What to Buy Your Wife?

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Let's go and see what the male celebrities are buying their wives for Christmas — maybe it'll help us decide what to get for our brides this year.

"How about some pearls?" said Don Ameche. "Thanks a LOT!" I replied, succinctly adding, "Pal!"

"I'm getting my wife a new fur coat — I found out today," Toots Shor said.

They — and some other famous husbands, Steve Allen, Eddie Albert and Skitch Henderson — agreed that I should buy the Beautiful Wife something a little luxurious, a little snobbish, a little impractical — it should be fluffy, frivolous, feminine — an elegant jeweled lighter, a quart of expensive perfume . . . in fact, they admitted, they didn't know either, what I should buy her . . . or what they should buy their wives. It's a big problem.

Frank Sinatra gave a close friend a Picasso once — adding he'd had it for five years and loved it. Hollywood lawyer Greg Bautzer once gave his friend, Arnold Grant, then his partner, a new white Jaguar.

Ernie Crosby always gives his wife a baby," Bob Hope said. So I asked the advice of Diane Mitchell, a lovely Pasadena ex-model, now heading a national personal shopping service. "What's 'in' this year — and what's 'out'?" I asked.

"CLOTHES you're safest with, buying for a wife," she said. "A nice hostess robe is 'in' — Hong Kong brocades and silks — with pants — or one of those sari hostess gowns — only about $200. "Aunt — yes," I coughed. "How about a bit of something 'different'?" (translated a little cheaper).

Miss Mitchell, who shops for rich Latin, often buying a mink coat for women, a new suit for men, consulted an "unusual gift" catalog from California, which listed: A real submarine for two people, $1,495.

A "bugged" howling ball — there's a make-believe snake in it which leaps out at you. A back zipper-upper that a wife can operate.

Deluxe Moose Hunting
All of the tough work of getting a big moose out of the wilds of Northern Manitoba has been pretty well eliminated, according to Herb Kleyla, Shangri-La Motel, who returned Wednesday from his 18th big game hunt in Canada with this 1,300-pound three-year-old bull.

Herb and his pilot friend, a native of the area, flew over the moose area, spotted the bull from the air, landed with the ski-equipped plane on a nearby lake, shot the moose and flew back to the camp. A tractor with a lowboy went out, unhooked the tractor three miles from the dead animal, broke down the brush, and pulled it to the truck. It was Herb's problem from there.

In flying over a fairly large river and lake area, the bull moose was the only one seen. Last year in the same area they spotted 14 moose. There was about three inches of snow on the ground. Deer seemed plentiful, Herb added. It was below zero when he hunted on Saturday.

"Bud" Husak, a friend of long standing, in addition to piloting his own plane, operates a three section farm about 140 miles north of Winnipeg. Agriculture is crowding in on the wilderness areas.

Kleyla has shot several large moose in the past. In fact, he has in his home a majestic mounted moose head. This year's animal dressed out at about 900 pounds and is young enough to make good eating.

Winter Litterbugs
Minnesota and Wisconsin Conservation Departments have asked us to give publicity to winter litterbugging, such as throwing rubbish, beer cans, bottles and even dead fish on the ice.

Fishermen will agree that conditions get bad as the winter fishing season advances. The amount of rubbish grows from day to day. Fishhouse owners are on the "hot spot". They can be held responsible for litter around their shacks.

Incidentally, the litterbug law of the two states covers the ice of rivers and lakes and states that it is the duty of all law enforcement officers, not just game wardens, to enforce the law. In nearby Wisconsin there were several litterbug arrests last winter. The area around a skating rink also come under the law. Thus, it's wise to "police-up" at the end of the days fishing.

Fishing Weather
The advance forecast for the Winona area for the weekend is "occasional light snow with little temperature change" which means to the average winter fisherman favorable conditions. Most fishermen do not object to daytime temperatures in the 10-30 degree range. It is seasonable.

A little snow on the ice would probably help. At least it would improve walking conditions. For the last week, ice creepers or cleats have been a good asset if a fisherman was going into the back sloughs after the big ones.

