PROGRAMMING

PIONEER

Leon Ellerson at his desk. His company, Keystone Computer Associates, Inc., has been honored twice for its growth and success by the Small Business Administration.

By Robert S. Lyons, Jr., '61

JUN 26 1997

Leon Ellerson had never heard of computers when he graduated from La Salle. Now he's one of the industry's top experts

When Leon Ellerson, '56, graduated from La Salle with a bachelor's degree in mathematics, he faced a major decision: should he go to work in the new, relatively unexplored space industry or should

- he try his hand at the equally-fascinating, but unknown computer field?
- Ellerson chose the latter. He accepted an offer from
- Remington-Rand UNIVAC (now known as Unisys) and
- found himself working alongside the two inventors of
- the computer--John Mauchly and John Eckert. Within a
- decade, he was a minor partner of an emerging soft-
- ware services company, Keystone Computer Associates,
- Inc. Ten years later he was running the company and
- today that firm is one of the leading software and
- consulting companies on the east coast with some 180
- employees and offices in suburban Philadelphia, Mary-
- land, and Virginia.

"It was really a big shock to all of us that we knew early in the evening that Eisenhower was going to win big."

"I made the right choice," recalled Ellerson recently at his corporate headquarters located in Fort Washington, Pa. "It was the most exciting time to be working with computers and I was fortunate to be with some of the brightest people I've ever met. If I had stayed in the space industry, I would have been sort of an average person in middle management right now at a company like GE or Martin-Marietta."

Instead, Ellerson has emerged as one of the most respected entrepreneurs in the computer industry. His company has been honored twice for its growth and success by the Small Business Administration and he was selected as the Philadelphia district's "Small Business Person of the Year" in 1978.

Keystone deals primarily in government defense work--specializing in anti-submarine warfare--but expects to be downsizing its military involvement significantly in the next few years. Its largest client, the U.S.

Naval Air Warfare Center in Warminster, Pa., is moving most of its operation to Patuxent River, Md., and Ellerson sees his company moving more aggressively into the commercial/ civilian area in the near future. "Right now we are about 80% government," he says. "We see that going down to under 50% in the next two or three years."

