FIELD DAY DATES SET.

ACTION TAKEN BY REPRESENTA-TIVE COMMITTEE TUESDAY EVENING.

Chebeague's Annual Carnival Will Take Place August 17 to 20 This Year. Quick Work and Much Enthusiasm the Watchwords Now.

In a preliminary meeting Tuesday evening at The Hamilton, Chebeague, the first definite action toward set-ting the date and discussing plans for the now famous Annual Field Day Carnival was taken by a representa-tive party of gentlemen from each of the leading houses. The notice for the gathering had been given at the island hostelries the day before and a gathering of active workers was brought out. These will be added to by others chosen from the hotels and cottages until a general commit-tee of about 25 to 30 is formed, from which the executive committee will be chosen. The election of officers resulted in the choice of Mr. A. P. Bicknell, chairman, and Mr. Thomas J. Bissell, secretary. The treasur-ership was left open until the next meeting of the committee, which takes place immediately after the mass meeting at Hill Crest tonight, at which time a sub-committee will report plans for each day and the matter of finances will be discussed. As a general outline, it has been suggested that the opening day, which was set for Saturday for various reasons, be given to a champion-ship baseball match between the crack Chebeague team and a picked team from the summer visitors, and also a tennis tournament. Sunday could be quietly observed by an orchestra sacred concert or possibly a good speaker could be procured.

Monday and Tuesday will then be given over to the field sports. The Carnival of last year was one of unqualified success and was a great credit to the island and the committee will have to work hard and must have the active co-operation and sup-port of every porson on the ishlid during the next ten days to arrange a program that will compare with it, for where three weeks were taken last year in preparation, there are only ten days left for active work for this summer's observation.

The mass meeting tonight is held in the interest of everyone on the island and residents, cottagers and hotel people are alike urged to present, hear the plans discussed, and be prepared to put their shoulder to the wheel individually.

ty will take place soon. The matter which has been under consideration, that of necessary repairs on the pres-ent wharf or better still, the possibility of having a new one, has been brought to the notice of Portland city government officials, but, while summer travel is now at its height, it as been decided that work could not be carried on at the wharf at present time. The erection of several bath houses is being agitated considerably, and if this plan is carried out by the Improvement society this season, it will certainly meet the hearty appreciation of all the summer visi tors staying here. Some suitable place for the accomodation and convenience of those who go to the shore daily for bathing or swimming ought to have been provided ere this. It must be a source of much annoyance to those having just come from a "plunge" in the sea, to be obliged to trudge back to their cottages (many located at considerable distance from the shore), in wet bathing suits, much bedraggled with sand and dirt, before the necesary changing of one's clothes can be made.

The last full July week of 1907 will long remembered for the disagreeable weather. Dense fog has hung over the harbor almost continually, making navigation somewhat hazardous for the island steamers. Out of door sports scheduled to take place, also various sailing and fishing parties have been seriously interfered with in consequence, and necessitated an indefinite postponement. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather on Friday last, when a regular "Southeaster" had set in, accompanied by a nasty rain and fog, a party of summer visitors staying at this island, were The last full July week of 1907 will

So finally Friday was the day planned for the trip, and "whether the weather be fair or foul, blow high or low, we go," and the intentions of the party were carried out to the letter. party were carried out to the letter. And despite the fog and rain, nearing the appointed hour for a start, some the appointed hour for a start, some of the party were to be seen coming from various parts of the island, equipped in rain coats, and rubbers, some carrying umbrellas, in addition to lunch baskets, fish poles, and other essentials for the trip. At eleven o'clock some twenty-five people had assembled at Jones' Landing, where the schooner "Mineola." owned by the schooner "Mineola," owned by Captain Randall, was in readiness for a start, having all sails furled. Owing a start, having all sails furled. Owing to the unusually dense fog and dead calm prevailing, it was necessary to have the "Tourist" tow the schooner out to sea. Notwithstanding the bad weather everybody seemed to rather enjoy the novelty of the situation, and the "fog and rain" party, nothing daunted, put in a good full day at fishing, returning at six o'clock with fishing, returning at six o'clock, with some three barrels of fish. Some of the party declared the trip to be the "best yet," for a good time. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Perry of Port-

SHALL WE WALK THE PLANK?

