Goldberg urges Executive, electoral reforms

Watergate termed 'biggest scandal' in history

by Ros Reid

"All who believe in the rule of law must agree," urged former Associate Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, in an address May 8, expressing his horror at Watergate, "the biggest scandal" in our history, "that every person, of high or low estate, responsible for heinous crimes must be brought to justice without fear or failure."

"Our government is the potent, omnipresent teacher for good or evil," Goldberg told the large audience gathered in McGaw Chapel, recalling the words of Chief Justice Louis Brandeis 50 years ago in the Olmstead vs. the U.S. wire tapping case. In the case of Watergate, he said, "the teacher of evil appears to be the government."

Goldberg's address was part of the "Nature of Justice in America" series sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee. Scheduled to speak on the topic of "Government Under Law," he said that he had discarded one of his prepared speeches to speak specifically on the Watergate scandal.

"I, as a lawyer and former judge, do not try to ascribe guilt," he stated, emphasizing that the Watergate case is based on allegations, the truth of which is still to be determined in a court of law. But if proven in court, he said, "such crimes constitute more than dirty business. They undermine a premise fundamental to our legal system since the Magna Carta - that government, like all of us, is under, not above, the law."

The "one man, one vote" principle spoken by Chief Justice Earl Warren was also cited by Goldberg. "The right to vote freely is of essence to a democratic society," Goldberg asserted, and Watergate represents a "sordid and unprecedented debasement of the right to vote freely."

Goldberg recalled that Henry Kissinger has referred to this as "a time for compassion." He called Kissinger's statement incorrect, saying rather that "it is a time for profound sorrow, concern, regret and outrage that government has become so 'embroiled' in scandal and illegal acts. 'Now is the time,' he continued, 'for the truth denied to us as citizens, for justice denied to us as citizens. . . for bringing justice to all of us, to the people.'"

Above all, he stressed, the facts must be known. Again quoting former Justice Brandeis, he said, "Sunlight is the most powerful of all disinfectants" - and urged that the full truth must be brought to light to cure the "cancer in our body politic."

Goldberg believes that this must be handled by an "independent prosecutor" rather than by the House or Senate. The prosecutor would examine possible "acts of impropriety" as well as criminal actions, he indicated.

The Watergate scandal has far-reaching implications for the operation of the Executive branch, Goldberg said. "The President can only discharge the functions of his high office when he commands the consent of the governed," he reminded the audience. "That consent cannot be taken for granted today." He noted that 50 per cent of the American people, according to recent polls, do not believe Nixon is innocent.

Moreover, he stated, "We are too much inclined to believe all our problems can ultimately be solved by the courts." A judge's powers extend only so far, he cautioned, and in a country under law a government above the law "cannot be saved by the courts."

Watergate, he declared, "represented a contempt for law - a feeling of the people involved that because they had offices in the White House they were above, not under the law."

"There is no such thing as a little repression," he went on. "Once you start the process of undermining freedoms, the next step is inevitable. . . We all ought to read Orwell's book 1984 again."

Goldberg described a number of changes he feels necessary for the establishment of responsible government. He is disturbed, he said, that the President

Wayne Avenue parking may be prohibited due to congestion problems

By Jeff Adair

Students parking cars on Wayne Avenue between Beall Avenue and Bever Street may no longer have a place to park. Wooster's Traffic Commission has recommended to the City Engineer and the Director of Administration that parking on that stretch of Wayne Avenue be limited because of congestion.

The commission wants to permit two-hour parking on the street, and no parking within thirty feet of the parking lot driveways. Captain Jim Pearce of the Wooster Police Department, and a member of the Traffic Commission, says the limited parking is a result of a compromise between some parties who wanted no parking and others who wanted parking to stay as it is. The commission recommended the change because they felt the street was too narrow for full time parking.

Pearce said the limitation may not happen, depending on what action the city takes. The Traffic Commission has no legislative authority, it can just make recommendations to the city. The city Traffic Engineer and Director of Administration can regulate the recommendation for 90 days, then the proposal goes to City Council. If the Council approves the recommendation, it then becomes law. Pearce does not know when the parking limitation will begin.

Robert Sherman, chief of security on campus, says most of the cars parked on the street belong to students who don't want to pay the fee to park in college lots. "These students will either have to buy permits to park behind Lowry and elsewhere, or find a new street to park on," stated Sherman. He added only registered cars will be allowed to park in college lots, including the Lowry lot.

There is no truth to rumors that the College faces a lawsuit or other trouble because of the housing of women in Andrews Hall, according to Associate Dean of Students Ken Plusquellec.

Andrews was originally intended to be a men's dorm when the Andrews family provided for its construction. However, when the administration decided to convert it to "flexible" use (that is, to house men or women there according to the College's needs in a particular year) the Andrews family and the Andrews Foundation were notified, and the action was cleared with them.

Are you up to it?

A tremendous ton to be consumed

By Rick Scales

"We're going to have our work cut out for ourselves," Second Section member Jeff Krabill predicted gleefully. Since Jeff and his section brothers feel that,

"this campus has been asleep too long," they've bought a full ton of beer which will be the focus of the mammoth beer bash they've planned for this weekend.

Second Section started thinking about this extravaganza last year, when it occurred to them that with enough motivation and participation, the fighting Scots just might be able to achieve the impossible dream - guzzle a veritable ocean of beer. Jeff was enamored with this dazzling prospect and has worked out the logistics as a man inspired.

