

Fire Woman

by Brian Griffitt

Your flames entice me
Your stare binds me
While I watch you burning slow
I can feel my heart begin to glow
But still your fire is distant and faint
Your cold flames I dare not to taint
I wish it was I that was tamed
Fire Woman you have wrapped me in your flames
Yet despite your fire burning bright
I am yet to bathe in your glowing light
Oh my fire woman burning bright
I will one day find you and pierce this wretched night
But you must keep safe your sacred light
For the day will come when we both will burn through the night
