The Ethnographic Encounters Journal was founded in 2011 with the purpose of publishing outstanding work by undergraduate students of Social Anthropology, inspired by the Ethnographic Encounters project that second-year students do every spring.

The ethnographic works that emerged from this were so interesting and diverse that students Zoe Miller and Emily Sheppard decided to start a journal dedicated to share these ethnographies with the rest of the University. They were able to do so with the support and guidance of Dr. Craig Lind.

We remain a student-run journal, and every year since our foundation we have strived to publish a volume with the best Ethnographic Encounters projects submitted to the journal.

In addition to this, we produce a yearly special issue where submissions are opened up to other projects from anthropology students. This is one of these special issues.
