How? By getting one bottle of Brown' Iron Bir-TERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

> Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1881.
> Gentlemen: —I have suffered with pam in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, andwas treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and fiesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines.

THE BI-CENTENNIAL.

Philadelphia's Grand Celebration of Festival Day.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26—To-day is styled Festival Day, in the group of bi-centennial fetes and finer weather could not have been vouchsafed. The day's ceremonies were inaugurated by a parade of Knights Templar over the same route of previous processions, moving at II a. m. At the same hour there was a btovice meet and review, and archery contests in Fairmount Park, and a music festival in bi-centennial Music Hall, where an audience of 10,000 assembled. Last night at the preliminary concert 1,600 Welsh singers took part. The crowd appeared almost undiminished as the Templar parade passed through the streets. The participants, comprising the commanderies from New York, Washington, Providence, Pittsburg, Richmond and other cities, numbered between 6,000 and 7,000, and they presented a superb appearance. This afternoon a monument to the late Morton McMichael, one of Philadelphia's most distinguished citizens, at one time high sheriff and afterward mayor, and at the time of his death president of the Park Commission, was unveiled and formally presented to the city by Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, in behalf of the subscribers. This is the first monument erected to the memory of one of their fellow citizens by Philadelphians since the time of Benjamin Franklin. Hon. Henry M. Phillips, president of the Park Commission, received the monument on behalf of the city. Both addresses were highly eulogistic of McMichael. There will be a brilliant reception at the Academy of Music this evening, by the Philadelphia Knights Templar commanderies to their friends and visiting Templars.

Report of the Special Counsel.

The Department of Justice to-day makes public the first part of the report submitted by special counsel in the star route bribery cases. It begins with the case of Juror Edwin D. Doniphan who swore that he was repeatedly offered money by Shaw to favor Dorsey. This statement is confirmed by testimony of other jurors to whom Doniphan related the interviews. William K. Brown swore that Arthur Paine (colored) offered him $2500 fer his vote saying he represented one Fall who was in the employ of the government and wanted Brady and Dorsey convicted. Witness was offered a contract to sign which did not stipulate which side he was to vote for. Fall testified he was employed by the Department of Justice to detect criminality on the part of the jury and approached Brown because he had been guilty at one time of bribing a jury. P. H. Woodward testified he was present when Fall was employed, who was also instructed merely to watch the jury. Taylor, who was employed by the government, was seen in the company of counsel for detendants, and explained that he received money from them. Counsel is of the opinion hat the whole affair was a deliserate conspiracy against the administration of justice for which the government was in no Report of the Special Counsel erate conspiracy against the administration of justice for which the government was in no

He also states that a boat crew belonging to the British barque Rosenath foundered at sea, containing the mate and four men, were also murdered by the natives excepting the mate, who afterward was rescued by some friendly Indians and dispatched to Valparaiso, where he has arrived. A third boats' crew had also been massacred by the natives at this point.

BOLD BURGLARS.

Wilton, N. H., in a State of Great Excite-WILTON, N. H., Oct. 26.—The Wilton Savings Bank, in the second story of the brick block on Main street, was entered early this morning by three burglars who drilled open the safe which contained but a small amount of money, the bank keeping its deposits elsewhere. They got only $12. They also raided the dry goods store of George Wallace but failed to open the safe. The dry goods store of George A. Carter was also entered and $50 taken from the safe. In their flight the encountered Dr, A. H. Powers, shooting him in the right arm, and after this made a retreat towards Milford where they stole a team, since when no trace of them has been found. Although little property was taken the boldness of the raid creates considerable excitement. The team taken by the burglars from Milford was subsequently found at Manchester, where the thieves probably took a south-bound train.

ROAD AGENTS' RAID.

A Colorado Stage Robbed of $2,000. LEADVILLE, Col., Oct. 26.—Lust night as the stage from Malta, due here at 8 o'clock, reached a point opposite the Arkansas Valley Smelter, in the suburbs of this city, it was stopped by two masked men. One covered the driver with a revolver and the other ordered the passengers who were on the stage to dismount. They did so, and being arranged in a row one of the road agents covered them with a revolver while the other relieved them of their valuables, amounting to something over $2000, after which the passengers were allowed to continue their journey, while the robbers escaped.

