Tracing Boundaries, Effacing Boundaries

Survey of Librarians and Writing Professors
on Teaching Information Literacy

What's going on here?

- ▶ Research project on disciplinary aspects of information literacy, with special attention to the relationship of librarians and writing instructors.
 - ▶ Who should do what?
 - ▶ Who is doing what?
 - ▶ How are we working together?
 - ▶ How can we improve?
 - ▶ Tried to look at whole subject by referring frequently to the five standards.

Background Info

- ▶ Surveys done as dissertation research
 - ▶ IRB approval from USF & SEU
 - ▶ Surveys conducted March, 2012
 - ▶ Two surveys, one for librarians and one for teachers of first year composition
 - ▶ Librarian surveys sent to ACL, Collib, CCCU (217 responses)
 - ▶ Professor surveys sent to WPA, Christlit, Tchrhet (80 responses)

Poll: How do you primarily classify yourself?

Poll: Who should teach information literacy?

Results: I should!

- ▶ Librarians thought that they should be teaching all of the standards except for Standard 4 more than writing faculty.
 - ▶ Likewise, writing faculty believed that they should be teaching all of the standards more than librarians.

Poll: At your school, if a librarian visits a ...

Results

- ▶ 82% had one hour or less!

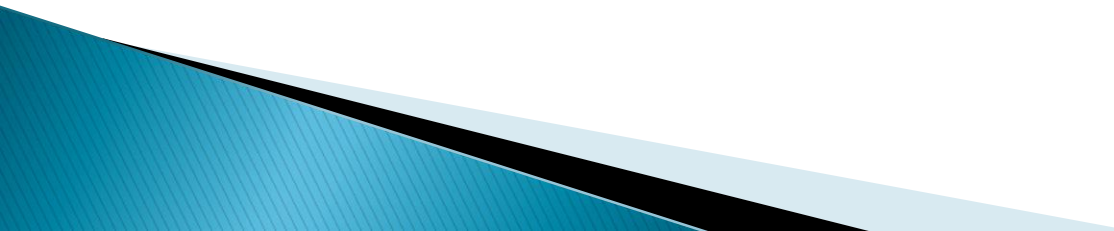

Poll: Which standard is most frequently taught...

Poll: Which standard is most frequently taught...

Who Teaches What?

- ▶ Standards Two and Three are most frequently taught by librarians.
 - ▶ Standard Four is most frequently taught by Composition instructors.
 - ▶ Standards One and Five are least frequently taught.

Assessment

- ▶ I meant assessment at the programmatic level
- ▶ Most professors seemed to see this as meaning grading.

Poll: Are librarians at your institution doing...

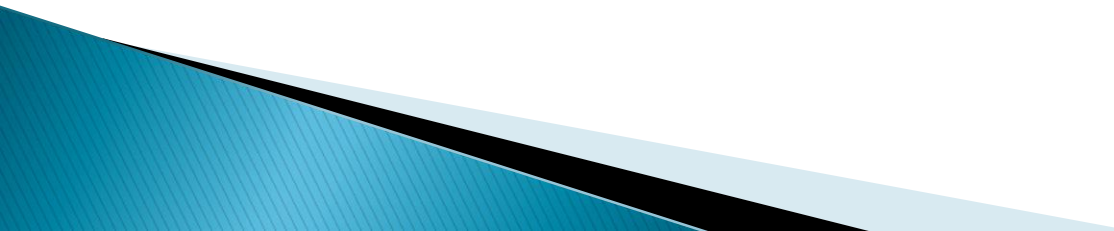

Mostly not

- ▶ Ranged from 14% (For Standard Four) to 34% (for Standard Two)- only about one-third.

Poll: Do you know how the the other discipline...

Collaboration in assessment

- ▶ 67% of writing instructors have no idea what kind of assessment the library is doing on information literacy instruction.
 - ▶ 25% of librarians do not know how writing instructors are assessing information literacy

Gen Ed Requirement?

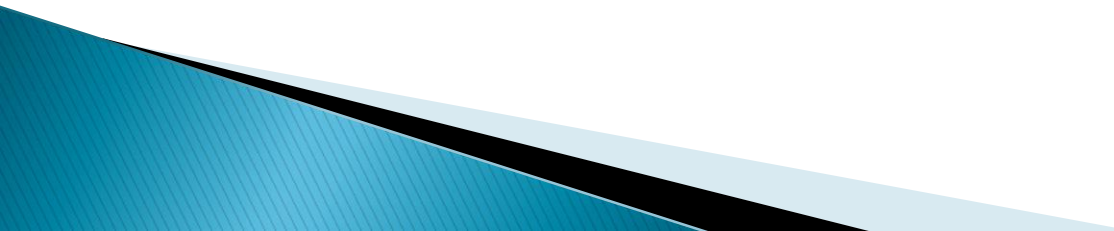

- ▶ 42% of librarians
- ▶ 72% of writing instructors

Mapped to Curriculum?

