"Patterns for the future" begin the campaign

By JOSEPH F. PIRRO

Last Saturday, Sept. 28th the "Patterns for the Future" campaign was officially started. All Alumni volunteers met in Wismer Hall for a half day of planning and training, as the biggest fund raiser in Ursinus' history got under way. This college is going places.

President Richard P. Richter began last Saturday's meeting with a few comments and a welcome to a lot of familiar faces. Richter began with a question, "How can we shift hands from our generation to the next?" The answer is "Patterns for the Future."

The goal is 20 million dollars over the next four years. Quite an ambitious goal one might say. Well it is, but there is great confidence about its attainment.

Originally the stated amount was 10 million dollars, then 12 million, but $20,000,000 was the final decision. Of course, there was much talk about the possibility of being able to announce this figure without really knowing where the money was going to come from. There have been safer campaigns in the past, the greatest amount ever sought before this program was 5.8 million. So Ursinus is being bold, but it is time for it.

President Richter said, "We can have no greater hope than commitment." The biggest goal is to get everyone to that point. Richter added that Ursinus is "an institution that must carry a generation forth." Fund raising is for a good cause, so it is fun for these alumni.

Thomas G. Davis '51, the alumni major gifts committee chairman, handled the rest of the campaign introduction. Davis' major point was that the campaign is not being launched for survival, but rather taking off from a position of strength. Ursinus' strengths could occupy the remainder of this article and they develop around the quality of the students, faculty and endowment funds. Applications to Ursinus are constantly rising each year, which is contrary to national trends. SAT scores are now in the top 10 percent of the country. Our faculty to student ratio allows both parties to deal with problems and inspirations. In addition, Ursinus' endowment is currently at 21 million dollars, which figures out to $18,991 per student. As Davis said, "All of these strengths are guiding Ursinus to the upper tree of liberal arts colleges."

The money raised in the campaign will be used mostly for scholarships and faculty development. This is rare because 80 percent of the money is going right back to people rather than into brick houses. Reports show that about $6,000,000 have come in already, including $500,000 for renovations from the Mussers. There is a new organ for Bomberger Hall on the way and plans for funded chairs in music, Pennsylvania German studies, chemistry and political science.

The fund raiser will also involve corporations this time around. For Dr. Davis, "the fun comes from seeing a challenge, meeting it, and having success." Davis is excited because he is interested in preparing students to be successful in an ever changing world.

All people in attendance last Saturday are needed for this drive, in addition to the 39 percent of the alumni who regularly donate. A major gift to the college is considered $10,000 in four years. The present goal is to identify people associated with Ursinus College who have the capacity to meet this request. The strength of the college must be stressed as well as communicating the commitment behind this project. Much personal time is going to be demanded, and perhaps a change in the order of giving priorities on the part of alumni if the $20,000,000 mark is to become reality.

Rendell enforces the death penalty

Ed Rendell quite openly in favor of the Death Penalty.

By JONATHAN R. VERLIN

Edward G. Rendell, serving his second term as Philadelphia's district attorney, brilliantly advocated support for the death penalty's use and effect in Pennsylvania in Wismer Auditorium on Sept. 30.

When the United States Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of capital punishment, Rendell and his administration were determined to author a death penalty bill that would pass in the Pennsylvania legislature and would seek to punish the "ultimate criminals" for the "ultimate crime." In order to make the death penalty statute as equitable as possible, Rendell compiled laws from other jurisdictions in hopes of making Pennsylvania's the most liberal in the United States, in terms of procedure and effect.

The death penalty is only available in Pennsylvania for offenders who have committed the crime of first degree murder: intentional killing. However, in order for a judge to even consider the death penalty as a possible means of punishment, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania must certify to the court that the case is a capital one. Then the lengthy process of hearings and appellate procedures commence.