After he found out that Carling Black Label has exclusive rights to the German Tuborg beer, "we tapped a few kegs last weekend, and it was the best 3.2 I've ever tasted." Jeff contacted Carling's promotion man who set up the deal. Their one big obstacle, administration policy restricting the purchase of beer to LCB, was surmounted without much difficulty. Even the administration must be impressed with the sheer enormity of one ton of beer. Second Section then bought the beer which they intend to share with the rest of the campus.

The Bacchanalia was originally planned for last weekend, but was postponed due to the weather. A new date will be set for some time this weekend, and will be announced when they've determined which day ought to have the best weather.

The organizers hope to feature two bands, the Jazzitions and probably whoever else they can talk into appearing on such short notice. The party will be located in the quad, or wherever else you happen to stagger off to after you've done your expected share of beer-drinking.

Regarding student response to all their labors, Jeff says, "I wonder if the campus is up to it?" Well, student body, there's only one way to find out.

Professor exchange G. Tait for A. Cheyne

The Religion Department and Teaching Staff and Tenure Committee have recently approved an exchange of professors for the fall quarter 1973-74. Professor L. Gordon Tait, Chairman of the Department, will be teaching at New College, University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and Professor Alexander C. Cheyne of New College will be Visiting Professor of Religion at Wooster.

Tait will be teaching courses mainly in Church History at New College, both on the undergraduate and graduate level, and Professor Cheyne will offer two religion courses at Wooster: Religion 234, History of Christian Thought I, and a 399 seminar in Religion and History entitled, Church, State and Society in 19th Century Britain.

Cheyne has M.A. and B.D. degrees from Edinburgh University, and a B.Litt. degree from Oxford. He has been rated as one of New College's best teachers by COW students who have studied in Edinburgh in recent years. This will be his first visit to the United States.

In Dr. Tait's absence next fall Dr. Robert Smith will be acting chairman.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

Blacks' patience tried by ignorance

To The Editor:

Dear Bill:

If I had been at college for four years and learned as little as you have, I would do one of three things: 1) keep my mouth shut; 2) question the credibility of the school; or 3) learn to tell the whole story (meaning don't play people off as being more ignorant than yourself, which at the moment seems truly impossible.)

If you had no feeling about Blacks, why do you deem it necessary to show your past encounters with Blacks (which I may say were less than impressive and even less significant)? Was this to show us that Big Bill Harris loves everybody? Why maybe even some of his best friends are Black! My, my!

Concerning Jim De Rose's copout (that's what it is called when someone goes back on their word, isn't it?) it was Jim who acted as the spokesman for the Association of Christian Athletes (if Christ only knew!) It was Jim DeRose and this association that recognized along with the Black students of the College. Jim DeRose and only Jim DeRose stood in front of the congregation of athletes big as life and said that in total sympathy with the Black BROTHERS on campus, he would not play the next day. Bill, please note that the meeting was called by the White members of the aforementioned association, because they too saw the racism.

You talked of an IM baseball game two weeks ago: well, Billy, let's go back to last year. The scene is a game between third and sixth. Third section contains one Black, sixth none. Where did the racial slur stem from that time? Weren't they the same two involved in the most recent skirmish? I'm not finished yet, Bill. Remember the dance this past Homecoming night? Somebody got drunk and felt a little pushy and loud? Now Billy if we weren't nice fellas you and dentu-cream would be like Billy Paul and Mrs. Jones, you would definitely have a thing goin' on!

As you can see, Bill (if I'm not asking too much) we too have had our patience tried, tried, and tried again, but crying trivia is no answer. Oh, yeah, Billy, before I end, what was your purpose in including the members of fifth section in your article? I mean they weren't participating in the game so what is your reasoning? You wouldn't be trying to play on that old fifth section, eighth section stereotype, now would you?

P.S. Wake up Bill, it's 1973.

Pejudice, insensitivity do exist here

To The Editor:

Bill Harris's May 4 letter to the VOICE raised many issues that deserve response, but two salient points demand attention. Their importance is not merely in his stating them, but also in their widespread acceptance among the white student body.

(1) Harris suggested that Black students are constantly creating racial unrest. It is true that Black students alone raise issues of racism on this campus. This, however, is more of a judgement on the white students than the Blacks. The relevant question to be raised is why are white students insensitive and apathetic about racism?

(2) Harris asserts "that no racial prejudice is present on campus." It is difficult to believe that people still hold such a naive belief. Let it suffice to respond that recent Wooster history, the KERNER REPORT, and the graffiti on COW bathroom walls should dispel this illusion. These commonly held misconceptions are indicative of the racism on this campus and the dearth of white awareness of racism.

Sphinx 'unjustly singled out'

To The Editor:

The last issue of the VOICE (4 May 1973) had a couple of references to girls' clubs' Hell Week which require clarification.

One article questioned the purposes and goals of the Hell Week period and suggested that guidelines be established which would protect the pledges, the actives, and the entire campus community from humiliation or embarrassment. Such guidelines were in effect, but the maintenance of these guidelines was left to the integrity of the individual clubs and the common sense of their members.

Any acts which were publicly disrupting or disturbing should not be generally blamed on all of the clubs, since not all of the clubs participated in such activities.

A letter to the editor referred to the "pre-pubescent" nature of girls' Hell Week and mentioned "Sphinx waddling heavily in Lowry Center." The members of Lambda Alpha Sigma (Sphinx) would like to point out that our Hell Week should not be considered as offensive to the campus community.

We feel we were unjustly singled out in the letter. The "public display" of Sphinx consisted solely of club members eating as a group, and did not include the singing contests and other antics exhibited by some of the other clubs. Indeed, we made a conscientious effort to avoid the very displays which appeared to be repulsive to some of the campus community.

The girls' clubs at Wooster should not be considered as a homogeneous group. The individual clubs have different attitudes and approaches toward Hell Week. Generalizations about Hell Week are not valid, because each club conducts its own Hell Week.

