FORBEAR.

BY P. CARPENTER.

When the serpent tongue of scandal,
Wounds a fellow creature's name,
When the busy voice of gossip
Breathes upon his honest fame,
Then do not be in a hurry,
In the judgement rash to share,
Keep your council and your silence—
In your charity forbear.

Many a pure and spotless woman,
Many a true and upright man
Have gone down in shame and sorrow,
Buried 'neath the gossips' ban.
Honor, truth, nor angel's virtues
Could not shield them, could not spare;
Slander claimed them as her victims—
Tattling tongues would not forbear.

There are homes of desolation,
Cloud-enveloped day and night;
There are bosoms crushed forever,
Withering under sorrow's blight.
O! my God!—the sin, the sadness
That confronts us everywhere,
Just because our tongues, unruly,
Still will stab—and not forbear.

Ah! why censure? everybody
Has his one besetting sin—
Prince and peasant, priest and layman,
Could we read the heart within.
Every man is a transgressor—
Sinner! then why do you dare
Sit in judgement on your brother?
But in charity forbear.

All our virtues and our faults are Written in The Book Sublime;
We'll be punished or rewarded,
Yea, in God's appointed time.
Of high trusts and obligations,
Every man has got his share;
None was formed to judge another
This remember—and forbear.

Selected Story.

INCIDENT ON A WHALING VOYAGE.

BY AN EYE WITNESS.

MERHAPS there is no voyage attempted by man where there is so much danger attended as in whaling. The hardy mariners engaged in this business, have not only the elements to contend with, but also the great leviathan of the deep. Many ships cruise in latitudes but little known, and encounter severe gales and suffer many privations which are unknown to those engaged in the merchant service.

It was once my lot to be engaged in this service. There are several persons on the Island of Nantucket who can vouch for its authenticity.

Early one pleasant morning while cruising near the equator, the man on the main-top-gallant cross-trees sung out, "There she blows!" which is the usual intelligence to the officers on deck that a whale is in sight.

"Where away?" lustily inquired the first mate.

"Three points to the lee bow, sir. There she blows; looks like a sperm whale, sir," again sung out the man.

The mate had already ascended the rigging, as high as the topmast cross-trees, when he arranged his spy-glass and looked in the direction in which the whale was blowing.

"There she blows—that's a sperm whale," exclaimed the confident mate.

"Mr. Emmons," continued he, addressing the second mate, who was on deck, "call the captain."

But this was unnecessary; the captain had already turned out of his berth and rushed upon deck, where he was finishing his toilet.

"Mr. Fisher, what is it? A fin back?" inquired he of his mate.

"O, no, sir; sperm whale—I could see its hump very distinctly with the glass—but he has gone down now."

"What time is it, steward?" inquired the captain; after ascertaining which, he addressed the second mate, telling him to finish washing at once, and the boat steers to get their boat in readiness. The captain was "eager for the fray;" he ascended the rigging, till having reached the fore-top-gallant yard, (the sail being furled) he seated himself, and inquired of the mate, "how far off the whale was when last seen."

"About four or five miles."

"Which way was he heading?"

"To leeward, sir, as near as I could judge."

"On deck there," hailed the captain.

"Hallo, sir."

"Keep her off two points, and square in the yards a bit."

"Ay, ay, sir," replied the second mate.

The yards were squared in, and the good ship Cyrus, of Nantucket, began to move a little faster. The mate hinted to the captain that probably the ship might run over the whale, and asked him if the foresail should not be hauled down.

"Yes, yes, Mr. Fisher, have the foresail hauled down; and clew up the main-top-gallant sail."

These orders were soon executed, and the crew, being released from immediate duty, ascended the rigging to look after the whale, which would soon make his appearance. It was then about four months since we had captured the last whale, hence the anxiety of the men; they could not endure the idea of returning home without a full ship.

Nearly forty-five minutes had now elapsed since the whale had disappeared; and every eye was strained in looking for him.

"There she blows," shouted half a dozen voices at once.

"I see him, my lads," said Captain Hussey. "There he is, Mr. Fisher, about a mile off; we will lay down and lower away."

The boats were immediately lowered from the davits into the water, and every man was soon in his respective place.

"Use your paddles, instead of oars; do you hear in the other boats?" exclaimed the captain, at the top of his voice.

"Ay, ay, sir," was the reply.

I belonged to this boat, and had the honor of steering. It was soon perceptible that our boat was the nearest to the whale, which we were approaching rapidly.

"Dick," said he to me, "don't miss him, for he is an eighty barrel whale."

"Never fear sir," I replied, taking the head iron (i. e., harpoon) in my hand, and eyeing the huge whale as he slowly proceeded through the water scarcely burying his hump.

We were now within dart, when the captain whispered to the men to seize the oars and pull. In an instant we were alongside.

"Give it to him!" roared out the captain. "Bang," went one iron, "bang went the other."

"Starn all—starn all—starn, you scamps, starn!" cried our elated captain, after having seen the second iron buried to the hitches in the back of the whale.

"Come aft, here my boy."