Although this heading savors of piratical lore, the reference is not to Robert Kidd or any of his merry men, but rather to a more practical and everyday matter. Visitors and summer guests at Chebeague (as well as all other sections of this beautiful Bay) may be divided into two classes -first, those who bathe or otherwise disport themselves in the bright waters of the bay, and secondly, those who for various reasons do not care to go into the water, but do love to stroll along the beaches, and breathe the salty air in close proximity to old ocean. It is for these, that is to say all these summer friends, that we offer this thought. The beach at Hamilton's, at the eastern end of Chebeague, may fairly be said to be the most popular and, on the whole, the handiest bathing beach on the island -taking into consideration its nearness to the centers of our summer population. A common objection to the more sandy and flat beaches of the South Shore of New England is the inconvenience one meets in walking, and the uncomfortable sifting of sand into one's shoes— especially the high-heeled, low-cut style worn by the American young woman at the present time. We know of but one remedy for this inconvenience-and that is a plank walk, properly constructed. Not only would such a structure, placed at the bathing beach just referred to, stretching say from the new wharf westerly to the other end of the beach proper, be a great relief to the tender feet feelings of many, but it would also afford to all the opportunity of taking many a "constitutional" along the shore, with comfort and enjoyment-and moreover would equip us with a neat structure, pleasing to the eye, and, therefore, an added attraction to tourists.

THE IDEAL "BEE WOMAN." How She Would Manage Her Colonies of Busy Workers-Her

Attributes

"In this day, when so many doors are opening to women, I am surprised that so few adopt beekeeping as a means of support," says a woman beekeeper. "A 'bee woman' who would succeed must have lots of energy and push, and, above all, must not be easily discouraged. She must be willing to work hard, and often early and late during part of the year. Furthermore, she must have come under the fascinating spell which the 'busy bee' seems to have such power to throw over those who seek to know her mys-

"As beekeeper she must have a good degree of health ad vigor, especially if she works without an assistant, because there is of necessity much lifting, and often many hours upon the feet. Yet it is surprising how much hard work one can endure in the open air when one's interest is thoroughly enlisted. There is probably no more healthful occupation, and for those broken in health from mental overwork or close confinement indoors the business is ideal.

"It is not necessary that a woman should have no fear of bees on the start in order to become a successful aplarist. Such fear, of course, must be overcome rapidly or prove an inconvenient obstacle; but experience shows that acquaintance rarely fails to establish relationships of the most pleasant character between the busy little honey makers and their owners. To be sure, there are the stings, and one must make up her mind to re-ceive them occasionally as gracefully as possible. Fortunately the human system soon becomes immune to the poison, and beyond a momentary unpleasantness the beekeeper takes little notice of the matter. Occasionally a person falls to win immunity from suffering, and even finds it dangerous to risk being stung. Such persons should give up all thought of beekeeping.

"The ideal bee woman will be willing to go slowly-very slowly-at first. The tendency is to want to rush things and begin with a large number of colonies when one knows nothing whatever about the business. Two or three colonies are enough at first. If she succeeds with these, she can easily increase the number, and if she fails, her loss will be great enough. It is safe advice to urge the beginner to keep out of debt as nearly as possible. After the first investment for two or three colonies it is better to make the apiary pay its way as nearly as possible.

"From the nature of things-the variableness of the season, the varied honey flow, etc.—beekeeping always must be an uncertain business, and, therefore, it is not well to depend entirely upon it for a living. A good way is to combine poultry raising and fruitgrowing with it. Women are adepts in both of these lines, and a few stands of bees will add materially to the income and not demand too large a part of one's time. Then if the season is poor, more attention can be given to poultry and less to bees, and vice versa.

"The profits from beekeeping neces sarily vary largely. Much depends upon the knack of the beekeeper in being able to get her colonies into prime working order just at the right time, and so manage her business as to keep expenses down and to market her honey advantageously. Iu Salt River, Ariz., where conditions in many respects are favorable, it is common to hear experienced beekeepers claim an average annual net income of $3 and even $4 a colony.

"I should urge one contemplating bee-keeping to invest in one or more good textbooks upon the subject and subscribe to at least one reliable bee journal. If this investment is made for six months before the purchase of the first bees and the intervening time is faithfully spent in study, so much the better."

