Cherub Devine

By SEWELL FORD
Copyright 1909 by Mitchell Kennerley

CHAPTER IX.

ON Friday the countess received this communication from Mr. Devine: "Wait. Coming up tonight. Important."

As a result Hewington Acres hummed with anticipation. What could it mean? What had happened? What was going to happen?

Eppings was certain that Mr. Devine was bringing home some titled guest, possibly a duke or a lord, and he prepared dinner accordingly. The countess was puzzled. Even Mr. Hewington emerged from his study and wanted to know why every one seemed so disturbed.

"It's because of Mr. Devine, sir," said Eppings. "He's coming up on a special train, sir, and I must see about the table at once, sir."

Surely the particular frame of mind which Mr. Devine had conjured up for himself was quite worthy of a better audience than he gave it, although he was neither serene nor dignified with confident joy. But he was very much alive. He bubbled, sparkled, scintillated. His mental faculties, never dull, were at their keener. His spirits seemed to be lashed by a veritable storm of animation, one moment soaring to giddy heights, the next sinking to dark depths.

Young Mr. Walloway, who was his sole companion, was somewhat disgusted with this illogical behavior. Much against his will he had been dragged from his office to accompany the Cherub just when there was much work to be done.

"Oh, the railroad be blown, Nick! Lots of time to attend to that. Forget it!"

Yet now that they were well started toward Hewington Acres the Cherub evinced a desire to talk, although the precise topic at which he was aiming was not clear. It was unrelated to railroads, for the opening was of an intimate and personal nature.

"Nick, youascal," he suddenly exclaimed, "why aren't you married?"

"Why aren't you, Cherub?" he retorted.

"Me?" Mr. Devine affected to be profoundly surprised at such a question. "Now, come, Nick, what sort of a fine woman would have Cherub Devine?"

"You're too modest, Cherub. You underestimate yourself. I suppose you never tried?"

"Never had a chance, my boy. Why, see here, Nick, there's never been a time in all my life that I've had even a speaking acquaintance with a real good woman, such as you know by the dozen—that is, leaving out the last few days, of course. Now, with you it's been different. You've had a chance to pick and choose."

"Ah, have I?"

Cherub Devine caught the subdued note of path in the quick rejoinder.

"You don't mean, Nick, that you got a turndown?"

Brusque as were the words, they carried a message of sympathetic feeling which rang true, and that was the quality which made so many friends for Cherub Devine. Young Mr. Walloway was certainly not the one to make offhand confidences, but he nodded his head in assent.

Unexpectedly finding himself an intruder on private grounds, Mr. Devine curbed his buoyancy and gazed with embarrassed emotion at the proprietor thereof.

"Oh, well," he observed, "maybe you're just as well off. Guess it was some fine age, when you were young and vealy, eh?"

"I was a young ass, if that's what you mean," cynically responded Nicholas. "I was too sure of her and played the fool. You see, we were youngsters together, playmates. It was one of those affairs that everybody understood was settled from the time we were a dozen years old. I took it as a matter of course that I was the only person she could ever care for. In time she resented it, and before I knew it I had lost her."

"Went off with some one else, did she?"

Again young Mr. Walloway inclined his head. He got up, took a seat on the other side of the car and unfolded a newspaper.

It was less than an hour's ride at best, but before it was half over Cherub Devine was consulting watch and time table and had again shifted his seat to the forward chair, where he could watch for the name boards on the stations.

Perceiving this unusual agitation of a mind normally free from such disturbances, you might suspect that Mr. Devine was about to make some great venture. It was a fact. His plans, however, were somewhat vague. About the only definite part of his program was his decision to turn himself out of house and home immediately upon reaching Hewington Acres. This detail was already prepared. The Countess Vecchi should buy back the place at her own terms. She now had the only a faint suspicion that he was about to make an astonishing chump of himself. He even experienced a glow of satisfaction as he hastily mapped out his new program. You would almost have thought by the cheerful manner in which he laid it before young Mr. Walloway that he thought he was attaining a long desired end.

"Well, Nick," he began, this time giving young Mr. Walloway due warning of his approach, "we're almost there. Now, the first thing on the docket is for you to fix up this business about the house with the countess."

