Tape 1	1	00:00:01	Jeff Younglove: [Judith] Hoover, Director of Western's new forensics society named the William Biven Forensics Society. Story in 3, 2, 1.
Tape 1	1	00:00:12	JY: The reestablishment of a forensics society at Western Kentucky University has meant some quick preparations for team members. The William Biven Forensic Society was revived following a seven year absence after Western's Board of Regents approved such a recommendation and named it in honor of Western's late university attorney, a member of the debate team during his college years at Western. The team has competed in some individual events already this semester and have plans for statewide and national competitions according to its director Dr. Judith Hoover.
Tape 1	1	00:00:42	Judith Hoover: We plan to go to Georgetown to their debate and individual debate tournament and to the Kentucky State tournament. And then we hope to go to Fairfax, Virginia at the end of the debate season for the national junior varsity debate tournament.
Tape 1	1	00:00:58	JY: The debate season runs through March and Hoover says she hopes Western can host some competitions themselves next year. From Western Kentucky University, I'm Jeff Younglove reporting.