Negroes at Senator Morgan's Funeral A notable feature of the solemn de pot gathering which awaited the com ing of the funeral train was the presence of a committee of fifty well dressed and intelligent negro men of Selma. The committee was collected and arranged under the direction of Professors Hudson and Clark, well known negro teachers of Selma. In their work they were given the hearty co-operation of the negro peo ple of Selma, and they had no diffi culty in securing the attendance of fifty of the leading negroes to pay tribute to Senator Morgan.

The thoughtful act was appreclated by the white citizens of Selma, and the committee was given one of the most important places at the depot and the members of the committee with their negro friends were given an excellent opportunity of gazing into the face of the distinguished dead as the body lay in state at the church, and they were given a fine position at the cemetery. Acting under the suggestion of Rev. W. H. Mixon, every negro in Selma ceased his work for a few minutes at 12 o'clock in honor of Senator Morgan. This feature of the day in Selma was favorably commented upon as showing the relations between the two races in Selma, perhaps the most typical black belt city of Alabama.-Montgomery Advertiser.

Employes Would Abolish Tips. The International Society of Hotel and Restaurant Employes wants to abolish the waiters' tip. This is true, because the national convention of that society, now in session at the Terrace Gardens, on Third avenue, is going to knock out the tipping system, if it has to resort to legislation and take up all the convention's time in doing it. Oscar Hahn of Geneva, Germany, has come all the way here for this purpose alone. Tips, he says, are the degradation of waiters, and self-respect drops like a breaking plate of ham when any waiter in America, Europe, or Australia takes a dime, a quarter or more. The idea of the International society is to abolish the 10, 25 and 50c. pass-outs all over the country and force the hotel keepers and restaurant owners to pay their waitDisappearing Monarch

T is noticeable that the early western travelers speak of the grizzly as the "white bear." It is so described by Lewis and Clark, and James O. Pattle, narrating his father's expedition in 1824, spoke of the great number and unusual ferocity of these "great white bears." So great were their numbers in that early day, that in a single day's journey Pattle counted two hundred and twenty of them, eight of which had attacked the party and were killed. This was on September 15, 1824, while the party was passing through the territory now occupied by Cheyenne County, Colorado. A few days later, further south, the grizzlies became so numerous that twenty men were re quired to guard the camp from their onslaughts each night. So much for the 'solitary" nature of the grizzly back in "the twenties." Writing of the period of the early "forties," General Freemont, in his memoirs, speaks of having seen great herds of these monsters feeding gregariously under the oaks of San Bernardino, in California. Such testimony tends to show that the great grizzly was not always the lone wanderer that we now know him to be, and tends to show, moreover, that he once liked the valleys better than his present dreary and solitary abode. Indeed, the explorers of the West found him qually at home in the parched fastnesses of the Great Basin, in the fertile valleys or among the ice-bound peaks, whether feeding upon berries or bison, herbs or human flesh, and everywhere, at all times, "monarch of all he surveyed.

But he is passing. In the places where, seventy-five years ago, two hundred of his powerful tribe could be counted in a day's journey, he is now but a tradition and a memory, and he is a lucky sportsman who gets one shot at grizzly in a lifetime. Driven to the inaccessible retreats of the mountains, he is making his last stand against a race which has already robbed him of those myriad herds of buffalo, antelope, and elk which were once his prey, and from his icy summits where only the American eagle soars, in solitary grandeur he looks down upon a hereditary dominion which is to be his no more forever.

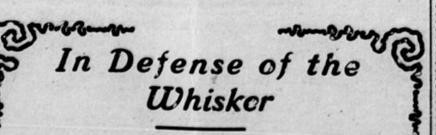

We have known him but a hundred years. Was there ever so mighty a monarch with reign so brief? We cannot compute the exact rate at which he is disappearing (it is far easier to get at the mortuary statistics of his enemies), but, as events go, it is likely that there will still be tigers in India and lions in Africa long after the last echo of the grizzly's growl has died among the peaks and precipices of his mountain home. But he will die as he lived—die as becomes an American monarch—"the gamest of the game."— Harper's Weekly.

gument. . The . . warmy Lesson of the Reversal of a Famous Precedent Ey the Editor of "Judge."