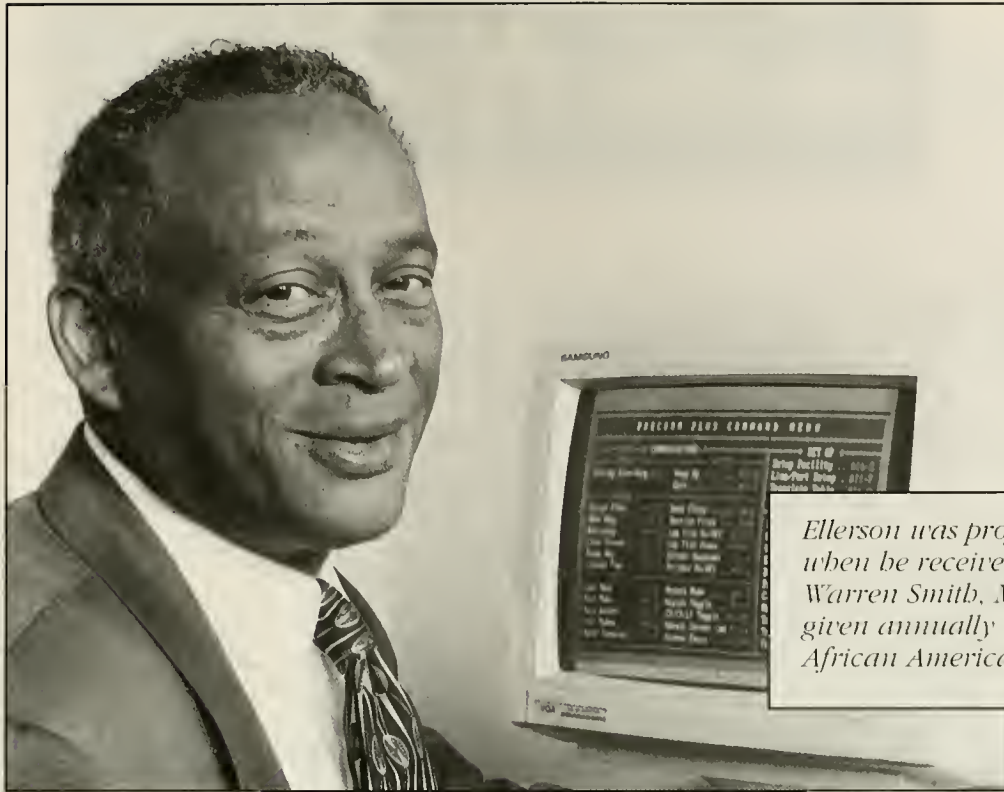

Ellerson graduated from Central High School and transferred to La Salle after attending Temple for two years where, as he puts it, his academic record was less than spectacular. "I was amazed how readily La Salle accepted me," he recalled, "especially being a minority in the 1950s. In the years to come, I really felt beholden to La Salle because of that. Sometimes you forget these things, but when I think back, it really changed my life."

After graduating, Ellerson chose a job at UNIVAC over a position at GE that would have placed him in the space industry. "I had never even heard of computers before I interviewed at UNIVAC," he says. "I didn't understand the job at UNIVAC, but I really liked the people who interviewed me." Moreover, Ellerson had no idea that he would be working with the two pioneers of the computer industry.

During World War II, John Mauchly, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, and John Eckert, an electronics engineer, had been asked by the U.S. Army to develop a quicker method for computing artillery firing tables. Their research resulted in the first electronic computer. Known as ENIAC (Electronic Numerical Integrator and Calculator), it was built at Penn in 1945 using punched cards for input and output data.

By 1951, Mauchly and Eckert were producing the first of a famous series of computers--the UNIVACS-- which used magnetic tape for its data and provided the basic ideas behind the design of the modern computer. Ellerson ended up working for Mauchly, who headed up a 30 person programming group. Eckert ran an engineering group.

Ellerson was profoundly moved when he received the 1991 Warren Smith, M.D. Award given annually by La Salle's African American students.

"When I graduated from La Salle, I had never heard of John Mauchly," says Ellerson, who recalls that Mauchly was primarily interested in developing computers to help predict the weather. "Actually it was a while before I knew how important he really was. He was just a boss. Actually I worked very closely with him. He was very accessible." (Years later, Ellerson learned that one of his math professors at La Salle, the late Brother Damian Connelly, had worked at the University of Pennsylvania with Mauchly and Eckert.)

In 1956, Ellerson's first programming task involved a computerized attempt to predict a national presidential election. "It was interesting because we worked long hours using a lot of techniques," he says. "It was really a big shock to all of us that we knew early in the evening that Eisenhower was going to win big. And nobody believed that." The TV network (Ellerson doesn't recall which one) that contracted to use UNIVAC's projections was so skeptical that it declined to broadcast them. Another network that was running a Remington Rand electric shaver commercial did carry UNIVAC's bold prediction, however.

Ellerson left UNIVAC and went to work as manager of the computer operating system--what we know today as "MS-DOS" on PCs was then called "Executive Systems"-- at the Philco Corporation in 1963. His team also experimented with a prototype of a "time-sharing" system, similar to "Client Server" or "Windows" systems used to maximize time available inside a computer today. There he was reunited with John Guernaccini, his friend and co-worker at UNIVAC. Two years later, when the Ford Motor Co. purchased Philco, the handwriting was on the wall that the new Philco-Ford was not going to remain in the computer business. With Guernaccini as majority stockholder, Ellerson and two others formed Keystone Computer Associates in 1965. Except for a seven year period from 1967 to 1975 when the company was owned by University Computing Co., a Dallas, Texas-based computing company, Keystone has flourished on its own. "We've always grown very slowly. We've never over-expanded," says Ellerson. "We liked the fact that we were independent, safe, and secure."

Ellerson has since relinquished most of the day-to-day operation at Keystone to Guernaccini and executive vice president Ken Clancy, another veteran from UNIVAC, while devoting much of his time to a proprietary package that enables banks throughout the world to exchange money, buy and sell stocks, facilitate loans and letters of credit, and send other messages. Known as "BCS," this sophisticated banking communication system is currently running at a half-dozen banks and will soon be installed at the Treasury Department, in Washington, D.C.

Ellerson had no idea that he would be working with the two pioneers of the computer industry.