We would hope that future references to offensive displays would be directed to the appropriate clubs.

Thank you from the 'vampires'

To The Editor:

Our sincere thanks to everyone who helped make the spring Bloodmobile drive the smashing success that it was. A total of 276 people signed up or walked in to give blood and the final count was 210 pints collected. This is nearly 20% better than the drives over the past two years and marks the first time we have collected more than 200 pints of blood. We congratulate one and all.

Smiling faces, 'terrific' people

By Toya Giraldo

It was a rainy day. I got back home from my "English class" and a letter from the College of Wooster was waiting for me. I had been accepted as their Spanish assistant. The following three months passed quickly. Pictures, papers, good-byes, tears... September came and with it what later would be one of the most interesting experiences of my life.

I'll leave the College in one month, but hundreds of faces, places, sad, and happy moments will remain on my mind forever.

It was not only me. Others in Paris, Tokyo, and Austria, who are people that I love today, were going through the same circumstances: what we thought about America, what we dreamed, or maybe what we unconsciously expected from it, doesn't matter. What we have lived, learned and shared does.

My first impression of Babcock was one of a cold building filled with people whose language I couldn't understand, and what is worse, in which I could not express my feelings. I was a stranger. Little by little those cold walls became warm and I spoke the same language: friendship. Babcock was my home for one year. There were many times when I felt the academic pressure, the students concerned with just the things going on on campus, and not with the rest of the world, as I had been used to. It made me feel like I couldn't go on. But there were always smiling faces of people ready to listen and be listened to in my "home."

The foreign students who felt the same way I did were not the only people I got to know. The American kids made an effort to let me understand that no matter what our background, we are all human beings.

There is in Babcock a teaching-learning atmosphere. The different cultures represented by us approach each other by creating a very relaxed true friendship. No matter if you are a girl or a guy, there is always someone to help you without taking consideration of other factors that have created certain frictions and frustrations in the rest of the dorms.

Now that I have to say good-bye, I know how Japanese Chefs cut carrots, how to say "you know" every five seconds, oops, and even get used to being called Maria instead of Toya.

I learned how many "terrific" (as Chuc would say) people you can meet travelling.

Then, having talked many times against America (sorry, North America), it becomes a beautiful place for me to be proud of being "Colombian!"

Reel World

Laughing 'til the catsup comes

By Bob Hetherington

Controversy picks the strangest places to settle down and make trouble. In 1967, Arthur Penn's film BONNIE & CLYDE split viewers and critics right down the middle. It has been called everything from an artistic bouquet to a "bunch of decayed cabbage leaves smeared with catsup." Many people who are otherwise functionally literate have responded to the movie with charges that its sympathetic, tragicomic portrayal of a criminal gang represented a kind of artistic immorality. They were further distressed by flagrant historical inaccuracies in the script, its graphic and sensual representation of violence, and most of all the mixture of comedy and violence. Displaying its usual disregard for critical guidance, American audiences flocked to see it, as the collegiate crowd no doubt will tonight in Mateer.

As you may recall Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow were a couple of shabby outlaws from out of America's indigestible past whose five year spree of greasing and gunning was prematurely interrupted by 167 bullets in Arcadia, Louisiana, in 1934. I, for one, am not bothered in the least that these two are made into heroes, nor do I indulge in romanticizing their romp as an attack against American materialism. Likewise, I realize that Clyde lacked the subtle mannerisms of Warren Beatty, and that the real Bonnie looked more like Margaret Hamilton than Faye Dunaway. Motion pictures have always had the remarkable ability to romantically resurrect morally stale types, such as the second coming of Davy Crockett in the '50s. Walt Disney, whose tolerance for ambiguity was never high, took a buffoonish demagogue with what seems to have been dangerously spastic politics, transformed him into the rugged individualist (that most abused of all American ideals) and made it stick. The King of the Wild Frontier wasn't the first of his kind, and Bonnie and Clyde is certainly not the last, although they have been the most successful.

Now in an abrupt (but admittedly anemic) shifting of tone which may prove an exemplary visual aid for the remainder of this discussion, I include that my own impression is that BONNIE & CLYDE is one of the major American artistic achievements of the last decade, and may possibly emerge as one of the great American classics. That claim cannot possibly be substantiated in this space, and rather than driving myself into a frenzy of exegesis and explanation, I choose to calmly reflect on only one aspect of this masterpiece--the blending of comedy and tragedy into a complex dramatic structure.

By reworking the reality of a five year reign of terror spread by a gang of punk outlaws, the writers have embellished facts with a great sympathy for a world they barely knew, and endowed an essentially grim, terrible series of crimes with the sardonic humor of a Twain or O. Henry. The device of interjecting farcical and laughable situations throughout a gore-laden story distinguishes BONNIE & CLYDE from all other gangster films before it, and leaves one with a confirmed awareness that a new pseudo-documentary style has been established by which spectators can be shocked and entertained at the same time.

In the first half of the film

the outlaws live in a comic world, comic first in the picturesque, nomadic quality of their life as symbolized by their automobile, and second because of their inability to achieve success in their chosen world. They are inept players in a game of cops and robbers, and in this first half there is no instance of a successful crime. Thus the film creates a comic world so entertaining and engaging to us that its aesthetic values neutralize (if not reverse) our normal moral judgments about the gangster film.

