DIGNITARIES COMING FOR FRAT INITIATION SATURDAY

Four of the nation's most outstanding businessmen and high ranking officials of Delta Sigma Pi International Business Fraternity will visit the campus Saturday for the official birth of a GSC chapter of that organization.

The new chapter, to be dubbed "Epsilon Chi," has slated seven speakers for its installation services which will run throughout the day at the Statesboro Holiday Inn.

Heading the list will be Homer T. Brewer, former grand president of the fraternity, and past director of the Southern Region. Brewer, who will act as toastmaster for the affair, is presently associated with the Southern Railway Company with headquarters in Atlanta.

The charge and charter of the GSC chapter will be presented by Joe M. Hefner, presently serving as grand president of the fraternity. Hefner has also served as district and regional director of Delta Sigma Pi for the past six years. He is a special representative of the Amicable Life Insurance Company, with his office in Lubbock, Texas.

Another visitor, Monroe M. Landreth, past regional director from North Carolina, will deliver "Fraternal Greetings." James R. Westake, district director, will also officiate.

Other speakers will include

Paul F. Carroll, dean of the college; Dr. Paul F. LaGrone, chairman of the GSC business division; Dr. Paul Wischkaemper, faculty advisor of the local chapter; and Jerry Reid, president of the local chapter.

The installation program gets underway at 11 a.m. with registration. Activities for the day include a tour of the campus for the visitors, initiation, a social hour, and a banquet will close the festivities at 7 p.m.

Representatives from Delta Sigma Pi chapters at Georgia State College, the University of Georgia, and the University of South Carolina are expected to attend.

The local chapter began its drive for international membership last spring. It now boasts 31 active members. Officers include: Jerry Reid, president; Robert Hickox, senior vice president; John Nail, vice president; William Bolen, secretary; John Lawson, treasurer; John Finn, chancellor; and Bill Anderson, historian.

James H. Jackson joins with Dr. Wischkaemper as co-faculty advisor.

★ ★ ★ Harpichord Artist Here Tomorrow

The Fine Arts Committee of the Statesboro Senior Woman's Club will sponsor a concert by the harpichord artist, George Lucktenberg, at the Marvin Pittman Auditorium on Nov. 8 at 8:15 p.m. which will highlight the musical season for fall quarter at GSC.

A concert harpichordist on tour must cope with problems not encountered by other instrumentalists, declares Lucktenberg. He should know — he has packed his nine-foot long, 600-pound instrument into his specially fitted truck, "The Harpsicart," for tours of over 3,000 miles throughout the Eastern United States.

"Just preparing the music isn't enough," says Lucktenberg. "You have to be a mechanic as well." The instrument is quite sensitive to changes in temperature and humidity, and it must be carefully adjusted and tuned before every performance.

Lucktenberg has had a thorough training in such matters with one of Europe's great harpichord builders and carries a complete set of precision tools for the purpose.

The harpichord's physical bulk contrasts with its elegant, silvery tone, produced by tiny points of leather which pluck the strings. There are four sets of strings, controlled from two keyboards. Five pedals enable the performer to make the colorful seniority changes which fascinate twentieth century listeners.

Lucktenberg reports a warm response to his unique specialty wherever he has played. He usually highlights his programs with comments on the harpichord and the music, and his engaging personality and willing post-concert demonstrations of his instrument for the curious among his audiences contribute to the value of the performances.

Tickets are $1 for college students, and they will be on sale at the door before the performance.

GSC Freshman Fatally Injured In Auto Mishap

Memorial services were held at Twilight Tuesday night for Miss Kay Dennis, a freshman from Albany who was fatally injured in an automobile accident while returning to Georgia Southern from her home in Albany Sunday afternoon.

Eighteen-year-old Miss Dennis graduated from Albany High School in 1963, was awarded a four-year teachers' scholarship to GSC, and was a member of SNEA.

At the memorial service Jackie Bullington, Judith Johnson, and Emily Flynt, all personal friends of Miss Dennis, told what she had meant to them. Miss Angela Gindlesperger, accompanied by Miss Carolyn Cramer, sang "I Know Who Holds Tomorrow," one of Miss Dennis' favorite gospel hymns.

Miss Dennis was returning to school with Bobby Guthrie, Arabi, who was taken to the Dublin Hospital, but was taken home Tuesday.

A new "Miss Starlight" will be chosen from an array of 16 contestants and will be crowned at the annual Alpha Rho Tau semiformal Saturday night.

