Serbian forces blast 'safe area'

The Washington Post

ZAGREB, Croatia—Serb forces from Croatia and Bosnia tightened their hold on the Bihac pocket in northwestern Bosnia Monday, blasting a town in the northern part of the enclave with tank and artillery fire and lobbing two big shells into the Bihac "safe area."

The two 120mm shells killed one civilian, said Michael Williams, chief spokesman for the U.N. Protection Force. The attack, a violation of the U.N.-designated safe zone, did not trigger NATO airstrikes, like ones conducted last week after similar Serb attacks.

While the Bosnian Muslim forces accepted a cease-fire proposal for the safe area Sunday, Serb forces failed to reply to the proposal as of late tonight. U.N. sources said they expected the Serbs to attach conditions to the plan, including a surrender of Bosnian army troops to Serb forces and the handing over of their weapons.

U.N. officials said the fighting Monday was fiercest in Velika Kladusa, 25 miles north of the Bihac safe area near Bosnia's border with Croatia. Croatian Serb forces have poured over the border and are attacking the town. U.N. officials said.

Student wage reviewed

By David Vingren
Staff Reporter

Members of the Financial Aid Advisory Committee are reviewing revision proposals for SIUC's Student Work Policies and will send a final plan to President John Guyon for his approval before this semester ends.

Committee Members met Nov. 17 for nearly two hours to discuss an Undergraduate Student Government and Graduate and Professional Student Council proposal to make the policy's on-campus minimum wage, maximum wage, and longevity clauses more favorable to student workers.

In evaluating the proposals, members of the committee, comprised of mostly Financial Aid Office faculty, will evaluate the meeting's discussion, surveys taken from other universities in Illinois, and input from their constituencies.

Pam Britton, SIUC's director of financial aid, said the surveys show that minimum wage at other campuses is consistent with SIUC's, but maximum wages and longevity clauses differ.

Under SIUC's student work policy, students may not command less than Federal minimum wage, currently at $4.25 per hour, and may make no more than 70 cents above it. Its longevity clause grants a

Dahmer beaten to death

The Washington Post

CHICAGO—Jeffrey L. Dahmer, whose grotesque rampage of murder, necrophilia and cannibalism shocked the nation when it was discovered in 1991, was beaten to death Monday in a prison bathroom at the Columbia Correctional Institute in Portage, Wis.

Dahmer, 34, savagely beaten in the head, was discovered in the staff bathroom of the prison gymnasium he had been assigned to clean shortly after 8 a.m. and was pronounced dead an hour later at Divine Savior Hospital in Portage.

At a news conference in Madison, Wisconsin Corrections Secretary Michael Sullivan said law enforcement authorities were questioning another inmate in connection with Dahmer's death and an assault on a second inmate, Jesse Anderson, who was found badly injured Monday morning in a separate bathroom of the gymnasium he had been cleaning.

Sullivan identified the suspect only as a convicted murderer from Milwaukee County who was also on janitorial duty and was the only other inmate in the gymnasium. He said Anderson was in critical condition in a University of Wisconsin hospital.

Thanksgiving weekend draws holiday shoppers

The Friday and weekend after Thanksgiving are traditionally the busiest shopping days of the year, and University Mall managers in Carbondale agree the beginning of the '94 Christmas season was no exception.

Chancellor selection to begin

By Marc Chase
Senior Reporter

As the Dec. 1 deadline to apply for the SIU chancellor's office approaches, leaders of two student government bodies say they are skeptical that students will play a vital role in choosing the next chancellor.

A search for a new chancellor began when current SIU Chancellor James Brown announced in August that he would retire as soon as a successor was found.

USG President Edwin Sawyer and Jason Matthews, GPSC vice president for administrative affairs, said they fear students will not receive adequate representation in the search for the new chancellor.

Both constituency leaders said although they have not had a chance to meet directly with Brown to discuss their role in the selection process, they feel their concerns will be pushed aside by the administration.

"We're trying to make sure at least one representative is a student," Matthews said. "As the rules are written, however, they (the board) are not required to specifically have a graduate student on the committee."

"With all of the conscious downsizing of graduate programs at the University (such as the elimination of a doctoral program in physical education) GPSC feels it is very important to have graduate student input on appointing the people that are instrumental in making these decisions."

Matthews said he feels confident the board will place a student representative on the board, but he said a graduate student will probably not be chosen because of GPSC's opposition to cutting back on the graduate program.

Sawyer said he does not believe a representative from USG will be chosen for the committee.

"I'm not overly confident that a representative (from USG) will be chosen, for the simple fact that the rules don't specifically mandate it," he said.

Sawyer said student input would be important on the committee, but he feels student concerns will be Southern Illinoisans out over the weekend.

"We were very fortunate to have a lot of traffic go through the store this weekend," he said, adding SIUC students returning to Carbondale after the Thanksgiving break should keep Christmas sales steady.

"Students usually start their Christmas shopping at home, but wrap up their shopping here (at University Mall)," Rathgeb noted. He said popular items purchased over the weekend included bread-making appliances, cosmetic and fragrance gift sets and holiday apparel.

