How to Fit Spectacles.

In all the recent works on the eye, the subject of accommodation, or the fitting of glasses, receives the largest share of attention. Considering its extensive application, it is regarded as the most valuable result derived from the recent advances in oph-

Structure of the Eye. The eye is simply an optical instrument, composed of an elject glass (the cornea), an eye glass the crystalline lens) and a screen (the retina), which is the organ of vision. In order that any object may be distinctly visible, it is necessary that a perfect pic ture of it should be formed upon the retina, which is simply a mirror covering the back part of the eye. The form and relative position of the cornea and crystalline, like the form and relative position of the object glass and eye glass of a telescope, may be mathematically determined, and their defects may be remedied by auxiliary lenses or spectacles. These auxiliary lenses should correspond with mathematical accuracy to the defects of the lenses of the eye, and to insure an absolutely perfect fit, it is only necessary to devise some means of measuring the retractive power of the eye.

Near and Far Sight. When in its normal condition, the eye is capable of seeing near as well as remote objects. This is accomplished through the accommodative action of the crystalline lens, which becomes more or less refractive according to the direction in which rays of light enter the eye—whether parallel or divergent. When presbyopia comes on, which results in what is called "far-sightedness," the crystalline becomes incapable of uniting divergent rays upon the retina, and they would, if continued, meet at a point behind it. In the myopic or near-sighted eye the elongation of the ball and the high refractive power of the cornea bring the rays to a focus in front of the retina. Both of these results are wholly incompatible with distinct vision, which is only produced when the rays are brought to a focus on the retina.

The object sought then in fitting glasses, whether for near or far sightedness, is to bring the rays to a focus exactly on the retina, without calling into ex-

It is important that when the eye is being used the crystalline should remain in a passive state. If an effort is made to read with glasses too strong or too weak, a constant tension is kept up on the elliary muscles which operate the crystalline . This not only prevents the fall development of the sight, but it hastens the deterioration of the eye, and necessitates a gradual increase in the strength of the Mathematical Formulæ. The rules for accomplishing this object were first devised by Professor Donders, of Utrecht, whose method is the only one now in use. It is necessary, to ascertain first, at what distances Snellen's tes types, subtending at different distances an angle of one minute, can be read. Prof. Donders proposes that the near point of distinct vision thus ascertained shall be designated by P and the far point by R. Representing the adaptive power by -.

If therefore we have a normal eye able to see dirtinetly from four inches (4) its near point P, to infinite distance ( ), its far point R, we have 1 1 1 1  $\frac{1}{-} - \frac{1}{-} = \frac{1}{-}, \text{ since } \frac{1}{-} = 0$ Should the eye be myopic, having its far point a eight inches (8) and its near point at four (4), we

 $1 \sim R - P$ The results thus obtained represent the focus of lens which, if placed upon the crystaline would as it coming from the far point.

For determining the degree of presbyopia we repesent the assumed normal power when accomm dated for near objects by -, eight inches being regarded as the starting po'nt of presbyopia, and the observed power of the eye we express by o neutralize the presbyopia at 8 inches. This method is here exhibited, because it is simple and carries its proof with it. It is by no means the means to its normal power.

PORTLAND. Saturday Morning, September 18, 1869.

Mr. Pratt Interviewed. We have recently noticed the report of an aterview between Senator Sprague and a gentleman connected with the Providence Press. The abstract of Mr. Sprague's "views" will be remembered by our readers. If the fellow from the Providence Journal referred to the interview with Sprague we should not be surprised: We well understand that, after the editorials in this paper, nothing so much deserves the attention of mankind as the movements of Mr. Pratt. It is not from any want of consciousness of his own importance that Mr. Pratt has for some time past, been minding his own business. In fact his business is the business of the universe, and it is only by walking in the footsteps of the great Travellerthat the world can get on. This is the reas-on why Mr. Pratt walks alone. There was a time when he was followed by a crowd similar in size and character to that which gathers around the monkey and the organ. But there is no longer any desire to see Mr. Pratt. Let no one therefore accuse him of affecting obscurity because people no longer know nor care where he is.

After giving us some account of the route, which, like that of many travellers, especially at unreasonable hours, was a little indefinite, he proceed to relate the conversation.

Our friend said to Mr. Pratt: "You are commonly called the great Traveller, but anything you don't know.', "Certainly not' said Mr. Pratt. "I hear, Mr. Pratt, that many men are say-ing that they don't mean to make any goods which they can't sell. There are others who which they can't sell. There are others who say that they have not so much money as they want, and cannot get it."

"I have long seen," said Mr. Pratt, "that it would come to this. Unless some plan can be devised by which people shall make goods which nobody will buy, and people can buy goods who have no means to pay for them, we shall all be ruined. It is precisely this plan which I have proposed. It is so original and protound that it is not readily apprehended by the common mind. But when carefully meditated by a great intellect, it is clearly seen. It comes to this: Government must iurnish capital to those who have none. As things according to those who have none. As things are now managed, those who have money will only lend it to such persons, and upon such terms, as can be agreed upon. Upon my plan, you see at once that money will only be loaned to poor people."

"Has this plan, Mr. Pratt, ever been proposposed before?"

"Yes," said Mr. Pratt, "by Jack Code, Put. "Yes," said Mr. Pratt, "by Jack Code, Put.

"Yes," said Mr. Pratt, "by Jack Cade. But he was made an objective point to attack, and was antagonized by certain great tamilies and deleated."
"What will be the result of the present system Mr. Pratt?"
"I have pointed it out many times," said the Tarvelier. "It is this: Those that know how will succeed; those who do not will tail.

It is just as certain as that Pharaoh's fat cat-tie were to swallow up the lean kine of his

"I thought, Mr. Pratt, it was the lean kine

St. sten statement as that, it is wrong, because it is contrary to my idea, I have had doubts about the wisdom of Moses for some time. He belongs to a great family, and was selfish and corrupt."

"Are there many people, Mr. Pratt, who try to do business when they don't know how?" "To be sure," said the Traveller, "especially the kind of business which I alone understand. I am regarded as the highest class

"It must require, Mr. Pratt, skill and attention to succeed in your business."
"Yes," said Mr. Pratt, "success is certain—

1. When a man has plenty of capital and knows how much he has got;
2. Employs good workmen who do their level best;
3. Has the best machinery and promply Furniture and House Furnishing > ance, in spite of unusual aptitude and bless ed intelligence." "I wish you would explain that, Mr. Pratt."

> "I shall not. You must reflect upon subjects as they are presented to you. Many men have read Dante's Interno who have never seen the Cranston Print Works. I saw developed I will explain at another time. But the money was made by the 'people who were associated with my father,' and founded a bank, not upon the ordinary principle known to bankers, but upon the magic infinences of promises to pay."

"Then I am to understand, Mr. Pratt, that fore the war, according to a well-known saying, in that country, that where a man had given his note, the debt was paid."

"How can people fail to see this, Mr. Pratt?"

"In my case," said Pratt, "I was led to study from a desire to know something. All that I know I got at in this way. The result is that I wale goods my agent sells them to is that I make goods, my agent sells them to a jobber on long time, and the jobber sells them to a retailer on shorter time. This nov-el process I discovered, and by means of it kicked our informant out of the wagon. We have taken down the conversation, and [From the Boston Journal ] Considering all the circumstances under which the campaign has been conducted, the Republicans are to be commended for making so good a report of themselves. They have given an earnest of what they could and would have done had the issues of the election been more exciting and engrossing.

[From the N. Y. Times.]

