Captivating author Richard Arum, Ph.D. will address Georgia Southern University on the topic of "Learning During Unsettled Times: College Graduates' Academic Performance and Recent Experiences in the US" as the 2012 Norman Fries Distinguished Lectureship Series, Wednesday, Oct. 3, 7:30 p.m., in the Nessmith-Lane Conference Center Assembly Hall. The event is open to the public and there is no cost for admission.

Arum is co-author of "Academically Adrift: Limited Learning on College Campuses," which raises questions about the quality of the academic and social experiences of college students and calls for refocusing attention on the fundamental goals of higher education. The Norman Fries Distinguished Lectureship Series at Georgia Southern began in 2001. It is funded by an endowment in honor of the late Norman Fries, who was the founder of Claxton Poultry. In his more than 50 years in business, Fries built the company from a one-man operation into one of the nation's largest poultry production plants. This year's Fries Lectureship is sponsored by the College of Education.