Bill Beasley, store manager at JC Penney, said that while the Friday after Thanksgiving is not usually his store's busiest day, it's still the third- or fourth-largest shopping day of the year.

"Our sales were up double digits (in percentage) from last year, despite the warm weather," he said. "When it's warm out, the weather usually works as a disadvantage for winter items."

Beasley said athletic items and team jackets in all sizes were top sellers.

Emily Walton, assistant manager at Structure, a trendy men's clothing store, said more women than usual were in the store buying gifts for their husbands, boyfriends, sons and brothers.

She said thermals, flannels and WORLD BANK: AIDS POSES ECONOMIC THREAT — WASHINGTON—The World Bank will emphasize the importance of AIDS as a threat to economic development in a new and larger campaign of lending to countries wracked by the epidemic disease. The effect of AIDS on income and work force skills is not widely appreciated, a bank official said recently. The disease appears to be a major reason for the slowing in the growth of per capita income in a group of 10 nations of sub-Saharan Africa. The rate of increase has been about 1 percent a year, but will fall to about 0.4 percent in coming years, according to projections made by bank economists. Some countries with high infection rates, such as Malawi and Zambia, have falling per capita incomes, although it is impossible to say precisely how much AIDS has contributed to this trend. The bank will lend about $150 million this year to help support AIDS prevention and treatment programs.

BUSINESS GROWS IN NORTH, SOUTH KOREA — SEOUL, South Korea—While other Communist governments have collapsed or embraced a significant degree of market economics, the hard-line rulers in North Korea still exert rigid control over social and economic life. Few foreigners are allowed in, and they are closely monitored. Nevertheless, enthusiasm for doing business with the north is sweeping through South Korea's business community in the wake of a U.S.-North Korean agreement last month that eased tensions over the north's apparent efforts to build nuclear bombs. Under the agreement, North Korea is to give up its ability to produce plutonium in return for economic aid and diplomatic links with the United States. The obstacles to significant levels of South Korean investment in the north remain huge, and barriers are even greater for U.S. business. But there is also a powerful economic logic to expanded ties between the prosperous south, with its 44 million people, and the much poorer north, with a population of 22 million.

NATIONS SWAP SOME PROTECTION FOR GATT — TORONTO—When Congress votes on a new world trade agreement this week, the outcome will be watched avidly abroad, where nations such as France, Japan, Canada and Italy are waiting for the U.S. vote before ratifying the agreement themselves. But there is another agenda behind the vote on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT): In order to reach accord on lowering trade barriers, many nations had to give up popular—but costly—protections for politically powerful industries. It was a painful process, but leaders are trying to sell the reforms as necessary trade-offs in order for their own exports to increase. In that, they can blame the requirements of international trade for reforms they needed to make anyway because old policies were too expensive or outdated.

ACTIVISTS BEMOAN REGULA'S APPOINTMENT — WASHINGTON—Some conservative Western activists are mounting a last-ditch fax attack against the naming of Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, as chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on Interior. Incoming House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., has said he would name Regula, and Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., the pick to head the full Appropriations Committee, has written Regula to record his support. But all the committee assignments must be approved by the GOP conference vote, and Regula, according to the Land Rights Network, is a "super liberal who supports big government" and who "must be stopped."

KELIHER RETIRES FROM ENERGY DEPARTMENT — WASHINGTON—John G. "Jack" Keliher, former staff director of the House intelligence committee and more recently director of the office of intelligence and national security at the Department of Energy, is retiring. His top deputy, Kenneth Baker, is taking over. The official explanation is that Keliher has reached retirement age. True, but sources say Keliher also was not happy that Energy Secretary Hazel R. O'Leary and Undersecretary Charles Curtis seemed to favor Kenneth Luongo, former non-proliferation guru at the Union of Concerned Scientists and now in charge of plutonium disposition, over the Cold War warrior Keliher.

Local legislators to form coalition

By Dean Weaver
Senior Reporter

State Rep. Larry Woolard, D-Carverville, says downstate legislators must form bipartisan coalitions to counter the new suburban-leaning Republican majority that will take over the General Assembly next year.

State Rep. Lee Daniels, R-Elmhurst, is anticipated to replace House Speaker Michael Madigan, D-Chicago, in January, and House Majority Leader Jim McPike, D-Aiton, will surrender his title to Rep. Robert Churchill, R-Lake Villa.

Woolard fears that with these "suburban Chicago" majority leaders in power, downstate Illinois might suffer.

He said downstate refers to any area outside of Cook County and its five surrounding counties.

"I am afraid they will provide more state aid to suburbs, especially in education," he said.

Woolard said giving suburban schools additional general revenue funds could cut downstate school funding.

"We (the downstate coalition) aren't going to do anything to hurt them (Chicago and representatives), but they have the power to devastate the people I represent," he said.

State Representative-elect Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, said he would participate in a downstate coalition and thinks they are important.

"These coalitions allow representatives to meet and exchange ideas about what is best for downstate Illinois, and not just what the party leaders think is best," Bost said.

Churchill said that there is no need for downstate caucuses.

"The new Republican representatives downstate will represent their constituents to the best of their ability, and they don't need the Democrats to lead the way," Churchill said.