"I?" exclaimed Nicholas.

"Why, sure? You know her better than I do. You go up and have a talk with her; tell her how you sold the stocks and what she can buy back the property for."

"But—but—why don't you?"

"Me? Oh, I've got to skip back to town on this train. Just wanted to get you started straight. You can do it so much better than I can, being one of her own kind, and all that. Aren't afraid of the countess, are you?"

"Why, no. But see here, Cherub"—

"Now, that's all right, Nick. You can do this one. But, say, you call me up on the phone at my hotel tonight and let me know how you come out, eh? Don't forget that, about 9 o'clock. Just give me a line on how she takes it and so on. You'll have some report or other to make, I'll bet. Nobody make too much of my share in the business. Just talk like I'd handed it over to you, as I have. You're equal to that job, aren't you?"

Now, what sort of mental process went on in the brain of Nicholas Walloway it would be vain to try to trace. He was a complex person whose character had been moulded not only by circumstances of life and breeding, but by the strong strain of heredity.

He was a young man, elderly distinguished by a reserved stiffness of manner, a quality which often inspires a confidence that obvious genius fails to command. If, in hesitating to accept the advantage offered him by the impulsive Mr. Devine, he was troubled by problems of an ethical nature, he allowed them to be easily swept away. For many months he had wanted to see the Countess Vecchi. Earnestly he had wished for a chance to talk to her alone, and now this very opportunity was thrust upon him.

"Well, Cherub, if you think you'd better leave this to me, why, I"—

"Good! Don't forget about calling me up tonight to let me know what luck you have."

No hint of this altered program, of course, had reached Hewington Acres. So it happened that when Nicholas finally did bring up the lathered cobs with a fine flourish the whole household was assembled to witness the Cherub's much heralded return.

The Countess Vecchi had at the last moment abandoned her angelic pose and yielded to curiosity. Mr. Hewington was even more eager to learn what it was all about. Mr. Devine never knew just what he missed by backing out.

In his stead there stepped from the carriage Mr. Nicholas Walloway, outwardly cool and self possessed, but secretly very much at loss to know just how he should proceed. For a moment he regarded the expectant group with some astonishment. Then Mr. Hewington voiced the common thought in one question:

"Why, Nicholas, where is Mr. Devine?"

"Mr. Devine is on his way back to town."

"But he sent word"— began the countess, only to be stopped by Mr. Walloway's hasty explanation.

"He has asked me to transact some business with you, countess. Might I—er— And he glanced significantly at the door.

The Countess Vecchi promptly led him into the library.

"Well, Nicholas?" she asked.

Mr. Walloway had seated himself at the library table and was sorting some documents. It had been years since she had called him Nicholas. Well, this was an auspicious beginning. He smiled indulgently, straightened his shoulders and placed his finger tips together in a half-hum manner. It was rather an effective pose, indicating the patiently receptive mood of a superior mind.

"My dear Adele!"

"Mr. Walloway!" The Countess Vecchi could be a most explosive young person, and her brown eyes could stimulate indignation very convincingly.

"But—but you called me Nicholas," she protested.

"I didn't call you my dear Nicholas, did I? I want to know why Mr. Devine sent you instead of coming himself."

Mr. Walloway proceeded to state not at all in the way he had meant to put it his errand. He told the countess the amount for which the stocks had been sold and of her opportunity to buy back Hewington Acres. The Countess Vecchi heard him with widening eyes.

"And I really have all that?"

"The check is drawn for the full amount, I believe, less the brokerage commission. Here it is." A little awed, she accepted the slip of pink paper and stared at it incredulously.

"You are sure there's no mistake?"

"Mr. Walloway was quite sure. He explained that the shares had brought $1,000 each and that there were a hundred of them.

"I don't in the least understand," said the countess, referring once more to the check, "but I hope that whoever paid that much for them could afford why, here is Mr. Devine's name."

"Yes, he bought the shares, and he could well afford to at that price."

"Could he? Oh, and those horrid men you were talking about! Did he smash them?"

"Mr. Walloway indulged in a faint smile.

"He did smash them."

"But did he smash them hard—as hard as I told him to?"

"He made a very thorough job of it—quite thorough."