"Ay, ay, sir," I replied, going aft, and seizing the line which was around the logger-head in the stern of the boat. The captain went forward, preparing to use the deadly lance, as the other two boats came up with the intention of also fastening. The whale, which for a few minutes before was so quiet, now appeared more like an enraged bullock; his tail was often high in the air, every joint of which was cracking making a sound similar to the snapping of a hundred whips; and then his head would appear several feet out of water, which together with his formidable jaws and frightful teeth, plainly showed his strength, and what was in his power to do.

The second mate's boat approached the whale, and a young man by the name of Hale was standing up ready to dart the irons; but the whale caught sight of the boat, and instantly made for it with his mouth opened. Yet Hale was nothing daunted, but darted the irons, one after the other, and then jumped overboard. It was all that saved him, for the jaw of the whale came down upon the very spot where he had stood, and with so much power that the head of the boat was bitten off. He swam to our boat evidently grateful for having escaped. Mr. Fisher now pulled up.

"Be careful how you go on that whale," exclaimed the captain, much chagrined at the catastrophe which he had witnessed.

The mate, however, was not allowed to approach the whaleship, for he politely gave the boat a gentle cuff with his flukes, which knocked the bottom in, and sent the boat in company with sundry whaling gear, such as harpoons lances, waif-poles, line-tubs, etc.

"By George!" roared Captain Hussey, "two boats stoven, and the whale has not received a lance! Haul line! haul line! I will now see what we can do. Bow the line, Hale, and sit down upon the thwart," said he to the young man who had been taken into our boat and was standing up by his side. But he disregarded the captain's order and still remained standing. The captain was in the act of darting the lance, when the whale turned upon us.

"Starn—starn—starn—starn all! Take the harpoon oar, Hale, and starn!" he eagerly exclaimed.

As Hale was about obeying the order the whale rolled under the boat and striking it at the same time with his jaw, so that by the collision he lost his balance and fell directly into the jaws of the whale! The whale lifted his head out of the water showing the young man firmly in his mouth, as if in mockery of all our attempts to capture him; he then disappeared.

How long the whale was out cannot tell. In a few seconds, however, Hale's hat came up, and floated on the surface; and about a minute after Hale himself appeared!

"Pull me in for heaven's sake, I have been in the whale's jaws!"

We soon had him in the boat; his scalp was hanging by a portion of the skin, at the back of his head. It was replaced, and a handkerchief bound round to keep it in the right position. For some minutes he could not speak; but after a time he informed us he was not injured elsewhere.

"Where is the whale?" inquired the captain.

"Blast the whale," I almost exclaimed.

"There he is, sir," answered one of the men, pointing out the whale.

"Well, haul line; we will haul up close to him, and then cut, for Hale must be more seriously injured than perhaps we are aware of."

We were accordingly hauled up when the whale "turned flukes" and disappeared.

"Cut line! it is folly to hold on any longer," said the captain.

The line was cut, and we were soon along-side the ship. Hale was hoisted up in the boat, and carried into the cabin where he was examined by the captain and myself. On removing a portion of his clothes, several frightful wounds were discovered, one of which, in the lower extremity of his body, was so large that a portion of the intestines were hanging out. There were also others upon his thighs.—These were all sewed up, and after being properly bandaged, he was placed in one of the cabin berths. The stoven boats were picked up and others immediately rigged, and put in order, while men were sent to the masthead (with what hearts I won't pretend to say) to look after the whale that caused so much trouble.

"Pretty how-do-you-do," said the captain to the mate, who till now had been busy in making the changes in the boat. "Two boats knocked in pieces—craft of various kinds lost—and what is worse, one of the boat steerers nearly killed—pretty morning's work. I want to see that whale once more, if it is only to ask him how he feels with those irons in his back.

Mr. Fisher expressed the same sentiments, adding that he had never witnessed such hard luck. What became of the whale I never learnt. If he was afterwards seen from the mast head no one announced the fact. After a few days the carpenter had repaired the boats some of the crew had partially forgotten the occurrence. But not so with Hale; he was obliged to remain below some weeks before he was able to go into the boat again. On being questioned by some one what his thoughts were in the whale's jaws, he replied he thought "the whale might make about eighty barrels of oil!"

Genuine Fish Stories

Fishing Rods.

Only the expert angler, says the Boston Herald, knows how much he is dependent upon the excellence of his fishing rod for success in pursuing piscatorial sports. There is an idea commonly entertained that some people were born to catch fish, as well as to invariably meet with good luck in their worldly pilgrimage, and this class seldom gets the credit of working out anything for itself. While there has been, and ever will be, that which is termed luck in fishing, there is much more in skill, and proportionally as much in a knowledge that helps the angler to select the instruments best adapted to the sport. The good angler knows that the selection of a rod is of prime importance—in fact, that it is secondary only to a skill in handling it. A skill however deft will not make the sport of fishing enjoyable or successful with a cumbrous and heavy rod, even though the remainder of the tackle is of the best description. Many of those who seek the mountain streams and lakes with each recurring season prize their fishing rods, which have been their sole companion for many pleasant months, far beyond their intrinsic value. It is sometimes a boast among them that their rods "took" so many fish this season and so many last season, and to first appearances it would seem that they stand in the background, and give all the credit of a catch of so large a number of the finny tribe to their graceful bamboos. The writer was shown the "champion rod of the Rangeley lakes" last season, and, while he inspected it with becoming awe, he could not resist the feeling to be amused, and was led to feel a more profound respect for the gentleman who was so successful with it.