HAZEL KIRKE. There is no need to dilate upon the merits of "Hazel Kirke." Every year this play instead of diminishing seems to be additionally attractive to the people. The company which will present this play here shortly is sent from the Madison Square Theatre. The 1750th performance of this popular drama was celebrated by the company in San Francisco on September 18th. Special new scenery will be carried by the troupe. The play will be pre-duced at Portland Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

An excellent bill was offered at the Lyceum Theatre last night. The house was filled with a delighted audience. A capital olio gave good chances to Wally Gibbs, Gus Raymond, Misses Mortimer and Cohan. The several acts of Miss Mortimer, Billy Deverne, Mr. and Mrs. Cohan, and Gus Raymond were heartily applauded, and the evening's entertainment concluded with the pleasing operetta of "Irish Frolics."

Jan. 1, 1876, Belfast Lodge, No. 41, I.O.O.F., procured a lease of McClintock's Hall, for a term of ten years, at $75 per year, rent to be paid quarterly in advance. The lease run to W. W. Castle and A. R. Carter for Belfast Lodge. Mr Mc-Clintock, owner of the hall, claimed that on the 2d of January, 1879, a forfeiture of the lease was worked for non-payment of tent, and on the 9th day of the same month, he leased the hall to the Grand Lodge of Maine, I. O. O. F. On the same date of the last lease, the Grand Lodge of Maine suspended Belfast Lodge and arrested its charter, which acts in subsequent trials, both in the State and Sovereign Grand Lodges of the order, were sustained, and Belfast Lodge became extinct, remaining so ever since. In March, 1879, the Grand Lodge of Maine, by virtue of its lease, permitted Waldo Lodge, I. O. O. F., of that city, to eccupy the premises. On the 21st of March Mr. Castle removed from the outer door of the an te-room the lock placed there by the Grand Lodge, and substituted one of his own, at the Lodge, and substituted one of his own, at the same time posting a notice forbidding all percons entering. This act Castle claimed he had a right to do, as the original lease was his, personally, and not the Lodge's. Castle's lock was removed, and Waldo Lodge entered and held its meetings, the defendant being one of its members. The defence was that he had a right to enter, and was not a trespasser. Such in brief, is the history of the case. The records of Belfast Lodge were introduced, showing that that body appointed committees to perfect the lease, the last report being that "the same had been accomplished." Mr. Mc-Clintock testified that for cause he wished to work a forfeiture of the lease, and that acting under the advice of Judge Williams in, he, on the first and second days of January, 1879, went to the entrance of the lodge room, and made a demand, to which no one responded, Mr. Castle claimed that on the 4th of January he spoke to Mr. McClintock, about the rent, and that McC. said "all right." This was claimed as a waiver of McClintock's demand for rent. Testimony was introduced to impeach Mr. McClintock's demand on Jan. 1st, olaiming that the hall was open all that day, and occupied by members of the lodge.

Judge Symonds, in his charge, ruled, first, that a forfeiture of the lease was worked on Jan. 2d, for non-payment of rent, if the demand was made as alleged. Second, that the lease belonged to Belfast Lodge, and not to Castle and Carter; that the lodge was not an incorporated body, and they had no more right under the lease than any other members of the lodge; that on Jan. 9th, Belfast Lodge was supended, and all its property, including its rights to the lease, was forfeited to the Grand Lodge of Maine, agreeable to the laws of the order; and that subordinate lödges were amenable to the laws of the superior lodges. The judge instructed the jury, first, if they found that a demand for rent was made on Jan. 2d, 1879, and that no waiver was had, to find for the defendant. If they found that a same time posting a notice forbidding all per-hour trains between the two places with a passenger fare of five cents. They claim that Saccarappa, Cumberland Mills and Deering are growing so fast that such a road would pay an excellent interest on its cost of construction. The freight from the mills is, they say, no small item, that of Warren's compuny amounting to $2,000 a month. The difficulty to be experienced will probaly arise from the effort to obtain a charter as they anticipate considerable opposition from other established railway lines. They think however, if the residents desire quick trains and low prices that the support they will receive will far outweigh the opposition.

How Gracie Got Ready.