"Oh, goodly!" The Countess Vecchi's hands were shut tight; her lithe figure was held very erect; her eyes were alight with exultation.

CHAPTER X.

NICHOLAS squirmed a little in his chair.

"Mr. Devine is in many ways a—er—a remarkable man."

"If he were only something besides a stock gambler. If he could only apply his talents to something different."

"I hadn't thought of his talents as being misdirected," he said slowly.

"But he has evidently been listening to some one who thinks as you do, for he tells me that he has given up speculating in stocks."

"He—has given up? Why? When?"

"At noon today, when he obtained control of the P. Z. and N. railroad and became its president."

"A railroad president! Why, that is quite—quite respectable, isn't it?"

"Almost," gravely assented Mr. Walloway.

"Isn't he splendid?" exclaimed the countess, clasping her hands. "And don't you think, Nicholas, now that he has—well, reformed—that he will be asked about among nice people?"

"My dear countess," began Nicholas, once more assuming the judicial pose, "you must not forget that he is still Cherub Devine. As a successful manipulator of stock he is entitled to respect; as a railroad president he will be a financial power to be reckoned with; as to his social fitness, that is a matter to which I have not given the attention which you appear."

"Am I being lectured, Nicholas Walloway?" asked the countess demurely.

"I trust we have known each other long enough, Adele, for me to offer a friendly suggestion. But if you resent such"—

"Oh, no! Go on, Nicholas. What else about Mr. Devine?"

Young Mr. Walloway flushed under the subtle mockery of her eyes.

"Nothing more, countess," and he bowed stiffly, "only I did not know that you considered Mr. Devine—a—"

The countess laughed lightly. "Oh, I've told him he wasn't."

"You—you said that to the Cherub?"

The countess nodded.

"And he—what did he?"

"He said he had never claimed to be a gentleman."

The fact that there are a good many haddock salmon in Nickerson Lake was clearly shown one day last week when one was hooked, brought to the boat edge, and finally lost, that would weigh at least seven pounds. The lake is full of them, and with persistent fishing no doubt some of them could be landed.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. office will soon be removed from the present location, to the store now occupied by the Exchange Book Store. Rapid Work at Northern Me. Jct.

The tracks for the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company's plant at Northern Maine Junction are now under construction, by the Murray Bros. Co. of this town, who expect to complete the job by the last of June.

In order to get these tracks up to grade it is necessary to make some very deep fills ranging from five to fifteen feet, the ballast for which is taken from a large gravel bank nearby, loaded on cars by a steam shovel and unloaded by other steam machinery.

They also have a large force of men and horses working, laying rails and ties, so if anybody would like to see earth and gravel fly they should go to the junction.

One track is about completed already, in a record breaking time.

The Caribou team has dropped out and the games remaining are sure to be interesting. Houlton High will give A. C. I. a run for first place although the game Saturday which Houlton had well in hand was lost on account of playing in the rain with a wet ball.

The High School boys defeated Caribou on the Tenney field Monday afternoon in an interrupted game. At the beginning of the sixth inning the score was 1 to 0 in Houlton's favor, but after the shower Caribou went wild, allowing Houlton to make 13 scores in one inning.

The Clerk's Base Ball Team went to Woodstock Monday afternoon to play their first out of town game with the "Pirates", but owing to the shower the game was not played.

The management of the Woodstock Team, conferred with Manager Manning, Monday relative to forming a league with Woodstock, Houlton and one other Aroostook team to play a series of five games. The clerks have a good team, and it is hoped that they will receive the support of the citizens.

Ricker Wins Out.

The Ricker Ball Team won out in their game with Coburn Classical Institute in the fitting school league at Waterville last week, by a score of 5 to 3.

Hebron met Higgins and after playing 6 innings stopped, the score being 21 to 0.

It was supposed that the deciding game was to have been played at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Hebron wanted to get away, for six of her players were entered in the Bowdoin track meet of Saturday, and the men wanted to go to Brunswick. Ricker did not feel that she was justified in playing two hard games in one day. In fact her management protested Thursday night about the arrangement. Conferences were held early and late in the afternoon. Ricker refused to play the deciding game off the same day and Hebron refused to wait over until Saturday. The Hebron team left on the 6.00 train for Brunswick, and it was perhaps well that they did, as Ricker would certainly have given them a run for their money.