During the voir dire (jury selection process), the judge must "death qualify" each juror, so that all biases pertaining to the defendant(s) and/or to the death penalty itself are made known. During the trial phase, the commonwealth must prove that one or more of 11 aggravating circumstances took place during the time of the murder (i.e. torture, prior history of the defendant, reckless endangerment of other lives...) The defendant's counsel will attempt to establish that one or more of seven mitigating circumstances were present at the commission of the murder; for instance, the age of the defendant. After all of the arguments on behalf of the state and defense have been heard, the jury will weigh all of the aggravating circumstances with the mitigating ones. The death penalty can only be employed if all 12 jurors deem it just and necessary, or else, the defendant will receive a life imprisonment sentence.

The defendant has 10 days in which to file a post verdict motion directly to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court if he/she feels that the judge's (or jury's) verdict or sentence was unfair. If appellate rights are not activated within that 10 day period, the defendant loses these rights, as well as the right to appeal. If all appeals have been denied or waived, a death warrant will be forwarded to the governor, who holds the final power to return the death penalty or commute to a life sentence. If he signs the warrant, a date will be set aside for termination.

There are many checks and balances that are built-in to the system; from pre-trial motions, to the governor's office. Each provision enables the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to be just as equitable towards society as it is towards the defendant. It is not however a "panacea" to solve all crime problems. Rather, it is a very important part of our judicial system: structuring a "total" response to limit and deter the "ultimate punishment for the ultimate criminal."

Ursinus: A good buy

By JEAN MARIE KISS

When you tell someone that you attend Ursinus College, does he ask you to repeat yourself — perhaps three or four times? Will he say, "Collegeville? Did you invent that name?" According to the New York Times book, "The Best Buys in College Education, Ursinus is one of more than 200 colleges and universities out of the 1,775 schools in the nation which 'offers a high quality education at a reasonable cost.'

On Tuesday, Oct. 1, this book was released to the public. Already Ursinus is making plans for the use of this publicity. The one and one-half page report will be reprinted in the parents' newsletter to allow parents the realization that we did make the right choice. Ursinus feels that this will greatly benefit the recruiting of prospective

Perhaps you are wondering why Ursinus was given this honor? Last year the New York Times contacted the school and asked basic questions about its educational benefits and cost. Twenty anonymous students were then chosen to fill out a questionnaire about their school. The responses were tabulated, and the Times came to the decision that Ursinus was a great buy in college education. It's about time! DID YOU KNOW THAT AT URSINUS COLLEGE...?

1. Students are generally upper-middle class and conservative.
2. The cleaning service keeps everything here "sparkling clean."
3. We "eat like royalty" compared with other schools.
4. The campus is picture perfect.
5. Students work closely with their professors.
6. There is some isolation between the men and women on campus.
7. The women's field hockey team has gone undefeated 11 times.
8. Fraternities and sororities given open parties to non-Greeks.
9. Partying is strictly for Friday and Saturday.
10. The students must work for their education — yet "the toil pays off."

Your fellow classmates have contributed these new and interesting facts to this report.

The Grizzly was founded in 1978, replacing the previous campus newspaper, The Ursinus Weekly. It is published by students ten weeks each semester. The Grizzly is edited entirely by students and the views expressed in the paper are not necessarily those held by the administration, faculty, or a consensus of the student body. The staff of The Grizzly invites opinions from the college community and will publish them as time and space permit.

Editorial

How about a little help from some friends?

It is often very difficult for the staff of a newspaper such as The Grizzly to get a clear picture of 'reader satisfaction' with the publication. We often wonder, "Are we doing the best job we can?" or, "Are the students reading our paper?" This is a most uncomfortable feeling and I think it stems from our lack of personnel — namely writers.

This school is loaded with intelligent people, many of whom I am sure are talented writers. The Grizzly should be a publication consisting of writings from all walks of the college community. This paper cannot be limited to articles written by five staff members and a handful of up and coming journalists. But unfortunately this is what is happening.

At the beginning of the semester we had 33 freshmen sign up to work on The Grizzly. At the last meeting, there was less than five. In last weeks paper, we printed a wonderful article by one "Sluggo" which discussed the disproportionate funding in the athletic departments. I thought for sure we'd get a rebuttal from a proud football player or a strong-willed weightlifter. Not a word. And what about Limerick? Due to my lack of time and sporadic bouts with procrastination, nothing has been written on a nuclear power plant less than five miles from the campus that has just started production of nuclear energy. Isn't anyone interested in this thing? I could definitely use some help.