The Starlight Ball, which will begin at 8 and last until midnight, will be accented with an "Ambling Autumn" theme. Along these lines, the decorations will be of fall abstractions, and sparked by "Autumn Smash" punch.

The Viva-Tones from Chattanooga, Tenn., will provide the music. ART President Jo Anne Thompson stated that this group is an excellent band. They have played for many fraternity parties at southern colleges.

Tickets for the dance may be purchased in the lobby of the Student Center during the lunch and supper hours through Saturday. They will sell at $3 per couple, and $1.75 stag.

The crowning of "Miss Starlight" will highlight the ball. She will be chosen through secret ballot by the student body, and pictures of the contestants will be posted during the voting.

Miss Kathy Argust, queen of the 1962 ball, will crown the winner and retire her reign to the newly elected "Miss Starlight."

Chaperons for the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wells, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carrin, and all of the campus house directors.

Proposed Judiciary Goes Under Committee Review

The current drive for a Student Judiciary at Georgia Southern has been slowed by further reviewing and revisions being made on the proposal which may not come to a second student body vote before next quarter.

At its meeting last week the Student Congress placed the judiciary proposal in its executive committee for possible revision.

The decision was made after an open meeting on the plan had turned up several points which needed improvement and clarification.

Revision Points

The committee is now discussing such factors as: representation on the councils, serving the terms of office, a published report on the action of the councils, lowering the grade requirement for council members, and several others.

After the Congress Committee makes its changes, the proposal will be sent to the Student Personnel Advisory Council for approval or rejection.

Vote Postponed

If approved by the SPAC, it will then be presented to the student body for final acceptance or rejection. The Congress had hoped that to hold that second balloting next Monday. That date, however, has been cancelled in lieu of the revisions.

The proposal had gained 73 per cent student body approval with its first round of balloting, but the total number of students voting was not high enough to make the plan official.

Congress members said that the present reviewing sessions and meetings are an effort to make sure every student understands the full nature of the plan before voting again. They added that revision of the proposal may push voting time towards the end of this quarter or even into the winter term.

Costa Rican Student Likes Southern's 'Smaller Classes'

By FRANK CHENG
Staff Writer

"I like Georgia Southern and its friendly atmosphere. The classes are smaller and the students are able to receive more personal attention from the professors. There are more personal contacts among students too."

These statements were made by Bernardo Dachner, a Costa Rican from San Jose and one of the eight male foreign students enrolled at Southern this quarter. He is a senior majoring in Industry.

Dachner first came to the United States by plane in January of 1959 and attended for two years the University of Florida in Gainesville, where at the beginning he majored in aeronautical engineering.

During this time he made two trips to New York. On weekends he often found time to visit Jacksonville, S. Augustine, Daytona Beach, and other places of interest.

"My country," continued Dachner, "is situated in Central America." It is bounded on the North by Nicaragua, on the East by the Caribbean Sea, on the South by Panama, and on the West by the Pacific Ocean.

The temperature of Costa Rica rarely climbs above the high 70's nor drops below the high 50's, day or night, 12 months of the year.

"Costa Rica is so similar in many of its cultural aspects to that of the United States that I do not find much change in being in this country," remarked Dachner.

"First of all it is an Independent Democratic Republic whose president is elected by popular vote for a term of four years. Francisco J. Orlich Bolmarcich, the present President of Costa Rica will be in office until May, 1966.

"The President takes walks at night all by himself without any guards. The country does not have any enemy countries, except that it is highly critical about Cuba."

Dachner is presently staying at the Georgian Hotel where he prepares some of his meals. He drives a 1960 Corvair. In Costa Rica he rides a red Honda motorcycle "for pleasure."

"Spanish is the official language of Costa Rica, but English, German, French, Dutch, Italian, Scandinavian, and Chinese are also frequently heard.

"The population of Costa Rica is approximately 1 million and a quarter. Its people are predominantly of the Caucasian stock, although aborigine Indians, Negroes, Mulattoes, Indians, Slavs and Orientals, as well as Anglo-Saxons, and others make up the population.

"There is no integration-segregation problem. This phase of self-respect seems to have become something of a custom, a kind of personal dignity, possessed by the rich and poor alike."

Dachner, a rather quiet student who lacks half an inch being a six-footer, enjoys listening to classical and popular music. Now and then he plays some golf and goes bowling. Back home he often went swimming at Puntarenas Beach which faces the Pacific Ocean near San Jose.