The loyal people of Maine have once more spoken, and their verdict is in favor of national honesty, equality and union. 'As was anticipated, the aggregate vote and the majority of Gen. Chamberlain are somewhat reduced from last year, but after a campaign in which so little public interest has been manifested, a Republican majority of 8,000 votes in a total of about 88,000 should be satisfactory. Our latest dispa ches indicate that both branches of the State Legislature are Republican by a decided majority, thus securing the ratification of the proposed Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution and securing the election of a Republican United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of [From the N. The radical temperance men will be surprised only at the smallness of their vote.—
They have elected no candidates of their own, and have shown that their sole power has been to cause mischief by securing the election of a few Democratic members of the lower House of the State Legislature, where a plurality elects. This result will doubtless teach them the folly of independent political movements and effectually prevent any such attempts in the future. expires in 1871.

phens, is the title of an entire new novel from the pen of this talented American authoress, Philadelphia. The novels of Mrs. Stephens are productive of both pleasure and excitement. They are, moreover, always successful, for the reason that while this gifted author is a conscientious follower of nature, she has also that fine artistic sense which teaches that nature, when shown within the lines of art, must be measurably heightened, colored and enlarged. This is the real secret of successful writing-a secret appreciated by such masters of fiction as Dickens and Thackeray. There is no previous work of Mrs. Stephens so full of her peculiar power and genius, none so absorbing in conception and development as "Ruby Gray's Strategy." It is fully equal to her "Fashion and Famine." It is issued in a large duodecimo volume of five hundred pages, and is for sale by Bailey & Noyes, Exchange street, at the low price of $1.75 in cloth; or,

Darwinism in Politice. If the development theory has a moral phase as well as a physical, it will serve to explain political phenomena now pressing upon public attention. The Darwinian hypothesis is-not to state it in all its breadth-that the existing species of animal life cannot claim a separate and individual creation, but have been developed from lower species by a series of differentiations resulting from all the circumstances that have surrounded the original type in different ages and parts of the world. To use the popular illustration, man is but the developed monkey. Links are wanted in the chain that connects proud man with his "poor relation." At least, links were wanting till the recent anneuncement made by some peripatetic philosopher that he had found in Borneo men with well defined tails. If his story is true, or if some kindred spirit shall hereafter dig up from the bowels of the earth

It would be too onerous a labor to undertake a nice and complete adaptation of the theory so as to explain the political metamorphoses that we see every day going on around us. The process of development is rapid in the political world. The genus Democrat has developed almost an infinity of species within the last decade in its general progress toward "trooly loil" manhood. In the transition individuals have reached many different stages, so that the result is a confusion that is bewildering to those who do not understand the philosophy of the thing. Some continue to wear the tail of the primordial Democrat,—the rabid pro-slavery secessionist -in all its former magnificance of length and copiousness of brush. Brick Pomeroy, H. Clay Dean, and other "irreconcilables" we might name, are examples. Others-Seymour, Pendleton, Hendricks-have suffered a marked abridgment of the caudal appendage-if we may continue the metaphor,-and present the usual demoralized aspect of creatures that are changing their coats. In Massachusetts tails are dropping in all direction, and John Quincy Adams having either discarded his altogether, or studiously concealed the stump, as the Devil does his cloven foot when he interviews an intended victim, they may be said to be permanently out of fashion. In Ohio the same state of things existed early in the season, but after Rosecrans' refusal to be a candidate for Governor there was an unexpected second crop, which spronted up with miraculous vigor. In Wisconsin the Massachusetts style is followed. In Kentucky the primitive type is found in its original purity, owing to climatic or other causes Further South Democrats adopt the style that suits the individual fancy. And so it is in Maine. Here one may find the Massachusetts or the Kentucky fashion followed in the same neighborhood. The Democratic State Convention did not make any recommendation in the premises, and the greatest scope is left for individual taste. The Argus avails itself of this privilege by alternating between a very long Pendletonian tail, such as it wore yesterday and none at all, as on Wednesday and Thursday. This exercise of an enlightened eclecticism introduced confusion into the Darwinian theory, and makes the general aspect of the Democratic world rather mixed.

existed between himself and the late Secretary of War in referance to the recognition of Cuba. or upon any other subject. The relations between Gen. Rawlins and Mr. Boutwell were never for a moment interrupted by excitement or unkindness FINANCIAL.-It will be remembered that at the last session of the Fortieth Congress, Postmaster General Randall reported an estimated deficiency in the appropriations for the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1869, of $3,700,000. PRINCE NAPOLEON'S SPEECH .- The Nev York papers contain a full report of Prince Na poleon's remarkable speech in the French Sen ate when the reforms proposed in the Senatus Consultum were under consideration. Whether the Prince is a cunning demagogue who perceives the coming of the democratic storm that is to wreck the second empire, or whether he is the mouthpiece of the Emperor in the latter's desire to make such concessions to liberalism as will avert the tempest, cannot now be known His language was very singular for a Bonaparte though his democratic tendencies, sincere or otherwise, have long been known.

The mission of the Empire, he said, is to act in unison with the great popular and demoeratic aspiration, and one of the steps towards this result was the passage of the document before them. Although it did not quite meet with his approbation, still it was a step forward. He then proceeded to point out the faults which he had observed in the report of the Committee. The Senate could be stripped of its constituent power, and the Ministers made responsible to both Chambers; the Emperor should not be the presiding officer; the Senate should have exclusive power to discuss the Constitution; the number of deputies should be increased, and the mayors should be elected by the municipal councils. These changes he deemed only questions of time; for, if they were not made now, another remodelling would have to take place. After the passage of the Senatus Consultum, he was in favor of the suppression of what remains of the law on general safety, the abolition of article 75 of the Constitution of the year VIII.; a bill on the administration of the City of Paris; one on the relation of Church and State; on primary, gratuitous and obligatory instructions; on the liberty of superior teaching; on decentralization; on the emancipation of the citizen; on the reduction of expenditure, and on foreign policy. "Then will come the real struggle, and we shall see all ancient abuses and superanuated prac-

Cuban Nationality.

The physical characteristics of nationality been shown to exist in Cuba the next step is to consider whether her population is of such a nature and has reached such a stage of development as to be capable of conducting their own affairs. The failure of any attempt of this kind is quite generally regarded as a foregone conclusion, and to prove it the examples of the republics established in other parts of Spanish America are cited. Cuba however, is distinguished from any of these by a variety of circumstances favorable to her success in the experiment of self government.