Reports through Thursday continued to be favorable from most of the common or more popular fishing areas. Limits of panfish, both sunnies and crappies were common. One fisherman told us "See that fellow over there," pointing to another fisherman. "He already has taken home two limits today and is now trying for the third one." We figured that the party that told us was a poor fisherman or in the wrong spot. Anyway, fishing on most of the sloughs has been good.

JERRY'S LOUDEST LAUGHING HIT!!

Jerry Lewis 'It's ONLY MONEY'

By GRETCHEN L. LAMBERTON

CHRISTMAS trees, trees, trees; all over town! On front porches and in front windows; trees for sale in vacant lots and grocery stores, at the YMCA and the Methodist Church. What a lovely thing to bring into one's closed-up winter house, a live growing tree from a remote forest!

When I first moved out into the country 12 years ago my son planted 15 little knee-high pine trees along the edge of my steep circular driveway. They were sweet little trees but I was sure they were spaced much too far apart. And then the little things began to grow both high and wide. They shot up at the most astounding rate until they formed a high impenetrable fence around my driveway that threatened to shut out all view.

Last summer tree-man Her-man Allen said I'd have to take out a few as the giants needed more room. I said "Let's wait until Christmas when they can be used." We marked three that absolutely had to come out. So, one evening last week a group of young people from St. Paul's Church drove out in a pickup truck and chopped down the biggest one, a real church-sized tree, which, charmingly, had a "nest of robins in its hair." I wish that the nest could have been left in it, but it was abandoned and quite frowzy.

The next biggest one was for my son-in-law and daughter's family who have a big old house with high ceilings, and the entire family came out and chopped it down and hoisted it onto the station wagon roof. The little tree, badly squeezed between two enormous pines, was for me, and it turned out to be so much bigger than I realized that the bottom third had to be cut off. It had been so cramped between the two giants that it had grown crooked, and the top third looked like a crooked finger. But it was immensely bushy, fresh and fragrant. And to me the crooked top was very endearing; for after all I had raised it from a pup and felt about it as a mother would feel about a child that grew up with crooked teeth or a slight limp.

Last Saturday was my mother's 88th birthday, and as usual as many of the family as possible gathered around for her birthday dinner. But this year it was a special sort of dinner party. For, six days before her birthday she had slipped and fallen, had broken her left shoulder and been taken to the hospital. Just home from the hospital she was upstairs in bed with her arm in a sling.

Twelve of us, including my sister, brother-in-law and niece from Minneapolis and my son from Indiana, gathered up in her bedroom at 6 p.m. with her lighted birthday cake and a bottle of champagne. We drank a toast to her, she blew out all the candles in one big puff amid much laughter. Then her dinner was brought up on a tray while we went down to the dining room and had our dinner. Near the end of dinner my sister Dorothy went upstairs to see if the birthday gal wanted anything. Coming down she tripped on the bottom step, fell and broke her left wrist — and was taken to the hospital.

As my son said, "Grandma, you certainly put on a CRASHING birthday party!"

This next paragraph makes me feel good, for it's a most generous offer to some family of a Christmas gift beautiful little collie puppy. Mrs. A. E. Schleder of West Burns Valley called to say that they would like to give away to some family who would take good care of her, a beautiful eight-week-old collie puppy that looks exactly like a miniature Lassie. Both the mother and father are handsome, gentle and affectionate, also very intelligent.

What a Christmas present for some family that wants a good dog! If interested, telephone Mr. or Mrs. A. E. Schleder, West Burns Valley.

Nuclear Test Ban Without Red China Hit

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A nuclear test ban — or any disarmament agreement — that excluded Red China would be useless and dangerous, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said Thursday.

It would be ridiculous, he said, to make an arms-curtailed agreement without including the potential aggressor — "the bad boys," he said in the closing address of the International Arms Control Symposium at the University of Michigan.