HAT the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina has become a part of the imperishable humor of the South. The singular thing about the renowned aconicism is that, while in its origin it expressed the bibulous proclivities of two persons, it came to be applied eventually to all who attained to executive honors in the Carolinas, and, by implication, to the citizens represented by them. In other words, not one in a million remembers what particular governor of North Carolina said to a particular governor of South Carolina that "it is a long time between drinks;" but the great majority of the American people take it for granted that when a governor of North Carolina meets a governor of South Carolina that remark punctuates and interpellates the conversation. Recently Governor Glenn of North Carolina was introduced to Governor Heyward of South Carolina by Governor Woodruff of Connecticut, who remarked facetiously, "I expect the usual salutation." Governor Heyward was visibly embarrassed and responded, "I beg your pardon, gentlemen, but I am a teetotaler." At this Governor Glenn was visibly relieved, and quickly added, "Don't apologize, governor, for in that we are both prohibitionists." Now, here are two governors of the convivial who expressly revoke the ancient laconicism and enact a new formula. But here again is a further singular fact. The new enactment will never se known, while the ancient reputation will go on. Of course, in simple justice, the cold water pronouncement of the two governors ought to go as far in establishing a gubernatorial precedent and a state character as the earlier pronouncement went in establishing the opposite. But it won't. These two episodes furnish an admirable starting point for all sorts of moralizing, both grave and gay. Just now we are thinking how foolish prejudices begin and survive in spite of and contrary to the truth. For example, it has not been so many years since a world of romance revolved about our rich men, our "Captains of Industry." Their initiative, their enterprise, their daring, resulting in great achievements for themselves and the country, were the subject of admiring comment and ecstatic contemplation. Of course, the romanticizing about wealth was foolish, and for some years we suffered the evil consequences of the adoration of the golden calf. Of late, adoration in certain quarters has turned to derision, and though wealth is worshipped as of old, those who have it have in some sort come under a mysterious and virulent condemnation. Presently we shall see, perhaps, that the later mood is as foolish and fatuous as the former. Rich men were never the angels they were pictured by a fawning press, and we venture to think they are not now the sheer villains the raging muck-rakers would have us believe.

••••••• T is one of the most disquieting signs of the times that a world-wide conspiracy against whiskers is on foot. Let it be the duty of us who realize the sterling virtues of the whisker to check this treasonable revolt. I have read with horror in the daily press that, beginning on May 1, all conductors on the Burlington railroad system must be clean * shaven. Surely no patriot will tolerate this outrage.

Even now the waiters in all the hotels and restaurants in Paris are on strike-noble heroes!-in order to reassert and vindicate the sacred right of man to wear whiskers. My hand tremibles with pride while I write that these brave souls have refused with scorn the offers of the ignoble proprietors to bribe them with higher pay if they will but wear clean faces. What heart can fail to throb at the heroic reply of these martyrs?

"Keep your paltry gold," they have cried. "We will live poorly, starve if necessary, rather than lose one millimetre of whisker!

All in vain did the treacherous Parisians persuade the ingenuous Paul Adam to publish two columns of whisker-attack. He says forsooth that the smooth-shaven face of ancient Rome is becoming prevalent in America. Is it, forsooth? Then let Americans tremble. For when the Re came smooth shaven they decayed, degenerated, vanished from the face of the earth. For, as the poet truly says, it was whiskers that were "The glory that was Greece
And the grandeur that was Rome."

Last Thursday night the annual "blackberry rain" visited this section and an immense amount of water fell. There is a tradition or legend which has become a popular belief that if rain falls on June 20 there will be no blackberries. The origin of this lies in the supposed fact that if the heavy rain comes when the knocks off the pollen and results in failure of the fruit. Blackberries are usually in full bloom about June 5, hence the "legend." This year the blackberries were in full bloom a little earlier than usual, the vines being unusually full of blossoms. When the rain came last Thursday night the blackberry bushes were white with blooms, and it will be interesting to note whether there is any truth in the story that the "blackberry rain" destroys the prospects for berries.-Montgomery News.

Marking Historic Spots. One by one the historic spots

Thomaston are being marked. Next in the list will be the site of the old mansion Montpelier, famed as the home of General Henry Knox. Where that palatial structure stood will be placed a huge bowlder, marked presumably with a bronze tablet telling to the public where Washington's war secretary once resided. The bowlder was dislodged from the town farm at St. George and weighs twelve tons. The task of conveying it to Thomaston was begun last week, when 20 horses hauled it to the main road. The memorial will be erected by Henry Knox Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Thomaston, and the cost has been estimated as high as $250.

Blessing the Crops.