Dachner also studied one year at Southern Tech in Marietta. He first came to Georgia Southern last summer when he attended a summer session. Then he flew home and spent the rest of the summer there.

Since coming to this country he has made several trips back home by plane. He hopes to be able to graduate next summer and drive all the way back home going West first, and then taking the Inter-American Highway.

"My plans for the future have not been determined yet," said Dachner. "I may even stay longer and study for a M.A. degree."

KPK

Kappa Phi Kappa will have a dinner meeting Monday, Nov. 11, at 5:15 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the student center.

Prospective members as well as old members are urged to attend.

Debaters Chosen

Four students have been selected for the Georgia Southern Debate Team this year, according to Carol Stein, speech instructor and coach for the team.

The students are Mary Anne Addleman, a senior from Waleska; Patricia Camp, a sophomore from Jonesboro; Leroy Delionbach; and Charles Hatcher. Miss Addleman was a member of the team last year and took part in the Mercer Tournament and in the Harvard Debate.

Several invitations to debate tournaments have been received by Georgia Southern. The first tournament in which the team will participate will be held at Agnes Scott College in Decatur in January. The topic at the debate will be "Federal Aid to Higher Education."

The team held a practice debate in debate class this week, and did "a very good job," according to Miss Stein.

Miss Stein was formerly the coach of the debate team at Morehead State College, Morehead, Kent. Her team tied for second place in the TKA Tournaments sponsored by the National Debate Society.

Any student interested in becoming a member of the debate team should contact the Division of Languages. No experience is necessary, Miss Stein added.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor,

In a constitutional law course taught at this school the students are educated in the principles of equality of rights under the law. They are also taught that the law is flexible. I propose this question: Where does flexibility leave off and discrimination begin?

Placed upon a Dean's car parked in the 15 minute time zone was only a warning ticket. Just "Warning" was written on the ticket . . . nothing else. I propose the second question: Would the campus policeman have been so lenient and "flexible" on a student in the same situation?

All I can say is: OH! COME ON, FELLOWS. BE FAIR ABOUT THIS THING!

Respectively,
Sam Lewis.

Concert Band Sets Fall Performance

The Georgia Southern concert band will hold its fall musical program November 14 at 8 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium, according to Jack Flouer, Director.

The program will feature works by Bach, Berlioz, Schuman, and original compositions for band by Morrissey, Gundman and Smith.

Flouer stated that this will be the first concert using the new instruments purchased by the band this year.

Among these instruments is a Contrabass Clarinet which was recently given to Flouer at a music clinic here.

"This makes up a complete clarinet choir for the concert band," he added.

The band is also conducting a Young Peoples concert this year with the purpose to acquaint elementary school children with instruments of music used by bands.

This concert will be held at the Bryan County Schools in Pembroke.

Fall Production Cast Announced

Five GSC students have been awarded parts in the fall Masquers' production, "Master Pierre Patelin," slated for Nov. 20-28 in McCroan Auditorium.

The cast consists of: Master Pierre Patelin, Wendell Ramage; Guillemette (the wife) Judy Mercer; Guillaume Joecaulme (the draper), Rusty Russell; Tabalt Lamkin (the shepherd), Hakon Tuiler; the judge, John Toshach.

The play is a French medieval comedy based on one man's attempt to swindle another. The other man more-or-less "catches on" to the plan and by reversing the plot causes the first man to swindle himself.

GSC Assistant Professor of Speech, Thomas Merriweather, is director for the production.

Going Places

This college needs no politicians. This college needs no lobbyists. This college needs no "famous names minus brains." What it does need is scholars.

Dr. Carl B. Swisher, the highly-acclaimed political scientist who lectured here about two weeks ago, was such a scholar, and he was given a scholar's reception.

As one faculty member put it: "If we could plan Dr. Swisher's visit all over again, I wouldn't change a thing." Why? A "Before and After" analogy may provide the answer:

BEFORE: Lecturers would come to Georgia Southern, meet a small group of "nice" people, make a "nice" speech and depart quite unimpressed.

AFTER: Dr. Swisher arrived on campus, expecting the same group of "nice" but "uninterested" people, and instead found an enthusiastic student body surpassing "many of the nation's most famous institutions in its quest for knowledge." He made a speech on the Supreme Court. But his speech was intended "neither to bury nor to praise" that governmental institution. And the jam-packed audience at the Marvin Pittman Auditorium appreciated his objectivity. The scholar had been informative and had left the final opinion to his listeners.