We at The Grizzly are proud of our work, but know the paper could be better. But it isn't going to get any better if we don't start getting some student support. Consider our editor Joe Pirro's schedule. Last week I counted him for over 30 hours devoted just to The Grizzly. That includes driving back and forth to Phoenixville a minimum of four times, laying out the paper for five hours on Thursday afternoon, collecting all the articles from the writers and giving them next weeks assignments, plus a hell of a lot more. This isn't a sob story — that's the job of the editor and he knows it. But should he also be forced to write two articles also — just because there is no one else to do them? There has to be a few football players disappointed that they have no field to play on. Let's get the opinion of someone who knows what it feels like to have to wait for the new fields to be ready for action!

And how about field hockey? We have one of the best teams in the country. How do the girls feel about their success? What's practice like? Is the coach a real slave-driver? These things make interesting stories. The scores of the games are essential to have in print but we need more.

Two weeks ago we received a letter concerning The Roving Reporter. The editor's reply was simple: Give us a petition with one hundred signatures and we'll bring it back. Without any petition as of yet, are we to assume that the students would rather not have this feature?

The staff of The Grizzly is determined to make this paper something to be proud of. But we need help. Anyone who is interested should attend a meeting any Monday night at 7 p.m. on the second floor of the student union. Thank you for all the support we have received thus far. Keep it coming!

Alpha Sigma Nu's pride comes through!

Dear Editor:

Alpha Sigma Nu is a unique sorority. Not only do they have fun and cultivate friendships, but they give themselves to service. The entire campus can learn from this determined group. Last year Alpha Sig was almost disbanded by the college because of its small number. This sisterhood, however, did not give up. They never considered defeat and all words and phrases such as quit, cannot, unable, impossible, out of the question, improbable, failure, unworkable, and hopeless were erased from their vocabulary. Arming themselves with persistence and a strong belief in the ideals of the sorority, they endured.

This year Alpha Sig has 17 pledges — all sisters and yet each pledge different from each. Alpha Sig encourages its pledges to grow — not into any set mold — but to be themselves. Pledging does not consist of breaking down its pledges but building them up in strength and in character while establishing friendships, giving to service, and having fun.

It's about time Alpha Sig received the recognition it deserves. Look out, Ursinus, for the "giving" sorority — Alpha Sig gives to friendship, gives to service, and gives great parties!

A proud pledge

Homecoming 1957: Not so different from now

By CHERYL ANN LAWRENCE
Homecoming is upon the college once again. The following article was taken from the Ursinus Weekly on Monday, Oct. 21, 1957. The article describes the Homecoming events during that time: the football game, the alumni activities, the sororities and fraternities, the luncheons and the dinner-dances. Read on, you'll be surprised at how little some things change.

from Ursinus.
Due to bad weather the pep rally on Friday night was moved from behind the new girls' dorms, where a huge woodpile for a bonfire had been placed by the freshman men, into the Thompson-Gay Gymnasium. The traditional arrival of Dean Pettit and Dean Pancoast in a well preserved automobile dating from the 1920's was thus postponed. But Bill Dillio, our beloved "Amigo" gave an inspiring speech concerning the game and the social life on campus. Kurt Coull, the football team's new line coach, then gave a short talk to the many onlookers.

Even though the weather was threatening, the junior girls treated the frosh on Saturday morning to their traditional breakfast.

The cheerleaders then assembled at Shreiner Hall to begin their trek for the purpose of choosing the best dormitory decorations. Only three dormitories participated this year. Shreiner Hall won by exhibiting a large bear stomping on the prostrate body of a Wilkes football player. Hobson and 724 had a washing machine washing out a Wilkes player and a guillotine beheading a Colonel's player respectively.

Prior to the game many of the sororities held their annual luncheons at different eating establishments in and around Collegeville. A Cub and Key Society banquet for all old and new members was given at the Perkiomen Bridge Hotel.