The interesting custom, dating from the fifth century, of blessing the crops was carried out recently at Edburton, a Sussex hamlet near the South Downs.

The rector, accompanied by nearly 100 parishioners, took up a position' in the open on the side of the downs, and a reverent and impressive service was held, the blessing of the Almighty being invoked upon the crops and an appeal being made for an abundant harvest. The service was concluded wiith the hymn, "We Plough the Fields," which was heartily sung.-London Standard.

The Peanut Trade.

Peanuts have become an important article of American foreign commerce in the last six years, especially on the import side, in spite of the fact that we produce about 12,-000,000 bushels a year. Peanut imports have grown in value from $6000 in 1900 to $500,000 this year, while our exports thereof will approximate $300,000. When this fiscal year closes we shall have to list peanuts for nearly $1,000,000 of our total foreign commerce for the year, according to the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

The peanut acreage in this country increased 150 percent and production 233 percent between 1890 and 1900. There are under cultivation now $17,000 acres producing 11,905,000 bushels. The crop is concenginia supplying one-third of it, North Carolina another third.—New York

Birch Island

On Monday a most successful clambake was held by the Islanders. About thirty were present. The entertain-ment ended by a vaudeville act by Mr. John Carter.

In the evening following a candy pull was given at the Ward cottage, to which many of the cottagers were invited. The plazzas were prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns.

Littlejohn's I.

The Friday evening dance at the Rockmere proved the social event of the week and brought together cottagers and guests in gala array in nuch greater numbers than before. As on the previous week the Hub house party contributed a group of ety of the occasion with great heartistayers, too, for they danced from start to finish.

Among the recent comers to the island are Mrs. Titus of Newark, N. J., and her daughter, Miss Maud Titus, who will be remembered as the young girl who won a Carnegie medal some years ago for saving a man's life off Gt. Chebeague.

Mrs. Titus has been for many years a regular visitor to Littlejohn and admits that she finds it difficult to stay for her summer. Mrs. Frank Locke, another lover of Littlejohn, and one who knows it well, arrived last week to join her husband. Mrs. Locke's charming personality is never more delightfully shown than when speaking of the beauties of the island and United States and Japan.

the pleasures she has found here in eding summers.

A party of guests from the Rock-mere made a trip to Orr's island via motor boat, and while the ladies vis-ited points of interest on the island, bought picture postals and colored prints the men kept to the boat and explored the shores with great satis-faction to themselves. The return was made in particularly good time to avoid one of those threatening show-ers which have acted as spoil sport so frequently during the past we Mr. Chandler and family, who have been for a month past occupants of the Callowhill Log Cabin, left Aug. 1st for Turner, Me., for a week's stay previous to their return to their home

Mrs. A. M. Stedman of Columbia, S. C., spent a few days at Littlejoun dur-ing the past week with her friend Mrs. Flummerfelt, and left with many expressions of admiration for the beauty and restful charm of the islin Roslindale.

One of the most interesting sojourners at the Rockmere House is Dr. L. S. Thompson of Los Angeles, Cal. Dr. Thompson was for 30 years gov-ernment surgeon for the Hawaiian Islands. He was appointed in 1876 by Kalakaua's government and served continuously until three years ago when he resigned. He has a great admiration for the islands where he has lived so long and for many of the customs and characteristics of the people. Dr. Thompson has been a great traveller in other lands, many of them remote and far out of the track of the average tourist. His observation and critical faculty have enabled him to fix with the clearness of a camera these impressions gathered in his journeyings and with the skill of the true narrator he can give to others out of the storehouse of his wonderful memory until they view with his own eyes the scenes waich he portrays Mr. Frank Dickerman and family returned Monday from a ten days' cruise in the launch Minna through some of the most picturesque of the Maine rivers including Sassomona, that parrow and turbulent stream which forms a highway between Bath and Boothbay. There was the usual pleas urable excitement in making cautious progress through the whirlpools or boilers" as they are called in the vernacular and coming out into the gala dress the beautiful fleet the visiting yacht club. After touchcities the Minna arrived at Littlejohn, just escap ing the fog which very soon down upon the little island and left it apparently alone in a vast space.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mr. Lewis Chase of the firm of F. W. Mason & Co., stock brokers, spent Sunday upon the island and will return Thursday for a longer stay.