Humphrey, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on disarmament, proposed regional disarmament pacts — particularly in Latin America — and in Africa and Asia, operating on the same principles as such defense organiza-

The arms race is a luxury no nation can afford, Humphrey added.

New Expense Account Tax Ruling Hit

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Many restaurant and hotel operators are raising cries of anguish over the government's new expense account tax deductions rules. Some claim they could be put out of business or badly hurt. Others are taking a wait-and-see attitude until the Internal Revenue Service clarifies regulations under which the 1962 tax law will be enforced. A few expect to benefit.

All are aware that IRS Commissioner Mortimer Caplin — the nation's income tax collector — has said: "I think expense account living is a thing of the past."

The government's intention is to stamp out what it considers illegitimate deductions for lavish expenditures.

In the face of a storm of objections, to some proposed regulations, Caplin promised at a hearing in Washington that the original stringent rules will be modified.

He carried this theme a bit farther at a tax seminar in New York City this week, saying the final rules will be "fair and reasonable." He stressed that the government isn't telling businessmen what or how to spend but what can be deducted.

As for contentions that curtailment of expense account business will cause some restaurants to close, Caplin said: "I hope it isn't so. We have met with businessmen and have tried to accommodate our rules to their feelings."

But the extent of the modification worries hotel, restaurant and theater men.

Their objections are mainly against a requirement for substantiation by detailed records of all travel and entertainment expenses over $10 and their purpose. Caplin said an increase to $25 is being considered.

"I will nearly put us out of business," said George Edgy, co-owner of Edgy's Restaurant, a Kansas City night club. "Many people will just stay home rather than go through all that rigmarole of detailed accounting. Many of our customers have told me so."

NASON ON EDUCATION

Learn to Listen Cures Talking

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
Professor of Education,
University of Southern California

Students ask many questions about school and study. At a recent talk to a junior high assembly I was deluged with them. Here are some sample questions:

An eighth-grade girl: "How can I stop talking so much?"

It depends on what you think about while the teacher or another student is talking. You have been thinking of what you are going to say as you would in a conversation. Instead, you should study what is being said and try to understand it. Picture in your mind the ideas they are presenting. If you don't plan to talk you won't.

A ninth-grade boy: "Why do I study better in a noisy place? When there is no music or noise I start thinking of other things, not what I am supposed to be studying."

IT TAKES only about one-third of your thinking space to read words. The rest will not stay blank. You have been letting noise and music fill it. Without the noise or music, the other thoughts rush in.

Learn to use all of your thinking for the study at hand. Decide what you are going to find out by reading before you start, then STUDY what you are reading as you read. If your mind still wanders, try reading faster.

A seventh-grade girl: "When I write on an unlined paper my writing goes down hill. How can I overcome this?"

Take a fresh piece of unlined paper and write a sentence across the top of the paper. Fill the page with repeats of this same sentence.

AFTER YOU have written it twice you will be able to turn your attention to how you are writing and train your hand to write straight across the page. Writing properly calls for repeated exercise just as playing the piano or learning to play golf.

An eighth-grade girl: "Is it better to study vocabulary at night or in the morning?"

The best results can be obtained by studying vocabulary at both times.

Make vocabulary the last thing you study at night. Picture the meaning of each word; say the word aloud several times so that your ears become accustomed to hearing it at the same time your mind brings up the picture.

RECALL THE meanings of the new words the first thing in the morning, even before breakfast. This scheme has proved successful for every student who has tried it.

A ninth-grade boy: "Can you give some advice on learning the new geometry?"

I assume you mean the approach to geometry through the use of the mathematics of groups. (And I congratulate you, since you must be in an accelerated class to be studying geometry in the ninth grade.)

Try to understand each idea in words. Listen to your teacher and read your book determined to understand what is said. Memorizing procedures for use on tests will prove of little value.

A D.C. hotel man thinks the new rules will help his dining room and bar business.

"The convention-goer who used to go out to a lunch counter for a 36-cent hamburger — and then pay a $12.50 hotel dinner on his expense account — can't get away with it now. To have a record of his meal costs, he'll have to eat the $12.50 dinner and sign the check," he explained.

