Bryce Canyon is a small national park in southwestern Utah. Named after the Mormon Pioneer Ebenezer Bryce, Bryce Canyon became a national park in 1928.

Bryce is famous for its worldly unique geology, consisting of a series of horseshoe-shaped amphitheaters carved from the eastern edge of the Paunsaugunt Plateau in southern Utah. The erosional force of frost-wedging and the dissolving power of rainwater have shaped the colorful limestone rock of the Claron Formation into bizarre shapes including slot canyons, windows, fins, and spires called "hoodoos." Tinted with colors too numerous and subtle to name, these whimsically arranged rocks create a wondrous landscape of mazes, offering some of the most exciting and memorable walks and hikes imaginable.

Ponderosa pines, high elevation meadows, and fir-spruce forests border the rim of the plateau and abound with wildlife. This area boasts some of the world's best air quality, offering panoramic views of three states and approaching 200 miles of visibility. This, coupled with the lack of nearby large light sources, creates unparalleled opportunities for stargazing.

Professional Record

the home. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, an able administrator, recently said publicly: "The young men and women of the country form one of the most serious law enforcement." The children are not to blame. It is the generation that produced that condition and that refuses to correct it.

We should admit our mistake and be courageous enough to humble our vanity that refuses to admit infallibility in law making and turn about and start over in the right direction. The American people are not going to accept this stupid blunder that our penchant for making the world good by law has led us into. Perhaps it is as well. We would, indeed, be a wiser people to submit to such an intolerable law. The only way, however, to enforce the law the best possible in the meantime and change it just as soon as it is humanly possible to do so. Otherwise the danger is that the people, tiring of the political Gouletts east, tied by hypocrisy and political expediency, will take the short cut and slash the knot by nullification. That is the real danger of nullification. To try to enforce the law on nullification; and those alleged drys who set up the hue and cry of "nullificationists" against those who wish by severity to change the law display the most cowardly type of infidelity and hypocrisy. They know that the Congress that makes a law can change that law any time it sees fit. Is it any more nullification to ask for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment now than it was to ask for its original adoption? Not a bit.

The American Bar Association is asked by its committee on criminal law and criminology to investigate the prohibition law and its administration because, it reports, "the criminal class which has been developed to evade the prohibition law is engaging in all manner of other crimes" and that the "official protectors" of the criminals have to protect them in their other crimes as well. This brings on, the report said, "a general lawlessness with killings, robberies, and the rest, and with few arrests, few convictions, and a rising distrust of the courts and officials generally among the people." This hardly sounds like the prohibition law and its results. Is the American Bar Association a nullificationist? Yet, we are told that any who criticize prohibition is a nullificationist.

The real purpose of crying nullification is to raise a smoke screen to hide the tragic failure of prohibition. The thing has gone so far now that there must be a clean sweep, and a start over again. It is tragic that we have to sweep the results of a hundred years' work for temperance in which great strides were made, because of this assinine attempt at prohibition. Assistant Secretary Seymour Lowman, a few weeks ago, also told a gathering at the Luther Place Memorial Church in Washington that "temperance and sobriety, rather than complete prohibition, should be the keynote of the dry organizations' campaign to uphold the amendment."

This is an honest confession. Prohibition is a failure and the amendment is slipping. We must talk, not prohibition but temperance, to save the amendment. But why save it? If it does not accomplish the purpose, why not repeal it, and openly work for temperance. Those who scoff at the idea of bringing back legalized liquor to fight the evils of liquor should pause and consider the great scientific method of the medical profession, the method of fighting forest fires. The rampant fire is controlled by a regulated fire. It is the principle employed by the medical profession—exclusion. Liquor must again be licensed so that it can again be brought under control to fight the growing colossal menace of the illegal liquor traffic and the domination of the bootlegger. The saloon is gone and gone forever. Even the repeal of the eighteenth amendment would not mean the return of the saloon. It is not the saloon we are fighting, it is its hideous successor, multiplied many times over. If we speak easily, if we look one-fourth of what prohibition cost us and used it for the purpose of educating the youth of the country away from liquor, we would do a hundred times more effective work for social advancement than we can ever do with any amount of so-called enforcement.

This matter should be put to the test—a vote. If the sentiment of the country is, as mentioned in the preceding paragraph, proponents alike, they should welcome a show-down, and by the voice of the people put an end to the question.

the next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 1312) to change the name of Utah National Park, the establishment of which is provided for by the act of Congress approved June 7, 1924 (43 Stat. p. 593), to the Bryce Canyon National Park; and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BLACK of New York. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I want to know the reason for the change that is all.

Mr. COLTON. This national park has always been known as Bryce Canyon. A bill was passed a year or so ago changing it to the Utah National Park.

Mr. BLACK of New York. Why Bryce Canyon?

Mr. COLTON. It is simply a local name. It is named after the man who first settled in that section, and everybody in that country knows it as Bryce Canyon.

Mr. BLACK of New York. I was simply looking after the interests of Bill Thompson. It was afraid it was another Bryce.

Mr. COLTON. No.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the area within the State of Utah described in the act of Congress approved June 7, 1924 (43 Stat. 593), provided for the establishment of the Utah National Park, shall be, when established as a national park, known as the Bryce Canyon National Park.