The last half of the movie systematically undercuts the comic world and asserts the underlying moral necessity, culminating in the horrible blood bath in the end. The seeds of destruction inhere in the comic world itself. Paradoxically, as they succeed in the world and become its heroes rather than its fools, Bonnie and Clyde become subject to its morality. The turning point of the film is, of course, the comic bank robbery when a bank attendant jumps on the running board of the getaway car and Clyde shoots him in the face. The sudden and gruesome flash of blood marks their success as criminals, and the beginning of their downfall. More and more incidents demonstrate this as the film progresses. The picnic scene with Bonnie's family is the ultimate recognition that their life is a dead end. In the following sequences violence dominates the screen and blood streams everywhere all the way through the final scene.

But the graphic details of violence, however great, do not suffice to account for the powerful emotional effect of the movie. The horror of the effect is stronger than simple nausea at the profusion of blood. It comes from the juxtaposition of the comic world against the reality of violence. Like Bonnie escaping into a movie musical, we have escaped into their movie world. Its comedy has made us forget the reality of violence. We have been taken in. And then the movie slaps us across the face so hard it is like seeing violence for the first time.

This is why I would contend that the film is essentially moral. At the end our moral values are restored with a shock. No sane person, I argue, could experience this film and aspire to the life it describes. The effect is not to make crime look attractive, but to make violence look horrible. We see people we admire suffer and die for what they are. Reacting with revulsion and horror to this is moral in the highest sense.

SHORT SUBJECTS: Many people complain that reviews do not tell them enough of "how it was done" and since the final death scene is so overwhelming, the following information may be of interest. To film the spasm and dance of death required four cameras each at a different speed (24, 48, 72, and 96) and different lenses, and the scene was later assembled on the editor's table. Nearly a hundred charges were wired to the actors that (when coupled with a blood package) would simulate bullets hitting the body. The car was also wired. At one point, there is even a small piece of Beatty's head that explodes off. Faye Dunaway's death was shot several times, and her leg was tied to the gear shift to prevent her from falling out of the car. The quietest audience in the world is the one witnessing the total effect of these contrivances.

WHITES must face reality!

By Chuc

Bill Harris' letter in the last VOICE is a perfect example of how far we Whites have yet to go to overcome our own ignorance, let alone racism.

He begins his letter with several references to "Blacks" he "went to school with," "played football with," and often "went places with," yet "had no feelings at all about." Very interesting relationship, no? How could one do all these things with someone and not have any emotional response?

I think what he is referring to resembles the limited amount of consciousness that Blacks and Chicanos who attended my primarily white high school had. Four years ago the grape boycott was just a cover story in TIME magazine. SOUL ON ICE was nowhere to be found in Adrian High's library, and the only publication resembling "minority media" widely read by students, was EBONY.

In other words, with a few exceptions, Blacks and Chicanos (the latter were still referring to themselves as "Mexicans") were about as conscious of their cultural uniqueness as Whites are at Wooster today!

If there is "constant racial unrest" on this campus, which there is not, it is only symbolic of the "unrest of all America." It may have been easy for us to ward off the realities of racism in high school but Wooster is so much closer to the world where Black inmates are used as guinea pigs in experiments with the effects of syphilis, where Native Americans battle a squadron of rifled troops at a place called Wounded Knee.

This campus has not been without its own battle scars, most of them brought about by Whites who will not be turned from their business-as-usual attitude.

The statement in Bill's letter that reads "if the Blacks bitching about not playing would give 100% in practice instead of talking, they would be playing," is a perfect illustration. Who defines this illusive "100%"? Until recently it has been primarily White coaching staffs, and athletic teams on which Blacks are far outnumbered. So this 100% that people are supposed to give is by definition a very White 100%. In other words, "Maybe, just maybe," Blacks are contributing to the betterment of the team in ways that aren't immediately recognizable to White coaches and team mates.

And as for the name-calling, I just love the altruistic picture Bill paints of his Section "brothers." It seems to me that when I and two other friends (one Black, one White) were playing tennis on the courts opposite Bissman a couple of weeks ago, we were ALL subjected to a variety of cackled adjectives by some of the same guys whose poor "patience was tried very hard" during the IM game. In which case I can only say practice what you preach before you start writing indignant letters.

Recognizing that the De Rose business has been run into the ground, I will only add this to that ugly matter: copping out is copping out. I don't care if he would have said he was NOT going to boycott in the beginning and then DID SO. He STILL would have "copped out." I see nothing "logical" about pledging your support to something and then withdrawing it because you think it will hurt your chances when you get out in that Great White World!

I would like to know as well what gift of God Bill Harris thinks he has when he speaks for everybody on this yard? (i.e.: "To the Blacks that were level-headed during the game last Wednesday as well as the other Blacks on campus that have their heads squarely on their shoulders, you are greatly respected by the campus.") In the first place I wasn't even AT the game, and have no first-hand info about what really happened and in the second place, the terms "level-headed" and "squarely on their shoulders" are just that: SQUARE, and call to mind all the impossible standards of a Boy Scout manual, standards which I wouldn't wish on ANY-

from injustice, no matter how distant they make themselves feel from it! Hurray for those who "bitch," and hats off to such great bitches of our times as Cesar Chavez, Bella Abzug, and Nikki Giovanni, whose pickets, resolutions, and poetry in their beautiful bitchiness has done more good for the oppressed peoples of this earth than the total number of softball games ever played.

In conclusion it's too bad a few WHITES can't face reality. It seems to me that considering the nature of such GAMES as softball, where someone is either out or safe depending largely on where the umpire is positioned, it would be better for everybody involved to divert their energies to some more constructive pursuits. Like trying to sort out those "very mixed feelings" you now have. And that includes the hordes of gawking fans who jam the hillsides to claim a ringside seat for the inevitable flare-up.