The decision of the Ricker manager was just right. Ricker had played a hard fought game, and Hebron had not done as much as an ordinary practice would have been, and were practically as fresh as when they started in. Evidently Hebron thought they would withdraw and stand the criticism rather than to play later and run a chance of being walloped by the boys from "spudland."

Ricker played Bates second eleven on Monday, winning by a score of 5 to 1.

Reward Offered.

My dog, who bears the distinguished name Admiral Dewey, has got into an unpleasant habit of running and barking at automobiles. I will give a reward of $1 to the automobilist who runs over him with his auto in such a manner as to make a lasting impression upon him and teach him better manners—make him stop his insulting barking at least.

C. C. HARVRY. (This is the way they use dogs in Fort Fairfield.)

Republican Caucus.

A caucus of the Republican voters of the Town of Houlton, will be held in Assembly Hall, in the New Engine House, on Saturday, June the eleventh, 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing ten delegates to attend the Republican County Convention, to be held in College Hall, in Van Buren, on Wednesday, July the sixth, 1910, at one o'clock in the afternoon, and transacting any other business that may properly come before it.

The voting list will be used as a check list.

The polls will be open at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and close at five o'clock in the afternoon. Per order of the Republican Town Committee, Michael M. Clark, Chairman and Ransford W. Shaw, Secretary.

Memorial Sunday.

The annual memorial sermon was preached Sunday afternoon at the Baptist Church by Rev. F. W. Irvin. The church was decorated appropriately with flags and red, white and blue lights, and seats were set aside for Co. L. and that small, but brave band of men, the members of the G. A. R. now residing in Houlton, who valiantly defended the country when the nation was sorely distressed.

Co. L. N. G. S. M. and A. P. Russell Post, G. A. R. met at the Engine House at 2 o'clock and marched to the Church where the memorial sermon was delivered. An able sermon was delivered by the pastor who paid grateful tribute to the living, and a tender memorial to the departed saviours of our country.

The congregation joined in singing "America" after which the pastor read the 24th Psalm and offered prayer. The music by the male quartette was especially sweet and appropriate for the occasion. The service closed with that old familiar hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and the members of the Post escorted by Co. L. marched from the church.

Memorial Day Fittingly Observed.

The annual Memorial exercises were observed by A. P. Russell Post G. A. R. Co. L. and the citizens of Houlton. The stores were closed during the afternoon and evening, and all joined in honoring the memory of the deceased soldiers.

A. P. Russell Post, led by the band and escorted by Co. L. marched from Assembly Hall at 12:30 to the Catholic cemetery where the graves of the soldiers were decorated, and on returning the Veterans were taken in carriages to Evergreen cemetery, the escort and band remaining behind, on account of the very muddy condition of the road.

On the return from the cemetery, a procession was formed at the High School grounds, and marched to the Soldiers' Monument, where a brief Memorial service was held. A passing shower hastened the close of their exercises.

At 7 o'clock the veterans marched from Assembly Hall to Mansur's Hall where the Memorial Address was delivered by Hon. Herbert M. Heath of Augusta.

Com. George H. Smith presided. The Roll of Honor which was read by John Q. Adams showed that Houlton contributed 119 brave men to the struggle. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was read by Lieut. Col. Hatheway, after which Com. Smith introduced the speaker.

Unlike many of the Memorial Day orators, Mr. Heath did not go into small details of the Civil War, but spoke of the underlying causes and the effect that it had on the other nations of the world. "The idea of the American Republic had its birth in the first Massachusetts Town Meeting" and even "The history of the World's progress in politics, owes its start to Appomattox." "The question, 'Why does Memorial Day live after all other National holidays have passed into disuse,' was answered by Lincoln at the dedication of the Gettysburg Monument, when he read his famous address." "The belief that the human soul is immortal is universal, and makes the day when we honor our dead a Memorial Day which belongs to the hearts of the people."

The address was one of the best ever delivered in Houlton, and was warmly applauded by the entire audience. The exercises closed with a beautiful rendering of "Tenting Tonight On The Old Camp Ground" by the Male Quartette. This pathetic number brought tears to the eyes of many.