Ellerson, a member of La Salle's Board of Trustees, received the 1991 Warren E. Smith, M.D. Award, given annually by the university's African American students, "for his commitment to La Sallian values, his contribution to the community, his professional success and outstanding example to La Salle students." Although he never knew Dr. Smith personally, Ellerson was profoundly moved by the honor. "The award meant a lot because of the people who received it before me and because of what Warren Smith accomplished in his life and what he meant to his family and his community."

Ellerson says that it's very difficult to predict the future for the computer industry but he does see mainframes essentially disappearing from the workplace.

"We liked the fact that we were independent, safe, and secure."

"You'll still see them in large government agencies like the Internal Revenue Service and Defense Department," he explained. "But mainframes will probably be replaced by personal computers and microprocessors in small companies and banks who will be looking for ways to develop networks and connect small computers. I think you'll see companies like IBM and Unisys becoming more involved in the integration of these networks because differently manufactured hardware and software needs a reasonable way of talking to each other."

You can be sure that Keystone Computer Associates will be helping the dialogue along.

Honor Roll of Donors

James J. Lynch, '71, and Kathleen Gordon Lynch, '77, join John F. Carabello, D.M.D., '62, prior to the 1994 Charter Dinner/La Salle University Leadership Award Ceremony at the Union League of Philadelphia. Dr. Carabello served as volunteer chair of the Alumni Annual Fund from 1992-94. Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will serve as co-chairs for the next two years. Mr. Lynch, a member of the university's Board of Trustees, is executive vice-president of Midlantic Bank.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the entire La Salle community, I am pleased to express our collective thanks for the generosity and support of our many benefactors.

1993-94 was indeed an exceptionally challenging and yet rewarding year for the University and its fund-raising program. Among the many achievements reported in this Honor Roll of Donors, several highlights are certainly worthy of special mention:

- Total gifts and grants from all sources, including private donations and government grants, increased by 39.5%, from $ 3,861,522 to $ 5,388,328. In terms of overall results, 1993-94 was the best year our fund-raising program has had since 1987-88, and it was the third best year that we have ever had since we organized our development program in the 1960s.

- Overall pledges and contributions to the capital campaign, again from private and government sources, passed the $ 16.7 million mark. Although this total is still modest compared to our ten-year goal of $ 100 million, it is by far the best start that La Salle has ever had to any of its fund-raising campaigns.

- Alumni giving grew by 7.1% to an all-time record-setting $ 1,620,954, and the number of alumni donors increased from 5,656 to 5,811.

- Despite the challenges of tuition payments, parent donations increased by 7.7% to $ 55,192.

- The second annual Charter Dinner/La Salle University Leadership Award Ceremony honored Joseph F. Paquette, Jr., Chairman of the Board of PECO

Energy Company, and raised more than $ 54,000 for the University's scholarship fund.

- The School of Nursing received several major multi-year grants totalling $ 1,541,041 from the Independence Foundation and the United States Department of Health and Human Services.

All of us at La Salle deeply appreciate the many forms of support that we have received from our many benefactors, and it is my great pleasure to again say thank you to all of you—our alumni, parents, faculty staff members, friends, and Christian Brothers—for everything that you have done, and are continuing to do, on our behalf.

Despite our fund-raising successes, La Salle still faces one of the most difficult periods in its history as the University struggles to increase its full-time enrollment and to balance its operating budget. At the heart of both issues, lies the enormous challenge of student financial aid.

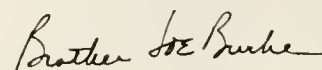

Since the late 1980s, we have more than doubled the institutional resources that we allocate to financial aid, and, in 1994-95, we will spend almost $ 8.8 million on student scholarships and grants of all kinds. Despite our best efforts, we are, however, falling progressively behind the competition, and we are losing many qualified students each year because other colleges and universities are either less expensive or they provide more lucrative financial aid packages.

Quite clearly, La Salle's long-term vitality depends upon our being able to reverse this trend by generating additional resources for student financial aid. As a tuition-dependent institution with a rather modest ($ 27 million) endowment, the only way that we can achieve this objective is through a dramatic increase in contributions through the fund-raising program. That is, of course, one of the principal (if not the principal) objectives of the capital campaign that we launched in October, 1992, but it will take sacrificial commitments by all of our constituencies to make it happen.

As we look to the future, then, we ask those of you who have been donors to continue your support for La Salle, and, wherever possible, to increase your financial commitment to the University and students. Similarly, we ask those of you who have not yet had the opportunity to participate in the campaign to do so this year by making a donation at whatever level you feel is most appropriate.

