods and services. The honeymoon is certainly about over.

During the past few weeks, from the platform, by printed word and by letter, I have advised many thousands of business men in more than 100 different lines of business to reduce prices as much as they can and still make a profit. I am not advocating, as President Truman seems to be, that business men disregard the anti-trust laws by all getting together to set lower prices. No, what I recommend is that each company and each individual business man examine carefully their own situations and reduce prices as much as they can and still operate at a fair profit.

Labor's inefficiency is contributing greatly to the present high price level. Today it takes a far greater number of man-hours than in 1940 to turn out a given unit of production, while, in most cases, because of technological advances, fewer man-hours should be required now.

The men, and women too, now putting in more hours on the same or a smaller amount of production are just as capable of doing an honest day's work as in 1940. I believe they will really go to work once they realize that if they lose their present job, they can't immediately have their choice of six other jobs at the same or better wages. Prices are pretty much the "hand-writing on the wall" in this situation, and when prices turn down, productivity per man hour is almost certain to increase. In fact, production per man-hour should increase enough so that in a few months a second reduction in prices should be justified without reducing wages.

The amount of money in a pay envelope is not merely as important as what that money will buy. If the same number of dollars will buy more groceries, more of everything each wage earner is better off than before prices were reduced, his real wages have been increased. Labor can help make the necessary adjustments by increasing per man-hour production and by pressing for lower prices rather than higher wages. Congress can help by cutting out every dime of unnecessary governmental expenditure and by reducing taxes. The Administration can help by cooperating with Congress on reducing the cost of government and by approving the tax cut. Business men, each one individually, can do their share by reducing prices as much as possible now, followed by further price reductions as soon as lower cost of production justifies them.

That's what we need; it's the way to do it. But what will we get? That's pretty much up to you, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen. If you believe this is the right formula and you start hollering for it, and you holler long enough and loud enough, you'll get it—that's for sure!

Surplus hutments located at Charlestown, Ind., have been purchased by schools in Cumberland and Boyle counties, Ky., Lancaster, Ky., and the Catholic school board in Louisville.

TIDBITS UNFORTUNATES

Whatever else we may have learned in the last forty years, we certainly have learned to take better care of the unfortunate ones who because of birth or disease did not get an even break. I have a hard time convincing my students that there was ever a time when the mentally unfit, especially those who were born that way, remained right in the midst of the others and were accepted as casually. I am not now referring to that old institution of the village idiot, an institution about as old as humanity, I suspect; nearly every village has somebody who seems slightly off, even though he usually can take care of himself. The ones I refer to were much more unfortunate.

Before the state had adequate facilities for the care of the feeble-minded, families accepted these unfortunates as part of the suffering to which we are all heirs and did the best they could with these sub-normal people. Since Father was a doctor, I saw every one that lived near Fidelity and more besides. Naturally these people were likely to be weaklings also and often sick. They came, then, to be examined. I never learned to take them as casually or even so joyously as I did some of my playmates. One of the best mimics I ever knew could do the part of a half-wit in our neighborhood so well that I feared sometimes, especially after I had been to Sunday school and heard how we get punished for misdeeds, that my friends might become a halfwit himself in punishment for his faithful imitation of one. Many of my neighbors even remembered the halfwitted things this feeble-minded youngster said and passed them along to other families and even to those who had left Fidelity for the Far West. I sometimes laughed, but I am afraid that I more often shivered a little when a moron stated in his moronic way what he thought about all the "weary weight of this unintelligible world."

In general the actually crazy ones were sent to Hopkinsville to the state hospital, but a few families objected so strenuously to this that they kept their unfortunates and even brought them to the village or to church or other public gathering. One remarkable case, not too far from Fidelity, was of a young woman who lost her mind long before I could remember. Her parents, and later her brothers and sisters, refused to send the girl away. She was kept in a room especially built for her, for she was dangerous. She grew into maturity and was said to be perfectly normal shouting the names of people she had known in her early youth. For thirty-five or forty years the county voted a sum for her people to in appearance but always wildly take care of her. Long after I was in early middle age she was still living, though I can recall that I first heard of her when I was only six or eight years old.

Fill a ring mold, which has been oiled, half full of this mixture of fruit and jelly. Let it congeal. When set spread with the cream cheese which has been softened with a little cream and mixed with the green pepper, Paprika and salt. Then carefully pour rest of jelly which has been allowed to cool but not set. Congeal and unmold on a large plate. Fill the center with the lettuce leaves and on the leaves arrange halves of apricots with small balls of cream cheese.

The Garden

TIMELY TOPICS

BEANS—Many gardeners whose bean-planting program is to use Stringless Greenpod have noted that when July and August are dry, yields may slacken off sometimes to almost total failure. The reason is that this variety needs ideal weather to perform at its best. Now that the time is coming for planting beans that should mature in late summer, gardeners might well switch to U.S. Refugee No. 5 a sort specially bred to combat hot, dry weather. While new, it may be found with the larger seedsmen, but local merchants may procure it from their jobbers.
The pods are round and meaty and almost straight; three are no strings at any stage, but this "child" of old-fashioned Refugee (1,000 to 1) partakes of its parent's nature to become a trifle shucky if let hang too long.

