Dentists Get Action On Leflore

By STAFF WRITER The wheels of justice were a long time catching up to Birda Leflore, of 343 S. Fourth, a dental laboratory technician who was fined $350 last Tuesday by Criminal Court Judge Sam Campbell for practicing dentistry without a license.

Daughter

(Continued from page 1) after graduation from high school, she said proudly: "I plan to go to UCLA and study to be a doctor. I like that field."

WHAT COMMITTEE FOUND

Associated with Dr. White on the committee were Dr. Alvin K. Smith, secretary of the society, and Dr. Vasco Smith.

PICKED UP IN DECEMBER

Leflore was picked up by the vice squad in December of 1955 and indicted in January of this year. His case was continued several times before he was finally brought before Judge Campbell an fined.

NATIONAL PROBLEM

The unlicensed practice of dentistry is a nation-wide problem which was treated recently in Cornet magazine. It is quite lucrative to the technician and could be equally dangerous to the unwitting citizen seeking to save a few dollars.

LOST FIRST ROUND

Hoskins opened a place at 843 Mississippi, which the society's committee said "actually was a front for practicing dentistry."

A TWIST OF FATE

Hoskins was finally put to flight when the husband of a woman he had treated found that his wife had spent the night in Hoskins' shop and started a fight there. Hoskins left town before the trial was over.

S. B. Fuller Joins 'Age'; Elected Member Of Board

A significant event took place in the Fourth Estate last week when S. B. Fuller, head of one of the world's most successful cosmetic firms, became a member of the board of directors of the New York Age Publishing Corp. He was also elected as vice-presi-ton pool. Prof. Hunt said he hoped the pool would have a role in preventing juvenile delinquency in Memphis.

Mrs. L. E. Brown, widow of the late Prof. Brown for whom the pool and playground are named, said she was indeed happy over the recognitions which have been bestowed upon her husband.

Frank Lewis, a Melrose teacher and basketball coach who won note as a cager with Tennessee State university and the famed Harlem Globetrotters, is manager of the new pool.

L. E. Brown, fourth Negro pool under city operation, is a sleek modern 35 by 105 feet, approved size for AAU qualifications. An AA rating from the Health department is expected.

The new pool will be open all this week except Friday and will close for the season Monday night, Labor Day.

Other pools are Washington Park, Tom Lee pool in the Dixie Homes and the Orange Mound pool.

dent and general manager of the New York Age Defender. The announcement was made by John H. Sengstacke, publisher, following a meeting of the directors.

Mr. Sengstacke stated that "the association of Mr. Fuller and his organization with the New York Age comes as another step to make this newspaper a more powerful organ in New York City."

Mr. Fuller, who is president of the successful Fuller Products Co., with headquarters in Chicago, and over 5,000 sales people in branches throughout the U. S., has built a world-wide organization. He is currently working on a program to increase his firm's business to 100 million dollars within the next seven years.

In a statement this week, the new Age vice-president said that "New York needs a good medium of expression and in my opinion a newspaper is the best means of achieving that purpose. It is an excellent method of educating the people to the many events pertinent to their existence. I believe our combined efforts — members of the Fuller firm and the New York Age — will instill new life and impact in the reading program of the community."

Theodore L. Coleman, who joined the Age organization several months ago, has been promoted to editor of the publication, Miss Augusta Bolden, an executive of the Fuller Co., was appointed business manager.

COOPERATIVE SPIRIT

Prof. Robinson cites both the past cooperative spirit and efforts towards a merger and the fact that several other locals in the locality are integrated as basis for his belief the locals would merge rather than be ousted.

He said a committee has been appointed to work on a merger and that the executive committees of the two locals had met together regularly, the standing committees occasionally and the membership in joint meetings on major problems.

Among locals already integrated there are the brick masons, boiler-makers and hod carriers. Mr. Robinson said.

He said merger was more than simply a matter of integration and that such questions as the disposition of officers, standing committees and treasuries would have to be worked out.

McCormick Denies Georgia Governor Called Him S.O.B.