In the first place Çuba is much more densely peopled than any Spanish American State on the continent. Mexico, the most densely inhabited of the latter, has but nine inhabitants per square mile. Chili, the next in order, has but seven. The others vary, some not having on an average one inhabitant per square mile, others three or four. South America has on an average only three inhabitants per square mile while Cuba has twentyeight. The importance of this circumstance may be estimated when we consider how essential is a certain concentration of numbers, to the extension of commerce, the diffusion of intelligence, the efficiency of police regulations, and the preservation of social order. It will hardly be going too far to the remains of a being like man except that it possesses the superfluous adornment above referred to, the Darwinian hypothesis will be say that civilization is not more dependent upon wealth, intelligence, and moral culture than upon density of population. In sparsely inhabited communities, man's sphere of activity is circumscribed and his development cramped for want of opportunity to communicate and combine with his fellows. Other things being equal, the populousness of a community is what determines its power, not only to secure all existing appliances that contribute to wellbeing, but to originate others. Isolation is as truly the ally of barbarism as concentration is of civilization. Accordingly, while the other Spanish American Republics are almost destitute of traveling facilities, Cuba is amply provided with the means of internal communication. Railroads have been constructed by means of which Havana is connected with the chief agricultural and commercial districts. Before the war, steam communication was kept up between Havana and other parts of the coast. The telegraph also has been employed to aid in the diffusion of intelligence. The states of the continent on the other hand are difficult of access and nearly destitute of those appliances of civilization by which their very presence put barbarism to flight. In addition to this Cuba possesses in the character as well as in the density of her population, a very marked advantage over her continental neighbors. Wherever the Spaniards colonized upon the continent, their civilization was grafted upon aboriginal barbarism, or upon a civilization but little removed from barbarism. In Cuba as in the English colonies, the aborigines were exterminated, and society was built up wholly of new, and largely of European materials. Political causes heightened the advantages possessed by Cuba; for when the continental States achieved their independence, many of their inhabitants of European descent, banished from the mainland on account of their adherence to the mother country, gave their energies and their capital to Cuba. While on the continent rarely more than a fourth, and in some cases only a twelfth of the inhabitants, are of European descent, leaving the inferior races largely in the majority, in Cuba the whites preponderate, and though there is a large minority of negroes and mullattoes, free and slave, it is a minority that is constantly undergoing a relative diminution. owing to the fact that while the whites are increasing, the negroes either stand still, or to decide the question of the location of the lerence of the whites must therefore become Many of the German Democrats in Pennsylmore and more decisive. While therefore the population of Cuba is strictly homogeneous, the dissimilarity is not so great as to prevent the two races from feelfun at Ben. Butler's cross eyes. They don't ing an "organic unity" with each otherlook half so many different ways as the Dem-There the blacks are not, as with us, a proscribed race. Men of color serve in the mili-MR. Boutwell authorizes the New York tia and the foremost literary character in the Tribune to say that there is no truth in the island in 1855 was a mulatto poet. To instatement that any personal difference ever corporate both races into one political community will not, to the same degree as with us, be doing violence to the feelings of the whites. Indeed, considering recent events in our own national experience, it may be doubted whether the time has not passed for questioning the feasibility of such a fusion. One thing is certain, if the Cubans cannot govern themselves the American Union is no place

If these facts do not show that Cuba can succeed as a separate nation, they make it evident that she possesses the elements of national success in a higher degree than any of her neighbors except the United States in which the experiment has been tried. The Republic of Hayti has denser population, but one that is far inferior in quality, while the continental republics are inferior in both respects. None of these, it is true, can be considered as having succeeded in governing themselves. Yet their condition is not more intolerable than when overshadowed by the domination of a foreign power. To establish order "the authorities of the mother country stereotyped their despotism along the length and breadth of every colony." Now though tranquility is often disturbed by revolutions, the deathlike stagnation which formerly prevailed, no longer prevents progress; and with progress, time only is required to bring order out of chaos itself. Cuba can best better her condition by curing independence. Freedom from the exactions of a foreign despotism and from the humiliations incident to a provincial state. will prove a powerful stimulus in developing her resources. Hayti even with a population but ill-fitted for the duties of citizenship, will, as regards material prosperity, compare favorably with Jamaica, overshadowed and dwarfed in her growth by the might of the British Empire. Cuba, even if annexed to guns for the government. They will get more the United States, would be doomed by her pay and expect to live cheaper than here. position to a merely provincial station. In a greater or less degree she would have repeated upon her soil the curse of non-resident proprietors, which has been the bane of Ireland and Jamaica. If after a fair trial of independence she wishes to be annexed, the change will be easy. If once annexed, however pernicious the union may be to her,

there will be no escape. D. P. B. THE recert deplorable failure of the Royal Albert Insurance Company, which had existed thirty years, and attained a membership of twenty-three thousand, admonishes us to look into the condition of our own companies and see if they may not be in danger likewise. There have been placed in the custody of these companies funds to the amount of $100,000,000, to be held as a reserve with which, and There have been placed in the custody of these companies funds to the amount of $100,000, to be held as a reserve with which, and with future premiums, to meet liabilities as they mature to the amount of over one thousand millions. The Royal Albert did not fail from any error in the science of life insurance. Enough money had been paid in, but when were in the sole custody of officers of the Company, believed to be entirely trustworthy and responsible, exactly as we supposed the officers of our companies to be. But there was no way of knowing (and the same is true here) whether the securities represented to be on hand really were so. It is not enough that persons acting as trustees for others should be lonest; they should so organize their business that they can prove that fact at any moment to the owners of the property.

This can only be done by the intervention of disinterested third party powerful enough to exercise the proper supervision and control. The State of New York has in its Registry Law, lately amended and perfected, the solution of the law, and, as the Superintendent of the lamp certain specified sorts of secueity sufficient to cover the whole amount of the necessary reserve, according to calculations made by the State as provided for in the law, and, as the Superintendent of the party ment is probably the safest life insurance of the correct of the line of railway across the continent of North America at its widest part, as the means of shortening to the lowest limit of time and expense the transit between the commercial centers of Europe and Asia, has been demon strated by the superior speed of railway transit over water carriage,-now rendered comparatively easy of accomplishment, by the opening of a line of railway from the Mississippi to the Pacific Ocean, The main land of the Continent of North America extends over 63 degrees of longitude equal to 3191 statute miles, between the 45th and 46th degree of North latitude. Lines of railroad are in progress, over the most direct route from the Eastern shore of Nova Scotia to Portland, Maine, from which point it is proposed to construct a line due West to the head of Lake Champlain, passing through the Ossipee Valley, Bristol, Woodstock and Rutland to Whitehall, and thence to the basin of the great Lakes, at Oswego, thence by the most direct route, along the South shore of Lake Ontario, and across the Niagara and St. Clair rivers by the most favorable line to the city of Chicago, from which a line of railway extends to the Pacific Ocean at San Francisco, with another line in contemplation, over a still shorter route by the Northern Pacific Railroad to Puget's Sound. This plan of a Trans-Continental Railwaylong in contemplation—will shorten the time of transit between England and Hong Kong to thirty-three days, against forty-two days by the shortest possible route across the Eastern Hemisphere, even on the completion of the Suez Canal, ensuring to the American route the travel and the bulk of the most valuable trade of China and Japan with the American and European markets.

In order, therefore, to secure the most direct practicable line of railway between Portland and Chicago-the important link in the transcontinental chain-and secure a Trunk Line equal to the demands of Western trade, the undersigned, in behalf of the interests we represent, invite the Railroad Companies, the Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, Municipalities, and all persons interested in the proposed railway across the Continent to meet them in Convention, or appoint delegates to meet the friends of said railroad in Convention, at the city of Oswego, in the State of New York, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of Wednesday, the 6th day of October next, to consider and act upon such measures as may be necessary to secure the completion of said

All of these three medicines are often required in curing Consumption, though the Pulmonic Syrupalone has cured many desperate cases. The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills assist in regulating the Stomach and Liver, and help the Pulmonic Syrup to digest and search through the blood vessels, by which means a cure is soon effected.

These medicines are conscientiously offered to the public as the only safe, certain and reliable remedies for Pulmonary Consumption, and for all those morbid conditions of the body which lead to that fatal disease. disease. Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia are often forerunners of Consumption, and when they manifest the miselves they require the most prompt attention.

The Pulmonic Syrup is a medicine which has had a long probation before the public. Its value has been proved by the thousands of cures it has made through a period of more than thirty-five years, in all of which time its reputation has constantly increased, and the most obstinate skepticism can no longer doubt that it is a remedy which may be used with confidence in all cares which admit of a cure. If the patient wfill perseveringly follow the directions which accompany each bottle, he will certainly be cured, if his lungs are not too much wasted to make a cure possible. Even in cases supposed to be incurable, when triends and physicians have despaired, the use of this medicine has saved the life of the patient, and restored him to perfect health. Dr. Schenck himself was cured in precisely such circumstances, and many others have been equally fortunate by judiciously making a timely use of Dr. Schenck's remedies.

Dr. Schenck does not say that all cases of Pulmonary Consumption are within the reach of medicine but he emphatically asserts, that often when patients have the most alarming symptoms, such as a violent cough, creeping chills, night sweats, and general debility, even to such a degree that they are obliged to lie in bed, and when they are given up by their physician, they may still be cured. No medical treatment can create new lungs, but when the lungs are very badly diseased, and to some extent destroyed, a cure may be effected by Dr. Schenck's medicines.