Tim Bryers, spokesman for Daniels, said downstate Illinois

National writing contest explores ethnic issues

By Benjamin Golshahr
Staff Reporter

SIUC's English department is sponsoring a national literary contest in an effort to promote a greater diversity of ethnicity in college-level creative writing programs across the country.

The Charles Johnson Award for Fiction and Poetry is designed for college students of different ethnic backgrounds or sexual orientations, or students who are sincerely interested in writing about ethnic issues with a fresh perspective, to produce literary creative writing.

Ricardo Cruz, an SIUC English lecturer, said he thought of creating the contest more than a year ago, but he dedicated himself to making it a reality this year.

"The fact that less than three percent of students in writing programs across the country are African Americans and Hispanic is sad," he said. "This lack of diversity of Black, Hispanic and other marginal writers compelled me to create this award."

The contest is open to writing that freshly explores the experiences or identity of an ethnic, minority culture.

"Ethnic" is defined in the contest's rules as: Of or relating to a racial, national, or cultural group, and includes African American,

Native Americans, Hispanics, Asians, Native Americans, Pacific Islanders and gay and lesbian.

Cruz said this award exists to elicit sensitivity and understanding towards minority cultures.

"This award is concerned with having a sensitivity to issues of 'otherness' and celebrating difference," he said. "When we talk about minorities they have typically been referred to as other than white, other than mainstream, outside the center. They are denied some of the opportunities that, for whatever reason, the center receives."

SIUC's creative writing program will select seven short fiction pieces and seven poems from all the submissions.

The seven fictional works will then be judged by Charles Johnson, an SIUC alumnus, novelist, theorist and winner of the National Book Award for his third novel, Middle Passage, in 1990.

The seven poems will be judged by Eugene Redmond, the first and only poet-laureate of East St. Louis.

Cruz said he selected these finalist judges because their work largely deals with issues of ethnicity.

"The greatest thing about Charles Johnson is that his writing is as broad celebration of life and culture," he said. "He is also a strong believer in moral fiction — fiction that teaches."

Prizes for the finalists in both the short fiction and poetry genres include $500, a signed edition of Charles Johnson's "Middle Passage," and possible publication in "The Seattle Review" or SIUC's "Mealie Field," both literary publications.

Only one short story can be submitted per applicant, and it should not exceed 25 pages. Three to five poems may be submitted, but these must be limited to six pages total.

Anyone interested in possible submission to this contest should contact Ricardo Cortez Cruz in English department. Entries must be received before the end of the semester.

GATT opens doors to different markets

U.S. HOUSE MEMBERS WILL MAKE A CRUCIAL vote today on the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. As the vote is being cast and with the Senate ready to tackle the it on Dec. 2, the agreement should be passed.

GATT, as it is called, is a new frontier of global trade. Unlike the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) which only included three countries, GATT would serve more than 120 countries by forming a World Trade Organization. This organization would serve as a board looking over trade agreements between nations and having the final say. Each nation would get to vote on agreements.

Although GATT has been in the making for several years, the vote this week will be symbolic because of the bipartisan support it will take to get it passed. Before the GOP sweep in the Nov. 8 mid-term elections, GATT was supported. But since then, Republicans and Democrats have worked on polishing up the agreement, and now GATT is ready for the vote.

UNDER GATT, THE TRADE DOORS ARE ABOUT to be opened. Over the next five years, most tariffs on goods would be cut under the agreement. But more importantly, American products, including agriculture and industry, would become more competitive in overseas markets.

Government subsidies and price supports on farm products and other industry will be reduced. Illinois farmers will be the primary beneficiaries of GATT because of expanding agricultural markets. Farmers took a lesson from NAFTA: The more open markets you have, the more crops, such as corn and soybeans, would sell.

The booming service industry would get a boost from GATT. Securities, international banking and the insurance markets would be opened under the agreement. Patents and copyrights on U.S. intellectual property, such as computer software, books, films and music, would be better protected overseas under GATT. Nations would be able to protect their industries from product dumping (export goods priced below cost) by other countries.

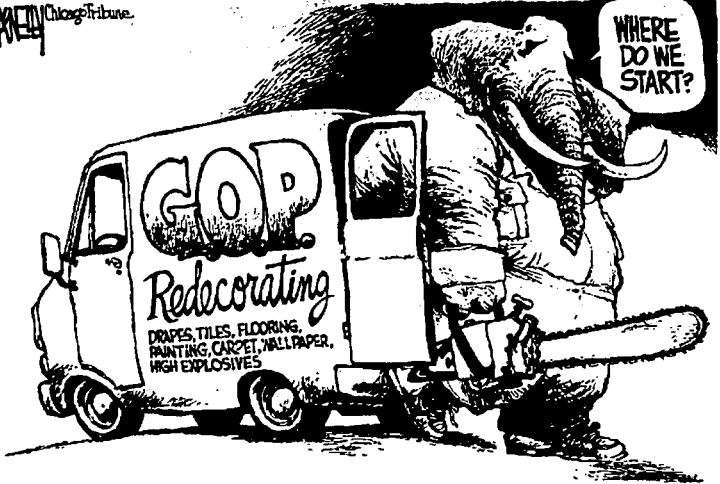

Some drawbacks to GATT include the possible loss of textile jobs. U.S. textiles have become less competitive over the years due to cheaper textiles imported from China and Southeast Asia, and GATT would eliminate protections against textile imports from developing nations.