The Sunday evening sing at the Rockmere disclosed some very fine voices among the guests and several solo numbers were given with a rendering which brought the impromptu musicale up to the level of a high class concert. A group of songs by Miss Hersey of Medford, whose mezzo soprano voice has the sympathetic quality so rare and so deeply admired, and selections by Mr. Edward Hall of Peabody, which showed his splendid baritone to good advantage, gave es-

Poor Food Law Lemonade

A number of small North Delaware street girls had opened a lemonade stand at the edge of the curb. The drink was in a large glass pitcher, with sliced lemons floating appetizingly at the top. One small girl, with a red crayon, had lettered the word "artificial" and leaned it against the pitcher.

"What's that for?" inquired a pas-

HOW THE "CONSCIENCE FUND" LIFTS THE LOAD OF CARE.

that the world is growing better or that the people are becoming con

For the fiscal year closing June 30 ed to this fund amounted to only $5. 789.90, being a decided de rease from that of the year 1906, when it was $7,-343.49. In 1905 it was $21.336.92, a year in which conscience got in its work in good shape, but which was not the largest received in any one fisfund now goes considerably over $550,-000, every cent coming from those who wished to make atonement for sins committed in the way of pilfering from the government.

It may be that the sojourn of some of the sinners at the Moundsville pensomething to do with the decrease of government employes has unquestionably had much to do with the fallnow the opportunities to pilfer from Uncle Sam as in the days a-gone, when laxer methods prevailed throughout the entire government. It is true that once in a great while a large amount is restored. For some time after the war, when all sorts of stealings were rife in all parts of the country, consciences of the criminals seem to have reached a very respectable proportion and penitence found vent in a regular cornucopia of regrets expressed in cash or its equivalent.

"The decline of the fund," said one of the Treasury officials, "is not due to the fact that the world is growing better, but that people have not the conscience they once had. That the world is growing worse there can be no doubt, and that little monitor called conscience is not overtaxed. There is just as much small pilferings in the government as there ever was. We seldom hear of these, but occasionally one of the 'plungers' is caught up with and made to pay the penalty. Not all the 'plungers' are caught, either, by a long jump. In a word, you may say that conscience is simply not doing its work; it is held in check." The history of the fund is not without interest and entertainment. The account was opened in Septmber, 1811, with a contribution of less than $1, which was forwarded to the Treasury by a conscience-stricken resident of New York, who stated that he had taken the amount from the government and wanted to make restitution. Officials of the department state that it was not known at that time what o do with the money, and a simple memorandum was made and the slip of paper filed in one of the drawers, where it remained undisturbed for many years. It appeared that there would never be another contribution of this character, and, in fact, it was not until 1861, soon after the breaking out of the Civil War, when a bundle $6,000 in bonds, accompanied by a statement that the restitution which had long been due the government was prompted by conscience. This gave the account its name, "Conscience Fund." It has since remained open, and all amounts returned to the Treasury in consequence of the prickings of the inward monitor (which in too many instances seems to be ironclad) have been credited to it, covered into the general treasury as a miscellaneous receipt, and may be used like other assets of the Treasury for any purpose that Congress may deem proper.

Letters with inclosures intended for the conscience fund are usually ad dressed to the freasurer, but they go to the public moneys division, which makes note of the amounts and deposits them with the treasurer of the United States. The sums received are almost always in cash, stamps, with now and then a draft. They are never accompanied by the names of the senders, except once in a while in the cases of persons who have made mistakes as to payments of customs duties. The written communications relating to them are very brief as a rule. If otherwise, they contain elaborate apologies and appeals. Occasionally letters are signed by clergymen at the request of penitents. Remittances are received almost weekly -occasionally the receipts are two or three a week. In forwarding mcney for the conscience fund the sen lers frequently request that acknowledgment shall be made by publication in the newspapers, and this is nearly always done, for the local news; oper men are generally in evidence to gather in such items. A great many of the letters accompanying the remittances are preserved, and the lifting of the red tape of the department gives some interesting reading. Many of these let ters on file are from jocose correspondents, who have not scrupled to make light of so serious a matter as to address the treasurer pretended concience letters, whose humor is far in excess of the money inclosed. One of these letters reads:

"Inclosed please find 75 cents, coin of the realm, won from a United States paymaster at draw poker, and which I am convinced rightfully belongs to Uncle Samuel. I have carried it for nearly six months, and dare not trust myself with it any longer. My conscience calls for relief-my harassed nature calls for a good night's sleep, phia Record

What is known as the "Conscience I can have neither so long as I carry Fund" of the Treasury Department is this terrible witness. Now I can feel growing beautifully less, indicating a realization of the proverb, 'Be virthat the world is growing better or tuous and you will be happy.' Now I can feel an assurance that in years yet to come it can be said of my children (yet to come), 'they were of poor but the total amount received and credit. honest parents.' Please acknowledge through local press, and request them to put in double-leaded brevier, editorial page."

