TO GEORGIA FARMERS,
Complainant Nesbitt's Regular Letter About the Crops
THE COWPEA AS A FERTILIZER
Made at Home and Recent Experiments
In the present state of the world, it is not surprising to find that the farmer who has the most success is the one who has the most common sense. The farmer who has the most common sense is the one who has the most common sense. The farmer who has the most common sense is the one who has the most common sense.

... it should not be grown in too great abundance. Mixed with some dry food it cannot injure. Cowpeas can be planted and will readily come to the surface. It will not grow before winter unless it is in the ground before the ground is frozen. It will not grow before winter unless it is in the ground before the ground is frozen.