In New York City — one of the greatest expense account cities of them all — J. A. McCarthy, execu-utive vice president of the Hotel Association of New York City, said members of his organization feel the record-keeping requirement would be "onerous and unreasonable" and would be "very damaging to the hotel industry."

"I don't think we will get killed but it will hurt a little, at the start," said Philip Miles, vice president of the firm that operates New York City's luxurious Four Seasons and Forum of the Twelve Caesars restaurants.

"Business men who have been accustomed to conducting legitimate business over lunch aren't going to change."

Some restaurant operators contend that business men already are tightening up on entertainment spending.

Comedian Ben Blue closed his Santa Monica, Calif., night club because his credit card clientele fell off so sharply. Blue predicted many more will follow.

Mark Schmidt, general manager of Detroit's Sheraton Cadillac Hotel, expressed apprehension that the tax regulations as currently set up would have "a crippling effect on every phase of the hotel business." But he pointed out that the American Hotel and Motel Association feels that as finally established the rules will be less harmful to business than first feared.

Lyle Aschaffenburg, manager of the Ponchartrain Hotel, New Orleans, said, "There is no question in my mind but that two things will result: (1) some places will have to close, and (2) those that remain open will have to let some employees go."

Georgia Bank Installs Fallout Shelter, Well

MACON, Ga. (AP)—The Citizens & Southern National Bank of Macon is incorporating a complete fallout shelter with its own deep well in its $500,000 headquarters building now going up.

Executive vice president Ralph Eubanks said the shelter will accommodate the bank's employees and will be stocked with emergency supplies.

Black Underwear Is Not Uniform of Day

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—Mona Mathews, 53, spinster who heads a girl's school here, has written her pupils' parents not to send the girls back to school in black underpants.

"Black underwear is Victorian and dates back to the days when people didn't wash," said Miss Mathews after she found many of the girls in a gym class in black undies.

Less Wheat Being Stored This Season

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are storing wheat under government price support programs in the smallest quantity since 1957.

An Agriculture Department report Thursday showed that 205 million bushels from this year's crop had been placed under supports through November. This compared with 245 million of the 1961 crop in the same period last year. Last year's movement was smaller than in some of the previous years.

This decline in use of the government's price stabilizing machinery reflects the fact that this year's crop—grown under a land retirement program in addition to marketing quotas — was 12 per cent smaller than the 1961 crop and below expected market demands.

Farmers get loans averaging $2.00 a bushel on wheat stored under supports.

The report also showed that 29 million bushels of 1962 crop corn had been placed under supports compared with 12 million in the period last year. A great bulk of movement of corn under supports averaging $1.20 a bushel normally occurs after November of the production year.

Among major producing states, North Dakota had 11.1 million bushels of wheat under supports.

U.S. Mediator Irked in N.Y. Newspaper Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal mediator—expressing open annoyance at both sides in this city's 14-day newspaper strike—set a final negotiating session for today and warned he will recess the talks indefinitely if no progress is made.

"I've seen no results which merit continued meetings," mediator Stephen I. Schlossberg said at the end of Thursday's session.

He accused both the striking AFL-CIO International Typographical Union Local 6 and the Publishers Association of New York, which represents the nine metropolitan papers blacked out in the dispute, with failing to bargain seriously.

Schlossberg noted both sides had expressed concern because the strike had deprived New Yorkers of the 5 1/2 million papers they normally buy each day.

"I suggest that the proper way to display this interest and concern is at the bargaining table," he said.

Talks were recessed by federal mediators once before—from Dec. 12 to 18. Faced with the prospect of another long recess, Local 6 President Bertram A. Powers said: "I hope they are not giving up hope. We haven't."

Amory H. Bradford, general manager of the struck New York Times and chief negotiator for the publishers, said the publishers had tried without success to get the union to modify two proposals.

"Until the union comes to the table with reasonable demands, nothing will happen at them (the meetings)," Bradford said.