There are two kinds of bamboo, which are designated by the trade as the male and the female, the first named breaking in long fibres, while the latter breaks off short and is brittle. The male bamboo is alone employed in the manufacture of good rods. After the bamboo is cut into the lengths desired, it is split into strips, sometimes by hand, with the aid of a knife, and sometimes by the aid of a circular saw. Claims are made for each of these operations as being the best to employ, though unquestionably the full fibre of the wood from one end of the stick to the other is obtained by splitting it with a knife. The joint, it should be understood, is the strongest part of the bamboo, while the knot is the weakest and breaks very easily. The strength of bamboo is entirely in the enamel on its outer surface, which is only about 1-400 of an inch in thickness. If this is removed the material has no more strength than a piece of paper or a pine chip, and, accordingly, manufacturers take care to guard against taking off any of this substance.

Set 'Em Up, Somebody!

BOSTON, MASS., June, 16, 1881.

Editor Phonograph:—My Dear Sir:—I sent a telegram this noon about a box of trout, hoping you might get it into your Saturday's paper. The box was directed "Suffolk Club, 4 1-2 Benson St., Boston," and given to the driver, Thursday, June 2d, at Esty's, with an open telegram advising the Club the box would arrive at the Eastern depot, Friday p. m. The driver delivered and paid the telegram, but what he did with the box is the question. Did it take a day's sunning on the Barden or Elmwood piazza, or did the driver pawn it at the Beach Hill spring, for a drink?

At all events a large bevy of hungry "Suffolks," with their mouths watering, waited patiently the return messenger who reported seven boxes trout arrived at the depot, but none for Suffolk Club. After some terrible demonstrations of disappointment, what do you suppose those watery mouths did? Guess!

It is too bad! A bundle of shingles could have stood it, but think of a precious box of well-iced trout sunning or mooning twenty-four hours, in a shiftless way on somebody's piazza.

I have noticed many complaints on my trips, of a free and easy carelessness of details in having things go straight through Troutdom. L. S.

A Sensation of the Mountain View House.

Mr. Edward Flanagan and wife, from Cambridge, Mass., are now stopping at Mt. View for a few days. Mr. Flanagan, thinking that he would make the ascent of Bald Mt., left the Hotel the 19th, about 8 o'clock p. m. He was strongly advised by landlord Kimball and other friends to take a guide, but thought he could find his way through the forest to the top of the mountain without any difficulty, and promised to return in three hours. He arrived safely at the summit, but being deeply absorbed in contemplation of the grandeur and beauty of the scenery before him, time passed away unnoticed and darkness overtook him before he was aware of it. In trying to find the path by which he came, he missed his way and took another trail leading in a different direction than the Mt. View.

About 8 o'clock the landlord and guests of the house began to be somewhat alarmed and held a consultation, arriving at the conclusion that it was best to send out scouts to learn the whereabouts of the missing man. Mr. Henry W. Clark, of Watertown, Mass., and Mr. David Haines, the faithful guide, volunteered to take a boat and search the opposite shore and around into South Bog. Mr. Neilson Kimball and Lewis Bowley, of Rangeley, were assigned to take the "spotted trail," leading to the top of the mountain. Mr. Horace Blanchard and Arthur Brackett, the artist, of Boston, in company with William Soule, the successful fur hunter of the Rangeley waters, and Mr. Chas. Taylor, engineer of one of Capt. Barker's boat's, took the route from the steamboat landing to Haines' Landing, thence by row-boat to Allerton's lodge. Messrs. Clark and Haines returned after three hours of unsuccessful search for the missing man.

The party that went over to the Big Lake saw the light of the two scouts who took the spotted trail to the summit, and supposed it to be a fire built by Flanagan. They immediately sounded the tin horn, and thought they could distinguish a human voice in the distance. After sounding the horn several times they landed and struck into the unbroken forest, in the direction of the voice. They met the two scouts who had crossed the mountain, but without finding the lost man. They took the scouts into their boat and were returning to Haines' Landing, when off Sandy Point the horns were sounded again, and they heard a reply, but were undecided whether it was the "screeching" of the night-owl or a human voice. Happily it proved to be the voice of the long-sought Flanagan, making his way toward Camp Haverhill. They landed just south of there, and made for the woods again, led by the sound of tramping over the underbrush, but they could not decide whether the approaching foot-steps were Flanagan's or the tread of some wild beast of the mountain, charmed by the sound of the horn, until they met him face to face.

Flanagan was over-joyed to meet his friends, and his first words were, "boys, what station is this." They started with their prize across the "carry," and arrived at the hotel at 3 o'clock a. m., the 20th, to the joy of his wife and many friends. Landlord Kimball, N. D. Sawin, of Cambridge, and Geo. F. Holmes, of Portland, remained at the hotel to prevent any over-excitement on the part of the ladies. We cannot close without speaking of Mrs. Flanagan's composure and control of her feelings during the absence of her husband.