Also, in Scrotulous diseases these modicines are equally efficient. Dr. Schenck's medicines.

In the treatment of Consumption, it is of the utmost importance to give vigor and a healthy tone to the system. Hence it is necessary to strengthen the appetite of the patient and improve the digestion. Proper mou the liver. One box of these pills will prove the efficacy of the medicine.

In Consumption, the Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are invaluable auxiliary medicines. They relieve the sufferings of the patient and assist the Pulmonic Syrup in effecting a cure. They have been found useful in advanced stages of Consumption, where the lungs were almost entirely destroyed, and all symptoms, according to the judgment of physicians, indicated speedy death. The lives of patients who were actually in a dying condition have been preserved for months by the use of Schenck's three great remedies.

a double-deck brig of 433 tons, named John W Hunt. She is owned by the builder, Capt S P Lunt, and Also, 8th inst, by Ames & Rankin, a schr of 336

Brig Protens, Hall, of and from Portland for Sagua, in ballast, put in to Baltimore 14th for repairs. Reports, sailed from Portland 31st ult, and had easterly winds and fine weather until Sept 6, when in lat 33 c0 N, ion 74 40 W, took a gale from SSE, which obliged us to heave to; kept so until noon of the 7th, under close reefed mainsail and staysails; at 4 PM, a hurricane squall split mainsail; set a staysail at main and drugged her with hawser and spars, but soon parted the hawser. At 8 PM the brig was going nearly on beam ends; a terrific tornade carried away foretopmast, topgallant mast, and foremast head, with every sail furled. The brig striking beavily against the spars, was obliged to cut away foremast and everything ferward to prevent sinking; at midhtnight the hurricane broke, leaving a fearful sea running; threw oil to windward for several hours to prevent the sea from breaking on board. At daylight the weather was more moderate, and a spar was secured, with which jury masts were rigged. During the gale the stern boat was broken away and whirled through the air like a feather.

A correspondent reports the following disasters at Deer Isle Thoroughiare in the gale of the 8th.—Sch Mermaid, Grover, from Portland for Gouldsboro, with flour and corn, is ashore and badly dama; ed. Sch Thistle, Wooster, of and from Hanceck for Roectland, ashore and a total loss; crew narrowly escaped with their lives. Sch Dolphin, of Deer Isle, ashore high and dry; badly damaged.

Ship Mary E Campbell, Hargrove, from Liverpool for Aden, was abandoned prev to 16th inst, off Lundy Island. No particulars. The vessel registered 1621 tons, was built at Thomaston, and hailed from Liverpool.

Sch Evelyn, Baneroft, of and from Machias for New York, was sunk at Tarpaulin Cove during the gale of the 8th. MEMORANDA.

W Over 200,000 Patients Treated in Ten Dr. Dodge's Fractice is mostly diseases of a Chronic nature, and cases given up as incurable. His treatment is peculiar to himself, although there have been men in all ages who have had the same Magnetic Power over the diseases of the body and mind. Some call it the "Giff of Healino," yet few have possessed it to such an extent over nearly all diseases and persons. It is a life and vitality passed from a strong, healthy body to a weak one, that restores the lost or unequal circulation of the vital or nervous fluid. So powerful is this influence, that persons who have for many years suffered from diseases which have been pronounced incurable, and to whom medicine has been administered with no good effect, have been restored to health in an incredible short space of time. It will not restore a lost member of the body, or perform other impossibilities, but it will always relieve pain, from whatever cause. The practice is based upon the most strict principles of science; there is nothing miraculous or supernatural about it; it is in harmony with all natural laws. Many eminent physicians of other practices not only acknowledge this power, but receive the treatment for themselves and families, as well as advise it to their patients.

By this treatment it takes but a few minutes for inveterate cases of almost any curable Chronic disease; and so sure is the effect that but few diseases require a second treatment, except Deafness, Broken Money of the most particled by us, are: Dyspepsia, Constipation, Asidma, Angina Pectoris, Chlorosis, Loss of Voice, Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, Liver Diseases, all kinds of Sexual Weakness, Diabetes, Headache, Nervous Irritation of the Brain, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Diseases of the Heart, Eruptive Diseases, Convulsions, Hysteria, Neuralgia, Thrush, Congestion of Spleen, Irritation of Stomach, Diseases of the Heart, Eruptive Diseases, Convulsions, Hysteria, Neuralgia, Thrush, Congestion of Spleen, Irritation of Stomach, Diseases of the Heart, Eruptive Diseases, Convulsions, Hysteria, Neural Years.

CASCO NATIONAL BANK.-Hon. Samuel E. Spring, has resigned his position as President of the Casco National Bank, after having filled it with the highest credit to himself, for a period of eleven years. The high character and standing of this bank is a tribute to the prudence and skill with which its affairs have been managed under his administration, and must be a source of satisfaction to him on his retirement. Aug. E. Stevens, Esq., resigned his office as Director at the same time. The latter vacancy was filled by the choice of E. P. Gerrish, Esq., who was subsequently elected President of the institution. Before being elected as a Director, he resigned the office of Cashier, a position occupied by him for the last sixteen years, to the great satisfaction of all doing business with the bank.

Mr. William A. Winship has been elected Cashier. We shall publish in Monday's paper a history of this ancient and flourishing institution, which cannot fail to prove interesting to our readers.

PORTLAND THEATRE.—It is a pleasure to see the legitimate drama now-a-days enacted at any theatre, so long has been the run of sensational plays and nude spectacles. Consequently we hailed with pleasure the announcement that "The Lady of Lyons" would be performed at the theatre last night, hackneyed as the piece has become. There was a very large audience present, who were evidently much pleased with the representation. To-night "Jack Sheppard" will be performed and

"Black Eyed Susan." PASTOR'S VARIETIES .- To-night City Hall will resound to the shouts and laughter of the audience, occupied as it will be by one of the best variety companies travelling, if we may credit the reports of the journals in other cities where they have appeared. Billy Pastor's comical songs cannot be excelled, together with his eccentric personations, and the other members of the company are first-class. It will be a highly entertaining performance, and we expect to see City Hall crowded.

AUCTION SALE OF FORFEITED GOODS .- By order of the Collector of the Port an auction sale of goods torfeited to the United States took place at the Appraiser's office on Fore street, yesterday morning. A large quantity of cigars -some 4830 in number-were disposed of in large and small lots at moderate prices, considg the quality, mostly to Allen on Exchange street. Some molasses, wine and spirits were also sold. There was a good attendance, and F. O. Bailey was the auctioneer

NOT DISHONEST AFTER ALL.-The young man who was supposed to have run off with the valises he took from the Adams House on Thursday evening last to carry to the Boston boat, was not a dishonest youth after all. It seems he misunderstood the directions given him, and went to the Grand Trunk Depot, where he waited an hour and a half, and then returned with the luggage to the hotel. There was joy when he put in an appearance, as there were a large number of valuables in the valises. THE MERCHANTS' EXCURSION. -There were a few adventurous spirits who were unable to postpone their trip until next Wednesday and go with the main body, and so, despite the lowering skies and raw wind, they proceeded on their way to Alfred yesterday morning, visited the Shakers, and returned much delighted with their visit. The grand excursion of the Merchants however will take place next Wednesday, and we trust that at time the weather will be more auspicious.