THE U.S. WILL BE THE FIRST COUNTRY TO vote on the agreement with other international communities waiting to see if it passes. The agreement must ensure the safety and fair treatment of U.S. products abroad while trying to maintain a high trading standard. Therefore, if any problems arise, Congress has a right to withdraw the U.S. out the trade organization at any time. But for now, America would be better served with GATT than without it because of free trade and open markets for U.S. products.

'Battle of the Bands' a success

The only fact Ms. Macys correctly reported about the "Battle of the Bands" on 11/14/94 was the names of the bands that performed. First of all, as an intern for the Battle, I can verify that well over 300 people attended, not 60 as the article stated.

Secondly, the report that Carbondale was disappointed by the Battle was not supported by facts. Many of the bands in Battle (for instance The Underground, Fulcrum, 420 in Progress and Rusty Sunshine) have repeatedly performed throughout the area. Since these bands obviously have many supporters, Ms. Macys has incorrectly declared her opinion as that of everyone in Carbondale.

Ms. Macys manages to avoid the facts in many other areas as well. For example, she reported that one band played twice as long as the others, but in fact each band had one hour to perform. She also misinterpreted a previous noise citation: every view in the DE's 10/21/94 article agreed that the officers unfairly issued citations and refused to determine the sound level from 50 feet as the Carbondale City Ordinance dictates. Ms. Macys also stated the "Battle of the Bands" was a Carbondale contest when bands competes from cities across the region. Sponsors are also not solely from Carbondale; the grand prize was from St. Louis Music, not from local sponsors.

The Battle presents numerous musical styles and although one person will not like every band, everyone should be able to respect the promotion of original music. Because the "Battle of the Bands" entertains, not disappoints, its audience, it has gained the support of numerous sponsors and continues to be a success.

—Teresa Curry, Senior Business Management

DE review misses point: music

This letter is in response to the article written on November 14, 1994 concerning the "Battle of the Bands." My first question is, "Were you even there?" Over 300 people attended the final battle. The crowd and the bands rocked!

Granted, the bands were not the Chili Peppers, or your favorite band, probably the New Kids on the Block, but we had fun! Maybe you should have been more open minded to the great efforts that these bands gave rather than focusing on the volume of the music and your opinions.

Obviously, you don't go out much and you're probably too busy hanging around with Officer Friendly and the Sound Cops. Bars are loud. Rock 'n' Roll is even louder. Get real. Stay home and get a pen pal if you don't like to rock. Seriously fans, we'd like to thank all our sponsors, bands, and especially our audience for another great battle and we also like to thank our DE for all its support and coverage, even if it Ducked. Our grand prize was donated by St. Louis Music, Form St. Louis, Ms. Macy. Were you forced to cover this event?

—Joe Castrejon President of SCM

Religion must be own decision

Freedom of speech, what does it really mean? We hear/see so much of many religions present in this community. I have run into many people who have stopped me handing out those little Bibles, or pamphlets, or trying to tell me to go to church. I was hounded the other day by someone near Morris Library who tried to push their beliefs and values on me by telling me that I need to attend some sort of church service.

What is all the pressure put on us to believe or practice our beliefs in a certain way. Just because this person believes in this particular religion or philosophy, does freedom of speech mean we can push our beliefs on one another. Get with it.

Freedom of speech is important, but some people over step the boundaries and are intrusive. We all don't have to believe what each other believes.

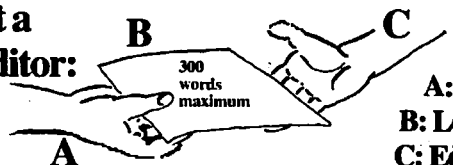

That's another founding principle of democracy. Let each person believe in their own spirituality. If someone wants to talk about it with others, then so be it, but don't try pushing ideas, religion, or philosophy on those you don't know.

Be more open minded about how others believe. It is fine for those who are out "pushing" their religion on others to believe the way they do and if someone wants to hear what they have to say, fine; but if not, then leave people alone.

pushed aside by faculty and administrative concerns in the selection process.

"If a student goes up against an administrator, they (the board) are more likely to chose the administrator," Sawyer said.

According to a letter Brown sent to GPSC, the board will serve as the official search committee for the succeeding chancellor.

Brown said in the letter that the final group of candidates chosen by the board from the list of applicants will be reviewed by a committee constituency leaders who will also be selected by the board.

The constituency committee will then make a recommendation to the board on who the succeeding chancellor should be.

Brown said current board policy calls for five constituency members to be chosen for the final committee to review the applicants.

The constituency will have faculty and non-faculty representatives from SIUC and SIUE, and one student to represent students of both campuses.

Constituency groups, which include the student governments of SIUC and SIUE, GPSC and the Faculty Senate, will nominate a list of members to serve on the committee, and the board will select the final members from the list of nominees.

Mark Kochan, SIUC student trustee, said despite skepticism from constituency leaders, he hopes the board will allow a student representative from each SIU campus to sit on the constituency committee.

