

XIV

Rebecca Denton

A response to Wallace Stevens' "Thirteen Ways of Looking at a Blackbird"

Ebony feathers ruffle and ripple in the twilight.
Sun sets in fierce crimson splendor.
The blackbird, silent, wings away,
Into the gloaming.
I cannot.