ATLANTA — (INS) — Rep. John McCormack (D) Mass., told Time Magazine last week it was lying when it quoted Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin as referring to him as a "Yankee s. o. b." at the Democratic convention.

Time spelled out "s. o. b." The Massachusetts congressman said the magazine owes "Governor Griffin, myself and the Democratic party a public retraction and apology."

In a wire to the editor of Time, McCormack said no such talk took place and the "purported conversation is a lie."

The Aug. 27 issue of Time quoted Griffin as saying: "Thank you John, I'll just tell the boys that Yankee s. o. b. wouldn't give me time."

Griffin then was attempting to get the floor to lash out against the minority civil rights report at the platform meeting, the magazine said.

Wilkins, Edmonds Second Nominations

SAN FRANCISCO — Negro delegates were in the forefront of the Republican activities which saw the renomination of President Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate for the 1956 elections.

Eisenhower's nomination was seconded by Dr. Helen Edmonds, professor of history at North Carolina college, and Nixon's nomination was seconded by J. Ernest Wilkins.

Ala. NAACP Asks Review Of Fine

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — NAACP attorneys have filed two petitions with the Alabama Supreme Court for a review, seeking to overturn a ruling by Circuit Court Judge Walter B. Jones which found the association guilty of contempt of court and imposed a $100,000 fine.

One of the petitions contends the judgment of the lower court was beyond its jurisdiction and therefore null and void.

3 Dixie States 'Revolt'; Plot Against Integration

(By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE) Virginia, Alabama and Louisiana moved Tuesday to tighten local laws designed to preserve racial segregation.

In Alabama, voters in a state-wide election were passing on measures to prevent integration in schools, public housing and recreational facilities, while the Virginia legislature considered a "private" school plan to provide an alternative to racial mixing.

In Louisiana, powerful sports and business circles girded for an expected fight with ardent segregationists on the state's recently-enacted "no mixing law" which could spell the end of the famed Sugar Bowl sports program.

Special Session The Louisiana measure, which prohibits Negroes and whites from participating in sports events in the state, is one of several proposals set for consideration by a special legislative session which opens Thursday.

Proponents of the "no mixing" law contend the state must "hold the line" on integration on all fronts.

Opponents of the measure contend the Sugar Bowl classic would be limited to "second rate" competition if it would choose no team which have Negro players.

DELAYS ORDER Meanwhile, integration of schools ordered at Charlottesville, Va., was delayed until the federal court order can be tested on appeal.

Federal Judge John Paul postponed effectiveness of the order after Virginia Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond said the case would be taken to higher courts and only "confusion" could result in its immediate effectiveness.

The Charlottesville action, like three others in Virginia, was prosecuted by the NAACP which has been seeking integration as an established fact with the opening of fall school terms.

Negro students — six boys and six girls — were scattered among the more than 500 white students at the Clinton, Tenn., high school yesterday. It was the first accomplished integration in a state

New Lightweight Spring Fabrics At Einiger Forecast Longer Season

The Einiger line is a finely edited collection of all that is newest in fabrics and colors. Wools, worsteds, blends, and precious fibers are infinitely varied in weave and surface texture, lighter in weight and designed for a longer season. One hundred per cent wool wears many new faces. It appears in a cloudburst coating softly brushed with a sleek, silky hand glowingly beautiful in sixteen fresh clear colors. In a special group of refined rustics called "Designed Wools" texture increases as weight diminishes.

Styled for the dual purpose of coats and sportswear, these fabrics run approximately 54" to 56" finished and are approximately feather-light for Spring. Each Designer Wool has a promotional name of its own, these are: Purlana, Staccato, Lucerne and Boulevard.

Purlana is a distinguished dimensional with a honeycomb weave creating a truly new look. The use of yarn-dyed pale clear colors with white heightens the illusion of dimension. Staccato is a diminutive dimensional with grey presenting a pin-point accent to its regular weave pattern in colors that are delicately light.