Yes, Bill, the truth WILL have to be faced! By big men and little boys alike.

dent seems unable to operate without a large staff. "We must no longer have closed government; we must no longer have staff people who shield the President from the people," he urged. Goldberg would rather have more responsible Cabinet officers who could carry out the business of government.

Also, he said, "We will surely have to reorganize the electoral system." We should imitate the British system, he suggested, and run elections "on the basis of the capacity of the individual. Let's take the money out of politics."

"We have not seen the end of it," he warned, saying that this scandal is no occasion for political hay. "No American should take pleasure in the Watergate results," he asserted. We should face the issue, rather, with a "real determination that this should not happen again."

Mr. Goldberg's experience in the fields of both law and federal government ranges from his past positions of U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and Secretary of Labor to his current law practice in Washington, D.C. and post as University Professor of Law and Diplomacy at American University. Further events in the "Nature of Justice in America" series will deal with justice and poetry, history, philosophy, women and blacks as well as topics of special weekly films.

Geneva Semester offered by KSU to all undergraduates

Four national organizations have joined Kent State University in the further development of the Geneva Semester on the United Nations System, a unique overseas academic program created by KSU's Center for International and Comparative Programs.

The Geneva Semester, which began as a pilot program in January 1973, will begin its second term on September 17 and run through fall and winter quarters, ending on February 1, 1974. It studies the workings of the international system and the conditions required for the advancement of world stability and peace.

The program is open to qualified undergraduate students, regardless of major, in colleges and universities in the United States. After a 4-week preliminary session divided between Washington, D.C. and New York City, the students will spend most of the remaining time in Geneva, Switzerland, the European headquarters of the United Nations.

English is the language of instruction and courses are taught by KSU faculty and adjunct professors from Swiss universities. As many as 32 KSU quarter hours may be earned.

Eater of Democrats honored

Who is Alfred E. Packard? On Wednesday, May 26, an afternoon of activities sponsored by LCB will be held in honor of this historic character. Starting at noon, with a dance in front of Lowry Center, the fun really begins to roll with Contest Time, featuring the all-male Gross Fashion Show. So check out the categories, and pick your specialties, guys.

A variety of coed contests which follow will include the Gurn competition, based on the ability of the individual to con-tort his (or her) face without using the hands to manipulate it.

After the judging of the chalk drawing contest (on the sidewalk) and the body-painting competition (females only), a chicken barbeque will be held on the Lowry Center patio, with music by Tommy and Joel. Another dance will follow in the evening.

'Bonnie & Clyde' proceeds to aid Vietnamese

By Bruce Arnold and Martha Boland

"We have today concluded an agreement to end the war and bring peace with honor in Vietnam and in Southeast Asia," Nixon was saying in January, an American flag pin planted self-consciously in his lapel. "...To all of you who are listening, the American People. Your steadfastness in supporting our insistence on peace with honor has made peace with honor possible..."

Peace with honor? Is it peace at all, Mr. President? With Cambodia being bombed, and truce violations on both sides, can we really call it a peace? Is there peace in the hearts of the 200,000 prisoners still resting in Saigon jails, or the 4,000,000 refugees, or the families of the thousands of American and Vietnamese who died for the cause of some elusive, illusory "honor"? The 6,000,000 dead, wounded, and homeless witness to our lack of "honor." Here in our own country, along with the triumphant return of our POW heroes, we can see the tragic consequences of jobless veterans, heroin addiction, and tens of thousands of mutilated or crippled veterans: a tragic waste of human resources.

Despite his vaunted withdrawal of the troops, Nixon has carefully maintained a strategic hammerlock on Indochina. This year, the U.S. government is planning to give South Vietnam $3.2 billion, with an additional $1.6 billion slated for next year. In addition to this funneling of money to South Vietnam, there is a massive influx of aid in the form of government advisors and technicians in every branch of Thieu's armed forces and civil administration. Much can be done with $3.2 billion, but is it being used for hospitals, orphanages, and other repair work? According to AMERICAN REPORT, 80% of this money will go to the armed forces. Much of the remaining 20% will support the large police-prison structure. The only way Thieu can maintain these large scale programs against those who will not forthrightly support his regime is by continued American support.

The primary program is persecution of political prisoners. These 200,000 victims of all ages, children to grandparents, have been imprisoned for little or no reason, tortured, beaten, placed in cages so small that they can no longer stand upright, and subjected to other inhuman treatment of a sort which induces a large number to attempt suicide.

One form of torture is described in AMERICAN REPORT by Andre Menras, one of the French school teachers recently released from Thieu's prisons: "...the prisoner is stripped naked and made to sit in a chair with a hole in the seat. A lighted oil lamp--making it possible to raise and lower the flame--is placed underneath the chair. If the prisoner refuses to talk the flame is raised higher and higher until it burns the anus. Some 75% of the prisoners tortured in this manner do not survive." These Prisoners are not just peasants or Viet Cong, but are also Buddhist monks, Catholic conscientious objectors, and members of well-known Saigon families. In order to discredit their influential testimony, Thieu is changing their sentences to those of common criminals, public to the spending the U.S. government is doing. Since 1965, AFSC has provided assistance to the Vietnamese people: Penicillin to the sick and injured; surgical supplies to hospitals in North Vietnam; Artificial limbs to the maimed; and economic aid to the needy so they can continue their medical attention after their return home. In the States they have consistently opposed the U.S. role in the war, and have undertaken an education project to inform Americans of the human cost of the Indochinese conflict.