"The current policy does just call for one student to be on the committee, but I am hopeful in their infinite wisdom that board members will agree to allow a student representative from both campuses to sit on the committee," Kochan said. "I have spoken with the chancellor, and it is my feeling he will recommend to the board that a representative from student governments at Edwardsville and Carbondale should sit on the committee."

Kochan, who was elected by students to represent them on the board, said he will be involved along with the SIUE student trustee in selecting the succeeding chancellor.

Brown, who was unavailable for comment Monday, has said the board will make the final decision as to which applicant will become the new chancellor.

Judy Hopkins, Brown's executive secretary, said the chancellor has been ill for the past few days, but when he returns to work he plans to meet with constituency leaders to discuss their roles in the selection process.

Sharon Holmes, secretary to the SIU Board of Trustees, said the chancellor's office has placed ads in several publications, including the Chronicle of Higher Education and various newspapers.

Holmes said it was announced at the Nov. 10 Board of Trustees meeting that there had been approximately 40 applicants for the position.

She said she has not kept a running total of the number of applicants since the last board meeting.

Although many SIUC students were not in Carbondale over Thanksgiving break, they were still in the Christmas shopping spirit.

Ellen Northam, a journalism sophomore from Elmhurst, said she started her holiday gift-hunting for family members and friends Friday at Oakbrook Mall in Oakbrook.

She said she spent time in The Museum Shop, a division of The Art Institute of Chicago, and in the Warner Brothers shop buying decorative ornaments for her dorm-room tree.

"I spent a lot of money. Being a college student there just never seems to be enough money, especially around Christmas time."

Northam said.

Ryan Peterson, an undecided freshman from Champaign, said he is usually a late holiday shopper. He plans to save his money and target the new outlet mall in Tuscola.

Connie Armstrong, an SIUC assistant professor in consumer economics and family management, said she advises shoppers to save for holiday spending, use their charge cards and avoid crowded malls and shops on weekends.

She said by purchasing gifts with credit cards, shoppers do not have to worry about holiday pickpockets — but those who choose to charge should still save the money first and then stick to a prepared list of gifts.

Armstrong advises people to shop in the morning and in the late afternoons to avoid weekend crowds.

"A lot of people fear crowds and dread fighting for bargains; holiday shopping becomes a chore rather than the pleasurable experience it should be," she said. "People should make a list and stick by it. Those who go shopping with the thought something will inspire them will only leave frustrated and tired."

With 26 shopping days remaining, Armstrong reminds everyone that this is the season of giving and it is not the gift that counts, but the thought behind the purchase.

10-cent pay increase for every 1000 hours of employment.

The USG and GPSC proposal would raise minimum wage to 25 cents above the Federal minimum wage and revise the maximum rate to $1.75 above it. Both plans would change the longevity clause so that students would get a 20-cent increase for every 500 hours worked.

Participants in the meeting said the outcome of the final plan may reflect the surveys.

"Most people are in favor of keeping the minimum wage at $4.25," Jennifer Raftis, USG representative on the committee, said. "There is a better chance they'll reduce the hours you have to work to get a raise. Right now most students have to work over a year to get 1000 hours."

"If you look at the surveys conducted with the other school it's pretty hard to justify raising minimum wage," Robert Brewer, committee representative from the Bursar's Office, said.

"I would feel that both the maximum wage and the pay increase policy should be looked at," he said.

Since Financial Aid Office members highly outnumber representatives of the student body, which consist of Raftis and GPSC representative Cristal Girtman, Britton decided to make three office members ineligible to vote on the final plan.

Raftis said she was happy with the meeting as everyone was willing to work with each other's ideas.

Raftis said she would issue a memo on what took place at the meeting to USG President Ed Sawyer today and predicted that the issue would be placed on the agenda for the USG's Dec. 7. She said the meeting where it would derive a consensus view on the proposals for her to take the committee's next meeting.

USG and GPSC forwarded their proposals to the Financial Aid Office last spring. The final plans must be approved by Guyon before enactment.

Also discussed at the meeting was a proposal to eliminate the portion of the policy which states that students who are terminated on-campus may be placed on bad standing by their former employer, in which case they would be ineligible for on-campus employment for four months.

Raftis said she felt that since such a policy does not exist for off-campus jobs, it should not exist on-campus.

Students get lesson in voter registration

By Chad Anderson
Staff Reporter

SIUC's Undergraduate Student Government held a workshop to register 14 SIUC students as deputy registrars of Jackson County, and has set a goal to register 10,000 students for the upcoming elections for Carbondale City Council.

The workshop was held on Nov. 17 in the Student Center, and was taught by Jackson County clerk and recorder Robert Harrel, who is retiring and said this was his last workshop at SIUC.

Swearing in deputy registrars is part of USG's plan to increase the number of registered voters for the spring elections for city council.

USG president Edwin Sawyer said he plans to register about half the student population, and hopes students realize the importance of registering to vote.

"We think the election process is important, and the only way students can participate is to register to vote," he said.

"We have a goal to get 10,000 students registered to vote."

Matthew Parsons, USG chief of staff, said the voter registration program is not intended to help gain support for him in the race for city council this spring.