- ▶ 37% say yes.

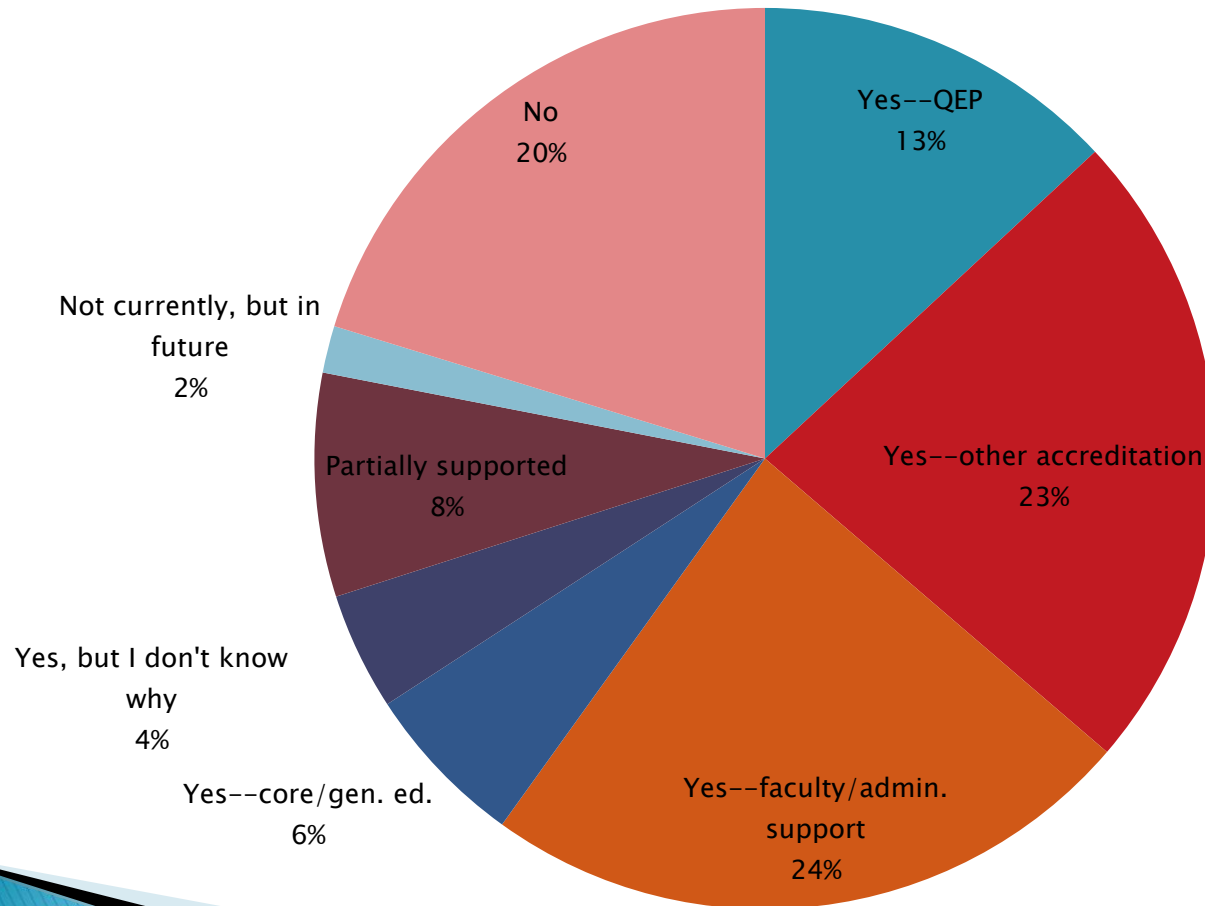

Does your school offer semester-long classes on information literacy?

- ▶ 24% of schools do
 - ▶ Unfortunately, these courses are required in only about 10% of the schools that do offer them.

Poll: How would you characterize institutional...

Institutional Support

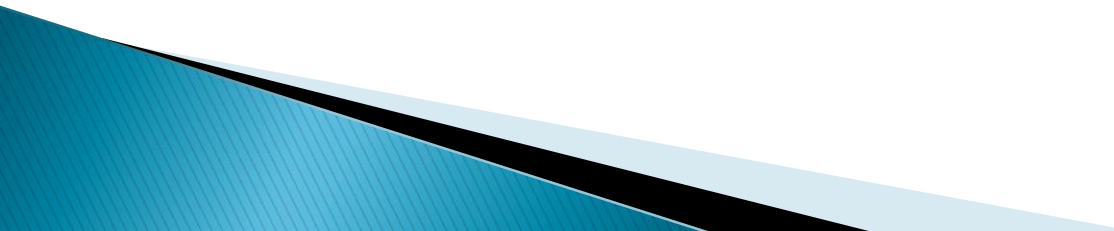

Is information literacy teaching adequate at your school?