SWEET CORN—Gardeners who have been using Iona may have observed that later planting do not do as well as earlier ones, the reason being that this variety needs much moisture to do well. As the time for planting late-summer corn approaches, such gardeners might well switch to Golden Cross Bantam, which is less particular about the weather. While the ears are smaller, there will be ears.
In this connection a new variety has been developed for growing specifically in the South, that does not mind bright sunny weather that blasts pollen (one of the reasons for the non-success of some sweet corn) and that takes drought and wet weather in its stride, and that, furthermore, suffers little from corn ear worm injury. Its name for the present is only a number, MC78, but seedsmen will doubtless have it next year. In preliminary tests last year, it lived up to all the promises of its originators, the Southeast Regional Experiment Station, Charleston, S. C.

CULTIVATION—Despite all signs to the contrary, "dry weather" cultivating should be the rule from now on, as the "prophets" continue predicting the coming of extended dry weather. But dry weather cultivation is the best kind for wet times, too.

Longer Hemlines Find More Favor

San Francisco, Calif.—Longer hemlines and narrower shoulders have characterized recent showings of both casual and dressy fashions from the salons of West Coast designers.

Classic styling prevailed through the casual dress group. Shirt collar and revers were favored, usually with self buttons to the waist and concealed button fly shirt fronts. Gores were frequently stitched to simulate pleats.

The typical dressy silhouette was long waisted with a molded torso, with hip emphasis achieved by draping, or peplum effects. The long, fitted sleeve predominated, and necklines generally were high.

MUSIC

Music is the harmonious voice of creation; an echo of the invisible world; one not of the divine concord which the entire universe is destined one day to sound.—Mazzini.

Music resembles poetry: in each Are nameless graces which no methods teach, And where a master-hand alone can reach.—Pope.

The direct relation of music is not to ideas, but to emotions—in the works of its greatest masters, it is more marvelous, more mysterious than poetry.—Henry Giles.

Although the spirit be not master of that which it creates through music, yet it is blessed in this creation, which like every creation of art, is mightier than the artist.—Beethoven.

The language of tones belongs equally to all mankind, and melody is the absolute language in which the musician speaks to every heart.—Richard Wagner.

Music is the harmony of being; but the music of Soul affords the only strains that thrill the chords of feeling and awaken the heart's harpstrings.—Mary Baker Eddy.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

The frequent use of cottage cheese in the menu is one way of including the food values of milk in the diet. Easily made at home, one gallon of sweet or sour milk will make about 1½ pounds of cheese. A leaflet, "Making Cottage Cheese at Home," may be had from offices of county or home agents, or from the UK college of agricultural and home economics, Lexington.

For variety, serve cottage cheese as a sandwich filling by mixing it with chopped celery, nuts, dried fruit, cucumbers or onion. It also combines well with fruit in a salad.

Pear and Cheese Salad

6 pear halves
1½ cups cottage cheese
Lettuce
Mayonnaise dressing

Arrange pear halves on leaves of lettuce. Add a serving of seasoned cottage cheese which has been wrought with a spoon until it is smooth and fine. Top with mayonnaise.

Menu: Roast pork with oven-browned potatoes, carrots and onions, pear and cheese salad, radishes, rolls and butter, and berries with cream.

SEARCH FOR OLDEST CHEVROLET CONTINUES; NEW 'ADVANCE-DESIGN' TRUCK FOR WINNER

The search for the oldest Chevrolet truck still in active service is attracting entries from all part of the country at the rate of several hundred a day. J. W. Burke, manager of the commercial and truck department, Chevrolet Motor Division, said today.

Mr. Earl Taylor of the City Motor Co., Fulton Chevrolet dealers, reports that to date none of the very old models have been brought in. Entries in the search represent a cross-section of the motor truck field, come from every state in the union, and cover every conceivable use to which trucks are put.

"The results of the contest so far are most gratifying," said Burke, "not only because of the large number of entries, but because of the revelation that so many old Chevrolet trucks still are in active use."

The first Chevrolet truck was built in 1918, but only a comparative handful of trucks were built before 1926 or 1927, Burke pointed out. Nevertheless, the contest is disclosing that a relatively high proportion of these early trucks are still being used every day.

"Many entrants, send with their application blanks a voluntary testimonial letter, describing the faithful performance of their trucks over a long period of years," Burke said. "Most of the entrants report that their trucks have been licensed

RESERVE OFFICERS SENT TO COLORADO

Capt. Lloyd G. Wilson, Unit Instructor for the Organized Reserve Corps, in Owensboro has received information from Army Ground Forces that a number of Reserve Officers will be sent to Colorado for a period of two weeks throughout the summer to study mountain warfare.

The instruction will be given at Camp Carson, Colorado. Starting dates for each two week's period are 30 July, 14 July, 28 July and 11 August. All personnel who are interested should contact Capt. Lloyd G. Wilson, Unit Instructor, ORC, Owensboro Technical High School, Owensboro, Kentucky either personally or by mail.