Lucerne achieves a spectacular surface texture with its raised homespun type yarn woven lattice like on a mesh back. New fashion colors and basics, sixteen in all, add appealing variety. Boulevard

THE Pulpit SPEAKS

REV. C. THOMAS PAIGE

Time and time again I hear people saying: "It makes no difference to me." Sometimes I wonder if they really realize what they are saying. Does anything make a difference now? I am forced to believe that there are things that make differences. Day by day things are becoming more and more meaningful. The way one looks, the way one speaks, the way one behaves all come into the picture now. Oh yes, some of the things upon which many of us have placed little or no value as times goes on are more and more meaningful.

A few days ago I saw a young boy — a boy who has just learned to write his name — just that. I asked him about going to school and he informed me with a certain amount of pride that he had finished the seventh grade and after all that was more education than his father had and he made it so why can't I? The world is full of people just like this young man. He just can't see beyond his nose. He sees life in the "now." To him nothing matters but what is going on right "now." As far as they are concerned life offers no future. What goes on now is what really matters.

LIFE IS MORE
But let me hurry to tell you, life is more than what is going on now. You are a growing person, you live in the midst of constantly growing things, unless you equip yourself to keep pace you are going to be in bad shape. To this young man a seventh grade education was all he needed. But what about the future? How is he going to be able to cope with the changes that will take place five or 10 years from now? In blank words "He won't." He won't be able to measure up to the things that the maturity and preparation of a man 10 years from now will demand.

The way one thinks, the way one speaks, the outlook one has on life goes a long way toward making him acceptable to life. The thing that is basic in life to many of us is our acceptability to our fellowmen. There is something that makes us all happy, we want to be a part of. Life is not a matter of conformity. People like, or should I say admire, the differences in people. Oh yes, it makes a difference! I makes a big difference.

Report Hungarian Breaks 4 Min. Mile
LONDON — (INS) — Warsaw radio reported Sunday that Hungarian Istvan Rozsavoelgyi broke the four-minute mile barrier with a clocking of 3:59 during a race in Budapest.

Rozsavoelgyi missed the world record by one second in his special attempt to crack Australian John Landy's mark but equalled the Hungarian mile record set by Laszlo Tabori.

Rozsavoelgyi thus became the tenth man to run the mile under 4 since England's Roger Bannister first turned the trick in 1954. The 10 represent five nations, none of them Americans, and include Britain's Chris Chataway, Brian Hewson and Derek Ibbotson; Australia's Landy and Jim Bailey; Ron Delany of Ireland and Kurt Nielsen of Denmark. Ibbotson was the last man to do it earlier this month.

Joe Louis Off On TV Wins For Uncle Sam

NEW YORK — (INS) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis told a nationwide television audience that he developed a heart condition as the result of a wrestling match a few months ago in Ohio.

Appearing as a contestant on the CBS-TV show, "High Finance," Louis revealed that he suffered three broken ribs and a damaged heart when a 325-pound wrestler stepped on his chest during a match.

Louis and his wife answered five preliminary questions correctly in a starting bid for a $75,000 top prize, all of which would go to the Internal Revenue department, said Louis.

Bell Rings Safety Bell

"Men and women of the Bell Telephone Companies have again earned the award of honor, the highest safety award of the National Safety Council," Roy Freeman, Memphis division commercial superintendent for Southern Bell said last week. This award for 1955 makes the fourth time in five years that the Bell Companies have won.

"To win, an organization must accomplish more than just chalk up an outstanding safety record. The award is based upon a substantial improvement in the frequency rate number of accidents per hours worked and the severity rate number of days lost as a result of accidents per hours worked. The improvement is measured against the average of the previous three years of both the companies and the communication industry."

"The Safety Council reports that the communications industry continues to hold first place as the safest among all industry. The Bell Telephone Companies are the largest group in the communications industry."

16 Sophisticates Gaily Entertained

The Sixteen Sophisticates were gaily entertained by their hostess, Mrs. Donaldson, at their meeting of Friday, Aug. 17. During the business session, final plans were made for their lawn party of Saturday, Aug. 25, at 253 W. Burdick.

