GAREY HALL, spacious home of the Law School, houses the most modern facilities, accommodating classrooms, and an extensive library within its beautiful walls.

DEAN HAROLD GILL REUSCHLEIN justly deserves the praises he has earned from the results of his efforts to consistently produce outstanding candidates for the bar.

LAW SCHOOL

The Villanova Law School enters the second half of its first decade facing a great challenge. In the five short years since its inception, the Law School has firmly established a reputation for producing high quality candidates for the bar. Rapid growth of the Law School, both in size and stature, has been accompanied by expansion into the luxurious and complete accommodations of Garey Hall. The acclaim which has greeted the efforts of the law students engaged in moot court competition, LAW REVIEW research and writing, and before the bar, demonstrates well the position of esteem that the Villanova Law School has earned to date. And the future holds promise of even greater success.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF James W. Schwartz studies material for publication in the next edition of the LAW REVIEW.

THE STAFF gathers around the conference table at a meeting of the LAW REVIEW.

students-at-law prepare for practice

Paralleling the classroom and textbook undertakings of the student in the Law School are his endeavors in the co-curricular activities which complement the study of law. These activities range in scope from development of intellectual talents to coordinating social events. Writing, speaking, or just relaxing—all play an important part in the life of the prospective lawyer. The successes enjoyed by the moot court teams, publication of the LAW REVIEW, and various other activities give evidence to the fact that the Dean and his faculty have succeeded in their efforts to develop the full lawyer who will be an asset to both courtroom and community.

STUDENT BAR ASSOCIATION officers Anthony J. Mazullo, Jr., Vice-President; Robert R. Brabson, Treasurer; and Matthew J. Ryan, President, plan events for the Advocates Ball and the annual banquet with representatives James A. Mullen and Patrick M. Ryan.

INTER-CLUB COUNCIL members James J. Demarco, Gerald R. Stockman, Edward T. Bresnan, President; Peter P. Smith, James V. Dolan, Vice-President; Edward J. O'Connell, Jr., Thomas J. Tusso, Treasurer; and John P. Quinn, relax in the lounge following heated discussion of inter-club moot court competition.

STUDENTS CONVERSE with judges, attorneys, and guests at one of the coffee hours which are the traditional follow-up to the moot court competitions, forums, and other activities.

THE HONOR BOARD, Albert L. Yarashus, Eugene Chovanes, John H. Doran, Barbara A. L. Van Horn, Chairman, and Joseph P. Kelly, discuss honor system procedure for exams.

DEAN REUSCHLEIN is joined by both faculty members and students in raising his glass in a toast as part of the social festivities at the annual Law School Christmas Party.