- ▶ 31% of faculty agree
- ▶ 18% of librarians agree

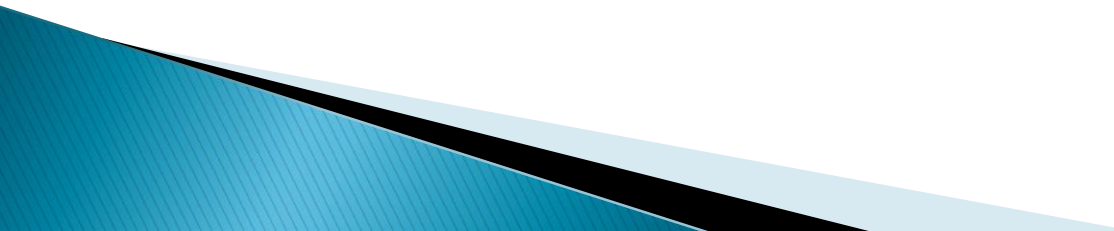

Inadequate programs

- ▶ Lack of assessment (or unhelpful assessment)
- ▶ Lack of communication between librarians & faculty
- ▶ Lack of time (with class/to prepare/to visit)
- ▶ Lack of consistency (among Comp. instructors, with adjunct instructors, among librarians)
- ▶ Other departments (outside Comp./library) do not value information literacy
- ▶ Personal attitudes
- ▶ Institutional or budgetary constraints (especially librarian shortages)
- ▶ Lack of curricular mandate

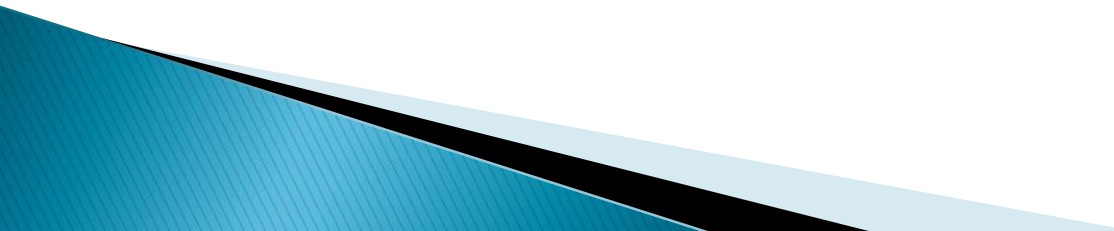

Writing instructors wish librarians:

- ▶ Would have a stronger grasp of pedagogy
 - ▶ Would share best practices
 - ▶ Would be discipline-sensitive
 - ▶ Would offer “off the shelf” sessions
 - ▶ Would offer training to professors in how to teach information literacy

Librarians wish professors:

- ▶ Would invite them to class
 - ▶ Would stay in the class and interact with them during the session
 - ▶ Would let the students know that information literacy is important
 - ▶ Would design assignments with the resources of the library in mind
 - ▶ Would have—and share—specific goals for information literacy sessions

Librarians wish Professors

- ▶ Would be open to a variety of teaching methods
 - ▶ Would recognize that librarians have a valuable contribution to make
 - ▶ Would not expect miracles from the one-shot
 - ▶ Would schedule the librarian's visit at an appropriate point in the semester
 - ▶ Would refer students to the librarians if they have difficulties with research

Top ways to improve local information literacy programs

- ▶ Make information literacy a core requirement
 - ▶ Teach a separate (semester long) information literacy course
 - ▶ Tie assessment in to general education assessment
 - ▶ Map information literacy to the entire curriculum
 - ▶ Better financial support (hire more librarians; improve student access to technology)
 - ▶ More support from other faculty and administration

Ways to Improve, pt. 2

- ▶ Change attitude about librarians (lack of respect; seen as obstructive)
 - ▶ Spend more time teaching information literacy (if not separate class, then more time in comp)
 - ▶ Librarians and writing instructors spend time discussing information literacy teaching
 - ▶ Approach information literacy teaching and assessment consistently

The best information literacy programs have these characteristics:

- ▶ Strong programs of instruction
 - ▶ Good working relationship between librarians and faculty
 - ▶ Regular and systematized assessment
 - ▶ Strong institutional support with information literacy mapped through all curricular levels and disciplines