The Congregationalist tells the following story: Gracie is six years old, and lives in Portland, Me. For many weeks she had heard her parents talking about a great meeting that was to be held in the city. People were to come from ever so far off places, and everybody was busy getting ready for them. Gracie wanted to do something, too. Mamma had the house put in the nicest of order. The rooms were swept and dusted and everything was in place.

"There is my rocking-horse!" thought the little girl. "His tail ought to be crimped."

The New Irish League. The accusations of mis-employment of funds brought against Parnell, Davitt, and other Irish leaders appear to be entirely unfounded and have been received with general disbelief. The confidence reposed in them by the Irish people certainly has not been shaken, and heir honesty of purpose will not be disputed by those who look upon the quarrel between Ireland and England from a disinterested or indifferent standpoint. The conference held at Dublin showed no lack of interest and no want of faith, and the differences of opinion between Parnell and Davitt were amicably discussed. The two agreed to disagree on the question of national ownership of land, and to aid each other in the effort to ameliorate the condition of the people and secure a larger measure of national liberty. The main result of the conference was the formation of the Irish National League, the control of which. it is evident, will be in the hands of the "Parliamentary party." The object of the League is to obtain for the Irish people the privilege of making their own laws, but there is no definite statement made as to whether this means complete independence or simply home rule. The idea probably is to take all that can be got in the general direction, with independence in the distance, the time not having come to force the main issue. One positive object, succinctly set forth, is the solution of the land question through securing to the farmers the right of becoming owners of the land they occupy by purchase. A further reduction in the rents as regulated by the courts is also to be contended for. It was during the deliberation in the conference on the subject of the land that Davitt de_ clared that there could be no final and satisfactory settlement of the question "until the land that was taken from the people was returned to the whole people as national property." But he stated that he would support the policy of the League ar far as it went. As the Irish party expects to gain strength by the extension of the franchise, the League will advocate household sufficage. It has had the good judgment to take a stand in favor of the dissemination of intelligence, and among its prospective labors is the establishment of reading-rooms. It also contemplates the formation of remen's clubs, presumptively in the same direction, though this latter may have stronger reference to political organization than anything else.

The decision of the court of appeals against the New York elevated railway, establishes anew the principle that an abutter on a public street has a property right in the land to the middle of the street for air, light, and ventilation, and that this right is property which cannot be granted away by the State without due compensation to the owner for the damage done him. The decision forebodes trouble and expense to the was returned to the whole people as nation-

Italy he always felt much difficulty in conveying abstract truth. One day a pupil, in the fourth year of his instruction, fell ill. When the professor visited him, he found the poor lad weeping bitterly, in the deepest grief, "that would not be comforted," nor could he be induced to tell the cause of his distress, the sight of which was pitful. The tender-hearted master used all the arts of pantomine to draw the secret forth. He tried to make the boy understand that he loved him like a father, and, pointing to his cassock, showed him that, like his mother, he were the gown, and felt for him as she did. At length the poor child ventured to tell his secret. Covering his eyes with his hand in token of shame he significan by gest ures and repeated it by the manual alphabet, that he had "thrown up his soul!"

In this way the gentleman threw awaya case of cigars, a bunch of keys, a little silver match-sale, a gold cuff-button, a piece of chewing to-bacco and three twenty-five cent pieces. In very few cases did he succeed in pitching the articles in question in the spittoon. The match sale and the bunch of keys, being weighty pieces, were pitched successfully, but while he won about $1.50 on each successful venture, he could not rectain his property from the dirty receptacle into which it was thrown. This charming little pastime was carried on amid roars of laughter, and it attracted a considerable ring of spectators, who watched the game with absorbed attention.