"I haven't really thought about it (gaining support through the registration drive). It helps me that's great, but that is not the real reason," Parsons said.

Bill Hall, Graduate and Professional Student Council representative for community development and coordinator of the voter registration drive, said student leaders are working hard to register voters.

"This year, student leaders have an unusually strong commitment in the process (of voter registration)," he said.

Hall also said tables would be available for students to register to vote in Jackson County. "We're scheduling tables in the cafeterias and the main floor of the student center for the last few weeks of this semester," Hall said.

Tables will be set up Monday through Friday the week of Nov. 28 through Dec. 2, and will be open between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The deputy registrars' status will last for two years from the date they were signed up, and they can register anyone who resides in Jackson County.

If people already are registered in another county, they must first cancel that registration, and then they may register in Jackson County.

Harrel made it clear to the deputy registrars that they may not register anyone within 100 feet of a place which sells alcoholic beverages.

Qualifications for registering to vote include being 18 years old by election day, living in Jackson County 30 days prior to election day and being a U.S. citizen.

Convicted felons serving time in jail are not eligible to vote.

schools would not take a back seat to wealthier suburban county schools under the new Republican caucus' leadership.

"I think downstate Illinois will be better off, because Lee Daniels is not interested in just Chicago," he said. "With Madigan, Chicago was running the state."

Byrers said during the next legislative session, the General Assembly would examine changing school funding to a more equitable system.

"I don't think Republicans are in favor of funding education through the income tax, but we would reallocate current school funding," he said. "The House Republican Caucus is open to working with all people in Illinois."

Boyd said the caucuses are important because two-thirds of Illinois voters are from the Chicago area, so it is easy for downstate Illinois to be overlooked.

Police Blotter

Carbondale Police

■ A residential burglary occurred at 900 E. Grand No. 204. The victim, Christi Becker, an SIUC student, returned home from break to find her apartment had been entered by an unknown means and ransacked. An investigation is continuing. ■ An auto burglary occurred between 5 p.m. on Nov. 26 and 2:28 p.m. Nov. 27. Robert A. Morgan, 62, reported his 1979 Ford Thunderbird, which was parked in the lot west of Bob's Cleanup, had two windows shattered and a car stereo removed from the dashboard. The combined loss estimate is $760.

Grant enhances minority teaching

By Anika Robertson
Staff Reporter

A federal grant is likely to bring minority college instructors interested in pursuing doctorate degrees to SIUC, the assistant dean of SIUC's Graduate School says.

A program called PROMPT - Proactive Recruitment of Minority Professionals for Tomorrow, aims to increase enrollment of SIUC's minority doctoral students.

The $350,000 grant for SIUC came from the U.S. Department of Education to help minorities earn doctoral degrees.

The newest component of PROMPT, the Human Ecology Faculty Development Fellowship Program, selects five minority doctoral students in social science fields who will receive up to $14,000 annually for up to three years to pursue a terminal degree at SIUC.

Patricia McNeil, graduate school assistant dean, said she believes the fellowship will bring a sizable number of applicants.

"We've contacted all of the schools in Illinois as well as the surrounding universities in the Midwest," McNeil said.

Harry Daniels, SIUC graduate school associate dean, said he is pleased and enthusiastic SIUC was chosen to receive the grant.

"The school has a long history of providing education to minority students at the graduate level," he said.

Other programs PROMPT has include a minimum of eight two-year financial assistance packages for pursuing advanced degrees at SIUC and a summer research program for attending classes and participating in research activities.

McNeil said the faculty development grant is unique and she is pleased with the entire PROMPT program.

Benefits include tuition and fee waivers, free housing and paid conference travel. Winners also will receive a teaching assistantship for 10 hours per week.

In order to receive the fellowship, the students must agree to teach at schools where minorities constitute at least 25-percent of the student body.

The program is open to African American, Asian-American, Hispanic and Native-American teachers who currently hold a master's degree in a social science.

The application deadline is Feb. 1, 1995.

For more information, contact Pat McNeil, 453-4330.

SIUC Student Center transformed into Thailand palace for festival

By Katie Morrissey
Staff Writer

Students from Thailand recently gathered in SIUC's Student Center to share their cultural backgrounds with others in the Carbondale community. The event, called Thai Nite, allowed SIUC and Carbondale area residents to enjoy a night of entertainment — Asian style.

The event was celebrated Nov. 18, in accordance with the full moon. The moon outside was reproduced inside with lights and a complete stage set resembling the Grand Palace in Thailand. The event was sponsored by the Thai Student Association.

James Quisenberry, director of International Programs and Services, said the atmosphere was very much like Thailand. He has visited the country three times and said he enjoyed seeing the photographs and videos presented during the festival.

"We thoroughly enjoyed ourselves," he said.

Paisan Limrattanamongkol, a graduate student in finance and president of the Thailand

Association, said he wanted to recreate the atmosphere of his native country to share with those at Thai Nite.

Loy Kratong is a traditional festival celebrating the goddess of rivers and waterways, according to Buddhist beliefs.

Each year on the full moon of November, believers send lotus shaped boats with candles, incense and a coin tucked inside, down the river to thank the water goddess for her provisions.