AFSC is now conducting their Spring Campaign for the North/South Vietnam Fund, 2/3 of which will go directly to their Vietnamese programs, and 1/3 for peace education on the home front. We ask you to participate in this fund-raising campaign. The Wooster People's Party, in conjunction with LCB, is sponsoring a benefit movie this Friday. All proceeds will go to the North/South Vietnam Fund. The movie, BONNIE AND CLYDE, will be shown at 7:00 and 9:30 in Mateer Auditorium for 50¢. If you cannot go to the movie, or wish to make a further donation, send a check, payable to AFSC North/South Vietnam Fund, to box 3181, College of Wooster. These donations are tax deductible. "We, the people, will give aid. It won't be billions, but it will be genuine, and it will mean something good politically and morally and spiritually for Americans to volunteer their money."--Carl Oglesby thus keeping them in prison for longer periods and enabling him to execute them at will. This also allows him to circumvent the peace treaty conditions that a solution to the problem of civilian detainment must be found within 90 days of the treaty's effective date.

This is how U.S. government funds are being used: military technology, political prisons, police repression. "To us, the war is over, and that's a good thing. But there is no way to forget Vietnam. We will carry its stain for the rest of our lives." --(Pete Hamill.) Government money pumped into Vietnam is more than guilt money, it is blood money. Council capsule

In its meeting Wednesday, May 10, Campus Council reviewed the recommendations of the Budget Committee and finalized budget allocations for next year. Funds for "operating expenses" were granted to the "smaller" student organizations, which will have to make requests for specific program allocations to SGA rather than to Council. An itemization of the final allocations may be found in the box entitled "Campus Council Budget Allocations."

Council met again Tuesday, May 16, to consider the following issues:

Council's original 1972-73 allocations were questioned by Mike Tanner, who made a presentation on behalf of the Black Student Association (BSA). BSA, Tanner claimed, had requested $6000 but received an allocation of only $1500.

Council member Ken Hoover replied that Council had decided to give SGA the responsibility of allocating program budgets. SGA President John Kneen added that this meant that BSA would have to come to SGA with specific projects during the year as the SGA budget is tight and will not allow longterm funding.

Bob Newman moved that Council cut $500 from the Scot's Key grant and add this amount to the BSA budget. The motion was defeated 7-2. Hoover expressed concern that other groups would start coming to CC for program funds and suggested that perhaps the money should be given to SGA instead. Newman then introduced a motion to that effect.

Doris Coster stated that the Scot's Key is a document which the Administration has the legal responsibility of giving to every student. After some discussion of possible means of cutting production costs and finding other fund sources, the motion was passed 5-3, reducing the Scot's Key allocation to $1700.

The final ISC evaluation of section initiations was presented by Council Chairman Ron Wilcox. Although the report required no action from Council, a motion sponsored by Dave Miraldi and passed 5-2 urged "the ISC implementation of the recommendations" in the report.

ISC president Jim Davis' recommendations in the report were: the setting up of "more explicit guidelines" for next year; "more extensive orientations for the observer teams"; the promotion of a better understanding of the "specific purpose" of each section's initiation procedures among actives and pledges; encouraging the sections to each "continually reevaluate its initiation procedure"; and the discussion of the "campus-wide and intersection ramifications" of initiation week.

There are several reasons for the recommendation of the Traffic Commission. Wayne Avenue is one of the busiest east-west roads in Wooster, and will become even more congested when the city improves Wayne Street west of Bever Street in the near future.

Since fall quarter, there have been two accidents when students were pulling out of the college parking lots on Wayne Avenue. In both cases the students were cited for failing to yield the right-of-way even though parked cars blocked the driver's vision.

Wayne Avenue is just barely wide enough for a parking lane on that stretch. Captain Pearce said the curve in the road near Bever Street creates an illusion the street is narrower than it really is, and cars travel closer to the center of Wayne to avoid any parked cars.

Parking east of Beall on Wayne will still be permitted. The road is wider there, and two cars can pass easily.

Sherman said the College gave the city some money to pave a parking lane when the Bever-Beall stretch of Wayne was resurfaced, but the strip is not wide enough to accommodate modern cars. Pearce added the money given by the College was probably just a normal property assessment any landowner would pay when a road next to his property is improved. The city maintains control of the street, and the College cannot regulate parking on it.

Pearce added effects of the recommendation will have to be watched, and it may be subject to review and change. He agrees with Sherman that the ban will cause student parking problems, but maintains the College should provide enough off street parking for students.

Wesleyan snatches OAC title in Men's tennis

by Norm Schoenfeld

This past weekend Wooster played host to 13 other schools in the Ohio Athletic Conference Tennis Tournament. Ohio Wesleyan University dominated the tournament with 34 points. Second place was a closely fought battle between the Wooster Scots and the Kenyon Lords with the Lords coming out on top with a 2-1/2 point lead over Wooster.

At first singles, Wooster's Rick Ellsworth defeated Jonto from Capital, 6-2, 6-0, but lost in the second round to Jim Lathrop from Muskingum, 6-1, 6-1. Lathrop made it to the finals and defeated Ted Fritsch of Denison, 6-3, 6-1 to win the first singles.

At the second singles spot, Seth Taylor playing for Wooster easily defeated Lohnes of Capital 6-0, 6-1. He then went on to defeat Powell from Wittenberg 7-5, 0-6; 6-1. In the semi-finals, Taylor was up against a tough Mark Lowery from Kenyon. Lowery won in one of the toughest matches of the tournament, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5. Lowery was then defeated by Herb Feldman of Ohio Wesleyan, 6-3, 6-1.