Sleep will do much to cure irritability of temper, peevishness, and uneasiness. It will do much to cure dyspepsia, and more particularly that variety known as nervous dyspepsia. It will relieve the languor and prostration felt by consumptives. It will cure hypochondria. It will cure the headache. It will cure neuralgia. It will cure a broken spirit. It will cure sorrow. Now no man should do more work of muscle, or of brain in a day, than he can perfectly recover from the fatigue of, in a good night's rest. Up to that point, exercise is good; beyond, are waste of life, exhaustion and decay. When hunger calls for food, and fatigue demands rest, we are in the natural order, and keep the balance of life. When we take stimulants to spur our jaded nerves, or excite an appetite, we are wasting life. There are wrong and mischief in all wastes of life. A man should live so as to keep himself at his best, and with a true economy. To eat more than is needful, is worse policy than tossing money into the sea. It is a waste of labor, and a waste of life.

Summer Quarters.

Poultry need as much protection during the summer from the fierce rays of the sun, as they do in winter from the severe cold, although far too many of our breeders lose sight of the very important fact, and suffer corresponding losses in consequence. Birds compelled to stay in yards which have little, if any, shade during the entire summer, with the sun pouring down on them with the intensity it does in July and August, cannot thrive, while they are rendered much more liable to disease and disorders. It pays, and pays well too, to give the fowls comfort at all times, and it costs but little to furnish the necessary shade, no matter how large the runs may be. Trees, such as plums, peach and apple, should at once be planted in the runs, especially the former, which seems to thrive better there than the other kinds named. As these trees will not afford much shade for a few years, temporary shades must be made by making skeleton sheds of poles along the sunny side of the runs, and then covering them with boughs, cedar limbs, or almost any thing cheap and convenient which will afford the necessary shelter from the sun. These may not look very handsome, but then the utility compensates fully for the lack of beauty.

Some breeders, to make the poultry houses more comfortable in the summer for their birds, remove the sash and make a movable frame of slats or lath to take the place of the sash, while the solid door is removed and a slat one substituted. This is a very good plan during the hot, still nights of summer, but when high wind as well as rain-storms prevail, the fowls are rendered very uncomfortable all night. A good plan is to have it arranged so either can be used at pleasure to suit the weather. Any one with average ingenuity can make the necessary alterations to suit.

Thorough ventilation must supplement extreme cleanliness, else disease and sickness will creep in these hot, sultry days, and claim by far the largest share of the profits. Ventilation can be secured without having a draught blowing on the birds constantly, endangering their health instead of benefitting them. — Poultry Monthly.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK for July is a gem in its entirety. The Fashion Plates, Steel Plates, general illustrations, and the literary contents combine to make this old favorite leader of the Fashion Periodicals the best that is before the public. Quite a lengthy and highly entertaining novel from the pen of "Sue Chestnutwood," and the usual array of stories and miscellaneous matter from excellent authors. The July number begins the One Hundred and Third Volume, which of itself speaks well for the hold that the magazine has upon the lovers of pure literature. The beautiful steel plate pictures, from original designs by F. O. C. Darley, are alone worth the subscription price. Any of our readers who do not take the Lady's Book can be supplied, promptly, by leaving their orders at this office. We will furnish our own paper and the Lady's Book for the low price of $2.65 per annum. The publishers agree to start a subscription with any month you may select.

LIQUID OR DRY.—Some people prefer to purchase medicines in the dry state so that they can see for themselves that they are purely vegetable. Others have not the time or desire to prepare the medicine, and wish it already to use. Republican District Convention.

The Second District Republican Convention, to nominate a candidate for Representative to Congress, to fill the seat vacated by Senator Frye, was held in Auburn Thursday, beginning at 11 a. m. and closing at about one p. m., resulting in the choice of Nelson Dingley, Jr., of the Lewiston Journal, on the fourth ballot. W. L. Daggett, Esq., of Strong, was chairman of the convention and the full Franklin delegation was reported present—49. Androscoggin had 78, Oxford 91, Sagadahoc 45. Each delegation was full, or filled. A rule had been adopted, allowing the filling of vacancies, by persons resident of the respective counties.

The convention voted by counties, a committee of one from each county receiving and sorting votes. The first ballot occurred at 12.45, noon, and this with the subsequent ballotings, resulted as follows, in the order as given:

Whole no.,	260	261	262	262
Necessary,	131	131	132	132
Gay C. Goss,	3	1	1
J. W. Spaulding,	10	10	10	8
J. W. Wakefield,	32	34	36	32
J. P. Swasey,	33	33	33	35
Emch Foster, Jr.,	38	56	51	53
N. Dingley, Jr.,	124	127	131	134

And accordingly Mr. Dingley was declared nominated.

During the meeting, speeches were made by the chairman, Mr. Daggett; Hon. J. J. Perry, ex-member of Congress; Ex-Gov. Perham, W. S. Robinson of Paris, Mr. Hogan of Bath, Hon. J. G. Hoyt of Farmington and Senator Wm. P. Frye.

Of course, in our humble position, we shall not be expected to make much comment for or against the nomination, but it does occur to us—what are we journalists coming to? As Mr. Hoyt said, Franklin county had no candidate to present; but who knows but she may yet present even a journalist? It will be a question of time, however, and we younger ones will cling to a shadowy hope that we may survive the longest and therefore have the most chance in the long—very long—run.

We accept the nomination—as made, as a fitting tribute to an eminent Maine journalist. The statesman is yet to appear.

