Biographical Note

A 1978 graduate of the University of Maine, Orono, Diane Elze began her volunteer career working for the YWCA Fair Harbor Shelter in Portland, Maine. In 1981 Elze left the YWCA to work more closely with developmentally disabled populations of Southern Maine, including editing the newsletter Moving, The Newspaper of the Maine Association of Handicapped Persons. She joined The AIDS Project in Portland as a case manager in the spring of 1988, beginning a long career dedicated to serving the LGBT community at large.

Thereafter, Elze gained renown through her co-founding of Outright, the Portland Alliance of Gay and Lesbian Youth, a support group for gay, lesbian, and bisexual youths under the age of 22. In time, Outright chapters opened across the New England area, representing all Northern New England states. During this time Elze served as president of the Maine Lesbian/ Gay Political Alliance (MLGPA) and founded the statewide gay and lesbian newspaper, Our Paper. Over the course of the early 1990s she received numerous awards from a variety of organizations across Maine recognizing her efforts. The Sampson Center has a nearly complete run of Our Paper.

For her next accomplishment, Elze earned a Master's Degree from the Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences at Case Western University in Cleveland, Ohio, followed by a PhD from the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University in St. Louis. During her graduate career, Elze's primary focus of study remained LGBT youth, specifically their mental health and behavioral functioning. Working directly with the Youth Services Project, Center for Mental Health Services Research, HIV Prevention and Life Options for Youths in Foster Care and Missouri Child and Adolescent Project in her research, Elze continued to win awards for both academic excellence and community involvement.

Since completing her PhD in 1999, Dr. Elze has held positions as a professor with both Washington University and the University at Buffalo, continuing her research into assisting LGBT youth communities across the Northeast. She remains a prolific writer of articles, editorials and research on LGBT issues including educational resources for teachers and students on how to approach comfortable assimilation of LGBT-friendly initiatives in the school district. She has also continued volunteering, most notably with the Gay and Lesbian Youth Services of Western New York, where she occupies a seat on the Board of Directors. She has continued to win community service awards while archiving a personal collection of LGBT research materials spanning the entirety of her public service career.

Description of the Papers

The Papers consist of the personal accumulation of materials related directly to the interests of Dr. Diane Elze, her research focusing on (and her involvement with) the LGBT community. The bulk of the material dates from the late 1980s to late 1990s. Most materials are original documents, or photocopied reprints of original documents such as newspapers, informational pamphlets, and full-length research texts. Legislation covered in the collection includes the Maine Civil Rights Bill, the Portland ordinance, and the Massachusetts Education Reform Act of 1993. Organizations covered in the Papers include the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force, Act Now, Act Up, Hysterical Angry Girls Sorority and MLGPA. The Papers have been divided into nine topical series, with the contents of each series arranged geographically, chronologically, or topically.

In addition to documents of legislative or organizational importance, the Papers feature personal documents of Dr. Elze, such as correspondence, research and notes. The Papers were kept as close to the original arrangement of Dr. Elze as possible, especially in Series 6 (Gays in Maine).

Series 1. Civil Rights Issues (1975-2000, undated)

Civil Rights Issues has been divided into subseries based on geographic location with deference to how close each occurred to Diane Elze's home state of Maine. The first subseries then being issues occurring in Maine, the second subseries featuring issues in New England, and the third, issues of national recognition. Types of material include newspaper clippings, photocopies, audio cassettes, and organizational records.

Series 2. Events (1977-1999, undated)

The second series, Events (including speeches) has also been subdivided into three geographic areas: Maine, National, and International. The series contains papers, flyers, correspondence, speeches, and memorabilia from LGBT conferences, dinners & festivals.

Series 3. Organizations (1987-1992, undated)

This series contains information on the organizations National Gay & Lesbian Task Force, Act Now, Act Up, Hysterical Angry Girls Sorority, MLGPA, and Outright, among others. Types of material include organizational records, theater props, t-shirts, audio/VHS cassettes, awards, brochures, posters, and event documents.