Because of this, he wasn't given the usual "nice little clap-clap." The Georgia Southerners applauded and applauded, "With Vigah!"

Dr. Swisher was later quoted as saying that this college is "going places. You can feel it in the air — that desire to become a mature institution of higher learning." Hopes are that the good scholar will pass his opinions to his most influential acquaintances — and GSC will reap the benefits in highest-quality faculty members.

The social science division has two more such scholars coming here as part of its current lecture series. They include a nationally known sociologist, and a leading historian. We would like to see more of this, if possible. We'd like to see philosophers, psychologists, physicists, musicians, poets, novelists, and all the others.

The turnout at the Swisher lecture indicates that Georgia Southern's students are ready to expand intellectually as well as socially. We can't pack up the campus and move it to the scholar, but we can bring the scholar here — and gain just as much. Let's keep up the good work — we're building a reputation on this little campus that's "going places."

Needed: A System of Cuts

The Student Congress, among its many other projects, plans an attempt to initiate a system of cuts into the academic picture of Georgia Southern in the near future . . . at long last.

Such a project would be in keeping with the University System regulation that at least 75 per cent of all classes must be attended in order to receive a passing grade, or something like one cut be given for every hour's credit given to the course. For instance, a student would be allowed five cuts for a five-hour course.

It goes without saying that such a system is long overdue as GSC seems to be about the only school left where every class meeting is almost mandatory, and it is a known fact that required attendance of classes doesn't necessarily give one a better chance to pass the course; likewise, it doesn't necessarily force the instructor to pass the student just because the latter didn't miss any classes.

Most institutions with high academic standards employ a similar system of cuts, or they leave class attendance entirely to the student's discretion. Being liberal along these lines apparently hasn't injured their scholastic picture one iota, and an attempt in this direction may be just the thing Southern needs.

Students are going to cut classes whether attendance is mandatory or not. With this in mind, a more liberal view of leaving this responsibility in part to the students, could prove very effective from all angles.

Candidly Speaking

By HOYT CANADY, Editor

A Vote For Phi Beta Kappa

Admire the toils and tribulations of putting out a weekly college newspaper and trying to keep up with one's academic phase of life (not to mention trying to sneak in a few hours sleep once in a while), there comes a time in the life of almost every student editor when the most seemingly logical thing to do is just to forget the whole mess for a couple of days.

Such was my case one weekend ago, and while the object of the trip centered around two football tickets, I decided to pay a visit to some friends in other institutions in the state and thereby make social calls out of the whole adventure. Besides I hoped to even pick up a column topic for another edition.

Since some of these friends belong to those societies hesitated to be mentioned on the GSC campus, social fraternities (or sororities as the case may be), I soon became faced with supplying answers to questions many Southern students are asked when visiting other colleges.

HERE WE GO AGAIN

"Which one are you in? You're not! Oh! They don't have them down there? How come? They won't let you? What is it, some kind of religious school? Man, you don't know what you're missing."

True . . . I didn't know what I was missing, and I imagine it would be nice to belong to one of these Greek letter societies. However, discarding all selfish motives, a more realistic view of Georgia Southern points to the possible future establishment of social frats, but in the meantime other things of first-hand importance are needed here as well.

Though many social fraternities and sororities serve their worthwhile purposes and play vital roles in the growth and development of the institutions with which they are affiliated, the importance of belonging to such organizations is somewhat grossly overemphasized in Southern and Midwestern colleges and universities.

This isn't intended to be a strike at fraternities; neither is it a crusade for these societies to take up roots at Southern. However, from hearing reasons for their coming, both pro and con, I'm prone to believe a certain amount of "educating the students" to what social frats really are would be the first BIG step.

PRIORITY NEEDED

Meanwhile, a push for Greek letter societies along the more "intellectual" line must be given priority for the time being.

GSC has, or should have by now, its intelligentsia. Dr. Carl Brent Swisher's lecture here two weeks ago seemed to leave no question about whether or not this school is ready to expend both intellectually and socially, and there should be no doubt that the former is of primary importance.

Students complain quite a bit from time to time because the college won't sanction social fraternities, but the need for honorary and leadership organizations is of far greater importance at the present time; and this is the need which should be realized.