Death of C. C. Bangs.

For a week or ten days our people have anticipated the death of their well-known and respected fellow-citizen, C. C. Bangs. For some years his health has been declining—an active body and mind wasting away with the lingering disease, consumption.

The age of Mr. Bangs at the time of his death was forty-two years, six months and twenty-three days. He was born on the farm now occupied by Joel Wilbur, Esq., in Avon, on the Phillips line. Twenty-seven years of his life have been spent in Phillips, where he had been deputy sheriff for nine years. In 1862 he went to California and was there nearly ten years. Before going to California, while there, and since returning home, he was engaged in teaching school.

Late last fall Mr. Bangs went to Nassau, New Providence, in the Bahama Islands, to escape the rigors of our Northern climate. Undoubtedly he enjoyed better health while in that pleasant locality; but on returning to his home and family in the early spring, it was seen he had gained little if anything by his winter's sojourn. His return seemed at first to renew his vigor and strength, but it could not last long. Although he continued in active business up to within less than two weeks of his death, it was noticed he was slowly declining in strength, and some ten days since was obliged to keep in the house, and for a week had been confined to his bed. He had fitted up a large livery business in the spring, which with the express business was more than he should have burdened himself with, but he could never give up till disease had almost accomplished its work, and Thursday morning, at about three o'clock, he breathed his last, surrounded by his family and friends. He leaves a widow and three little daughters, the oldest about seven years of age.

The funeral services will occur at the Union church next Sunday, at 10 o'clock a. m., Rev. C. E. Woodcock officiating.

As to the matters published last week, regarding the South Strong railroad accommodations, we are informed that the most of the statements made were incorrect. The Company have for some time past furnished return tickets between South Strong and Farmington—both ways—at a reduced rate. The road does not exact the 10 cts. excess when passengers get on for or at stations where no tickets are provided—only at Farmington, Strong and Phillips. The conductor is always provided with train tickets, which are good between any two stations. By the train ticket, a passenger can go from Phillips to So. Strong for 50 cts., when the regular fare is 55 cts. When these facts are generally known, we see no cause for complaint.

With a party of half a dozen from Phillips, four, from Kingfield, and one or two from Strong, we visited Maranocook Wednesday. Two or three carloads went from Farmington, and the train was loaded before reaching Leed's Junction. Coming back, the train was crowded to its utmost capacity. No accident happened that we hear of, and very little drunkenness was seen, though a very large bottle was discovered among the sweet singers—agua pura. An account of the festival is given elsewhere.

—Visitors in town and friends generally are welcome to our reading-room.

The editor deluded himself with the idea that a day's trouting would be good for him, and last Saturday, with a party of friends, went up to Reed's mill, on the Sandy, and fished the stream up a mile or so. The prettiest stream to "handle" we've seen yet. And the trout were quite active, the party taking one hundred during the afternoon. A stranger visiting that locality would naturally inquire where so many large boulders came from—the bed of the river and banks being full of them, making many a neat hiding place for the "beauty-spots." But so much pure air, sun and brook water, made ye editor as sick as though he had imbibed something stronger. He didn't gain any in flesh that day.

It takes a newspaper man to set an example of honesty to assignees and trustees of estates. Isaac W. England, the publisher of the New York Sun, four years ago was appointed assignee of the estate of Frank Leslie. It inventoried $75,000, and was incumbered by debts amounting to $400,000. Mr. England has settled its affairs, and turned over to Mrs. Leslie a fortune of not less than $500,000! Though several million of dollars passed through Mr. England's hands during his assigneeship, his accounts were passed without the challenge of a dollar.—Troy Times.

And we'll venture the assertion that it isn't every country paper in the U. S. that possesses the name or his counterpart on their lists. But we are happy to claim the distinction.

N. D. Sawin, of Cambridge, gave us a pleasant call Wednesday, on his way home from a 17 days' sojourn at the Lakes. This is Mr. Sawin's 46th trip to the Lakes, and he still reckons himself a fisherman, and although he says he has not dropped a line in the water this year, yet he enters heartily into the sporting at the Lakes, and was much interested in the Mountain View sensation, reported on the second page.

While at Maranocook, Wednesday, we had the pleasure of meeting Theo. Josselyn, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, of the Times, Portland; R. W. Soule, of Kents Hill, and a large number of old Kennebec friends, among them H. K. Morrell, Esq., of the Gardiner Home Journal, Messrs. Allen & Attwood, of the Fairfield Journal, Capt. L. A. Moore, of the Capital Guards, and others.

FARMINGTON.—BY GEO.

The house occupied by J. B. D. Young on Perham street, was found to be on fire about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. It is supposed to have taken from the cook stove funnel and worked its way between the partitions to the attic of the main house. The engine was on hand promptly, and soon had the fire under control. Had it not been for the engine, several houses and out-buildings must have been burned.

Thursday afternoon Dolloff Brothers' horse passed down Main street with their new meat cart and hitched it to a shade tree near the Free Baptist meeting house and then returned with a small portion of the harness in tow.

The corn canning factory of Messrs. Waugh, Williams and Coheren, situated about a mile north of the village, is boarded and shingled and will be ready for business this fall.