CUSTOMS OVER

The freshmen once again and for the last time, formed a pathway through which the football team entered the field. The frosh also formed the big U in the stands. At halftime the members of the class of 1951 were happy to hear that customs had been called off. Only dinks and nametags will be worn.

At halftime the Ursinus College Band, Majorettes and Color Guard put on an exhibition. The theme was the evolution of the record player. The three formations consisted of the old Edison type machine, a modern juke box and an ultra modern hi-fi set.

FRATERNITY QUEENS

Also parading at halftime were the fraternity queens. The winner, who was announced at the Varsity Club dance was Gayle Livingstone, representing Beta Sig Lambda Fraternity. Other fraternity queens were: Joanie Martin, Zeta Chi; Marlene White, Delta Pi Sigma; Barbara DeGeorge, Alpha Phi Epsilon; Jane Mowry, Alpha Phi Omega; Barbara McClure, Delta Mu Sigma, and Jackie Robbins, Sigma Rho Lambda.

Following the game the fraternities held dinner parties. A Loyalty Fund Dinner was held for the chairmen and vice chairman of previous classes.

FAMOUS RECEIVES TROPHY

The Kenneth C. Walker memorial trophy, presented by Zeta Chi Fraternity and friends, was awarded to Robert Famous, Ursinus' triple threat star. Although Bob did not have much opportunity to show all his prowess, he was able to get off many excellent kicks, and pick up good ground on a number of fine runs.

VARSITY CLUB DANCE

The new girls dormitory was opened for inspection by the old grads and students alike. Guided tours were sent through Stauffer, Paisley and Beardwood. The reception hall in Paisley was completed a few days ago in time for the inspection by many visitors.

The highlight of the day was the Varsity Club's Homecoming Dance, held in the Thompson Gay Gymnasium. Music was supplied by the fine combo of West Townsend. Highlight the evening was the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, Gayle Livingston, by the president of the Varsity Club, Bill Rogers, and the presentation of flowers to her by the fraternity she represented, Beta Sigma Lambda.

'57 Homecoming Bring Grads Back to Ursinus Gayle Livingston '57 Queen; Walker Trophy to Famous

Even the flu threat couldn't keep Ursinus Alumni from attending their traditional "Homecoming." Ursinus was once again host to old grads as they enjoyed a day of reunions, dinner parties and dancing. Only Wilkes College and the poor weather dulled the Homecoming affair. The Colonels from the coal-region scored a stunning 39-0 victory over the flu-ridden eleven

Alumni search for success: Holly Hayer

By LIZ YOUNG

Holly Hayer, a graduate in the Class of '85, has recently entered the business world with Fidelity Bank in Philadelphia. After graduation she worked as a teacher here at Ursinus for two weeks. She helped teach Spanish to high school students under a division of the Intermediate Unit of Montgomery County. Holly spent the rest of the summer as a supervisor of a playground for the Pottsgrove Recreational Association.

Holly began a nine month training program at Fidelity Bank in the beginning of September. In the first three months of the program, she will rotate throughout the bank, learning different aspects of the business. During this time, her days are filled with seminars and occasional on-hand training. In this program, she is trained for a position then works in that position for two weeks and then is trained for a different position. The cycle then repeats again. In the last six months of the program she will have a permanent placement in the company but will still be considered to be in training. Holly plans to stay at Fidelity, explore the opportunities there, and eventually get into international banking.

Holly's degree is in Spanish, but she has fellow trainees that graduated with degrees in politics, economics, psychology, and business.

When asked about the preparation by Ursinus for the working world Holly remarked, "I felt pretty well prepared for it. I was ready to leave school and start a job. I was ready to go out and deal with people." One aspect of her education that Holly felt was important was studying overseas. She went to Spain for five months in 1984. "Because I was completely on my own, depending on myself, speaking a foreign language, and dealing with a new way of life, I think I can handle more than before. I'm better at adapting to change."

The hardest interviewing skill Holly had to master was preparing how to phrase answers. "The Careers Planning and Placement Office helped me to think of my strong points and how to sell myself."

