

Tremble, sea, tremble

Joel Kady

I feel wind of frothing tides slimming sand beams
Sifting through musk and grain.
Wiping window fog and glum rain,
I glimpse
In throngs
Blunted boulders hedging throbbing lighthouses
Burning peppered mist
For salted fishers.