The examination and graduating exercises of the Normal School will commence next Wednesday and close Thursday. There will be quite a large graduating class.

A few of our singers and quite a number of our citizens went with the crowd to Lake Maranocook Tuesday.

Diphtheria seems to have subsided as I hear of no new cases, and those having it seem to be recovering.

The Musical Festival at Maranocook.

From a complete report in the Lewiston Journal we gather the following extracts, giving an account of the Musical Festival, at which probably fully 10,000 or more people were present:

Nine special trains conveyed crowds to the grounds, the heavily loaded train from Auburn and Lewiston being the first to arrive. Many people at Monmouth and Winthrop were left, there being no room in the cars for them to obtain a foothold. For two years, the Maine Central railroad people, whose track follows the shore of the lake for nearly its whole length, have thought of improving the opportunities for boating, fishing, picnicing, etc., offered at the spot, but it was not until last June that they took any definite steps, and leased for twenty years, twelve acres of field and grove, situated partly in Winthrop; on one side of their rails, gently sloping to the border of the Lake, and on the other rising more abruptly to the horizon. Many improvements were made last summer; and on numerous occasions, thousands of people visited the place and were unstinted in their encomiums on the new resort. The railroad facilities are ample. There is a broad platform, 1,300 feet long, on the Southerly side of the main track, where long trains of passengers may unload; and three-fourths of a mile of indispensable side tracks. The neat building at the easterly terminus of the platform, used as the agents' and telegraph office, has been enlarged and improved. It now contains a roomy reporters' apartment, in connection with the office. Decended into the grove, on the lake-side, we find that a greatly needed convenience, a ladies' toilet, with marble wash-bowls, etc., has been built, in the shape of a basement to the office. It is a roomy, neat, nicely-finished apartment. The grove, itself, is as finely kept as a gentleman's lawn. There are just enough trees to be shady, and still leave room for the manoeuvres of large crowds. The ground is evenly spread with tan-bark, which makes a fine, hard walk, and saves all dust and dampness. One day, the grass will spring up through it and there will be a fine turf. The grove so far as owned by the railroad company, is 1,400 feet, or, about a quarter of a mile, in length. The ground is smooth and even and no rocks or dead limbs are in sight. If a dead branch chances to fall, it is once carried off. Mid-way of the grove is a stone which marks the boundary of the two towns. Rustic seats and ice-water tanks are scattered among the trees.

Several new buildings have been added since last year. A novel and happy idea has been carried out, this season, in building a band-stand on the water, and is probably the handsomest band-stand in Maine. It is located at the easterly extremity of the grove, and it is connected with the shore by a short, light bridge. It is built over water nine feet deep, on a crib filled with stones. It is circular in shape and about fifteen feet in diameter. The exterior is very elaborately latticed and carved with lyres and other musical emblems, while a large, gilded dome blazes in the sun, on the arched roof, and makes it the most royal of all the band stands. The rest of the stand is gaily painted in red white and blue.

The main dining hall has tables that will seat 500 people at a time. At one end of the building a roomy kitchen has been built, and beyond that a boiler house. The cooking will be done by a large steam boiler, furnace, tanks and all the needed arrangements having been provided.

Parties interested in raising horses for strength, symmetry and style, should certainly be pleased with some of our local stock. Among the blooded horses of this vicinity we may mention the stallions owned by S. W. Parlin, of Boston, and kept at the farm of John Hoyt, Phillips. Mr. M. G. Walker has also a fine looking animal, advertised in our columns. The stallion owned by Calvin Moore, of Rangeley, is seen on our streets every Saturday, and is a powerful and well built horse.

—Look on the second page for matters of interest, regarding the Lakes.

Local Notes.