The Central Labor Council, made up of the city's AFL-CIO unions, endorsed the printers' strike at a nighttime meeting and voted a mass demonstration in their behalf.

DEAR ABBY:

Mother's Excuse Is Too Feeble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I admit I don't keep a very clean house but it's not my fault. My mother hated housework and she never bothered much with housekeeping. She taught me to put the housework last and said, "If you don't clean your house, your husband will." Maybe this is a poor excuse, but it's the truth and I just had to get it off my chest.

DEAR POOR HOUSEKEEPER: Your mother's advice sounds like a feeble excuse for poor housekeeping. To complete the picture she should have added, "There are many husbands who are mopping the floor with their wives every day." Get organized, Honey.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for some girls who need it. It expresses my feelings and the feelings of many of my friends. If a girl doesn't wear lipstick — even if she isn't so hot — I would sooner kiss her than the girl with lipstick, because guys who come home with lipstick on their shirts almost get killed by their mothers. I thank you.

FIFTEEN AND ALMOST KILLED ONCE

DEAR ABBY: You may consider this a silly question, but please, darling, try to help me. I have just lost my fifth garbage can! The last one I painted with black enamel, "PLEASE DO NOT STEAL THIS CAN." And I put my address on it. My neighbor said she saw a man stop and get out of a Cadillac car and HE took it. Can you imagine anything so cheap and dirty? So this morning I put my garbage in a Maison Blanc bag, and the garbage collector refused to take it. Is this the way they take care of beautiful St. Charles Avenue? The authorities pay me no attention. Can you give me a solution?

MRS. MARIE DE M.
New Orleans, La.

DEAR MARIE: Telephone your Department of Public Health and ask them to put you in touch with the Sanitation Department. Then tell them your story! If you get no results, take it right up to the mayor! (The problem—not the garbage.)

DEAR ABBY: My 22-year-old son came home heart-broken last night. He has been working and saving his money for a year to marry what we thought was a fine girl. He surprised her with a diamond ring and she refused it, saying she would rather wait until he could afford a BIGGER one. She said she would rather have no diamond than a small one. Is this modern thinking?

HEARTSICK MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: No. There have always been girls who place a great deal of importance on the size of a diamond. Tell your son to save the little gem for a girl who appreciates it. And him.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

MUSEUM REORGANIZED ... Mrs. Harry Busdicker checks a portion of the reorganized vault of the Winona County Historical Society museum in the lumbermen's building. The museum was closed recently for a time to permit the staff and volunteers to "make the society's historical materials more available, particularly to students of our area history. In addition to the books, manuscripts, newspapers and valuable scrapbooks, there is a microfilm collection with a suitable illuminated viewing device." The vault is 14 by 14 by 14 feet. BLAIR, Wis. (Special)—The tax rate in Blair this year is $43.385 per thousand valuation, an increase of 8 1/2 cents over last year. The credits straight across the board amount to $5,960 per thousand, according to Ray Nereng, clerk, bringing the general tax rate to $37,424.5 per thousand. The stock credits are additional. The city tax rate is $11.425 per thousand, an increase of $2.135 over last year. The school rate is $20.451, an increase of slightly over 90 cents per thousand. The county rate is $11.163, a drop of $1.797 from last year, and the state rate is $236, a drop of $.006 from 1961.

Let's Get Growing

By A. F. SHIRA

Some Bird Notes

The relatively mild weather that has prevailed recently seems to have had a corresponding reaction on the birds that come to our feeders.

During the few days of subzero temperatures, the birds would feed actively at the feeders and linger in the nearby shrubs close to the house foundation, especially the chickadees, juncos and English sparrows. The blue jays would swallow in rapid succession ten to twelve sunflower seeds before starting to carry some of them up into the trees. In milder weather they eat more of them at the feeder by holding the seeds in their claws and pounding the kernels out with the beak.

The woodpeckers, the red-bellied, hairy and downy, would feed heavily on the suet then fly up into the trees for brief periods and back to the feeders again. On the approach of milder weather the visits would be less frequent.