Are You Being Properly Fitted? That is the Question-Are You?

A great many people are having trouble with their feet and don't know why. They think they have tender feet. The trouble is you are not properly fitted. If you have a narrow foot don't let anyone spoil it by putting a short wide shoe on it. A short shoe bunches the toes up and makes swollen joints. Then you think your foot wide.

Come in and be fitted right and see the difference.

DR. J. F. TRUE & CO., Auburn, Maine

Words are inadequate to pay fitting tribute to the memory of Franklin Clement Robinson, late of Bowdoin College. The best tributes, the enduring monument to his memory is to be found in the record which he left. To have shaped the lives, to have helped to form the characters, to have influenced for good thousands of young men of this generation, is a life work that needs few comments. Such was the career of Prof. Robinson. The pity is that it might not have been prolonged, for the world needs, more than it needs anything else, men of his staunch worth and sterling qualities.

Secretary MacVeagh has given an order for the purchase of a machine to laundry United States notes which it is estimated when put into general use at all the sub-treasuries will save the government a million dollars a year. Experiments in washing and ironing notes, have been conducted for some time at the bureau of engraving and printing. These convinced the officials that the method was a practical one, the estimate being made that eighty per cent of the issues could be retained and the life of a bill doubled. All germs have been destroyed by antiseptic solutions. The first machine will cost a thousand dollars and will be installed in the treasury department building, and later one will be installed in each Sub-Treasury building.

International Boundary

The international boundary between the United States and Canada, along the southeast coast of Maine has been fixed, according to a treaty signed this week by Ambassador Bryce and Secretary Knox, as running from a point in Passamaquoddy Bay between Treat Island and Friar Head and extending thru the bay to the middle of Grand Manan channel. The treaty has been submitted to the Senate. The line was located without resort to the arbitration provided for in the treaty of 1908 between Great Britain and the United States.

The true location of the line has been a subject of contention for more than a century, the intent and meaning of the treaties of 1783 and 1814 and the award of the commissioner appointed under the latter treaty never having been accepted as final. Under the treaty of 1908 it was provided that each government should submit agreements in the matter and that if no agreement was reached within a fixed time, it should be arbitrated. Altho the time fixed had expired, the two governments have settled the question without resort to arbitration.

Beautifying The World's Cities.

Next month there is to be opened in Berlin an international exhibition that thirty years ago would have been thought ridiculous. If, sixty odd years ago, the idea upon which it is founded could have entered the heads of the commission empowered by a state legislature to lay out, Northward, the city which now occupies Manhattan Island, our National metropolis might today be as great or a greater community, but one with imposing vistas and noble proportions, instead of the generally ugly and monotonous desert of regular "blocks" that it is. William Penn is to be forgiven for planning Philadelphia as we now have it, a city in which the visitor stranger may know where he wishes to go, but will need a day or a week to get there, for Penn had no notion that his regularly designed town would ever attain its present bulk. In fact it is only in very recent days that we have waked to the importance of combining beauty with compactness and ease of access in our great centers of population.

the country ever had. For a long time the charm of Paris was reckoned in with the rather contemptible frivolity of its unjust reputation. It is only very recently that municipal charm, as exemplified in Haussmann's Paris, has been found a decidedly paying proposition—paying in many senses of the word. As undoubtedly as attractiveness in a city draws permanent and passing population, just as undoubtedly it adds to the contentment of that population. As certainly as it increases trade, it conduces to political calm. From every point of view beauty and charm are things to be striven for, in any city, large or small, in any corner of the world. As the idea becomes familiar, the one strange element about it is that we should all have been so slow to seize it. This coming exhibition to be opened at the Royal Academy of Art in Berlin is the first of its kind ever to be held, but it is morally certain not to be the last.

Strange though we may think it, England will present by far the most favorable showing among all the countries who will bring their achievements or their plans to the exchange. In recent years London has been subjected to improvements of revolutionary character and of breath taking cost. Nothing anywhere like them has been attempted elsewhere. New York continues its hoisting of tremendous buildings. There are in progress there developments in the transportation facilities that are of Titanic scope. One after the other bridges have been reared, or tunnels have been dug, on a scale that man has never worked upon before. But after all, these things are of utilitarian nature. Convenience was not the aim in London. They have been knocking down long lines of buildings there, not only to widen important streets, but to provide the city with noble aspects and give its busy people uplifting sweeps of view. It may be hard to believe that such investments "pay," but the experience of other great cities is that they do. This coming exhibition is proof of world wide acceptance of the fact that they do.