Captain Jim Nelson, playing third singles for Wooster, made an excellent showing. Nelson had a bye the first round and then defeated High from Baldwin-Wallace 6-0, 6-2. In the semi-finals, Nelson again easily defeated his opponent. He beat Ruskin from Marietta 6-0, 6-1. In the finals, Doug Sheffield from Ohio Wesleyan proved to be too strong and defeated Nelson in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

At fourth singles, freshman Reid Haddick had a good showing. In the opening round he defeated Rosile from Heidelberg, 6-1, 6-0. Reid then went on to beat Hyde from Marietta, 6-3, 6-1. In the semi-finals Jeff Feldman from Ohio Wesleyan defeated Haddick 6-1, 6-3. Feldman then went on to win the fourth singles by defeating Mark Young of Oberlin 6-3, 6-4.

Another freshman, Jim Rakestraw, playing fifth singles, had a great weekend. The young Woosterite easily defeated Kieffer of Wittenberg 6-0, 6-2. He then had little trouble beating Kontras of Otterbein 6-1, 6-2. In the semi-finals, Rakestraw was up against his only loss this season, Pennington of Kenyon. It turned out to be a rough match, both verbally and physically. Rakestraw came out on top defeating Pennington, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

He then went to the finals where he was soundly beaten by George Saunders of Ohio Wesleyan, 6-1, 6-1.

At sixth singles Worford got a bye the first round and then trounced Mullett from Mount Union 6-1, 6-0. He then met Paul Kaliner from Ohio Wesleyan who defeated the Scot 6-2, 6-3. Kaliner went on to the finals to get beaten by Ed Gentzler of Kenyon, 6-2, 6-0.

At first doubles Rick Massie and Herb Feldman from Ohio Wesleyan teamed up to beat Wooster's Rick Ellsworth and Seth Taylor 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

dick playing second doubles lost in the first round but went on to win the consolation round. At third doubles, defending champions Mark Worford and Jim Nelson from Wooster were defeated by Rothschild and Pennington from Kenyon 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Wooster placed third overall and Coach Van Wie was very pleased with the results. The Scots will finish their dual meet season with two away matches at Otterbein and Kenyon, and a home match against Ohio Wesleyan.

Trackmen and season with win; finish last in Ohio Conference

By Paul Cope

The track team's picture has been bleak in the past weeks. Two meets have been cancelled because of rain, two lost, and two more upcoming meets cancelled.

Last Saturday, the Scot's finished last in the OAC championships as the team's bright spot, Forrest Merten, the only athlete in the conference to have qualified for the championships in the 440, 880, and mile runs, flicked out like a light when he pulled a muscle.

On May 2, Otterbein and Oberlin Colleges defeated Wooster.

Merten won a superb mile run in 4:22, but lost the first 880 yard run of his college career, running a swift 1:56. Wittenberg downed Wooster on May 5, but not until after the Scots had dominated the distance events. Rick Day won the mile run in 4:25.6 and the 3 mile run in 15:22.4. Doug Murphy followed Day closely in both races to pick up a pair of second places for the losing cause. Merten won the 440 yard dash in 50.5 and then anchored the mile relay team to victory with a sparkling 49.9 quarter mile. The host Tigers did manage to win the 880 yard run, though.

On Saturday, May 12, Rick Day ran a 4:20.3 mile in the Conference Championships and only missed the Wooster school outdoor record by one and a half seconds. The time, however, failed to bring a place win. Doug Murphy was only seconds behind Day with a 4:23.7 mile. Both are freshmen and can be expected to be two of the finest runners in the conference in the future. The Scots closed their season on Wednesday at home with a victory over Hiram.

Lose last 3 OAC games

Scot baseballers drop bid for Ohio Conference

By John McElwain

The Scot baseballers saw their OAC title hopes flattened last week as they were defeated in each of their last three conference outings. Wednesday they fell to Heidelberg 5-2 at home and were shut out twice at Baldwin-Wallace Saturday 4-0 and 2-0, to nail the lid on all championship aspirations. The three defeats reduced a 7-2 division leading record to a third place 7-5 behind B-W (7-4) and Mt. Union (5-3).

While an enthusiastic group of Wooster fans braved the cold and rain at Berea Saturday, the Scots gave them little to cheer about. Collecting only 2 hits in each ball game, the "offense" who has offended few pitchers this season (.195 team average) advanced only one man as far as third base all day. Meanwhile B-W cashed in big on three Wooster errors for 5 of their 6 runs. Coach Roger Welsh employed 4 pitchers in the twin-bill, Grant Relic and Doug Dye in the first game and Bill Henley and Mike Patterson in the second. All four worked effectively but Relic and Henley the starters received undeserved losses.

As if these three losses weren't enough, Monday the Scots were served another piece of humble pie. Lowly Ohio Dominican embarrassed the locals 6-4 in front of a home crowd taking advantage of walks, 3 hit batsmen and a number of timely hits issued by the Scots pitchers. This loss, last in a string of six, leaves the hometown record at a disappointing 12-10 overall.

With eight games yet on tap the Scots still have hopes of achieving a respectable record, but first they must try to forget the bitter taste of last weeks unraveling.

In the national college baseball ratings released last week, Wooster received honorable mention as being among the nation's top teams.

Welshhans wins top honors

Linksmen top OAC tournament by 15 strokes

by Forrest Fessler

For the past three years it has been the goal of Coach Bob Nye, Paul Abbey, Scott Bair, and Gary Welshhans to win the Ohio Conference championship. Two years ago the Scots were edged out by Ohio Wesleyan by one shot. Last year the Scots handed OWU an 11 shot lead after the front 18 and could only make up eight shots on the back 18. This year was a different story.