Another interesting item of the agenda was the discussion of their annual fashion show to be held Sunday, Sept. 30, at Currie's Tropical Club. Models participating in the show will be notified of an entertainment in their honor at Tony's Inn. Mrs. Donaldson, reporter.

Long Lines For Fall Furniture

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS)—Western - inspired furniture for the coming Fall and Winter season may bet be compared to a pudgy girl who grew up to be a long-legged American beauty.

A preview of designs at the IMPERIAL SUIT by Maurice Rentner has a softly draped shawl collar tied with a velvet bow (a favorite of the great designer). The Rodier material of this creation is in silver grey interwoven with a shiny metal thread.

Western Merchandise Mart in San Francisco discloses that the stuffing has been taken out of overstuffed furniture and the leggy look is back.

But as far as legs go, you'll find as much variety as on a populous American beach on a hot summer day — they range from tall and slim to downright squat and fat.

To carry the analogy even further, however, it is the tall and slim legs that are drawing the most attention from viewers.

Even the old standby, the "Director's Chair" has had its legs lengthened by one manufacturer so it is possible to sit with more comfort and grace. With the new treatment, the chairs fit nicely into an informal breakfast room or into a rumpus room — and what's more, they still fold for ease in storage.

Newest finishes are black satin enamel with white, turquoise or other high style color canvas seats, or a "living rose" finish, a pinkish enamel with white canvas.

Sofas and chairs that used to extend to the floor now have legs of cherry, rosewood, walnut, or other woods, with or without metal trim.

One of the newest metals for use as trim is pewter which has a dull rich finish that provides a handsomely different note in furniture styling.

A desk, for example, has pewter-decorated wooden legs on the drawer side and bands of pewter up the side of the desk. Legs on the opposite side are solid metal.

Top furniture trends seem equally divided between the French and Italian Provincial on one side and the Oriental influence on the other. The legs on the European-influenced styles are thin, while those of the Oriental - inspired designs tend to be heavier and more compact.

Cushions, due to the very widespread use of foam rubber, are far thinner and give a lightness of appearance.

This is further accentuated by the use of smooth, colorful upholstery fabrics — linen, and Mexican cottons.

Doll Contest Fascinates Adults, Too

Making doll's clothes is generally considered child's play. Not at all, says David H. Faber, president of Doll Bodies, Inc., largest doll-body maker in the country.

More women than little girls make doll clothes, and — don't breathe a word — even an occasional courageous male likes to dress a doll to exercise a designing talent.

All this came to light in the "Lingerie Lou" doll-dressing contest based on famous characters or national costumes which started last spring and will continue until Oct. 15. Of the thousands of entries already received from every state in the union and Hawaii, 90 per cent are from women, less than 10 percent from children, and a timid but determined number of men. Mr. Faber wishes more men would enter the contest . . . if enough of them did he would set up a separate prize.

The dolls already submitted prove the talent American women have for original design, color, and a great love for meticulous handiwork. Many dolls show historical research, ingenious use of odd sewing, crocheting, and other forms of handiwork.

The "Lingerie Lou" doll-dressing contest seeks to establish a permanent collection of winners thru a series of contests, to be incorporated in a "Treasure House of Dolls", with plans in the making for a traveling and open-to-the-public exhibit.

A panel of experts in the fashion, doll costume design, and sewing fields, as well as celebrities in the entertainment world, will act as judges for the prize winning awards.

The first grand prize in the current contest is $2,500 in cash, with 122 prizes including refrigerators, gas ranges, television and hi-fi sets, clock radios, etc. A complete set of contest rules and pertinent information is attached to every "Lingerie Lou" doll, easily available in all five-and-ten and variety stores.

Mrs. Selma Spitz, well known doll-costume designer. Originality of ideas as well as the skill in making the costumes will be of major consideration in the awarding of prizes.

ITALIAN VARIATION of Golden Fried Chicken is Chicken Cacciatore. This dish, also

Italian Designer Thinks American Men Have Too Little Time For Mates

ROME — Besides mink and diamonds, American husbands should also give some of their time to their wives.