After the original pitcher had gotten rid of all his portable personal effects in this way, one of his friends took his place, and so the game went on until one of the more reckless of the jolly boys proposed a game which he had played when a boy with soldier buttons which he declared passed in the time of his youth as a sort of currency among the boys of his acquaintance. This game was as follows, and it was proposed to play it with half-dollars instead of buttons: Each man in turn should pitch a fifty-cent piece at the aperture in the cuspidor. Those who failed were to let their money lie on the floor, and the one who was first successful in striking the hole was to scoop in the entire pot. The proposition was uproariously received. "Just he thing!" "Bully!" "Ah, old fellow, what a great mind you have got!" etc., etc., were the exclamations of delight over this novel mode of winning or losing money. To make a long story short, the game was begun. Each time around there was $3 in pool for the lucky marksman. Sometimes the turn would go around four or five times before one of the silver pieces found the spittoon. Then the man who won it always set up Bass's ale or champagne. For about two hours this game went on. Dollar pieces, in-PROFESSOR M. SAUCIER. TEACHER OF Piano Forte, Organ and Voice, the man in slow, measured accents: "My friend," he said, "you look to me a man of thought and experience, in short, the very man likely to determine a most important and most difficult question which has arisen between me and my friend there," pointing to Jeff, who looked slightly puzzled. "Do you take me? Will you be arbiter between us?" Cabby looked so dubions at first that I thought he was geing to say, "Gammon!" or "Shut up!" or something of the sort. However, so wondrously intent did Artemus look, and so supernally grave was his manner, that the man's suspicions faded away from his face as snow will under a hot sun. He gave a half-grunt, then said briefly: "Fire away, guv'nor, let's know wat's all about."

"Well," responded Artemus, with slow delibera, eness, weighing every word, apparently, "Well, look ye here, now, my friend; that gentleman there"—pointing again to Jeff Prowse, who, not knowing exactly how Charley might choose to compromise him with a mayhap irritated Jehu, began to give slight signs of feeling rather uncomfortable—"maintains that it is the divergence of contradictory opinions, which in the natural logical sequence of reasoning, and in the inferential conclusions of argumentation, must in the final end inevitably lead to convergence, and concord and harmony among people, and bring about that most devoutly wished-for consummation when man to man the world o'er shall brethren be for a' that. I trust you follow me, my friend?" "I follow you, guv'nor; fire away," said cabby briefly, who evidently was not quite clear yet what it could all possibly be about. "Now, you see, my good fellow," pursued Artemus, with increased is tentness of face and graver ponderousness of manner and diction, "I, on the other part, assert, and I mean to stick to it, too, let gainsay who may,"—with a ferccious glare our way—"that it is contrariwise and opposite, the convergence of concurrent, concordant and coincident opinions that must inevitably in its corollary and concomitant consequential train of its outcoming If you cannot get it at your druggists, inclose $3 to PALL MALL ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION, 842 Broadway, New York, and it will be promptly mailed, poet paid. Then he proceeded more quietly—"Now, my friend, you cannot but admit that I have placed the case fairly before you. Now, please give us your decision." Cabby, who had apparently listened with much serious attention to this rigmarole, bent his head on one side, and with one eye shut gave Artemus the benefit of an inimitably droll look. Then he proceeded to with gravity of manner equal to Ward's, and still more ponderous slowness of enunciation to deliver himself of the following oracular decision which would have done Lonor to the great Bunsby himself: "Well, guvinor, it is a knotty pint and a 'ard nut to crack for the likes o' me; seein' as there is a great deal to be said on both sides; and don't ye think, now, guvinor, it's rayther a dry question to settle? He is now in the highest grade ic the school and has forty marks to his credit; age 14 years. Commissioner Fox explained the nature of an oath and administered it. The witness testified: Have been in the school two years and nine menths. Had been punished a good many times since he was at the school. Mr. Farrington gave him ten blows for firing tools at another boy in the shop. Was punished in August with ten blows for not doing this stint. Was put in the tower once by Mr. Farrington and was let out some hours afterwards by Mr. Deering. It was night when he came out. Was punished once, by standing on the line and putting my fingers

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 26. C. H. True:

It is no trick to sell new corn from the South for delivery in November here. The trouble is to make delivery. We think it will be like the Texas crop of eats we were to get in July. We can ship some new corn from the South if you have a demand for canning purposes but it would have to be shipped in refrigerator cars. The following extracts from letters from well known grain men in Burlington, Is., and Peoria, all., to well known grain men here will be read with interest. This from Burling

"We bought the first new corn offered us only yesterday and that was for shipment after December 1st. We have been unable to buy or to provoke any offers for November shipment, and we think the movement for that month will be very light, though present prices will tempt some to crowd forward all they can. Iowa will not bave much if any above a half crop this year and the outlook is for another year of comparatively high prices."