And so, let me conclude this introduction to the Honor Roll of Donors with both a reiteration of my sincerest thanks to all of you for the financial support that you have given to La Salle in the past, and my request that you do whatever you can to continue to assist the University in the future.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph F. Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D. '68

HIGHLIGHTS

In keeping with the recently published CASE Campaign Standards, the gifts and grants included in the 1994 Honor Roll of Donors are divided into two categories: Private and Government Sources. Private sources include donations from individuals, corporations, foundations, and trust funds. Government sources include grants awarded by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Federal Government.

All gifts and grants reported in both categories involve payments received between July 1, 1993 and June 30, 1994. Multi-year pledges and contributions received after July 1, 1994 will be published in subsequent Honor Rolls as payments are received.

In accordance with Internal Revenue Service regulations, gifts of securities have been reported at the mean (average) between their highest and lowest values on the dates the gifts were made to La Salle University.

The Internal Revenue Service now requires that we provide a receipt for any private donation of $250 or more. The thank you letters that the University routinely provides to donors constitute such receipts. If you need any additional verification of our receipt of your donation, please contact us at 215-951-1539.

Effective January 1, 1994, the value of a contribution is limited to the excess of the contribution over the value of goods and services received in return. La Salle does not provide any benefits to those donors who contribute $ 999 or less annually to the University. La Salle does provide benefits to those donors who contribute $1,000 or more annually and/or are members of the President's Club, the San Miguel Club, the De La Salle Society, the University Club, or the Charter Club. For further information about the benefits provided, please contact us 215-951-1539.

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the donor list. Occasionally, a donor's name is inadvertently misspelled or omitted. If, by chance, an error has been made, please accept our apology and notify us of the mistake at 215-951-1539.

Several of the contributions listed below are duplicated in more than one category. The unduplicated total of gifts and grants—from private and government sources—listed in this report for 1993-94 is $5,388,328.

To ensure that your name appears in the 1995 Honor Roll of Donors, please use the inserted remittance envelope to send in your gift to the University at your earliest convenience.

Brother Joseph F. Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., '68, welcomes Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Reilly, '62, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Coffey, Jr., '64, to the President's reception and dinner for major donors at the Pyramid Club in center city. Mr. Reilly, a member of the university's Board of Trustees, is the president of Reilly Foam Corporation, in Conshohocken, Pa. Mr. Coffey is a partner in the law firm of Coffey and Kaye, in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERS

Like their founder, St. John Baptist De La Salle, patron of the University, the Brothers have committed their lives to education. The Christian Brothers' unwavering devotion, guidance, and love for La Salle have been truly their hallmark since the university was founded in 1863.

These religious who serve as faculty, administrators, and staff members have contributed $252,159 to the University in fiscal 1994 for scholarship assistance. La Salle students have been blessed with their influence of 131 years.

La Salle Introduces Undergraduate and Graduate Programs at Bucks County Community College

A unique partnership, believed to be the first between a public and private undergraduate educational institution in Pennsylvania, was established on August 15 between La Salle and Bucks County Community College.

Brother President Joseph Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., and Bucks County Community College's President James J. Links signed a renewable four year agreement in which La Salle will offer eight undergraduate and graduate level programs leading to bachelor's or master's degrees at the Bucks County Community College (BCCC) campus in Newtown.

Complete bachelor's degree programs are now available for undergraduate students majoring in criminal justice, leadership, professional writing, psychology and public administration. Students can also complete all requirements on the BCCC campus for a master's degree in education and all but two courses for a master's in psychology. Six core courses required for a master's degree in nursing will also be available at La Salle's BCCC campus.

Speaking at the signing ceremony on BCCC's campus, Brother Burke explained that La Salle has never lost its commitment to educational outreach in the Greater Philadelphia region.

"Our program of educational access to the Hispanic community," La Salle's president added, "our involvement in our immediate neighborhood in Philadelphia, our partnerships with the elementary and secondary schools in and around the city including Bucks County, and our offering of undergraduate and graduate programs at locations off our campus including for many years here in Bucks County, all amplify our fundamental educational mission—to prepare men and women for lives of effective service and visionary leadership to their communities."