A lone tufted titmouse has been patronizing the feeders regularly since early in November, eating freely of the suet and grain consisting of wheat and cracked corn. Last year two of these demure little birds appeared at the feeders late in the winter and fed regularly, but so far no others have shown up.

THE JUNCOS have not been coming to the feeders since the advent of mild weather with the melting of the snow. They evidently prefer the seeds found in the nearby weed patches. The same has been true of the English sparrows, very few of which have appeared lately, although they were numerous during the colder days. They must be finding an abundance of food elsewhere. They are heavy feeders on crab grass seeds when they can find a plentiful supply.

The pair of cardinals that frequent our yard throughout the year have been constant attendants at the feeders, since they were first put out in the early fall. They feed a number of times during the day, especially in the early morning and late in the evening after the other birds leave. If the energetic chickadees and nuthatches have emptied the trays by carrying off all of the sunflower seeds, the male cardinal will perch on the highest point of the feeder, or in a nearby tree, until the trays are replenished again. As usual the female has to feed on the seeds placed on the ground for her use, while her lordly mate monopolizes the trays.

ONLY ONE red-bellied woodpecker has patronized our feeders for a number of years past, but this winter we have the pleasure of two of them as guests. One afternoon last week we heard a loud thump against one of the kitchen windows. On going outdoors one of these woodpeckers was found lying on the ground, evidently dazed by the blow, but otherwise apparently unhurt. It was taken indoors and placed in a box. Within a half-hour it had revived and quickly flew away when it was released outdoors. These red-bellied woodpeckers feed quite a bit on the fine grain consisting of a mixture of wheat and cracked corn. This is the first time that they have done this to any extent for they usually prefer the suet and walnut meats, as do the nuthatches.

A BALD EAGLE circled our bluff near the house for several days last week. As we watch this majestic bird soaring in the sky at a great height, free and unfettered, we are deeply reminded of our great country. We thrill at the sight, just as a feeling of exultation arises whenever we see the Stars and Stripes rippling in the breeze, each a symbol of a glorious and wonderful freedom.

A Winonan has won the district sales manager of the year award in the rural division of Watkins Products, Inc.

He's Marvin Fuglestad, 420 Sioux St., who is the district sales manager for Nebraska and South Dakota, a post he has held since 1954.

Fuglestad began as a Watkins dealer in 1946 at Cooperstown, N. D. After 3 1/2 years he came to Winona as fieldman for southern Minnesota, and established a sales record that has not been surpassed. He was the first to ship out a complete truckload of merchandise to an individual dealer, a practice that is common today. He received the award at a banquet of the rural sales conference for Midwest states at the Oaks Monday night. Presentation was by H. M. Meyers, vice president, rural division.

Robertson's 639 High in City Bowling

Jim Robertson, bowling for Dale's Standard, fired a 639 series with a 246 game for the individual high Thursday night in Winona bowling leagues.

His blast came in the Classic League at Westgate Bowl. Robertson had opened with 241 and hit 245 in his middle game, giving him 487. Needing 213 to become Winona's first "700" bowler in four years, he was unable to retain his groove again and finished with 152.

Jefferson Takes Undisputed Lead

Jefferson moved into undisputed first place in the Winona Junior High basketball league Thursday by knocking Washington-Kosciusko 53-45.

In the other game Central Blue handed Central Gold its third loss 31-13. John Ahrens led Jefferson's scoring with 26 points, Todd Spencer added 15. Larry Larson poured in 22 and Howard Becker 10 for Washington-Kosciusko.

Prices Mixed In Sluggish, Tired Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A "tired" stock market, on the eve of what will be a four-day Christmas weekend for many—but not for the stock exchanges—moved sluggishly early this afternoon. Prices were mixed.

Making a minimum change, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged off .1 to 241.5 with industrials off .5, rails up 2, and utilities up .3.

Many businesses will close on Monday, Christmas Eve, but the stock exchanges decided to stay open. General Motors eased fractionally back from its climb to historic highs. Oils and rails remained fairly steady. Chemicals, electrical equipments, motors, and steels showed a downturn.