Further Matter for Remonstrance.

It now appears that Portland has more reson to complain of the action of the government in regard to changes in the lighthouses on the Cape, than was generally known at the time of the meeting at the Merchants' Exchange. Some years ago, an improvement, the want of which had long been felt, was made in the light at Cape Elizabeth, known as Portland head light, and consisted in giving the tower greater height, and furnishing it with illuminating apparatus of a better description. Now it is proposed to cut this tower down to the height it originally was, and to further diminish its value as a beacon by substituting for the lamps at present used, which are technically lar. cerning Gen. Knox.

THOMASTON, Oct. 25th, 1882. Your correspondent lately had the privilege of inspecting some odd and rare documents at the house of Hon. E. K. O'Brien, a gentleman whose interest in anything pertaining to the early history of our State amounts to enthusiasm. Mr. O'Brien and Thomas Vose, Esq., of this town are members of the well known "Society of the Cincinnati." camposed of descendants of the officers in the Revolutionary War, men, who like Cincinnatus the noble old Roman,

"Left the ploughshare in the wold, Their flocks and herds without a fold," and presented themselves a living bulwark to completely impoverished they founded this society for the common advantage of themselves and their descendants. Its headquarters are at Philadelphia, and there is a branch in each of the original States. The charitable fund of the Massachusetts branch amounts to $62,000. Mr. O'Brien's grandfather was Captain John George, who served eight years in the war of the Revolution, mostly under Gen. Knox. His grandmother, Mrs. George, at that time 17 years of age, rode by Bunker Hill just after the close of the batt'e, was thrown from her horse, and assisted to remount by a British officer. This lady lived and passed her last days in Thomaston, and is buried in our village cemetery.

The documents mentioned are from the valuable library of the late Col. Henry B. Humphrey of this town, and were presented by Mrs. Humphrey to Mr. O'Brien for the Society of the Cincinnati. There is the original commission of Gen. Henry Knox as the first Secretary of War, dated Sept. 12th, 1789, and signed by George Washington, Pres't. Also a commission of Henry Knox as major gen to the following points:

We need to ad the Sabbath School and to supplement its instruction with religious instruction at home. Family worship can be made a great help in this direction. It is also highly desirable to have good scripture commentaries in every family and to use them. Good reading is another important aid. Let the Bible illumine all your reading. Then, too, we ourselves must have a living interest in the spiritual truths which we teach. Our religious instruction must be practical, we cannot sever it from life.

Rev. C. A. Dickinson spoke most effectively on the importance of home piety.

Rev. E. A. Harlow made important suggestions as to how the meetings of the conference can be made more interesting and helpful. It was voted to have hereafter three meetings a year of one day each instead of two.

Although these ancient and valuable papers will find a fitting repository among the archives of the society above mentioned, it seems a matter of regret that they could not have been secured by the Maine Historical Society, by whom they would have been so highly prized.

A Fine Vessel. Yesterday, at Kennebunkport, there was aunched by Master Geerge Christenson, a schooner, built on contract, for Mr. A. M. Smith of Portland, named the Elsie M. Smith, in honor of the daughter of Mr. S. The vecsel measures 175 tons, corpenter's measure, but is very sharp and deep, and will probably register only about 115 tons. She is said to be the largest fishing schooner ever built in Maine, and will be in charge of Capt. Lincoln Jewett of Cape Elizabeth, who has proved, in command of other vessels of Mr Smith, to be a most successful winter fisherman. Capt. J. will take 18 or 20 men, and ferthwith com-FRIDAY.

A human skeleton was found last week on the shore of Gravei Island in the Northern bay, Penobscot. Near by was some clothing and a watch, which proved that the remains were ticse of Frank Campbell, who disappeared last March. He was engineer at Hercules mine, and started from Castine one day for that place in a small sail boat loaded with iron and other materials for the mine. The boat was found a day or two afterward stove and sunk, and as no trace of the body could then be discovered it was supposed that the strong tide had carried it out to sea. It was found, however, not far from the place where the boat went ashore, and brought to Castine for interment.