Although the distance from the Atlantic ocean at Portland to the navigable waters of Lake Ontario at Oswego is 6 degrees and 20 minutes only, or 316 statute miles, the two places are nearly twice that distance apart by a connected line of railway. The lines already built, sweeping round Lake Champlain at the north—which lake is 120 miles in length, and south through the valley of the at the north—which lake is 120 miles in length, and south through the valley of the Mohawk,—form almost a perfect circle, inclosing Lake Champlain and the Adirondack Mountains. Across the diameter of this circle no line of railroad has yet been carried through. The reason of this has been that the outlets from Lake Ontario to the sea have been northeastward, through the St. Lawrence, or southwestward by the waters of the rence, or southwestward by the waters of the Hudson river to New York City. In order therefore to reach Oswego from n order therefore to reach Oswego from Portland by rail, it is necessary at this time, to go round the circle before spoken of. There are five different routes for reaching Oswego from Portland, the shortest of which is 491 We give a schedule of these routes as fol lows: No. 1. The Montreal Route.

It is understood that arrangements will be made for excursion tickets over the several lines to Oswego by rail; as also by steamer from Toronto, Lewiston, Hamilton, and other places on the Lake. It is gratifying to know that the Grand It is gratifying to know that the Grand Trunk railway management, favors the route, or, at any rate, looks upon it with no disfavor, although it promises to be a competitor with it, for western trade. But the intelligent men in the Grand Trunk railway interest, are a ware of the importance to them of making Portland a great commercial city; and they have also discovered that their line of traffic lies toward Portland, and east of Portland rather than west of it: and they already supply Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick as well as Maine with the bulk of their supplies of western produce. of western produce.

is examined, the more fully it commands public support; and we expect to see develop ed at Oswego, such an array of facts touching Transcontinental trade as will make the con ention one of the important events of the

The Humboldt Celebration MR. EDITOR,-In your issue of yesterday morning it is stated that "Portland for once is behind the times. No effort was made here to relations existing between Spain and the United States, wherein it says the recognition of Cuba would place Washington in the wrong and Rev. E. C. Bolles were appointed delegates from the Portland Society of Natural History to attend that celebration, and that the latter gentleman was present and ready to act in that capacity.

For some reason, not yet explained, none of the delegates from any of the literary and scientific societies invited to that celebration were recognized as such nor called upon to take any part in the proceedings. Hence it is that the voice of the Portland, Essex and other Natural History societies has not been the latter gentleman was present and ready to act in that capacity.

For some reason, not yet explained, none of the delegates from any of the literary and scientific societies invited to that celebration were recognized as such nor called upon to take any part in the proceedings. Hence it is that the voice of the Portland, Essex and other Natural History societies has not been heard on this occasion. All who are acquainted with Mr. Bolles' tact and ability to improve such an occasion, know full well that they have been deprived of a rich intellectual treat, whilst our society, whose seal bears for its device the head of Humboldt, has to regret the loss of this opportunity of paying its modicum of respect to his memory.

SOCIAL GATHERING .- A large number of the nembers of the Casco Street society assembled at their vestry on Thursday evening last to take leave of their pastor, Rev. Mr. Moulton, and his estimable lady, who go to Charles town, Mass., in answer to a call from the F. W Baptist church in that city. Among the pleas ant things of the evening was the presentation of a neat service of plate by Deacon Jones in behalf of Mr. Moulton's friends, who, though taken somewhat by surprise, did not fail to assure the donors that he accepted it as a token of their regard for himself and wife, and to reassure them that he would remember many of the days spent in Portland as among his happiest, and very many of the congregation as pleased to know that this church has enjoyed continued and healthy prosperity during the wo and a half years that Mr. Moulton has been with them, and that he has the best wishes of all for success and prosperity in his new

OUR READERS will of course notice the new advertisement of Dr. Dodge which appears in he Press this morning. The sworn statements of parties show that he has wrought marvelous cures. The house is two stories in height with French roof. NIXON'S SOAPS .- Among the best soaps for laundry purposes is Nixon's Electric Laundry Soap. It is also an excellent article for the toilet. Then again there is Nixon's Amber Soap, which is a great blessing to housekeepers, since it will remove all stains, whether of fruit or paint. We would advise all who have nevar tried these soaps to get them, and they will find they cannot do without them. THE TART RACE.-If the weather is pleasant

THE CUBAN QUESTION. LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Star (Radical organ) to-day states that the difficulty between the United States and Spain on the Cuban question is in a fair way of settlement. The rumors of a proclamation guaranteeing religious liberty and freedom of election shortly to be issued by the Spanish Government is a better omen, but if the reports of the conduct of the military government in Cuba are true, concessions must be prefaced by one more essential, namely, that the Cubans be permitted to live to enjoy them. to enjoy them.

The Telegraph had an editorial to-day on the rested, internal recognization checked, and public discontent would revive with the growing burdens. Spain would lose Cuba, but continue Spain with her obstinate tenacity of resistence, her great undeveloped resources, her power to attack American trade and her comparative insulparability to retalication. her power to attack American trade and her comparative invulnerability to retaliation.—

America would gain, at a heavy cost, what might for years be more a loss than a gain, would be entangled in a war combining a maximum of cost and a maximum of glory. Such considerations cannot pass unregarded at Washington since there is still ground for hope that peace may be preserved.

The Examiner, on the subject of Spain and Cuba, has the following:—"By history and analogy there is no longer a physical impediment to the representation of Cuba in the Spanish Cortes. Expediency recommends it, but for Cuba is it not too late? If not sold or surrendered, her own inhabitants must in some form be mortgaged to the Americans, surrendered, her own inhabitants must in some form be mortgaged to the Americans, with the certainty that once in pawn she will eventually become theirs. It is better for Cuba that this should be so, and it is better perhaps for Spain."

THE FEELING IN SPAIN. New York Stock and Money Market. New York, Sept. 17—Evening—Money more active this afternoon at plump 7 per cent. on call. The decline in Stocks is disturbing confidence and an uncasy feeling pravails. Discounts are very dull and the best mercantile paper only passes at very high rates. Foreign Exchange is demoralized, and bills difficult of saie even at low rates, and rates are nominal at 107½ @ 108. Gold was a little weaker towards the close, with the latest transactions at 136½. The rates paid for carrying to-day were 7, 1-32, 7½ @ 8 per cent. Governments were stronger at the close. Henry Clewes & Co. turnish the tollowing 4.15 quotations:

United States 10-40 coupons. 1094
Pacific 6's. 1095
Pacific 6's. 1095
Pacific 6's. 1095
Pacific 6's. 1095
Southern State securities on the last call were stronger and higher in new Tennessees, but very weak in North Carolinas.
Stocks to-day were gloomy, and for some time the feeling of the market bordered on a panic. The decline in values today was very great, and some stocks have touched the lowest point for months past. The bull element in the market appears to be completely demoralized. The market at the close was a little better as compared with the lowest point of the afternoon, but a very feverish and unsettled feeling prevailed. The following are 5.30 quotations:

Boston Boot and Shoc Market.

Boston, Sept. 16.

The past week has been an animated one in our Boot and Shoe market, for, although the heaviest manufacturers and wholesale houses have not been so busy as formerly, the large jobbing houses have made more numerous sales than in any previous week since the commencement of the present year, The shipments do not equal those of the preceding week, but much that was shipped heretofore was on orders, and buyers who are now here are having their new purchases only shipped; orders are at this moment in the hands of manufacturers which will tax their energies pretty heavily for a month to come. The demand from the New England trade is good, and manufacturers of the fine grades of goods are at work on orders, and, we are gratified to learn, at paying rates, notwithstanding the high wages paid to workmen.—[Shoe and Leather Reporter.

"UNIVERSAL!"

Geo. H. Hood, Genl. Agt. 97 Water St. Boston.

IMPROVED. The Strengest and Best Wringer in the

Has a Double Gear and Double Pressure

WHICH IS THE BEST CLOTHES WRINGER (From the Boston Traveller of July 2d.) After careful examination, we recommend the "Universal" as the best and strongest machine. It has "patent cog wheels" (Rowell's patent double gear), with very long and strong alternating teeth, which, together with the "patent stop" (which is on no other wringer), allows the rubber rollers to separate sufficiently to run through the largest article easily, yet cannot separate so far that the cogs will disconnect and loss their power, as is the case with other wringers, whether the cogs are on one or both ends of the roll.