Some faculty members are now contemplating the idea of trying to establish some of the latter groups at Southern. The attempt may be far-fetched now, and it may be a few years before the final goals are reached, but such efforts are definitely worthwhile, and the work involved will, needless to say, not be in vain.

By LONICE BARRETT, Sports Editor

It doesn't really seem possible that half the quarter is already over. It seems just like yesterday that everyone was arriving on campus full of anticipation for a great school year. All were interested in studying, making good grades, renewing old acquaintances and such, and, if you asked any they would have quickly told you that they were wondering how the basketball team was shaping up, or how the various other teams were coming along.

At the beginning of the school year we stated that if we had all we seemed to have, GSC would surely be loaded. From the looks of things that statement could possibly come true.

Coach J. I. Clements kicked off the sports activities with a fall baseball practice. He had several boys who really looked good. One particularly stuck out from all the rest. Allen Payne, a catcher, could be the shot in the arm that the Eagles have needed since the departure of Tommy Howland.

Payne is a big boy who has a good arm and hits the ball well. Back from last year will be such standouts as Jackie Hammond, Sandy Wells, Chico Jones, Royce Exley, Denny Herb and others.

Pat Yeager had his boys on the mats early in preparation for their first meet. His Eagles are reigning SIGL Champions and should be considered favorites to repeat themselves and possibly go even further. He has a top-notch assistant in Gordon Eggleston who came here from Leesburg, Florida.

With performers such as Buddy Harris, Jon Peacock and others who have constantly proven themselves, these gymnasts should go far.

Professor-Coach Robert Ward has been working with his boys on the new tennis courts. With some breaks this squad could be the best in the short history of its existence. Joe Scraggs, David Hall, John Williford and Alex Caswell make up the nucleus of the team. The fifth and sixth positions are up for grabs with several newcomers expected to battle it out for them.

FLORIAN AND BURTON TO LEAD CAGERS

Coaches J. B. Scarce, Frank Radovich and Ed Thompson are busily drilling their charges in preparation for the opening game with Wilmington College on December 4.

The Eagles, whose tallest probable starter won't be over 6-5, have been practicing daily and on Saturday's running plays, conditioning and learning to work together as a unit.

After watching the Saturday morning scrimmage, I am thoroughly convinced that they are going to be as exciting a ball club as I've ever seen.

Running their shuffle-type offense, the Eagles will present a very fast moving game to future opponents. It would be hard for anyone to pick a fifth starter or even to pick the starting team, but boys looking good have been Fran Florian, John Burton, Don Adler, Mike Rickard, Bill Johnson, Terry Grooms, E. G. Meybohm, David Owens, and others. In fact many coaches would be pleased to start some of the boys who this year will be used primarily to relieve our starting team.

All the way around, GSC appears to be well prepared to begin its most successful year in many seasons. Whether the Eagles win every athletic event or not is yet to be seen but you can bet that we will be well represented and won't be embarrassed by any comers in basketball, baseball, gymnastics, tennis or golf.

Whites, Blues Clash In GSC Gridiron Game Thurs.

By LAMAR HARRIS
Staff Writer

The Second Annual GSC Football Coaching Class gridiron game is slated for Thursday night at Memorial Stadium in Statesboro with kickoff set for 8 p.m., according to H. Douglas Leavitt, instructor of the coaching class.

Tickets are now on sale for "GSC's only football game of the season," at 50 cents apiece and may be purchased from any member of the coaching class team or at the Athletic Office in the Hanner Building. All proceeds from the game will go to the GSC Athletic Association.

"We would like to have as large a crowd as possible for the game," Leavitt said.

Since there are not enough boys in the coaching class to have two teams, a team of men on campus will play the coaching class team. This team, called the "Blues," is coached by Paul Inglett, former guard for the University of Tennessee.

All members of the Blues have had either high school, junior college, or intercollegiate experience on a football team. There are about 30 players on the Blues.

Leavitt, Robert Lamb, Pete

Jenkins, and E. G. Meybohm are piloting the coaching class team, the "Whites." There are only about 25 boys on the coaches team. Leavitt also stated that only seven of the Whites have had any experience on a football team at all.

The Blues will outweigh the Whites by 20 to 30 pounds on the line, according to Leavitt.

"But we'll be in better condition," he added.

The GSC cheerleaders will add spirit to the contest. Half of them will cheer for the Blues, half for the Whites.

Leavitt said that the chief purpose of the game is to prepare the boys for coaching and "to give the boys experience to prepare for a game."