KENNEBEC COUNTY. White perch fishing has been remarkably good on Cobbosseconteellake this fall. Within the past four weeks it is estimated that over 1900 of these fish have been captured from an area comprising not over an acre. The fish caught have weighed from three-quarters of a pound to a pound and a half apiece. Mr. James Kelley, a Togus veteran, has cut, dried and shipped to Boston about a ton of flags from the swamps of North China, such as the common cat-tails spring from. less than that before.

This singular idiom meaning "Cure a Cough," has been adopted by an enterprising chemist of New York City as a name for a wonderful combination of natural and safe remedies which are a specific for all threat and lung diseases. It is in fact, a preparation which gives immediate relies and permanent cure for all pulmonary complaints and affection of the vocal and respiratory organs. Its ingredients are refined Russiau White Pine, pure Mexican Wild Sage Honey, and a new combination of potent gums and oils heretofore un-used. It is the great Pine Remedy and the most emarkable cures ever known have been promptly complished by Kurnkoff. Dr Lyon says: "The healing process is almost magical, and no harm can result to worst cases." When friends despair and verything else has failed, Kurnkoff has come everything else has failed, Murakoff has come in and saved the patient. Hear the record:—

Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposea. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorphea, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the conent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backethe, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1, per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and he stopped at a vegetable dealer's stall the crowd formed a ring on the outside. "How do you sell these soup bunches?" said he, picking up a peck measure full of herbs. "Two cents apiece," replied the ample matron behind the lay-out. "That's cheap," said Hermann, "very cheap," and then suddenly looking into the heart of one of the bunches he pulled out a plethoric wad of $20 bills. The woman made plethoric wad of $20 bills. declined to be further interested. A couple of stalls below there was a great selection of eggs. These at once caught Hermann's eye. "Are those eggs fresh?" he inquired of the damsel in harge. "Yes, sir" He picked up one and rattled it beside the woman's ear. She started back at the peculiar metallic sound, whereupon he smiled accusingly at her, broke the egg and took out two $5 gold pieces laying in the yolk. She stared, and he got $10 more out of another egg. After collecting about thirty in this way she suddenly declined to have any more eggs broken. As she spoke a blue tongue of flame sprung out of a score of eggs on the tray, and the whole party stepped back in affright. The flame died out, and the woman turned on Hermann with slmost a curse: "You are a sorcerer!" By this time a great throng of people had gathered around, and each new feat of the master was honored by a round of applause. feat of the master was honored by a round of applause. A stall or two lower down Hermann picked up a cabbage and asked the man if it was not imprudent to leave his valuables exposed in that way. The man glowered at him, said he was not there for joking. "What will you take for the cabbage?" inquired the maestro. "Five cents." The money was passed, and the cabbage became the property of the magician. Taking a knife he cut it open, and before the astonished gaze of the multitude there lay a perfect nest of treasures. Hermann deliberately began to fill his pockets, first with a wad of bills, a hundred dollar one on the outside, then a gold watch and chain, next two or three diamond rings, and finally a heaping handful of $20 gold pieces, and last of all a United States bond for $1,000. Powers of description fail to paint the changes which passed over the huckster's face as this find was being appraised and pouched by the magician. Doubt, fear, avarice and despair flitted one after another over his countenance. And at last, when the cabbage was evidently empty, he flung himself on the bench behind the stall and refused to be comforted. "That's a pretty good trade," said Hermann, and the boys cheered him to the echo.

A few paces further on was a game dealer's stand, and here the miracle of the day was performed. Picking up a rabbit that was lying without any head on the pavement, Hermann asked the man how long it had been dead."
"Only a day or two." "Smell it," said Hermann. Thereporter sniffed at it, and it certainly was gamey. "Don't you know how to freshen up animals?" said Hermann to the man. And he took the rabbit, doubled it up and back, and laid it down on the pavement with a head on it and evidently alive. The dead rabbit at once leaped in among the boys, who chased it and finally brought it back, in sore need of the kindly magician's good offices again. Then he took a dove from the cote over the stand, deliberately wrang its neck, pulled off its head and threw it to the owner, and before he bad time to examine it, returned him Steamship Franconia, Mangum, New York-Henry Ox.