Series 4. Resources (1971-2004, undated)

The fourth series has been sub-divided topically rather than geographically, into HIV/AIDS, Youth, and Healthcare/Funding.

Series 5. Workshops and Training Materials (1980-2002, undated)

This series contains LGBT topic workshops that Elze helped organize and/or deliver.

Series 6. Clippings and Notes about Gays in Maine (1970s -1999, undated)

The sixth series contains newspaper clippings, notes and handouts which Elze collected about LGBT issues in the state of Maine.

Series 7. Media (1975-2008, undated)

This series contains magazines, newspapers, booklets, and journals concerned with LGBT issues. Issues of some Maine-based publications were removed to be consolidated into catalogued runs in the LGBT Collections' book collection.

Series 8. Correspondence (1976-1986, 2000, undated)

The eighth series contains correspondence, travel logs from friends through email, a book proposal from well-known author John Preston, and a book manuscript (LGBT topic) from a friend.

Series 9. Performance/Production Materials (1978-1990, undated)

This series contains scripts and playbills from productions of Oklahomo, Star Gays, and Gay Side Story; also, cassette tape recordings of musicians, and a VHS recording of a public service announcement about gay youth.

Series 10. Oversize

The final series contains materials too large or irregular to fit into document boxes. They are listed within their regular series, then included here to give their physical location.

Appendix – Historical Notes

In 1992, Portland's City Council passed a human rights ordinance aimed at adding "sexuality" as protected criteria from discrimination. The ordinance was soon removed for a public referendum on whether or not it could stand. A volunteer organization, Equal Protection/Portland emerged as the leading voice for upholding the ordinance. Ultimately the ordinance was upheld by vote on November 3, 1992.

In 1992, Colorado's legislature voided an existing statute that guaranteed civil rights protections for gay men and lesbian women in jobs and housing in Denver, Aspen and Boulder. They also elected to extend the ruling to apply to any similar future statutes proposed by any other Colorado municipality. The response, Boycott Colorado, aimed to hurt the tourism market of the state, a particularly exciting ski destination. Even though the Boycott proved to be a financial success, draining some $39 million of the state's projected $6.4 billion yearly tourism revenue despite record snow falls in late 1992, the movement lost steam as leadership fell apart over disagreements as to the organization's approach. The action did, however, send a warning to other states relying on the revenues of tourism contemplating similar legislation to preclude discrimination based on sexuality.

In 1993, after lobbying and active protest from several prominent LGBT rights groups, Maine's state legislature opted to revise the statute in Title 17, section 2931, guaranteeing Maine residents "the right to engage in lawful activities without being subject to physical force or violence, damage or destruction of property, trespass on property or the threat of physical force or violence, damage or destruction of property or trespass on property motivated by reason of race, color, religion, sex, ancestry, national origin, physical or mental disability." The amendment added "sexual orientation" to the end of the list, banning discrimination based on sexual orientation across the state.

In 1993, Republican Governor William Weld of Massachusetts signed into law the Gay and Lesbian Student Rights Bill. The first of its kind, the bill became the earliest legislation introduced and approved by a United States government body to affirm the rights of gay and lesbian students, allowing them to initiate lawsuits against school systems that discriminate or subject them to harassment because of their sexuality. The bill received strong endorsements from numerous sitting state politicians after a headstrong campaign of over 500 high school students from across the state rallied with candlelight vigils and through visits to the offices of each of the 40 state senators. During the lobbying process, students also testified before the Senate that they had been insulted, ridiculed and even attacked for being gay, not just by fellow students but in some cases by teachers and administrators as well. The demonstrated need for this legislative action was made more apparent when it was revealed that 28% of gay and lesbian students were dropping out of school altogether. Additionally, the Governor's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth, formed by Weld as the first of its kind in the nation, continued to operate throughout his tenure, originating over 100 gay/straight alliances in Massachusetts high schools by early 1997.