Brother Burke said that La Salle officials anticipate that the university's relationship with Bucks County Community College will expand in its scope of programs and continue to improve access to higher education for residents of Bucks County and surrounding areas.

Most of the initial classes are being offered part-time on weekday evenings and Saturdays.

Under the agreement students who earn associate degrees from Bucks County Community College will have the option to continue their studies on BCCC's Newtown campus where professors from La Salle University's School of Continuing Studies will offer all of the third and fourth year upper division courses leading to La Salle bachelor's degrees.

Upon completing their requirements for an associate degree from Bucks County Community College students can apply to La Salle to be accepted as a degree candidate. They will pay BCCC's credit-hour rate for the associate degree courses ($66 per credit), then will be charged at La Salle's undergraduate Continuing Studies rate ($245 per credit). A total of 120 credit hours are required for a La Salle University bachelor's degree.

La Salle has also offered a Master's Degree in Business Administration (MBA) program on the campus of Delaware Valley College, in Doylestown, since 1988.

La Salle's provost, Dr. Daniel C. Pantaleo, said that university officials are highly enthusiastic about the unprecedented partnership agreement with Bucks County Community College.

"This partnership will enable us to extend our educational services not only in Bucks County but also to surrounding areas like Montgomery County and New Jersey where students will be able to earn a bachelor's or master's degree from La Salle without traveling far from their homes," he added.

Dr. Pantaleo emphasized that students attending classes on the Bucks County campus would also have access to services on La Salle University's campus in northwest Philadelphia such as the university's $12 million Connelly Library.

Pantaleo added, "We are particularly pleased with the warmth and collaboration of our relationship with BCCC. La Salle sees this as a major step in what we anticipate to be a growing and exemplary relationship with BCCC in service to the people of Bucks County."

For more information about Bucks County courses, interested students can call La Salle's School of Continuing Studies at (215) 951-1400.

Dr. Peter J. Filicetti has been named director of the university's Counseling Center, succeeding Dr. Frank Schreiner, who retired. Filicetti has been on the La Salle staff for 28 years, most recently as associate professor of psychology and assistant director of the Counseling Center.

La Salle Moves Up for 3rd Straight Year in "Best" Regional Rankings of U.S. News & World Report

For the third straight year, La Salle University has improved its rankings as one of the best colleges and universities in the northeast region of United States, according to the annual survey conducted by U.S. News and World Report magazine.

La Salle, the only Philadelphia college to make the list in each of the last two years, moved up to eighth place among regional universities of the north in the eighth annual "America's Best Colleges" special report. La Salle was 10th out of 15 colleges ranked in each region last year and 12th, two years ago.

La Salle's Brother President Joseph F. Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., said the U.S. News & World Report ranking is another indication that La Salle's comfortable size, friendly campus environment, and focus on learning "sells itself" to parents and prospective students.

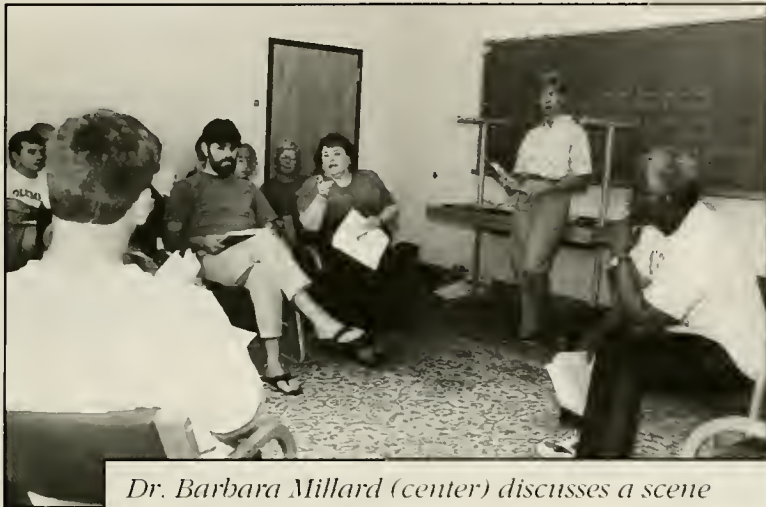

"It's been very clear from these reports that La Salle's strength is what happens inside and outside the classroom," Brother Burke added. "The relationship between our faculty and students and a good, solid learning environment is the centerpiece of what goes on at this university."

