Professor YFRAH NEAMAN, guest artist

Yfrah Neaman, who has established himself as one of Britain's most distinguished violinists, became an internationally acknowledged and appreciated artist in two domains - as a concert violinist and as an outstanding pedagogue.

After a solid musical education in Paris and London, Yfrah Neaman made a sensational debut in London and rapidly conquered the great concert houses of the world. He is an eloquent and tireless champion of twentieth-century composers, whose works - many written for him - he has introduced far and wide around the world. These include Michael Berkeley, Arnold Cooke, Howard Ferguson, Peter Fricker, Roberto Gerhard, Malcolm Lipkin, Michael Blake Watkins, and many others. He is currently Professor of Violin and Head of Advanced Solo Studies at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London, and graduates of his master classes have become internationally active violinists.

Yfrah Neaman has been offered guest professorships at colleges of music and conservatories all over the world, and gives regular master classes in Europe, the USA, and the Far East. He has been a member of the jury of all major international violin competitions.

Yfrah Neaman was honored with the O.B.E in 1983. The Bulgarian government awarded him the order of Madarsky Konik in 1993. The city of Mainz, Germany, awarded him the Gutenberg medal in 1995. The Worshipful Company of Musicians honored him with the 1997 Cobbett Medal.