A conscience-stricken department clerk wrote:

"A clear conscience softens the hardest bed, and as I am a poor govcal year, since the account was opened ernment clerk my bed is very hard in 1811. The total amount of this and needs softening, so I herewith return $1 which was overpaid me last payday, and, besides, I have loafed a good deal lately."

Here's a letter which has the true ring:

"Inclosed is a check for $190. I will briefly explain. I have been in itentiary and the narrow escape of the United States service and a part of others from that institution have the time with rank which entitled me to two servants. I drew pay for two, the fund. The close watch kept on but actually had but one. It was the common practice of officers to do this, and the paymasters were well aware ing off of the fund, for there is not of it. I entered the army poor and sick-too poor, in fact, to get along well without a clear conscience."

One of the largest contributions ever received was $12,000, and it was accompanied by this letter:

"I am sending you herewith inclosed $12,000 which is to go to the use of the United States government. Years ago I defrauded the government of money, but now I have returned it all and am paying fourfold in accordance with the teachings of the Scriptures. The way of the transgressor is hard, and no one but God knows how I have suffered."

There are many such letters as these, but in a large number of instances the contributions are made without any explanations whatever. On several occasions it has happened that people have cut bills in two, sending one-half to the Secretary of the Treasury, and the other half to the treasurer, for the sake of safety. There are persons who do not entertain absolute faith in the integrity of government officials. One man forwarded $10 to the conscience fund, saying: "Pay this money where it belongs and keep your record clear." An envelope postmarker Bealeton, Va., contained six two-cent stamps and a sheet of paper upon which was written, "I misused six stamps and am now returning them." A remittance of $3.40 was received from a man who wrote that he felt sorry for having beaten his passage on a government train during the war. It is a melancholy thing to be obliged to say that the swindles against the government which bear such fruit of repentance seem to be a sadly small percentage of the multifarious chats that are practiced undetected and apparently unregretted by those who perpetrate them. A fraud on the government of a comparatively innocent sort is often practiced in the army. A quartermaster finds his stores short by 100 tent pins, five anvils, and fourteen sledge hammers. Very likely it is not his fault; such things will happen. Presently a soldier deserts and disappears. Incidentally to the report of desertion sent to Washington, mention is made of 100 tent pins, five anvils and fourteen sledge hammers as having disappeared with the delinquent. Tho latter is supposed to be walking across the country with these articles thrown termaster, who would otherwise be over his back. This squares the quarobliged to pay for the missing articles.

Voyagers returning from across the seas fetch gems concealed in cakes of soap, in the hollowed heels of boots, beneath porous plasters, in cartridges from which the bullets have been removed and the powder taken out, and in various and sundry other ways. The device of folding diamonds in a slice of meat, feeding it to a dog just before reaching port, and killing the animal a few hours later is a familiar one.-Washington Sta.

His Name for It.

I was once teaching a class of small pupils in physiology in a rural school and asked the class what name was given to the bones of the head as a whole. A little girl raised her hand.

"What it is, Lucy?" I asked.

"Skull!" she answered. "Correct," said I; "but what other name has it?" expecting someone to answer "cranium." All were silent for a while, then a little fellow who seemed to be in a deep study quickly raised his hand, his eyes sparkling and a confident smile spreading on

"What it is, Henry?" I asked. "Noggin," was his immediate reply. -Judge's Library.

New Use for Ribbons.

Forty million yards of narrow ribon have been ordered by a western brewery from a Philadelphia concern to be used for advertising purposes. The ribbon will be placed about the necks of the beer bottle, and it is estimated that four inches will be required for each bottle. Basing calculations upon this, it is estimated that 360,000,000 bottles of beer are to be brewed, while the ribbon, stretched out, would reace nearly 23,000 miles, and, in the influde of Philadelphia, would encircle the globe.—Philadel-