Douglas Aircraft, which dropped sharply Thursday on news that Britain will drop Douglas' Skybolt missile in favor of Lockheed's Polaris, steadied and showed a slight edge to the upside. Lockheed followed its spurt of Thursday with a fractional gain, then erased the advance.

Pan American World Airways was off a fraction and Trans World Airlines was up a fraction following news that these two largest overseas carriers are filing a merger agreement with the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Among major steelmakers, Jones & Laughlin and U.S. Steel were fractional losers. Bethlehem and Republic Steel were steady. Losses of more than a point were taken by Union Carbide and Eastman Kodak. IBM sluffed off 3 points or so.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.80 at 647.75. Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were irregularly higher. U.S. government bonds were steady to higher.

Fire Destroys Barn; Loss Over $20,000

A 30- by 70-foot barn owned by Arthur E. Schlieder, West Burns Valley, burned to the ground Thursday night. The barn is about three miles southwest of Winona.

Winona firemen were unable to extinguish the fire, which had started in the rear of the barn. By the time they arrived the roof was burning and the fire was out of control.

Two firemen took one tank truck to the fire. By agreement with township authorities the Winona fire department sends only this amount of equipment and men to a fire outside the city.

"The barn was partially insured," said Schlieder. "It was worth about $20,000 with all the equipment in it. I had several hundred bushels of corn in the barn and about 300 to 400 bales of hay.

"The big loss is the calf feeding equipment I had in there. I'm just glad that the fire didn't happen one month later, because by that time I would have had all my calves in it. That really would have been a loss."

He said that he stored some seeds and equipment for the Northern Field Seed Corn Co.—with which he is associated—in the barn. "That was all lost. Their property may be covered by insurance, but I'm not sure.

"The barn was pretty dry and sparks from the fire went to a farm three-quarters of a mile south. We thought that our house might go too, but we were lucky there. There were no animals inside the barn and I had only a small amount of fertilizer in it.

"I don't know how it happened. I came back to the farm and looked at the barn. It didn't look like anything was wrong. I went into the house and a few minutes later the fire was raging. I called the fire department at about 6:10 p.m. and they arrived shortly."

Bridge Case Going to Jury In Buffalo

ALMA, Wis.—The $5,000 bridge damage case which started in Buffalo County Court Thursday morning was expected to go to the jury early this afternoon.

Testimony opened Thursday afternoon. Lawrence Wiecezorek, driver of the truck which fell three or four feet into a dry run on the Dominic Wozney farm, Town of Buffalo, was first witness on the stand.

According to testimony, Wiecezorek was proceeding to the Wozney farm on his private road with 10,000 pounds of lime fertilizer on his truck. Knowing the bridge was old, he parked his truck two or three feet from the edge of it, got out and walked to the house. As he got there, either the bridge or approach collapsed.

Mrs. Edward M. Dingfelder, Wozney and his wife, Gertrude; Herbert Gotschalk, employed by Town Buffalo, and Arthur Wolfe, Fountain City, were plaintiffs' witnesses Thursday afternoon.

Witnesses for the defense were George Wiecezorek; Gilbert Schultz, county highway employee; Wozney, called for cross-examination; George Janske, vice president of Peter Nelson Construction Co., former owner of the Wozney farm.

Testimony was completed just before noon. Trempealeau County Judge A. L. Twesine is presiding. The action was brought by the Wozneys against State Farm Mutual Insurance Co.

About Third Of County Votes Tallied

Two gubernatorial ballot recounting teams working at the Winona County courthouse are beginning to speed up their operations, team members said this noon.

The amount of paper work incidental to challenging ballots is the chief cause for delays, the officials said. All challenged ballots, registry lists which are questioned and pertinent exhibits must be forwarded to the Ramsey County District Court under whose orders the recount is being conducted. Duplicate copies of each challenged ballot are made by Ittekkubi and DFL members of the three-man teams for the records of their respective parties.
