This course is an introduction to the study of the effects of the Internet and cyberspace on the psychology of individuals and the sociology of communities and groups. Some topics covered include: online identity in the age of the app, online and internet relationships, understanding communication and interaction in cyberspace, personality types in cyberspace, transference to computers, internet addiction, cyberbullying and other types of behavior in cyberspace, online gender roles and interactions etc, digital environments, the cultural, social, and psychological impact of drones, the social-psychology of search engines, and distinguishing actions, thoughts, and behavior between the online and the offline world. We will cover current and future technologies and the impact it has on the overall meaning of being human. Some themes we will discuss, explore, and revisit are: Is there a distinction between the online world vs the offline world? How does the virtual-self compare to a traditional self? Is technology and cyberspace changing what it means to be human? How does technology and cyberspace shape our behavior, thoughts, words, and actions?

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

1. Define and discuss the term Cyber-psychology and demonstrate the basic terminology, concepts, and principles of the discipline.
2. Identify, evaluate, and compare the major perspectives in Cyber-psychology
3. Recognize that some human behavior is motivated by the virtual world and has multiple effects
4. Discuss the ways that Cyber-psychological theories are used to assess, predict, or change human behavior
5. Discuss and demonstrate how Cyber-psychology is applied to influence and improve the lives of human beings.

6. Gain insight into one's own personality and personal relationships by thinking critically about Cyber-psychological theories and principles.
7. Recognize how each approach views human thought and behavior in the Cyberworld

Discussion Posts: Any post submitted AFTER the due date, even if it is one minute over, WILL NOT count. Please do not post on discussion forums after the assignment is complete. These, too, will not count. Only discussion posts submitted between the specified dates will count. No exceptions.

Quizzes: Quizzes must be submitted during the scheduled time they are open. No exceptions to this rule.

Communication: Because this is an online course, we do not meet face to face. Therefore, it is extremely important you keep in touch with me (via email or calling my office) to inform me of any issues that come up. Emailing me mid-way through the semester is not enough. If you have any specific personal issues that prevents you from participating in the course, I will need documentation from the Dean of Students. You have access to email through numerous devices. It is your responsibility to keep me informed for any reason on why you cannot/have not participated.

I do not give extra credit. Nor do I respond to emails or questions that ask, “Is there anything I can do to ‘get an A’ or to ‘bump up my grade a few extra points.’ Please do not attempt to send me emails of this nature. Any issue that arises that must be discussed should be handled during office hours and not via email. I will not respond to any such emails.

Students are responsible to keep track of their own grades, what work they owe, and what they are missing. Please note where an ‘A’ begins and where a ‘B+’ begins and ends. Any issue with a grade for a specific quiz must be addressed DURING OFFICE HOURS (and not via email) NO MORE than one week after the quiz, reader response, or assignment is administered. Anything issue after a week will not be considered and your grade will remain as is.

Any issue with a missed assignment must be addressed within one week after the assignment in due otherwise a “0” will be entered for the grade and will remain as is. This is the policy of the course.

Furthermore, Moodle allows me to see your online activity in regards to this course. It allows me to see what articles you read, how long you read them for, if you looked at the notes, when you opened the quizzes, and when they are closed. Please understand that Moodle maintains a detail track record of your use and interaction with the course materials. So I see/have/ and maintain a full transcript of your activity online in this course. Please be aware that before any conversation occurs between you and I, I will have this detailed activity report in front of me. Please also understand that should there be any “technical” issues, I am provided and have access to detailed reports that inform me of any issues Moodle has.

Academic Integrity:

Students are expected to read and understand NJIT’s academic integrity policy. Members of the NJIT community are expected to be honest and forthright in their academic endeavors.

Please visit the website: <http://www.njit.edu/academics/pdf/academic-integrity-code.pdf> and review the policy.

There is a zero tolerance policy on any and all forms of cheating.

Student's that require special accommodations Disabilities Service Policy

Students with disabilities who are otherwise qualified and are college able will receive reasonable accommodations to support their special needs. Students must self-identify to the Disabilities Services office to qualify to receive services. NJIT is in full compliance with the regulations of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act.

New Jersey Institute of Technology is committed to making students with disabilities full participants in its academic and other programs, services and activities through the provision of reasonable accommodations to students with documented disabilities. The Coordinator of Student Disability Services will coordinate the provision of appropriate accommodations and/or academic adjustments on a case-by-case basis for students with disabilities who identify themselves, provide adequate documentation of their disability and need for accommodation, request services and complete appropriate forms. Appropriate accommodations are provided at no cost to the student.