It also has the peculiar advantage of two pressure pacity for pressure.

The "Universal" has its iron parts either wrought or malleable, and is built so stronely and substantially that for years it cannot be broken, in wringing garments. by the strongest person.

Our readers may be quite sure they will find the "Universal' wringer a good and serviceable article. NOTICE. The "Universal" cannot be thrown out of gear when the pressure is taken of, to admit large articles, as is the case with other cog-wheel wringers.

The great advantage of Rewell's Patent Double Cogs cannot be obtained by putting Cog-wheels on both ends of the rell, as some try to make it appear, for when articles disconnect the cogs on either end, the power of the cogs at that end is lost, and it consequently ceases to be DOUBLE: or it garments are run through the centre when the pressure is taken off to admit larger articles, all the cogs may be disconnected and rendered useless.

Any sensible person can understand that a wringer having cog wheels which can play apart or disconnect when a large article is passing between the rolls, is little if any better than one without any cogs at all, because the cogs fail to be of service when most needed. The "UNIVERSAL" has not this satal objection, but is WARBANTED DURABLE. The "Universal" has taken more "first premi-ums" as the best, at State and Institute Fairs, than all other wringers combined. "They have hearts of gold and wills of iron," said my friend. "Many a touching and noble instance of generosity and self-denial have I met with amongst them. And, for example, look at this man approaching us."

He was a fine-looking fellow, of five or six and twenty, with a military air, and dressed in unitorm. The lower part of his face was very handsome, and his dark, sunburnt comlexion suited well with the long moustaches I could not see his eyes, for the visor of his cap was drawn down so as completely to shade them from the light. Having exchanged a cordial salutation with the curate, l passed on, followed by a huge white dog, with thick fur and enormous paws. The animal belonged to a breed peculiar to the Pyrenees and remarkable for their sagacity and faith-

"Now," said my companion, as soon as the soldier bad passed out of hearing, "while we pass along, I will tell you a true story, of which you have just seen two of the principal

Juan Trigoyen was born in the heart o these mountains, where the peasant has his choice of following one of two occupations,—that of a shepherd, or a hunter. Juan chose the latter, as his father had done before him; and a hazardovs pursuit it is. Not merely has the mountain hunter to scale all but in accessible precipices, and to brave the fury of famished bears and wolves, but he is constantly exposed to be swept away by a tor-rent, or buried beneath an avalanche. To this latter peril Juan's father had fallen a vic-tim. Crushed beneath a mass of snow, he perished, leaving his son no other heritage perished, leaving his son no other heritage than his dog, his gun, and his grandmother, Gertrude, an aged woman, unequal to the task of supporting herself. Juan, at this time a fine lad of eighteen, loved his grandmother tenderly; she had always supplied to him the place of his mother, who had died in giving him birth, and he now, with a courage and resolution beyond his years, undertook the sole charge of their maintenance. He had been early trained to the chase, and success now crowned his efforts. The number of izards, eagles and bears struck down by his ards, eagles and bears struck down by his hand, testified the sureness of his foot and the certainty of his aim.

Thanks to the value of these spoils, Gertrude knew no privation; but she trembled for the safety of her beloved child, and often said to him, with tears in her eyes, Stay at home to-day, Juan; you will perish some time or other, like your poor father; and what should I do left alone, without any one to love in the world?" love in the world?" Then the lad would answer: 'Calm your self, mother; Providence will watch over me Thus did Juan work hard during the week for his own and his parent's support, and on Sunday I loved to see them entering my little church. Gertrude leaning on the arm of her handsome boy, and both joining in the prayers with the utmost devotion.

Two years passed on, and Juan was returning from Bagneres, whither he had gone to dispose of some game. It was winter, and the north wind blew piercingly cold; but the young hunter stepped on briskly, whistling a lively tune. Suddenly a cry of distress struck his car, but he knew not whence it

'On, Cæsar!' he cried, trusting to his dog's sagacity; seek it out, dog! The docile creature set off in the direction of a thick pine grove, and his master followof a thick pine grove, and his master follow-ed; the cries became lounder, and Juan rec-ognized the voice of a female in distress. He redoubled his speed, still preceded by the dog. At length he reached an open space, and there was Cæsar struggling with a wolf, while on the ground lay a woman, with a huge she-wolf in the act of fastening on her neck. With a shout Juan rushed forward, and at sound, the fierce creature raised her head. and fixed on him two eyeballs glowing with rage and hunger. Without a moment's hesitation, the intrepid hunter seized the wolf by the intrepid hunder seized the wolf by the other with one hand and thrusting the other into her mouth, grasped her tongue, and dragged it as with an iron vice. After a fearful struggle, he succeeded in dashing the fearful struggle, he succeeded in dashing the strangled beast on the ground. This done, Juan looked round to see if his faithful ally had need of assistance. No; his antagonist also lay dead, and the hunter had time to attend to the woman, who lay motionless on the ground, having lainted from excess of terryr. Her deliverer raised her gently in his arms, put back the rich brown hair that had fallen over her tace, and perceived that she was a young and very lovely girl. Taking a handlul of the snow which lay on the ground, he rubbed it on her temples, and then suc ceeded in putting some small bits of ice into her mouth. By degrees she revived, her eyelids unclosed, and she drew a deep sigh.

'Where am I?' she murmured.

'It was you, then, who saved me?'
'Rather it was Providence, who was pleased to employ my hand.'

She thanked him with a look far more ele quent than words; and then, with confiding aplicity, as she still felt weak, asked him t et her lean on his arm as far as her home. "I was going to the town," she said, "to sell some milk, when those dreadful wolves attacked me, upset my pitcher, and, but for your timely aid and that of your good dog, would surely have devoured me." The conversation thus commenced did not flag. Juan soon learned that Marguerite liv-ed in the hamlet of Campan; that she was an orphan, and had no property save a small cot-tage, one cow, and some hens. She managed tage, one cow, and some hens. She managed to support herself with the profits of these animals and of her spinning. Her perfect canoor and her innocent beauty charmed the honest heart of Juan; he thought that, were he possesed of all the treasures in the world, he would like to lay them at Marguerite's feet. On entering the village, the news of their adventure spread quickly; and it was easy to see, by the consequent excitement, how much the young girl was beloved by her neighbors. Both young and old rushed forth to meet her; Joan was overwhelmed with thanks and praises; nor was poor Cassar by thanks and praises; nor was poor Cæsar by thanks and praises; nor was poor Cæsar by any means lorgotten.

"Adieu, Marguerite," said Juan, when he had accompanied her to her cottage door.

"May I sometimes come to see you?"

"To whom should my door be open, if not to my deliverer?" said the young girl, innocently, at the same time extending her hand to Juan.

He pressed it to his line, and hastened away.

He pressed it to his lips, and hastened away.
When he reached home, he found Gertrude very uneasy at his prolonged absence.
"Oh my child!" she cried, "where have you been, and what are those stains of blood upod your dress?" been, and what are those stains of blood upod your dress?"

Juan smiled. "Do n't be uneasy, mother; this blood is not mine, but that of an enemy I killed." And he told her all that had oc-curred, not concealing the feelings of admira-tion and love which he felt for her whom he

"Thank God, my child," said the old woman, "that your choice has fallen on so worthy an object. I have often heard the beauty and virtuous industry of Marguerite commended. She is called by her neighbors the Pearl of Campan."

It never occurred to the affectionate grandmother the fair girl in question could possibly be insensible to the attractions of her boy; and, indeed, the event proved that she was not far wrong. Marguerite was of so innocent and frank a nature to play the coquette with him who had risked his life for hers, and the preliminaries for their marriage were speedily arranged.