It is comforting to learn that our own exhibit at the Berlin show will take high rank with the rest. At present the improvement of our great cities has remained in the shape of blue print designs and dreams. But not one of them is without its plan which in time will be realized. New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati—each has its proud and carefully elaborated scheme for transfiguring itself. They look forbiddingly ambitious on paper, but with the swelling of the municipal purse and the broadening of public opinion that goes steadily on, who can say that they are impossible of realization?

So much for the more grandiose aspects of city beautification. But of far greater importance are the strides that have been made in many cities of the world toward a more healthful and charming housing of the workers. We have a few model garden cities to point to here in America, though in this respect we have been outstripped by England and Germany. There is probably nothing in existence to match with the English model towns of Hampstead and Bourneville, though in Berlin, in isolated centers in France and Italy, and in the larger towns of Scandinavia, laudable efforts have been put forth to house especially the workers in quarters that shall be sanitary, cheap, but above all else beautiful. We have much to learn in this respect, but once seized with the idea we shall probably go forward with it in the enthusiasm with which all things proceed in America. The Berlin exhibition promises an imposing picture of what has already been accomplished in city embellishment—which means the embellishment of human life. It is to be hoped that it will attract and impress at least a fraction of our annual tourist procession abroad.

"The bread-making qualities of flour are due entirely to the kind of wheat. Nature gives to wheat, and flour, all the strength they possess."
—R. JAMES ABERNATHY, in "The American Miller."

WILLIAM TELL FLOUR is made from the finest specially selected OHIO Red Winter Wheat. President John W. Every shipment of grain must come up to the long established William Tell standard in every respect.

Ask any expert. He will tell you that the whitest—most delicious bread—the lightest biscuits, the kind that melt in your mouth—are made from the flour of this wheat. That's the only kind that gives into—

Weak Hearts

"I was terribly afflicted with my heart. At times it seemed to miss every other beat. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until my trouble was all gone—it has never returned."
—R. R. PENN, Springfield, Iowa.

One person in every four has a weak heart. Some are born weak, some become weak from disease, others by over-exertion. If you have palpitation, fluttering, irregular pulse, short breath, oppressed feeling in chest, smothering or faint spells, you may know your heart is weak. There is nothing better for a weak heart than

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.
It has brought relief to thousands, it should to you, even in cases of long standing.
The first bottle will benefit; if not, your druggist will return your money.

E. Merritt & Sons have reduced the price on nearly all kinds of grain and feeds. The prospect of large grain crops in the West is having its effect on prices.

John Manning formerly employed by Leighton & Feeley, has accepted a position with John Watson & Co.

You can buy a watch from pocket peddlers for $1.00 down and $1.00 every 29th day of February, but remember they always have some scheme up their sleeve to sting a man. Be thoughtful when buying a watch and go to a reliable jeweler. Jewett & Co., 76 Main street.

Hon. Bert L. Fletcher of Bangor was in Houlton, Monday on business.

In another column of this issue we publish the annual statement of the Vermont Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Montpelier, Vermont. Organized in 1828, this Company is one of the strongest doing business in New England. It added to its surplus in the year 1909, nearly half a million dollars. Any one interested in insurance rates should write the General Agents, F. H. & C. C. Plummer, at Portland, Me.

Rights of Purchasers.

The man who purchases a pound is entitled to sixteen ounces, not part paper, carton, box or can, but of contents and anything else is fraud. It takes thirty-six inches to make a yard, not thirty-two or four. Four quarts make a gallon, not three and one-half. Yet in every department there is loss to the purchaser today because he does not get what he purchases. Drastic action has been taken to put a stop to the short measure, false bottom strawberry baskets, etc., but these only indicate a general condition against which no strong protest has yet been made. If the law of the State is sufficient to insure the scaling of all weights and measures, let that law be fairly and impartially enforced. If the law is lacking in any regard let the people demand additional measures the coming winter. Common honesty makes this necessary. It is the public which is or should be interested for every one is a purchaser.