Holly did not have summer experience in the banking field, but looking back, wished that she had. "I would have been a little more familiar with some of the terms." She suggested to current students, "If you can start as soon as possible and try to get internships and job experience. It would be really helpful. Get your resume' ready in the fall — at least by December."

Her last suggestion to the students at Ursinus: "Start thinking early about what you'd like to do. Decide when you're scheduling your courses where you're going to take yourself. And study abroad if you can."

Album Review: "Dark Side of the Moon" still draws listeners

By D. Schmoeyer Jr.

While paging through Billboard magazine last week I noticed a truly amazing statistic. The "Abberation" was found in the list called the "Top 200." The Top 200 is a current list of the nation's best selling 200 albums. The rating column is divided into three categories: Current Position, Position Last Week, and Weeks on Chart. The Anomaly was to be found at position No. 168 in the weeks on Chart Category. The album was Pink Floyd's "Dark Side of the Moon" and it has been on Billboard's Top 200 for an incredible 594 consecutive weeks.

Why has this album remained so popular for 12 years? What is so special about it? The truth is, it is hard to pinpoint the exact cause of it's perfection as the album is really a collection of complex elements blended together.

The band consists of four main musicians; Roger Waters, bass vocals; Nick Mason, percussion; Richard Wright, keyboards; David Gilmour, lead guitar.

In my opinion the most immediate response to "Dark Side of the Moon" is one of acknowledgement towards the lyrics.

Lyrics are probably the most important fact of every Pink Floyd album from "Atom Heart Mother" to "The Final Cut," but Dark Side stands out in particular. The man responsible for this is Roger Waters, who is challenged by Peter Townsend as the greatest lyricists since Lennon and McCartney. Waters eloquent style which so pervades this entire LP is not easily forgotten. It is so unique in style that comparison to any other souce is pointless.

Perhaps the most distinguishing feature of Pink Floyd is the David Gilmour sound. Whenever I hear any song which David Gilmour performs on I instantly recognize his presence. No guitarist has ever, or probably will ever, match the fluent chords which slide out of Gilmour's guitar.

The most critical factor of the band's success is the way that Waters, the lyricist, blends with Gilmoure, the guitarist. The whole is definitely greater than the sum of the parts, which in themselves are amazing.

Another important factor in developing the sound of "Dark Side of the Moon" which must not be overlooked is the polished producing of Alan Parsons.

Everyone knows Alan Parsons from his project, but not many know what a professional musician he is. His hand is clearly evident, giving "Dark Side of the Moon" that same crispness found on all of the Project's albums. Other standouts would be Clare Torre's chilling vocals on "Great Gig in the Sky" and Dick Parry's powerful saxophone on "Money" and "Us and Them."

As previously mentioned Dark Side has been on Billboards Top 200 for 594 weeks, significantly, that total is by far the highest in the chart since its inception. Dark Side's closest competitor presently the worthy "Led Zeppelin IV" which is at position No. 176 and has been on the chart for 247 weeks. Dark Side also ranks No. 6 on the best selling compact disc list and has been the since that charts inception as well. The out of print original master vinyl LP can go for as much as $40 if you can find one.

There was a resume workshop seniors!

By A.M. SALAS

Hello, seniors. I know you're busy. Most of you are trying to muddle through your classes and activities, and cope with being seniors. You will, however, need jobs sometime in the future. So where were you at 6:30, Thursday, the 26th? That was when Dean Carla Rinde held her first Fall Resume Workshop.

The Workshop, which met in Bomberger 120, was the first of two or more workshops to be held this year. Perhaps that's why only a few people showed up. They figure that there's plenty of time; the cold waves of panic haven't set in yet.

For all of you who missed the workshop, breathe easily. There will be another. For those of you who missed it and don't care, tell me, do you know the difference between Chronological, Functional and Imaginative resumes? Do you know about the Buckley Amendment's effect upon what you should put into your resume? If you don't know, you really should.

While a wonderful resume will not get you a job, it may get you that all-important interview. No interview, no job. You really do need that resume. Do yourselves a favor and get as much mileage as you can out of what you've accomplished so far. Drop by Studio Cottage this fall. Talk to the people there. They'd like to see you do well.