Allen Rolls 227 To Lead Bowlers

Paul Allen rolled the big single game with a 227 and also took honors with a 582 series in Tuesday's Eagle Ten-Pinner Bowling League.

This is the fifth week of competition in the league, and there will be five more weeks remaining with the league champion announced on the final night of action, Dec. 11.

Mary Nell Pharr bowled a 164 to lead the women. She also rolled a 452 set to cap off her double sweep of the night's action.

For the second straight week, the Alley-Katz had the high team total with a 618 total for one game and a high series of 1817.

Danny Simons still manages to hold on to his league leading average despite the fact that his mark fell to 179. Mary Nell Pharr and Doris Madison, bowling on the same team, are tied at 134 for the high average.

With five more weeks to go in this quarter's competition, the Lane Brains have mathematically clinched the championship. Their record is currently standing at 36-4.

Honeys Capture NL Title; Mox - Nixers Close In AL

INTRAMURAL ROUNDUP
By DAVID HOUSER
Staff Writer

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Mox-Nixers 38, Packers 0

The Mox-Nixers were at it again, this time at the expense of the mighty Packers. The Nixers all but cinched the American League title with this resounding victory, and the always tough Packers were humbled by the display of aerial power put on by the Nixers. Mid Parker who passed for five touchdowns and ran for one.

Though the score was one sided the game never was an easy path for the Nixers. The Packers threatened several times only to have the Nixers intercept deep in their own territory. For the Packers the standouts were Hilliard, Hennig and Beckham.

Outlaws 30, Bears 0

The Outlaws, coming into their own late in the season, unleashed a wide open offense much to the dismay of the downtrodden Bears. Martin, quarterbacking for the Outlaws, passed for three scores and ran for one score.

Razorbacks 19, Bears 0

The ever-tough Razorbacks came through with a solid 19 to 0 win over the hapless Bears. Two of Stephens passes found their way into the sure hands of Bell and Winn for two touchdowns. Stephens, finding his receivers covered once, ran for another score.

Outlaws 18, Scobies 0

The Outlaws again found their offense clicking and pulled away from the Scobies 18 to 0. Martin again was finding the mark with two strikes, one to Johnston and one to Olliff for scores. He then finished the Scobies off by running for one score. For the Scobies, Pittman, Payne and Rutland were standouts.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Mudlarks 33, Bulldogs 6

The Mudlarks came on strong to beat a winless but ever trying Bulldog team 33 to 6. Quarterback Baygents was on target with his passing, throwing three touchdown bombs, two to Crouch and one to Harrison. He also ran for one score himself. The Bulldogs, finally finding a little offense punch, scored their first touchdown of the season.

A.P.O. 12, Beetles 6

APO was back on the victory road after a short dry spell. In a hard fought game, which was not decided until the final minute when APO intercepted a Rogers pass, APO slipped by the Beetles 12 to 6. Matthews, ever deadly with the long ball, found his mark for two long touchdown tosses to Blackwell and Broadman. The Beetles were also deadly with their passes but could not keep their drives going because of a couple of timely interceptions by

APO.

Bulldogs 6, Magnificent Seven 2

The never say die attitude of the Bulldogs finally paid off and they came out on top with a close 6 to 2 win over the Seven. Fishback, quarterbacking for the Bulldogs, kept his team fired up, and worked them down close and with a true and sure pass to Harris scoring the winning touchdown. The Seven's two points came on a safety when Fishback was caught in his own endzone.

Intrasquad Cage Match Scheduled For November 21

Eagle fans will catch their first glimpse of the 1963-64 GSC cagers on November 20 in the Hanner Gymnasium as the team squares off for its first intrasquad game.

The expected shooting aces this year include Fran Florian, John Burton, Bill Johnson, and Mike Rickard.

Terry Grooms, Dave Christensen, and David Owens, who chalked up twenty-one rebounds in Saturday's scrimmage, specialize in rebounds.

The averages of the returning lettermen are as follows: John Burton, who leads the team in scoring, has a 13.1 average. Running a close race with Burton for scoring honors, is Don Adler, who boasts a 10.1 average. E. G. Meybohm is the third highest scorer with an average of 7.7. Bill Johnson and Terry Grooms, who have averages of 6.2 and 5.0, respectively, are fighting for the fourth place scoring honors.

Last year, Fran Florian played four games before becoming ineligible. At that time, he was averaging 22.2 points per game. Mike Rickard, ineligible after six games, had an 18.6 average.
