

University of Dayton
eCommons

Conference: The Social Practice of Human Rights

SPHR 2019: Going Against the Grain

Oct 2nd, 11:30 AM - 1:00 PM

Central America, Human Rights, and Displacement

Nelson Portillo
Boston College

Jeanne Ridders
Cristosal, Cristosal, El Salvador and Honduras

Amelia Frank-Vitale
University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Abby Wheatley
Arizona State University, abbycwheatley@gmail.com

Miranda Cady Hallett
University of Dayton, mhallett1@udayton.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://ecommons.udayton.edu/human_rights

Portillo, Nelson; Ridders, Jeanne; Frank-Vitale, Amelia; Wheatley, Abby; and Hallett, Miranda Cady, "Central America, Human Rights, and Displacement" (2019). Conference: The Social Practice of Human Rights. 15. https://ecommons.udayton.edu/human_rights/2019/events/15

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by the Human Rights Center at eCommons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Conference: The Social Practice of Human Rights by an authorized administrator of eCommons. For more information, please contact frice1@udayton.edu, mschlangen1@udayton.edu.

Going Against the Grain

University of Dayton Human Rights Center
Social Practice of Human Rights Conference, Oct. 1-4, 2019

Central America, Human Rights, and Displacement

Presented by:

Nelson Portillo, Boston College

Nina Lakhani, The Guardian

Jeanne Ridders, Cristosal, Cristosal, El Salvador and Honduras

Amparo Marroquin Perducci, Universidad José Simeón Cañas

Miranda Cady Hallett, University of Dayton

Amelia Frank-Vitale, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Session: Human Rights in Central America

Abstract:

While migration and displacement are not new phenomena in the region, parts of Central America are experiencing a crisis of displacement. This crisis has emerged due to the compounding effects of multiple factors: environmental degradation and climate change, economic upheavals caused by neoliberal reforms, political instability (especially in Honduras and Nicaragua), and violence stemming from corruption and organized crime. With a particular focus on factors related to violence and the deterioration of the rule of law, participants in this round table will describe and discuss the roots of displacement, the methodological and political challenges in documenting these migratory flows, and the risks and abuses faced by peoples in movement. Finally, the panelists will dialogue about strategies to support the empowerment of migrants, mobilize critical humanitarian aid, combat xenophobia and dehumanization, and compel states in the hemisphere to respect the rights of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and asylum seekers. Participants in this panel have direct experience at the heart of this crisis, ranging from academic research and in-depth journalism to direct services, advocacy and activism.