The Scots knew they had the strongest team that they had ever taken to the tournament. And they knew they had beaten previously this year all of the contenders in one of their six tournament victories. This year was the last chance for Abbey, Bair, and Welshhans and the three seniors were quietly "keyed up" for the competition. The Scots left for Wittenberg, the site of this year's championship, on Thursday at noon. At 2 p.m. the Scots played Ohio State's B team. When the team entered their motel room in Springfield that night they had defeated Ohio State and were getting mentally ready for their early tee times the following day. John Kneen and Steve Bamberger were the first to tee-off at 7:37 a.m. The temperature was a crisp 38 degrees. Mike McKeon and Scott Bair teed-off at 8:07 and the and Gary Welshhans played their first hole the temperature was 34 degrees and the 15-20 m.p.h. winds were still persisting. After the first 18 holes of the 36-hole tournament the Scots were tied for first place with host Wittenberg at 396 (best five of six total). OWU and Otterbein were tied for second, 12 shots back at 408. Welshhans led the teams with a superb 76, followed by Abbey's 77 and Bair's 80. Underclassmen McKeon, Bamberger, and Kneen carded 82, 81, 82 respectively.

perior competitive attitude he was able to achieve a goal he set for himself last fall. En route to his personal victory Welshhans had to make a tricky seven-foot down-hill putt on his 35th hole and get up and down from 50 feet on the last green. Welshhan's effort was closely followed by Scott Bair who finished third medalist at 156, 80-76. All in all, five of the Scots placed in the top ten. The OAC victory was the Scots' seventh tournament win in eight outings, adding to their wins in the Brookside Invitational, the Ohio Wesleyan Invitational, the L.C. Boles Invitational, the Ashland Invitational, the Wooster Invitational, and the GLCA Championship. With the victory in the OAC it seems assured that the Scots will play in the NCAA tournament for their fourth time in four years.

Women's tennis team defeats Central State

The Scot women's tennis team met their last challengers Tuesday afternoon on the home courts. The Scotties handed Central State a 5-0 defeat.

All singles players won easily. Mary Randall handed State's Sonja Nutter 6-1, 6-1 sets. Denise Britt fell to Scottie Carol Hahn, who won 6-1, 6-1. Debbie Falls beat Michele Newcomb 6-3, 6-4 on the third court.

The visiting squad combined singles players to meet Wooster's doubles squads. This practice is not common in women's tennis, but Coach Sexton wanted a practice session in preparation for the upcoming state tournament. The first doubles team of Diana Westcott and Judy Donaldson, and the second doules team of Pat Vittum and Cindy Guyer defeated their opponents.

Saturday's tri-match with Denison and Wittenberg had a disappointing outcome. Wooster lost to Denison 2-3, and lost to Wittenberg by a 1-4 score. Only Carol Hahn could pull out a Scot win against Wittenberg. Mary Randall lost her first match of the season to her host opponent, Barb Brundagel.

Wooster's first doubles team, and Mary Randall recovered from earlier defeats to beat their Denison opponents.

Coach Sexton hopes her team will peak for the state tournament, held at Ohio State on May 18, 19, and 20. The Scotties have the skill to improve their last year's fourth place standing. They stand 6-4 for the season.

Wittenberg routs Woo laxmen

by Bob Pfouts

Last Saturday, on the Wittenberg University campus, the College of Wooster Lacrosse team dazzled the parents' weekend fans for a fired-up fourteen minutes of play before reverting back to their previous form of six straight losses. Wittenberg utilized an extremely aggressive, hustling defense coupled with a somewhat passive attitude on the part of the Scots to dominate the game by a score of 12-2.

Wooster scored first and last in the game but suffered through a torturous dry spell in between. Sophomore middle and un-official "quarterback" Jamie Thomas gave the Scots their early and short lead with an unassisted goal after a darting move around his man. But before freshman attackman Beau MacCaffray scored in the fourth quarter with an assist from junior short-sticker George Fryburg, the Scots watched Wittenberg rule both ends and the middle of the field to a tune of sixty-seven shots resulting in twelve scores while limiting Wooster to seventeen shots.

Fighting Scot Coach Pat O'Brien mentioned the deficiencies his charges showed in basic strategic patterns of the game. "We had trouble clearing and riding (that is, getting the ball out of one's own defensive end into the offensive zone and likewise, preventing one's opponent from doing so) and thus spent a lot of time on defense

As a result," The Irishman also noted that if weaknesses are found in the fundamental skills of catching and throwing, all other aspects of the game predicted by these two fundamentals in turn suffer. The Scots repeatedly worked the ball offensively into position for a shot, only to lose it on a mishandled pass or to a hustling Tiger defender. O'Brien reinforced this writer's feeling that the Scots lacked an aggressive, killer instinct by noting that Wooster had a considerable advantage of 4 more minutes of extra-man situations from Wittenberg penalties and yet failed to capitalize on these breaks at any time. The Fighting Scot Laxmen will have played (and hopefully defeated) the Columbus Lacrosse Club by the time of this reading, but can be seen in action tomorrow, Saturday, at Carl Dale Memorial Field against the Battling Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan.

Additional lax comments: All is not lost for the season; the junior varsity picked up the first win of the season last week by edging the j.v.'s from Ashland College 4-3. Finding the goal for the Scot j.v.'s were juniors Dave Strauch, his second of the year, and Marty Lattman, his third marker, and freshmen Charles Lundberg, with his third; and Jim Gerard, hitting for his first. The j.v.'s ended their season with a record of 1 win and four losses.

The OAC victory was the Scots' seventh tournament win in eight outings, adding to their wins in the Brookside Invitational, the Ohio Wesleyan Invitational, the L.C. Boles Invitational, the Ashland Invitational, the Wooster Invitational, and the GLCA Championship.

With the victory in the OAC it seems assured that the Scots will play in the NCAA tournament for their fourth time in four years.