Senec Suwandee, a graduate student in economics and former president of the Thai Association, said he hoped that with the presentation of Thai arts and culture, people in the Carbondale area could feel closer to Thai people at SIUC.

"We all are having a good time staying here and so this is what we would like to contribute back to this community in return," he said.

Suwandee said he thought the festival was similar to the American Thanksgiving holiday in that both help people appreciate the blessings of this world.

The Loy Kratong ceremony was carefully reproduced on stage in the ballrooms during Thai Nite with traditional dances, boxing, and sword fighting similar to what might be presented to the King of the palace during Loy Kratong.

Jayne Harris, Carbondale resident, said she was impressed with what she saw and learned about Thai culture at the event.

"It was fascinating to see the dancing and I really enjoyed the martial arts-type things," she said.

Harris said she enjoyed the food, though her Thai friends explained to her that it was not exactly what they hoped it would be.

Suwandee said he was not sure that the Marriott staff at the Student Center captured the authenticity of Thai food, but he was very pleased with the presentation overall.

Quisenberry said he enjoyed the food.

"To me it tasted very Thai. I'm always pleased the Student Center can do international cuisine so well," he said.

Suwandee said he was glad to see Americans and Asians enjoying themselves together.

"The main objective is to create a bridge to confirm a good relationship among students and other people living in Carbondale," he said.

SIUC lost its first game of the year on Friday when Big East power Seton Hall beat the Salukis 69-56 in the first round of the tournament.

As a team, SIUC only shot 36.7 percent and scored only 22 points in the first half. Carr led the Salukis with 11 points, but he was in foul trouble throughout the game, committing four in the first half alone. Paul Lusk had 10 points and Marcus Timmons scored eight and added 11 rebounds for the squad.

The Salukis cut the Pirates' lead down to 11 early in the second half after trailing by 15 at the break, but Seton Hall was able to fight off the SIUC rally and put the game away. Danny Hurley led the Pirates with 18 points while shooting three-of-four from the three-point arc.

SIUC (1-1) comes home to play Old Dominion on Dec. 3 at 8:05 p.m.

Dill, the youngest of Tharold and Vicky Dill's four children, became eligible to play the lottery when he turned 18 Nov. 6. Two days later, while dining at the Frosted Mug restaurant where his girlfriend is a waitress, he bought his first four lottery tickets after finishing his hamburger and french fries.

On one of the tickets, Dill tried picking the six winning numbers himself. The other three were selected by the computer, and it was the last "quick pick" ticket he bought that turned out to be the winner.

Dill received the good news early when an older brother in Stockton called to say someone in Boron had the winning ticket. As Vicky Dill recited the numbers — 15, 30, 34, 35, 50 and 51 — she realized Terry had a perfect match.

"We were just all screaming and yelling," she said. "It's something you just can't believe."

Dawgs end season with loss to EIU

By Grant Deady
Sports Editor

Someone notify the sandman — the 1994 Saluki football season is finally ready to sleep.

"I want to put the past season to bed," SIUC football head coach Shawn Watson said. "I'm about getting it done. I'm not going to go 1-10 again."

SIUC was tripped up in its season capper at Eastern Illinois Nov. 19, 24-3, which marked the first time in history a Saluki team lost 10 games in a year.

However, the second phase of Watson's rebuilding process was slated to begin Monday afternoon where returning players would receive an outline of their off-season tasks.

Watson said items on the meeting agenda would include academic requirements and details about the weight training schedule, while individual player meetings with the coach are scheduled for today and Wednesday.

Eight Saluki players finished up their athletic eligibility this season, which means a majority of the same faces will make up the 1995 squad.

Watson said he's got confidence in several of the returners, but certain areas will demand a lot of recruiting attention.

"There's a good nucleus coming back, but it's a matter of getting the offensive and defensive lineman coverage cornerbacks and a tailback capable of carrying the ball between 25 and 30 times per game.

Watson said he believes his staff has a strong grasp on what needs to change and despite the sub-par '94 campaign he'll never forget this season's seniors.

"I've learned a lot about what we have to work with and the resources that the University has and what direction I need to take with this program," he said.

"I can't say enough about the seniors, they were outstanding. During the times of adversity, they kept their heads up and took us a long way."

we need — especially the defensive line," he said. "I like what we have, but we need to bring in others to make it competitive."

Positions outside the trenches that Watson said are a major concern include recruiting two California's youngest lottery millionaire had more important things on his mind last week than turning in his winning ticket. The 18-year-old high school senior had a football game to prepare for.

An hour after being awakened by the news that his "quick pick" Super Lotto ticket was the big winner in the weekly jackpot drawing, Terry Dill was sitting in the local coffee shop in tiny Boron, Calif., eating a traditional game-day breakfast with teammates.

"I love football more than anything," said Dill, who won $3.76 million or $135,360 a year after taxes for the next two decades. "I've been playing since I was 8, and I wasn't about to stop for a day just because I won the lono. First things first."

Moments after Boron's 14-0 victory over Community Christian of Bakersfield last Thursday night, Dill and his parents took off from Bakersfield for a weekend trip to Sacramento to claim the prize.

"I gave Terry a hug after the game like I always do, and he whispered in my ear that he now was ready to collect his money," said Vicki Dill, Terry's mother. "It had been a pretty emotional day on all of us."