—What shall we do with our 4th?
 —Get your mowing machines at Fuller's.
 —Fuller advertises a large assortment of haying tools.
 —John R. Toothaker of Rangeley, was in town Thursday.
 —The New Testament (new revision) for sale at this office.
 —Strawberries, both cultivated and field, have appeared in the market.
 —There's to be a "wild Indian show" at Lambert Hall, this Friday evening.
 —Mrs. Raymond Toothaker and daughter, Miss Thalie, are visiting in Lewiston.
 —See Fuller's new advertisement of the New Model Buckeye Mower, on this page.
 —Our village schools will close next week, Friday, making a term of eight weeks.
 —For 25 cts. we will send the Revised New Testament to any address, postage prepaid.
 —G. D. Austin, having been appointed express agent, inserts a card in another column.
 —The longest days of the year are here, and will begin to shorten at the close of the week.
 —It will be some weeks yet before Phillips indulges in green cucumbers, pease, etc.
 —You can read the Revised New Testament now to your heart's content—price 20 cts., at this office.
 —Mr. H. H. Rice, of Farmington, departed Wednesday for Kansas City, Mo. Our good wishes go with him.
 —Mr. and Mrs. Page, of the Elmwood, visited Waterville the present week, being gone but two or three days.
 —Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, of Philadelphia, will be in Phillips next month. They are now visiting in Lewiston.
 —By kindness of the Barden House proprietor, we are permitted to peruse this week's Chronicle. Must have it!
 —Mr. Badger, of the Maine Farmer, an old visitor at the Lakes, made our office a pleasant call early in the week.
 —C. M. Davis has erected a neat and commodious stable on his lot, in addition to his already attractive set of buildings.
 —Rev. Stephen Allen, presiding elder, will preach at the Methodist church, Phillips, this Friday evening at 7 1-2 o'clock.
 —Mr. Alvah J. Hewey, of Madrid, trapped a bear a few weeks since, and last week the Messrs. Sargent captured another.
 —Joseph Jefferson is playing the "Hendrick Hudson" scene of "Rip Van Winkle" at the Lakes—that is, the romantic portion.
 —A Probate notice, announcing the appointment of John Smith, administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Susan Reed, is published to-day.
 —Haying will soon commence. Get your pitch-forks, horse-forks, hand-rakes, horse-rakes, scythes, mowing-machines, etc., at W. F. Fuller's.
 —J. Parker Whitney, Esq., with his family and servants, arrived at the Elmwood last Friday evening, where they stopped over the Sabbath.
 —A party of young men stopped at the Barden House, Friday night of last week, or their way to the Lakes, where they intended camping out for a season.
 —According to a recent published notice, by the Postmaster, the morning mail is not closed till fifteen minutes past six o'clock—the cars departing at 6:30.
 —Lieut. Wm. Randall, of the U. S. Navy, registered at the Elmwood, Monday also, Joe Jefferson, wife and son, and Fred Robinson (an actor) and wife, from New York.
 —Mr. Whitman, a bona-fide hunter and sportsman and correspondent of "Forrest & Stream" is now settled at Rangeley. We saw Thursday at the Barden House a collection of bears' teeth, jaws, claws, etc., which he had taken from varmints captured by himself.

—Celebration at Strong, July 4th.
 —Nothing so "raw" as a day in June.
 —A delightful shower occurred as we went to press.
 —The Rangeley Lake travel for the past week has not been so brisk as for the previous week.
 —Up to the present time we have not seen a single announcement for a 4th of July celebration to occur in Franklin county, except the one at Strong. Last year the woods were full of 'em.
 —Rev. J. B. Wheelwright is expected here to-day, and will preach at the Town House Sunday afternoon and hold a social meeting at the Union vestry in the evening.
 —Capt. Keyes, we are informed, passed through here to-day making a tour of the Lakes in behalf of the proposed Editorial excursion. He was accompanied by Miss Parks, his wife's sister.
 —The Richmond Bee recently inquired if our "sea serpent" was the "little serpent who swallowed the bottle." No, no, Busy Bee—we ain't Raising serpents, and can't imagine 'em, either.
 —Salem Lodge of Good Templars will give an entertainment at the Salem Town House next Wednesday evening. The Strong Band will be present. Then will a good time for our folks to go over.
 —Wm. D. Badger, of Seymoure, Wis., with his wife and son, arrived in town Thursday, and are now visiting brothers of Mr. Badger—of whom there are four or five in Avon, Phillips and Rangeley.
 —Coming up on the train Wednesday, from "Hannah's," we heard several deserved compliments for two leading tenors from our county—Messrs. J. H. Conant, of Strong, and Frank Luce, of New Vineyard.
 —The Greenbackers of Phillips will hold their caucus at the Town House, Saturday evening, 25th inst., at 6 o'clock, to choose delegates to attend the District Convention, to be held at Lewiston, Tuesday, 28th inst.
 —E. E. B. Sawyer, Esq., of Camp Point, Ill., with four children, has been visiting with his brother, P. A. Sawyer, Esq., for a week or ten days. Mr. S. returns Monday, but the children will remain a month or two.
 —Mr. Milliken, of the Forest House, Farmington, with two brothers and their wives, also a sister, from Boston and New York, and Mr. Dodge, of Farmington, made Phillips a flying visit over the narrow gauge Thursday.
 —On and after Monday, June 27th, the Narrow Gauge time-table will be changed. The trains will leave Phillips at 7:10 a. m. and 1:45 p. m.; arriving here from Farmington at 11:15 a. m. and 6:45 p. m. The Maine Central train will leave Farmington at 8:50 a. m.
 —Last Monday Mr. Michael Phillips, of Avon, suffered the cutting of a cancer from his under lip, necessitating the removal of about one-third of the lip. The operation was performed by Dr. Dacombe and is pronounced very successfully done. The lip is now nearly healed.
 —We have received notice of the death, June 13th, at La Cross, Wis., of Charles Tarbox, formerly of Phillips. He was much loved and respected. A procession of ninety covered carriages followed the remains of the young man to the cemetery. His parents undoubtedly feel his loss very keenly.
 —The citizens of Waterville are making strenuous efforts to secure the valuable services of Mr. T. L. Page, of our Elmwood house to come over and run their Elmwood for them. In case he does go, we understand he will not relinquish his management of the popular stand here. His interest divided, even, will be a loss to our village.
 —Why would not it be a good thing for our Narrow Gauge to arrange for weekly excursions, at half-fare? We believe it would pay. This part of the country is not troubled with an over-production of money, and $1.50 seems quite a sum for 36 miles ride, especially when almost every family owns a horse; but for 75 cts., or $1.00 even, many would rather go in the cars, once a week, than to trouble with a team.