On the morning preceding that on which their bans were to be published, the sound of a drum was heard in the peaceful Vallley of Campan; and the prefect of the district proclaimed the drawing of conscripts for the army. Poor Juan! his was amongst the first of my. Poor Juan! his was amongst the first of the selected names, and at the moment the shock nearly stunned him. However, he had been taught not to shrink from his duty, and having calmly made the needful preparations, he drew his betrothed aside, and said, "Listen to me, Marguerite. You promised to be mine; I am toing away for some years, perhaps for ever; it is right that you should be free,—I give you back your vow."

"And I," said the girl, "will not take it back. Whether our next meeting, Juan, will back. Whether our next meeting, Juan, will be here or in the better world to which, I trust, we are both looking, I will never marry The young man pressed her hand in silence.

"But my mother!" he said at length, while two unwonted tears rolled down his cheek; she is old, infirm, unable to work for her support..."

"Cæsar followed his master to the wars, and Gertrude, on the day of Juan's departure, took up her abode in Marguerite's cottage. The old woman managed the domestic affairs, while the young one carried her milk, butter, eggs and poultry to market. In the evenings, as they both sat at their spinning wheels their conversation naturally turned on Juan:— "Where is he now? what is he doing while we are speaking of him?" Sometimes their anxiety was assuaged by the arrival of a letter filled with hope and tenderness; but at length one came which increased their sorrow. It bore the stamp of Algeria. Juan smounced that his regiment had just landed in Africa, and was immediately to march on the town of Zaatche, where a number of the second color of the stamp of Algeria. and was immediately to march on the town of Zaatcha, where a number of insurgent Arabs nad intrenched themselves. Some sharp fighting was expected, as the rebels were known to be desperate. Under this afflicting intelligence, the two women found their only consolation in religion—in committing their dear one to the care of God. Every day, on her way to the town, Marguerite was accustomed to pause for a few minutes at the spot where she had first met her betrothed, and where, during the happy days of her courtship, he had raised a rustic seat; she used to kneel beside that simple memento and pray fervently, nor did she ever rise and go on her way with nor did she ever rise and go on her way with-Tevery evening, on her return, her first question to Gertrude was, Has Juan written? And the old woman would silently shake her head with a desparing gesture, which seemed to imply, 'Juan will never write to us again?

bagicres, she was overtaken by a violent thunder storm. There was no place of refuge nearer than her own cottage; and with her garments dripping and her eyes blinded by the driving rain, she hastened toward it. What did she see? A blazing-lightening stricken pile, surrounded by a terrified crowd of villagers.
"'Mother!' cried Marguerite, darting on-

"A cry of agony from within the burning "A cry of agony from which the barning cottage was the reply.
"Mother, courage! I'll save, or die with you." And before the astounded spectators could detain her, she rushed through the flames. A minute, which seemed an age of flames. A minute, which seemed an age of agonizing suspense, passed, and Marguerite reappeared, dragging forth her pious barden, and forming with her own body a rampart against the flames. Scarcely had she allowed the old woman to fall into some of the arms ready to receive her, when the heroic girl sunk down, herself manimate.

"When she opened her eyes," continued the curate, "she was in an apartment in my

the curate, "she was in an apartment in my house, whither I caused her to be carried. Gertrude and I had watched her three days and three nights by her bed, awaiting the moment of returning consciousness. Her moment of returning consciousness. Her first sensation was that of torturing pain in her face. She raised her band to it, and felt that it was so enveloped in bandages as to leave only the mouth and eyes free. A cry escaped her lips 'Oh, I remember the storm, the flames! I am disfigured for life—is it not

"Gertrade and I were silent. It was but too true; the devouring element, leaving her body, protected by her wet clothes, untouched had seized on her face. The beauty of fea-ture and the delicacy of complexion, which had procured for her the graceful sobriquet, was totally destroyed.
Until the bandages were removed, which the surgeon did not yet deem it prudent to do, he could not tell the extent of the disfiguremeni, but that it would be very great was certain. Our silence, and the tears which we could not reppress, acquainted the poor child with her misfortune. She raised Ler eyes to heaven with a touching expression of resignation. "It is thy will, my God" she said, "but let not Juan see me thus." "Juan!" repeated Gertrude; "we shall soon

"Is he coming?"

"In ten days—see yourself.'" She handed a letter to Marguerite, which the latter read with eagernesss. It was written by the hand of one of his comrades, and informed them that Juan, who had received a severe wound at the seign of Zaatala, was now you were allowed. at the seige of Zaatcha, was now convalescent in hospital; had obtained, as a reward for his services, a cross of merit, his discharge, and a pension, and would be with them in ten or twelve days at furthest.

"Having finished reading the letter, Marguerite fell into a profound reverie, from which neither Gertrudes' fond caresses nor my attempts at consolation could arouse her. 'Oh. sir,' said she, at last, 'it is not for its own sake that I value beauty, but—how can Juan love me when he sees me in this state?' At that moment the surgeon entered, and having felt his patient's pulse, he began silently to re-move the bandages. As soon as Marguerite felt that her wounds were exposed, she asked for a mirror.

'Not yet, my child; not to-day,' said the doctor. She tried to raise her hands to feel her face. 'Hold her arms down,' cried the surgeon to the old woman and myself. We did so, involuntarily turning away our eyes from the sight of those swollen and mutilated catures, once so lovely.
"Marguerite saw and understood our movement. 'Is it not so, sir?' she said to me calm-ly; 'will it not be impossible for him to love

"Nine days passed on; the wounds were nearly cicatrized. The tenth day was that of Juan's expected return; but no one ventured Juan's expected return; but no one ventured to speak of it. Early in the morning, Marguerite rose and prepared to go out saying that a walk in the fresh air would do her good. I offered to accompany her.

"'No, thank you sir,' she said; my good mother alone will come with me.' And with one hand slightly leaning on Gertrude's arm. while the other held a small package, she went out. They walked toward Juan's rustic seat, but very slowly, for the convelsement.

"The truth. I am going away. You will say good-by for me to him, mother; and tell him that it is my very love for him that forces

"'He has a noble heart.' replied the girl; and I know that he would marry me, and try to make me happy; but how could I endure his averted looks—his sorrow! No, no; I shall suffer much less in suffering alone.'

"Just then a well-known bark was heard, and a large white dog rushed out of the woody path. 'Casar!! cried Gertrude.'

Where is your master?'

"'Here he is,' replied an agitated voice; and holding one end of a cord, of which the other was fastened to Casar's collar, a soldier appeared. 'Mother! are you here? Where is Marguerite? Why don't you come and embrace your poor blind wanderer?

"Blind?' exclaimed Marguerite; and fixing her eyes on her betrothed, she saw that his were covered with a bandage. I cannot describe the emotions of all three; suffice it to say, that after an incredible number of embraces, Gertrude and her two children return-"'He has a noble heart.' replied the girl;

"Well," I said, "I suppose the blind warrior and his betrothed—still, in his imagination, blooming in all her youthful charms—were speedily united?"

"They were," he replied. "It was I who married them; but I have somewhat more to tell you of them. Their cottage, by the willing aid of all the villagers, was soon rebuilt, and they removed into it. Their circumstances were very comfortable, and Juan supstances were very comfortable, and Juan supported his infirmity—caused, he told me, by the explosion of a mine—with the utmost cheerfulness. His tenderness for his wife seemed to increase every day; and yet she was evidently not happy. She became a prey to constant melancholy, and her health and strength visibly declined. Her old friend, the doctor, visited and prescribed for her, but without avail.

'My art is at fault,' he said to me. 'Her body suffers, but the seat of the disease is her mind. Do you try to discover what the seeret is which weighs on her, may be, or I cannot answer for her life.'