Vanderbilt crushes SIUC, 95-45, in season opener

By Sean Walker
Staff Reporter

The Saluki women's basketball program took an eye-opening 94-45 loss to No. 12 Vanderbilt in Nashville Sunday.

The 49-point margin was the worst ever loss by a Saluki team and 59 rebounds ties an SIUC opponent record.

Vandy set the tone of the game early as it rattled off 19 straight points to put SIUC down 21-2 at the 11:47 mark of the first half. SIUC traded points with the Commodores until the end of the half when Vandy hit a three-pointer with 5.5 seconds left to give them a 23-point lead heading into the locker room.

The Salukis drew first blood in the second half when freshman sensation Cari Hassell downed a three-pointer just seconds into the action, but Vandy quickly destroyed SIUC's hopes of a comeback. The Commodores blasted the Salukis with 16 unanswered points making the score 60-24 with just over 15 minutes left in the game.

Vandy continued to dominate SIUC throughout the second half, and ended with a game-high 49-point victory.

After Vandy defeated No. 5 Purdue by 20 points last Friday, Scott said the Commodores proved they are a level above SIUC.

"They are really, really good," she said. "On that day, they were good, and we showed our inexperience and lack of composure."

"We are not down and this is a good point to start from, so let's go. We are ready for Illinois."

Vanderbilt was led by Sheri Sam's 20 points and 10 rebounds.

Hassell tossed up 17 three-point attempts hitting four in her 12-point outing to lead the Salukis.

SIUC takes on Illinois in Champaign Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. and Scott said the Salukis need to work on two things to win the game.

"One, we need to work on our defensive transition, and two, we need to work on our composition on the offensive end," she said. "We need to work on our shot selection."

In the Illinois game, Scott said she will be looking for better rebounding from the Salukis.

"The rebounding against Vanderbilt was not a fair assessment of what SIUC can do, because they are so big," she said. "We have not rebounded well in any of the three games, and I hope we can see some improvement in the Illinois game."

Men's hoops begin MVC 1-1

By Doug Durso
Senior Reporter

The SIUC men's basketball team let a large lead slip away, but were able to hit a couple of crucial free throws with only seconds left to beat St. Bonaventure 74-72 at Hawaii Sunday.

Chris Carr hit two free throws with six seconds left to beat the Bonnies and give the Salukis a third-place finish at the United Airlines Tip-off Classic.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin said he knew Carr would come through in the clutch.

"I want him to handle the ball down the stretch and that's why I drew the play up," Herrin said. "He has a nice arc on his free throws."

Carr led SIUC with 22 points on 8-15 shooting, while Paul Lusk chipped in with 17 points hitting 3-4 from three-point range.

Marcus Timmons and Aminu Timberlake led the Dawgs in rebounds with 7 apiece, while Ian Stewart had nine points, three rebounds and two blocked shots in 10 minutes of action.

"Everybody has a role to play and Stewart did a nice job," Herrin said.

Turnovers plagued the Salukis through the game as the squad turned over the ball 27 times compared to 16 by St. Bonaventure.

Herrin said the team will improve in that area as the year progresses.

"We have to do away with the turnovers and I think we will," Herrin said. "We have three very tough games (Old Dominion, St. Louis University, at North Carolina-Charlotte) facing us, so we have to get good practices in on Thursday and Friday."

SIUC had 42-32 lead at half-time and a 60-43 lead with under 12 minutes to go, but St. Bonaventure put together a 25-4 run to tie the game at 64 with 5:26 left. The Bonnies then grabbed the lead on two free throws by David Vantepool.

The Salukis hit some key free throws down the stretch, but St. Bonaventure again tied the game when Rasheen Palmer hit a jumper with 10 seconds remaining in the game.

However, Carr was able to come through and bury the game-winning free throws to give the Salukis their first victory this season.

145th at Nationals, Horner keeps finish in perspective

By Doug Durso
Senior Reporter

SIUC cross country standout Jennie Horner attained her preseason goal of running in the Nationals, even though her performance turned out to be below her standards.

Horner finished 145th in the cross country National Championships on Nov. 21 at Fayetteville, Ark. The four-time Missouri Valley Conference runner-of-the-week ran her slowest 5k time of the year, breaking the tape in 19:02.8.

At the start of the race, Horner sprinted out hard for 300 to 400 meters, before reaching a gradual uphill climb at about the one-mile mark, where she said the course took her toll.

"I couldn't keep up the pace and people started passing me, but I didn't care because I was so tired.

"I sprinted out because I didn't want to get boxed in, but I guess I should have stayed at a more consistent pace."

Horner's best time of the year, 17:22, would have placed her 17th at the Nationals.

Jennifer Rhines of Villanova won the meet in a time of 16:31.2.

Horner said her performance at Nationals does not take away from the season.

"I'm definitely disappointed with my performance at Nationals, but I'm really happy with what I accomplished this year," she said.

With the track season coming up, Horner said she will use her performance at Nationals to gear up for the next campaign.

"I'll be coming into the track season with a lot of fire and I want to get back to Nationals," she said.

The women's indoor track season begins Dec. 10.