You might also show up for the next workshop.

The Philadelphia premiere of the film "Streetwise" will benefit Voyage House, an agency that serves runaway and homeless youth and their families. The premiere will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8 at the Ritz Five, 214 Walnut St. A post-film reception will be held at City Bites, 212 Walnut St.

Nominated for an Academy

Award in the documentary category, "Streetwise" presents a searing yet uplifting portrait of life on the streets for a handful of Seattle runaways. "Streetwise" was founded in large part by Willie Nelson, Louis Malle and Candice Bergen. Several people involved in the making of this critically acclaimed film will be discussing "Streetwise" and answering questions about it. Voyage House is approaching its 15th anniversary of service to teens in crisis. Over 40,000 youths and families have been helped through a 24-hour hotline, shelter, outreach, and counseling and preventive education.

Tickets for the "Streetwise" benefit are available by calling Voyage House at 545-2910.

Field hockey team: Leaving teams in the dust

By JILL THEURER

Previously ranked as 18th in the NCAA Division I field hockey ratings, the Bears are now climbing to the top of the charts as they recently earned a seventh place ranking. They trail Old Dominion, North Western, Iowa, Massachusetts, North Carolina and New Hampshire, respectively.

Ursinus still remains undefeated after victories over Drexel and American University. Outstanding offensive performances by Seniors Kelee Whiteley and Pam Braun enabled the Bears to frustrate their opponents as the squad defeated Drexel, 3-0. Whiteley scored once in each half while Braun secured the win with a goal in the second half. The Bears garnered 11 corners while Drexel threatened with 8.

Next on the agenda was American University. The game, played on the turf of Georgetown University's field on the Potomac River, proved to be a big win for Ursinus as the squad trounced the Eagles, 7-0.

Beth Bingaman scored at 12:03 into the first half. Ursinus then exploded with six goals in the second half coming from Braun (2), Bingaman (1), Ginny Migliore (1), Jill Johnson (1), and Sophomore Sue DeCoursey, who had her first varsity goal. Ursinus is now 6-0 at the time of this writing.

Varsity Coach Adele Boyd, who is now in her 14th season at Ursinus, remarked, "Part of our success is due to the fact that we have three super captains. Also, our JV squad is very helpful. We need their strength to help us improve during practices."

The junior varsity squad is following closely in the varsity team's footsteps. Their record of 4-1 includes a recent win over Drexel. Freshmen Nanci Sarcinelli and Kim Santerian led the way for Ursinus as the team edged their opponents by a score of 2-1.

Upcoming games for the varsity squad include William and Mary, which will be here tomorrow at 10:15, and Davis and Elkins on Sunday at 1. Both squads will host the University of Pennsylvania on Tuesday.

Grizzlies overcome a ten year nemesis!

Grizzlies lined up to begin a winning tradition.

By R.P. BREWSTER

A decade of frustration came to an end for Ursinus football last Saturday afternoon when the Grizzlies came away with a 20-6 victory over Western Maryland, the first over the Green Terror in 10 meetings.

Ursinus now (1-1) got on the scoreboard with 11:55 left in the first half, driving 62 yards on 10 plays, capped by Senior Joe Sawyers' one-yard scoring run (18 carries for 75 yards). Western Maryland (0-2) nine minutes later countered when quarterback Scott Bassett, who hit wide out Darrel Guvton with a 53-yard pass earlier in the drive, then ran the ball in from the 11 yard line. The kick for extra-point was wide right.

Ursinus quarterback Brian McCloskey (9 for 24, 105 yards) then found tight end Chip Marchand on an 11-yard crossing pattern for a touchdown that put Ursinus ahead by a score of 14-6 in the third quarter. He followed that with a 25-yard strike to Joe Sawyers in the final quarter to cap the Bears scoring.

The Grizzly defense played one of its best games in recent years with five quarterback sacks totaling 46 yards — two by Pottstown's Joe Antonio and Chas DeFeo's recovery of a fumble that set up Ursinus' second touchdown. John Brady also put in a great day topped off by blocking a Western Maryland field-goal attempt.