That's Rome fashion designer Simonetta's recipe for a happy married life.

Donna Simonetta, who was born the Duchess Colonna di Cesaro, bases her advice on personal experience. For three years, she has been happily married to Alberto Fabiani, also a top name in Rome fashions, and together they form a husband and wife team that has brought worldwide attention to Italian styles.

Simonetta's clients include such famous names as Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, Doris Duke, Lauren Bacall and Mrs. John Steinbeck. The designer has had enough American customers to know not only American women and their ways but also the ways of American husbands.

The titled Simonetta, who was wed to Count Galeazzo Visconti di Mondron before she married Fabiani, exclaimed:

"I would never marry an American man, never."

Her husband, handsome and good-looking, had no comment on American men.

But Fabiani did offer a bit of advice to American women.

"Women," he noted, "should dress for men, of course."

"When American wives come to my house, their husbands often come too. The American husbands treat their women wonderfully, just like queens . . . you know, with mink and diamonds . . . but they are short of time for romance," says Simonetta.

"Italian men are different. They would never come shopping with their wives, and their wives are usually nervous about the bill."

Is the secret of Latin women's man-appeal in looks?

"No," says Simonetta. "It is not the figure. American women have wonderful figures which our Italian women often lack."

"If American husbands don't treat their wives with 'Latin temperament' it is the fault of the men, not the women."

Simonetta says American men might find more "time for romance" for their wives if one could "change the men and their way of living."

"They are simply too busy making money," she said.

The tall, slim and beautiful dress designer added that she would always marry an Italian.

ELEGANCE IN SATIN — Style 841 — Again Frederic Harvey plays up the importance of blue in silk satin. Here we show a wearably elegant

"shirtless" slim and pale in cell blue. Long sleeved and slim skirted, it has glittering diamonds fastening the double-breasted fly front and cuffs.

CAPE HOOD coat of turquoise and tawpe imported "honeycomb" tweed — from George Carmel's Fall and Winter 1956-57 collection. The shaped hood can be worn flat on the shoulders as a banded collar. The natural waistline is marked by tweed streamer bows.

Plight Of Schools On Baptist Agenda

Jackson Calls For New Program

MARSHALL, Texas — The plight of Baptist schools and the formation of an over-all educational program will occupy the attention of delegates to the 76th annual session of the National Convention of the U.S.A., Inc. which meets in Denver, Colo., Sept. 5-8.

M. K. Curry, jr., corresponding secretary of the convention, and president of Bishop college here, said the above issues are expected to be the most important before the convention.

A proposal to discuss the Baptist school situation was made by President J. H. Jackson. It is said that Jackson favors an over-all program which will coordinate as far as possible the educational activities of Baptist schools.

The Baptist leader has invited representatives of the educational institutions to present their cause to the convention in an effort to win support for such a program.

There are only seven regionally accredited colleges among more than 25 institutions owned and operated by the National Baptist Convention or its affiliated state conventions and associations.

There is not one fully accredited theological seminary, for training ministers.

EDGEFIELD

By JULANIE LAMPKIN
A county-wide construction and consolidation program in Edgefield County, now under way, will be completed in 1957 with final shifting of small Negro rural schools into the new building located at Johnson, Trenton and a county consolidated Negro high school in Edgefield.

Still in final stages of completion is a 12 classroom Negro grammar school located one mile south of Trenton. The modern building, complying with the most advanced standards of construction and efficiency, will house the first through the eighth grades with approximately 35 pupils to the classroom, and with a faculty of nine teachers. A cafeteria with folding tables and the best of kitchen equipment; and office is another feature of the plant. October 1 is the contract date for completion of the construction. Costs including the land, equipment and building is $159,000.

During the last five years the aggregated sum expended in Edgefield county for school construction and improvements exceeds $1,000,000 for Negro schools. The Edgefield County Negro Consolidated High school at Edgefield serves the entire county with all high school pupils outside Edgefield transported by bus. Johnston and Trenton have new Negro grammar schools. These schools are recognized in South Carolina as examples of the best in modern school architecture and facilities.