Some 1,400 four-year schools were included in the study including 500 institutions in La Salle's category. The rankings were based upon five criteria including academic reputation in which La Salle was rated ninth; graduate rate (ranked 11), student selection (16), faculty resources (23), financial resources (38), and alumni satisfaction (102).

Brother Burke added that La Salle's high ranking is reflected by the success of many of its 32,000 alumni.

"When you look at their accomplishments in a variety of fields like medicine, law, banking, nursing, teaching—just to mention a few, it's clear that something positive goes on here at the university to help our graduates succeed. A La Salle University education has been judged over time to work."

Seminar on Shakespeare Held with $63,974 Grant from NEH

Dr. Barbara Millard (center) discusses a scene from Othello with teachers from across the U.S. participating in the summer seminar, Shakespeare and the Creative Act, Othello and Hamlet.

A seminar supported by a $63,974 grant from the National Endowment of the Humanities, Shakespeare and the Creative Act, Othello and Hamlet, was conducted on La Salle's campus this summer by Dr. Barbara Millard, Ph.D., dean of the School of Arts and Sciences and professor of English.

Fifteen teachers from as far away as Tennessee, California and Hawaii, attended the five week seminar to study Shakespeare as a playwright, the text as a script and the plot as action. The focus for the seminar was on the motion of Shakespeare's genius in the creation of his plays from other materials; the art of the playwright's dramaturgy; and the energies of these dramatic scripts in current and past productions.

Seminar sessions included research and analytic reports presented by the participants, close reading, interpretive discussion of videotaped productions, directorial exercises and enactment workshops. The seminar concluded with a trip to the Stratford Shakespeare Festival in Ontario, Canada.

The National Endowment for the Humanities is an independent grant-making agency established by Congress in 1965 to support research, education, and public projects in the humanities.

Summer seminars for school teachers are offered by the NEH to provide teachers an opportunity for advanced study of significant texts. The participants in each seminar work under the direction of an accomplished teacher, and active scholar, studying seminal works in the humanities systematically and thoroughly. Through the seminar teachers have the opportunity to deepen their knowledge and enhance their ability to impart an understanding of the humanities to their students.

La Salle Establishes J. Hugh and Nancy Devlin Scholarship for Student from New Jersey

La Salle University has received a $250,000 pledge from the J. Hugh and Nancy Devlin Fund in Community Funds, Inc. to establish a perpetual endowed scholarship at the university beginning in the 1995-96 academic year.

Hugh Devlin, '64, and his wife, Nancy, of Fair Haven, N.J., established the scholarship to provide complete tuition, room and board, and other expenses for a student from Holy Name Parish, in Camden, N.J., who attends La Salle University as a full-time undergraduate.

Student recipients will be selected by the Financial Aid Office at La Salle University based upon recommendations made by the pastor of Holy Name Parish and the principal of Camden Catholic High School.

La Salle's Brother President Joseph F. Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., expressed sincere appreciation to the Devlins for the gift that has been pledged as part of the university's $10 million capital campaign.

"Needless to say, we are elated to be the recipient of such kind generosity," Brother Burke said. "Everyone at the university is very excited about the scholarship fund being established for an economically disadvantaged student and is highly appreciative of the many forms of support that the Devlins have offered to La Salle over the years."

Brother Joseph Bender

Brother Joseph Bender, Academic Advisor and Counselor, Dies Suddenly

Brother Joseph Bender, F.S.C., Ph.D., the academic advisor and counselor in La Salle's School of Continuing Studies for the past 21 years, died suddenly on Aug. 14 of a heart attack. He was stricken at his residence at 5615 N. 20th st., adjacent to La Salle's campus, and rushed to Germantown Hospital where he was pronounced dead. He was 67.

Brother Bender celebrated his 50th anniversary as a member of the Christian Brothers in June.

Before joining what was then known as La Salle's Evening Division as an academic advisor counselor in 1973, Brother Bender taught Latin and served as guidance counselor at Philadelphia's West Catholic High School for Boys from 1949-66 and again from 1969-73, and at Trinity High School, in Shiremanstown, Pa., from 1966-69.

La Salle's Brother President Emeritus Daniel Burke, F.S.C., Ph.D., who was in the novitiate with Brother Bender recalled him as a very sharp, very witty individual in an interview with the Philadelphia Daily News.