'Alas! how could I apply the consolation of religion to a case of which the sufferer persisted in keeping me profoundly ignorant? Once she seemed on the point of opening her mind, but Juan entered the room, and she was silent; nor could I care effects.

was silent; nor could I ever afterward induce her to speak freely. Meantime her bodily condition became very precarious, and Juan, who was now aware of her danger, scarcely ever stirred from her side. Old Gertrude, as you may suppose, was scarcely less anxious about her. "One evening, when I was in the cottage, the doctor arrived; and having examined his patient, pronounced that unless some power-ful reaction took place she could not long survive. How solemn were the moments that succeeded this announcement! Poor Juan grasped convulsively the hand of his wife, while large tears streamed from beneath his "I began to exhort her on the subject of religion; and when I spoke of the mercy of her Maker, she exclaimed:

"'Oh, I have great need of mercy, for my conscience is burdened with a heavy load. Listen,' she continued, addressing us all, 'and tell me whether I can hope for forgiveness.'

"Grouped around her bed, we waited in silent astonishment. Marguerite had raised herself into a sitting posture; her wasted arms, her disordered hair, her sunken features, her hollow eyes, gleaming with a light like that of a lamp kindling up before it was extinguished forever, lent an air of indescribable solemnity to the scene. Placing her able solemnity to the scene. Placing her hand in her husband's, she said—'Juan, you remember, when we separated, the promise which we made of mutual fidelity? My heart was yours, and yours was mine. Well, the terror of losing that heart caused me to commit a grievous sin. I pictured you to myself with shocked, averted looks at the first sight of her who was a communication.

she is old, infirm, unable to work for her suport—"
"'Your mother, Juan, interrupted Marguerte, 'is she not henceforth mine? So long as God gives me strength to work, our mother thall not want a home."
"And so, with mutual blessings and fond ears they parted.
"Comean the selfish in the selfish is prayer was uttered. I bitterly repented, and would fain have recalled it; but too late!

Juan, the wish was granted and Liver parted. Juan, the wish was granted, and I have never know since one moment's happiness.'
"'What!' cried her husband, 'and is this the ecret, Marguerite, which is killing you?"

secret, Marguerite, which is killing you?"
"It is,"
"Then live, dearest, and be happy; your prayer was not answered."
"And tearing off the bandage which covered his eyes, he tell on his wife's bosom, and clasped her in a long embrace.
"It appeared that the blindness which had fallen on Juan was of only a temporary nature. Under the skillful treatment of our friend, the surgeon, whom he privately confriend, the surgeon, whom he privately consulted, the power of vision began slowly but surely to return. Having, however, heard from his grandmother the whole history of Marguerite's horror at the idea of his beholding her disferent face, he generously determined ing her disfigured face, he generously determined to conceal from her his cure, at least for a time. Now, however it was suddenly re-vealed; and was it too late? The doctor, motioning us all away from the bed, took his pa-tient's hand, and felt her pulse; a hopeful smile played on his benevolent lips.

"My friend,' said he, turning to me, 'the age of miracles has not ceased—Marguerite is much disfigured?"

Here the good man ceased, and, after a pause, I asked:
"And was Marguerite in reality so very

"You shall judge for yourself." We walked on, and soon reached a neat and pretty cottage, covered in front with a luxuri-ant vine. An oid woman sat near the doorto imply, 'Juan will never write to us again!'
"One day as Marguerite was returning from Bagneres, she was overtaken by a violent thunder storm. There was no place of refuse the modern than the reside, a young woman was nursing an infant. Her figure was remarkably graceful, and her face, although certainly not handsome, was by no means repulsive. It was even easy to distinguish, amid the seams and scars which marked it, the vestiges of great beauty. There was a touching expression of serene tenderness shed over her features, as she looked on her child, which in my eyes amply compensated for the want of regular comeliness.

The curate advanced. "Good morning, Marguerite," he said.

"Good morning, sir," she answered, looking "Good morning, sir," she answered, looking up with a beaming smile.
"How is baby to-day?"
"As well as possible," said the happy mother, holding up and showing her nursling's rosy, dimpled cheeks.
"Well, Marguerite," said the good old man, taking the innocent little creature in his arms, and kissing its tender forchead, "I could fancy this is yourself as I remember you on the cy this is yourself as I remember you on the day that I baptized you. Come, the Valley of Campan has not lost its Pearl-it is restored in the person of your lovely little daughter."

remedy has no equal. In cases of cholera, summe complaint, dyspepsia, dysentery, asthmá, it cures in one night, by taking it internally, and bathing with it treely. It is the best liniment in America Its action is like magic, when externally applied to bad sores, burns, scalds, and sprains. For the sick headache and toothache, don't fail to try it. In short, it is a Pain Killer.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetned to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the SPEAT enness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD-PURIFIER and LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these bitters according to directions and remain long unwell. S100 will be given for an incurable cases, providing the ones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

FOR INFLAMMATORY AND CHRONICRHEUMATISM, AND GOUT. DYSPEPSIA, or INDIGESTION, BILIOUS, REMITTENT, INTREMITTENT, FEVERS, DISEASES OF THE BLOOD, LIVER, KIENEYS and, BLADDER, these BITTERS have been most successful. SUCH DISEASES are caused by VITIATED BLOOD, which is generally produced by derangement of the DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood healthy, and all will be well.

These Bitters are not a gidded pill, to delight the eye or please the fancy, but a medical preputation, composed of the best vegetable ingredients known.

They are an Alterative, Tonic, Diuretic, Sedative, Diaphotetic, and Gentle Purgative.

STORY ALTIMISCELLANEOUS. Imperial Fire Insurance Com'y Union House, For Halifax, Nova Scotia.

OF LONDON. United States Branch Office, Nos. 40 & 42 Pine Street New York.

Of which amount - - - - $3,180,155 IS A NET SURPLUS ALSO IN GOLD.

We take the following from the New York Insurance Commissioner's Report to January 1st, 1869. He says. "The vast net surplus of the Imperial Company at the beginning of this year was Three Million One Hundred and Eighty Thousand One Hundred and Fifty-Five Dollars, (83,180,155.)" He says—"This we believe is unequaled by any other Company—the Largest Earned Fire Insurance Surplus in the World. Fhe Imperial being exclusively a Fire Office—its ASTONISHING RESERVE is for the SECURITY of FIRE RISKS ALONE. The par value of the Imperial stock is $250 per share; sales by the last London quotations, 1,750 per share. This is the stamp which the London stock market places upon this Company. Wonderful as is the Imperial in many respects, there is nothing intrinsically wonderful in this market value. Dividing from 40 to 50 per cent, annually upon its cash capital, with a net accumulated earnings nearly six times greater than that capital, the price of its shares in the markets is in simple consistency with the basis upon which their essential value reposes.

Risks taken as cheap in this Company as by any first-class Company. EDW. W. CROWELL, Resident Manager. JOS, B. ST. JOHN, Assistant Manager.

On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will lotten be found, and sometimes small particles of semen or albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkigh hue, again changing to a dark and turbid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the SECOND STACE OF SEMINAL WEARNESS.

I can warrant a perfect cure in such cases, and a full and healthy restoration of the urinary organs.

Persons who cannot personally consult the Dr., can do so by writing, in a plain manner, a description of their diseases, and the appropriate remedies will be forwarded immediately.

All correspondence strictly considential and will be returned, if desired.

READ THES!

IT is a remarkable fact that SIEAM REFINED TRIPE is the best article of food that can be found at this season of the year.

This is the season of the year for people to be dyspeptic; yet there is no need to be so, eat plenty of Belknap's Steam Refined Tripe, and keep a clean conscience and your dreams will be delightful.

It is recommended by all physicians when the directive organs are out of gear.