Deadline For Reserve Enlistments Extended

The War Department has recently announced an extension of time for former officers and enlisted men who served in World War II to apply for appointment or enlistment in the Reserve Corps.

Previous regulations set July 1, 1947 as the deadline and all personnel who failed to apply before that date would not be eligible for appointment. The recent regulation states that all officers, warrant officers and enlisted grades eligible will be afforded the opportunity for appointment provided the application is made prior to the termination of the present emergency.

All personnel who are interested in retaining the grade held at time of discharge should contact the Unit Instructor's office, at the Technical high school, in Owensboro either personally or by mail. Capt. Lloyd G. Wilson, Unit Instructor for the Organized Reserves in Owensboro stated that a large number of veterans of World War II have entirely lost all contact with the Army program since being discharged.

NEWS FOR VETERANS

The Veterans Administration has authorized 1,824 disabled veterans in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky to purchase vehicles at government expense under the "autos for amputees" program, it was announced today at the VA's tri-state Branch Office in Columbus, Ohio.

The total includes 792 in Ohio, 701 in Michigan and 331 in Kentucky.

VA said such claims should be filed no later than June 15, inasmuch as June 30 is the deadline for authorizing purchase of vehicles by amputees.

The program to furnish automobiles or other conveyances to World War II veterans who lost, or lost the use of, one or both legs became effective last September. The cost of each vehicle is limited to $1,600, including any special equipment or attachments necessary to enable the veteran to operate it.

The Veterans Administration will provide necessary medical treatment or hospitalization to enable disabled veterans to continue their education or on-job training courses. Officials at the VA's Ohio-Mich-and used regularly since the day they were purchased.

The contest to find the oldest Chevrolet truck ends June 15. The owner of the oldest truck will be given as a prize one of the new "advance-design" trucks, to be announced to the public June 28. The contest rules provide that the owner of the truck must drive it to his nearest Chevrolet dealer for official entry.

gan-Kentucky Branch Office in Columbus (O.) said disabled veterans who are in schools or on-training courses under provisions of Public Law 16 (Vocational Rehabilitation Act) are entitled to necessary medical care at government expense, regardless of whether the disease or injury is a result of their military or naval service.

Veterans enrolled under the G.I.

Bill are entitled to medical care at government expense only for service-connected disabilities.

If a disabled veteran-trainee is injured, suffers a relapse, or if his disability is further aggravated during his period of training and is not the result of his own willful misconduct, he may be granted an increase in the rate of his disability compensation, VA officials said.

OUR DIMES
buy him a better start in life

Maybe a dime doesn't seem like much of a contribution to your youngster's future.

But stack it with millions of other dimes. Use them to buy books, build schools and pay teachers. Then watch the results at graduating exercises. You'll see Mid-America's boys and girls getting the world's best start in life.

Our dimes helped many of them through school. One dime (actually 10 3/4¢) from every dollar Illinois Central took in last year went to pay taxes—taxes for schools, taxes for roads, taxes for worker benefits, taxes for Uncle Sam.

The dimes Illinois Central paid out—partly to give youngsters a richer future—were three times as much as it had left over to invest in its own future. After payment of taxes and all expenses, only 3 1/2¢ out of every dollar remained for Illinois Central owners. All of this, and more, was invested in new equipment and other things in order that this railroad may continue to earn your patronage and friendship.

Miss Marilyn Harpole Weds Graham P. Wright In Pretty Ceremony at First Methodist Church

In a wedding ceremony beautifully impressive in its simplicity, Miss Marilyn Jean Harpole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayte Miller Harpole became the bride of Graham Patton Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham C. Wright of Nashville, Tennessee on Sunday, June 15 at 4:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church. The Rev. W. E. Mischke, pastor, officiated using the double ring ceremony. A lovely setting was created by the use of large white floor baskets filled with masses of privet and myriads of white daisies among which were arranged tall floor candelabra holding glowing white tapers. Low bowls of daisies interspersed with sprays of the greenery were placed among the top of the choir rail and also across the front of the chancel. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. C. L. Maddox organist, and Miss Charline Sanford, vocalist rendered the following program of nuptial music.

Chimes—Hymn, "Softly Now the Light of Day."
Organ—"Nocturne," Chopin.
Voice—"All For You," Berton-Brown.
Organ—"Andantino," Lemore.
Voice—"Because," d-Hardelt.
Chimes—"I Love You Truly," Bond.

"To a Wild Rose," McDowell was softly played during the pledging of the vows. The traditional wedding marches were used for the professional and recessional.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was lovely in a summer suit of white gabardine, the coat of which was close fitting and featured a youthful floored peplum back. She wore a small white half-hat with small flowers across the top giving a halo effect with crisp white veiling extending to her shoulders across the back. She carried a small white Bible topped with a single white orchid. Short streamers of narrow satin ribbon caught with tube roses fell from the book. Within the Bible was an heirloom handkerchief belonging to her maternal great-grand-mother. Her other accessories were in white.