"He was a great listener and marvelous talent," said Brother Daniel. "He was someone who could strengthen people simply because of the interest he showed them and the encouragement he gave them. He was great to cheer them up."

Brother Bender earned a bachelor's degree in classical studies from The Catholic University of America, in Washington, D.C., in 1949, and master's and Ph.D. degrees in the same field from the University of Pennsylvania. He also held a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Temple University.

Brother Bender was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Association, the American Personnel Guidance Association, the Pennsylvania School Counselors Association, the National Catholic Guidance Conference, the American School Counselors Association, and Personnel and Guidance Association of Greater Philadelphia.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Alice Collins, of Pittsburgh, and a brother, James Bender, of St. Louis, Mo.

A Mass of Resurrection was celebrated on Aug. 18 at the La Salle University Chapel on campus. Burial was the following day at the Christian Brothers Cemetery, in Ammendale, Md.

Erwin von Allmen (left), a lecturer in the university's MBA program and president of W.C. Smith Inc., a Philadelphia-based confectionery and specialty food equipment company, chats with some of the eight business students from Barcelona who attended classes at La Salle this summer and participated in his Management Entrepreneurship class. The students, who attend schools conducted by the Christian Brothers in Spain, visited businesses in Philadelphia and New York as part of their American cultural and corporate experience. They spent five weeks at La Salle.

Alumni Profile

The Art of Developing Corporate (and Alumni) Leaders

Michael G. Mullen, '63, is on a dual mission in California.

As general manager, executive development and personnel resources for ARCO, Mike is responsible for identifying and developing the right kind of corporate leaders for the company that employs 25,000 people throughout the world. He was promoted back to the corporate side two years ago after serving as vice president of human resources for ARCO's refining and marketing operations.

As the unofficial coordinator of La Salle's Alumni Association in Southern California, he has assumed the responsibility of organizing some 275 graduates of the university who now live and work in the Los Angeles-San Diego area.

"I was surprised by the number of La Salle people who have moved out here in the past ten years," said

Mullen. "What they bring is a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of energy, and a lot of creativity. I was encouraged by a couple of events that we had. I really didn't think that too many people would turn out but the response was pretty positive."

Mullen, who is working with a nucleus of about 15 men and women, sees the day coming when there will be three La Salle alumni chapters in California: San Diego, San Francisco, and, especially, Los Angeles. "I see us becoming a chapter because we have so many people who are interested in sharing the workload," he explained. "Here there are a lot of things that you can wrap interesting events around that can bring people together. But it really has to be appealing, not just a simple lunch or a simple get-together."

Mullen says that his primary charge at ARCO is providing for the continuity of the company. "My main function is an assessment function, assessing leadership qualities in people, nurturing and instilling those qualities and giving people the skills to develop them," he explained recently at his office high above downtown Los Angeles. "A real leader has to know how to delegate authority and responsibility to individuals who are closest to the problem and best equipped to solve the problem. It's more about getting things done with people rather than just barking orders."

Mullen, who started with ARCO 30 years ago as a marketing rep in Philadelphia, also has responsibility for ARCO's labor relations, medical, employee communications, and compensation functions. LA is his 13th different stop with the company—"I stopped counting after 24 different jobs."—that has seen him also working in sales, labor relations, and management development in places from New England to Dallas, from Denver to Pittsburgh. "What a wonderful ride," says Mullen about his three decades with ARCO. "It's been a great experience."

Mullen has worked on various projects all over the world, including China and the Middle East, and found himself handling mining operations in Iran just weeks before the Shah was overthrown. "I got out right before things started to topple," he recalled. "You could see student groups building up. You could sense something was happening. We got to know some of the hotel help and they were saying how things were getting nasty and were talking a lot more openly about how bad the Shah was. Then our floor captain, who had worked in New York for a while, suggested, 'Look, you guys seem like pretty decent folks. When this thing happens you better get out of here before it's not going to be very pretty.' Our people got out just in the nick of time."

Mullen, who majored in business administration and finance at La Salle, is active with Cal Tech's Center for Executive Development. He is involved with a number of charitable endeavors including the Southern California Home for Battered and Abused Women, where he serves on the Board of Directors; the YMCA, and a project at the University of Southern California to stimulate educational interest among inner-city children. He and his wife, Carol, have three children, Shannon, Chris, and Meaghan.