If you have any questions or would like additional information, please contact Dr. Phyllis Bolling, Center for Counseling and Psychological Services (C-CAPS), Campbell Hall, (entry level), room 205, (973) 596-3420.

Personal Conflicts/Issues

Should you have any personal issues or conflicts that prevent you from participation in the online course, miss assignments, or do not log onto the course for an extended period of time- by extended period of time I define as more than two weeks- you must provide me with documentation from the Dean of Students. Otherwise, you will not be allowed to make up the work you miss. In addition, anything that requires discussion must be done during office hours. If you are not engaged with the class for weeks- simply writing me an email stating "I've been really sick and couldn't do my work" is not a viable excuse. You must see me during office hours.

Email

Please check your NJIT email regularly. Any announcements, reminders, or notifications are sent via Moodle directly to your NJIT email account. Also note I respond to emails within 24 HOURS after it is sent. Please be patient and do not sent multiple emails with the same information within. Any email sent after 2:00pm on Fridays will be responded to Monday mornings.

Online Class Expectations and Procedures:

Because of the rapid pace of the course and students working remotely and independently from home, the expectations are the same, if not higher, than a class held on campus in real time. Please keep in mind that we DO NOT MEET FACE TO FACE. However, you are always welcome to schedule an appointment with me or come see me in my office. Because it is an online class, the expectations for you are GREATER because of your independent work responsibility with this class.

(4) Quizzes:

There are FOUR timed quizzes on Moodle this semester. Format and type will vary.

Quizzes #1, #2, and #3 open Monday morning @9am the week they are assigned and close Sunday 1159pm at the end of that of that week.

For Quizzes #1, #2, and #3, make ups are allowed up to one week past the official due date and must be approved by the instructor. The highest grade earned for a make-up within a week is a 50. A quiz not made up a week after the official due date will result in a 0.

For Quiz #4 there is no make up option available. No questions, discussion, or negotiations will be held regarding my policy on quizzes.

(3) Discussion Forums

There are three (3) discussion forums this semester.

(1) Introduction Essay Assignment

There is one Introduction assignment this semester.

(1) Conclusion Essay Assignment

There is one Conclusion assignment this semester.

Discussion Forums

You will have 3-graded discussion questions based on the readings and links that I post on Moodle. The discussion assignments ask you to post TWICE. The first post is your initial comments/thoughts/ideas regarding the question. It should be approximately 300 words. The second reply should be in response to a student in the forum who has not been responded to. Your reply should be at least 100 words.

PLEASE NOTE: I do not accept late posts on the forum. The two posts MUST BE submitted during the time and date the assignment states. There are no exceptions to this rule.

In addition, be respectful and courteous to other people's opinions that may differ from yours while on the discussion board. Any post that appears to be rude, mean, threatening, or disrespectful will be immediately deleted and you will receive a "0" for the assignment. Keep in mind, it is okay to disagree. In fact, it is healthy and encouraged. But the disagreement must be discussed in an adult manner. Because you are hidden behind a computer screen, makes you even more accountable for your words, thoughts, and what you put out in the cyberworld.

In addition, if a post appears that you feel I should address, you find offensive, or would like me to comment on, please email me separately and I will. Sometimes things can easily be taken out of context on discussion forums and it takes an unbiased reader/commenter to bring understanding to both sides.

Essay Grading Rubrics:

Below is a breakdown of how the introductory and concluding essay assignment are graded. Should you wish to further discuss your grade OR get more detailed and constructive feedback, please see me during office hours:

96-99: The paper provides more than 3 examples, provides thoughtful and detailed analysis. The paper ties in both the student's views and supports those views the sources and data from the course content. The paper is structured and organized well, there is a strong fluid writing style, and there is an originality in style and presentation. There is a clear connection and relationship between the three examples.

90-95. The paper provides three examples, provides thoughtful and detailed analysis. The paper ties in some student's views and supports those views with some of the sources and data from the course content. The paper has good structure and organization with some minor issues in writing style. The paper does not take any creative or original risks. There is somewhat of a relationship between the examples.

85-89. The paper provides three examples, but is weak on the analysis. It ties in very little of the student's views and provides minimal support from the sources and the data. Some structural and organizational issues are present. The paper meets the bare minimum requirements of the assignment. It is unclear if a relationship exists between the examples and the topics.

75-84. The paper provides less than three examples, is weak on analysis, has issues in structure and organization. There is no connection between examples and/or topics.

60-75. The paper is rushed and does not follow directions. There is an attempt at organization but it is sloppy. There is no clear focus, there is no relationship among the topics. It lacks analysis.

50. This paper does not meet the requirements of the course and is unacceptable.

0. Paper was not submitted.