POSITIVELY CURED BY
Benison's Capcine Porous Plasters

Reasons Why they are preferred to all other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First. Because they possess all the merit of the strongest porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rapidity, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second. Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third. Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth. Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth. Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth. Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT!

KIDNEY REMEDY!

A Positive Cure for Kidney & Liver Complaints and all Diseases arising therefrom, such as DROPSY, GRAVEL, DIARRHEA, INFLAMMATION OF THE BLADDER, BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, RHEUMATISM, DYSPEPSIA, REMATE COM-PLAINTS & ALL DISEASES OF THE URINARY ORGANS.

A Druggist has sold over 1,000 Bottles. Rockland, Me., April 25, 1881. I have sold over a thousand bottles of Elixir of Life Root, and have never found a case where it failed to give satisfaction. WM. H. KITTRIDGE.

Nearly Dead and One Bottle Cured Him. WAREFIELD, Mass., March 28, 1881. J. W. KITTRIDGE, Agent Elixir of Life Root.

Dear Sir:—Having suffered intensely for four years with disease of the kidneys, after having during that time tried various medicines without obtaining relief, I was induced to try a bottle of your ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT, and it afforded me pleasure to say that one bottle of it completely cured me. I recommend it as the only valuable and certain cure for kidney troubles I have ever seen. I would add that before taking your medicine I had become so weak that I was about to give up work. Hoping that others who have suffered here myself may be so fortunate as to try your valuable medicine. Truly yours, T. E. MCMAIN.

As a SPRING TONIC and APPETIZER IT HAS NO EQUAL.

WONDERFUL CURES!

and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poison-ous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:

Druggist H. Brock, of Junction City, Kansas, says, "Kidney-Wort cured him after regular physicians had been trying for four years."

Mrs. John Arnold, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says his wife was not expected to live, being beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarratt, of South Salem, N. Y., says she had several years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was cured by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels" of other medicines, Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Core of Montgomery County, Va., entered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in an ornate package of which makers, very common in liquid form, are not readily prepared. It acts with equal efficiency in either form. GET IT AT THE DRUGGISTS. PRICE, $1.00.

Avery man who kan swap horses or ketch fish, and not lie about it, iz just az pius az men ever git tu be in this world.—Josh.

Jeff Davis will pass the summer in Canada. A few years ago he caused a great many of our people to pass a protion of their time there.

After taking all other remedies for your Kidneys, without benefit, just remember that ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT, the Banner Kidney Remedy, never fails.

The inmates of a Canadian insane asylum were taken to a circus. The only melancholy result was that they wept because the clowns were at liberty while they were kept confined.

IMPORTANT TO TRAVELERS.—Special inducements are offered you by the BURLINGTON ROUTE. It will pay you to read their advertisement to be found elsewhere in this issue. 40t28.

And when that blushing San Francisco bride showed the check for a million to her husband he burst into tears, and exclaimed with intense fervor, "And even this shall not separate us?"

HAVE WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY always at hand. It cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Croup, Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Complaints. 50 cents and $1 per bottle. 1y52

A rual exchange says: "Our people have an immense taste for art. This is evinced by the large sales of a travelling agent of chromos, who states that he has sold thirty-five here in less than three days. Many of these pictures, framed, cost as high as one hundred and seventy-five cents."

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP has cured thousands who were suffering from Dyspepsia, Debility, Liver Complaint, Boils, Humors, Female Complaints, etc. Pamphlets free to any address. Seth W-Fowle & Sons, Boston. 1y52

Clara Folx, the San Francisco female lawyer, being told by the opposing counsel in court, that a woman's proper sphere was at home raising children, retorted with spirit, "A woman had better be engaged in almost any business than raising such children as you are, sir."

THE DOCTORS DISAGREE as to the best methods and remedies, for the cure of constipation and disordered liver and kidneys. But those that have used Kidney-Wort, agree that it is by far the best medicine known. Its action is prompt, thorough and lasting. Don't take pills, and other mecurials that poison the system, but by using Kidney-Wort restore the natural action of all the organs.—New Covenant.

A mother had impressed upon her little boy the necessity of ejecting the skins of grapes, and a few days afterwards she told him the story of Jonah and the whale. "Did the whale swallow other men too?" asked the boy. "Well I suppose he did," continued the mother. "And, mamma, did he spit their skins out?"

DURING THE HOT SUMMER MONTHS, while away from city conveniences, the traveller should make some provisions against sudden attacks of headache, Neuralgia, Cholera Morbus, Cramps, and other diseases. Twichell, Champlin & Co's Standard Neuralgia Anodyne when taken according to the directions on each bottle, will relieve the distress and remove the cause of any of these troubles. Try it and be convinced. 1y21

A reporter of a San Francisco paper, who was compelled to describe the wedding of a hated rival who had carried off the girl he fancied, furnished the following account: "The bride was radiant in a beautiful lavender silk dress, with orange wreath and six-button No. 9 kid gloves, slightly burst in the thumbs. The groom was as straight as a black cloth suit, constructed by the best tailor on Tehama street, could make him; and as red in the face as was consistent with a pair of boots two sizes too small and a No. 13 collar encircling his manly 16 1-2 inch neck. Fortunately, before the ceremony was over, the restraining button on the back of his shirt flew out and saved him from strangulation."