Accused of selling short-weight parcels of butter, the president of a great dairy concern declares that there is no deception; that the company is merely getting something back for the cartons holding the goods.

This is a working principle which does not stop with butter. If we want our candy in dainty boxes with ribbons, paper-lace trimmings and sugar tongs, we are going to pay for the box, not by any means for a straight pound of sweets. It is the same way with fancy packages of tea, prunes, bacons or dried beef.

Fixings of this description add to the cost of living. The question is whether they are forced upon purchasers or whether they are inventions which an aesthetic public thinks it must have.

In Buying a PIANO.

Design of case, quality of tone, durability and price are the four strong points required. These are all found in the ..

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Housewife Notes.

Do not forget to congratulate mother on her birthday.

Equal parts of skimmed milk and water, warmed, will remove fly specks from varnished woodwork or furniture.

Don't see why the oven doesn't bake good? Just scrape the soot and ashes out from under it and you will get an eye-opener on that subject.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull, heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free of all distress." Sold by all druggists.

Mattresses will wear better and be more easily handled if made in three pieces of equal size, two to lie lengthwise and one across. The wear can be distributed evenly, and they are especially convenient in case of illness, as they are easily moved and aired.

Blessings on the wife who sits down without a bit of grumbling and mends all the holes in the socks of the entire family every week. Every week, mind you! If she did not there would soon be nothing but one great big hole to tackle, and that would mean money for new pairs.

The prudent young man who is looking for a wife who will "wear well," takes note of the appearance of her mother. If she is neat and trim, and looks as if she had help with the work and kindly and loving care, he may safely infer that her daughter will make a good wife.

What a Summer Cold May Do.

A summer cold if neglected is just as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other season. Do not neglect it. Take Foley's Honey and Tar promptly. It loosens the cough, soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, and expels the cold from the system." Sold by all druggists.

People who throw away oatmeal or any other breakfast cereal, are throwing good money to the hens and losing the basis for the best gems they ever ate. You don't need a certain measure of cereal for the gems. Take your regular receipt and let the cereal take the place of part of the flour. You'll be glad.

Unless especially directed to the contrary by the physician, all medicines which are swallowed in tablet or pill form should be immediately followed by a drink of some liquid, as water, milk, tea, etc. Concentrated medicines if allowed to dissolve in close contact with the walls of the stomach often irritate the organ.

Glad To Recommend Them. Mr. E. Weakley, Kokomo, Ind., says: "After taking Foley Kidney Pills, the severe backache left me, my kidneys became stronger, the secretions natural and my bladder no longer pained me. I am glad to recommend Foley Kidney Pills." In a yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

What Everybody Ought To Know.

That Foley Kidney Pills contain just the ingredients necessary to tone, strengthen and regulate the action of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by all druggists.

only results in economy and beauty for the home, but it fills our lungs with fresh air, sets blood to quick circulation and thus purifies it and brings the light of health and vigor to our eye that indoor or sedentary life can never create.

Whatever else we do or do not do this spring, let us resolve to live out doors more than we ever have before. When we cannot get out to work, let us fling wide our doors and windows and thus bring the outdoors to us.

It's Always Bad.

THE BEST OF BACKS ARE BAD WHEN THEY ACHE, AND HOULTON PEOPLE KNOW IT

A bad back is always bad. Bad at night when bedtime comes. Just as bad in the morning. Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it? Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill? If you don't, some Houlton people do.

Read a case of it:

Mrs. Fred Stevens, 38 Green St., Houlton, Me., says: "Last January I was taken with a slight attack of La Grippe and was in bed for over a week. When I recovered I found that my kidneys were affected. I suffered greatly from backache and a terrible bearing-down feeling, through my loins. After exerting myself I found it difficult to stoop and instead of getting better, I continued to grow worse. Through reading a pamphlet in which Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended, I was induced to try them, procuring a supply at Perk's drug store. I received so much benefit from the use of the first box that I continued taking the remedy until I was rid of backache and felt better in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and vigorous exercise in these gardens not take no other.