Bear Facts: This was U.C.'s first victory over Western Maryland in their last 10 meetings...This week's game will be at home Saturday against Swarthmore, the winner of the last nine encounters with the Bears, part of the festive Homecoming activities...This week's Grizzly of the Week is shared by Joe Antonio and Joe Sawyers.

Cross country teams survive Gloria

By DALE LENT

After competing for the past two weeks on a friendly surface, the Bear pack headed northeast to compete in the First Annual Baptist Bible Invitational at Baptist Bible College in Clarks Summit, Pa. The weather from the previous day's Hurricane Gloria was nowhere to be seen, and the only reminder was the mud and water which covered the course.

In the woman's race, the Lady Bears were up to par as usual. Easily defeating Baptist Bible and Cabrini, while taking four of the top five spots, Freshman Kristin Volk continued her winning ways, covering the 3 mile course in 21:33 with Freshman Judy Spangler (22:14) following in second place. Sophomores Theresa Divine (23:21) and Michelle Lanquette (23:49) finished fourth and fifth respectively, with Senior Linda Girasoian (26:10) rounding out the pack in 10th place.

In the men's race, Senior Tom Kershner led the way with his second place finish, covering the 5 mile course in 28:43, Junior Dean Lent (30:02) was next in eighth with twin brother Dale (32:00) finishing in 22nd. Freshmen Dan Green, newcomer Mark Cosden, and Tim Pirog provided additional support as the all important fourth, fifth and sixth men. The team wound up third behind winner Cabrini and runner-up Baptist Bible.

Both teams compete tomorrow at Homecoming, Oct. 5 at home. The women go up against Cedar Crest and Philadelphia College of Bible, while the men compete against Philadelphia College of Bible and a strong field of Ursinus cross country alumni.

Sports guide

Did you know that:

— The first Ursinus football team in 1893 played without a coach because no one could be found who'd played football before.

— In 1939 the administration announced that it was abolishing the wrestling team for lack of support. In response, good athletes from other teams flocked to the winless wrestling squad, helping it win its last two meets — and a new lease on life.

— The women's basketball team was formed in 1905 — nine years before the men's team.

That's just a sample of what you'll find in the first "Ursinus College 1985-86 Action Guide," a full 96 pages of facts and figures, photos and features on all 21 varsity athletic teams.

The Action Guide will be on sale beginning Homecoming Day at most Ursinus athletic events, at the main office in Helfferich Hall and in Wismer Hall lobby. The student price is $2, half off the regular price.

The guide, the first of its kind at any college, includes sections on all the teams, with previews of the season ahead, schedules, last year's results, team records, action photos and closer looks at the top players. You'll use it often this year, and then save it for years to come.

Homecoming events announced

Ursinus alumni, friends and neighbors are invited to join in the 1985 Homecoming on Oct. 5 on the Collegeville campus. One highlight of this year's festivities will be a parade of homecoming queen candidates up Main Street in Collegeville, culminating in a bricklaying ceremony at South Hall, located at Sixth Avenue and Main Street.

The celebration surrounds five Main Street houses that were renovated over this past summer. They comprise part of a comprehensive Residential Village, of which South Hall will also be a part. The entire project embraces renovations and additions to seven old structures across the street from the main Ursinus campus. Gorski Construction Company is executing the project at a maximum cost of just under $3 million.

On hand will be Dr. Warren Van Dyke Musser and his wife, Betty Umstad Musser (a member of Ursinus class of 1945). Recently the Mussers pledged a generous gift of $500,000 to support the renovation of South Hall and the addition to it of a new residence wing for some 27 students. They will lay the first brick at the ceremony scheduled for 1 p.m.

The Residential Village project has been applauded by students, faculty, alumni and townspeople. In a recent letter to Ursinus President Richard P. Richter, Collegeville Mayor David A.

Cornish stated, "On behalf of the residents of Collegeville, I extend sincere appreciation to Ursinus College for the renovations to the college residences along Main Street. Not only do they compliment other Ursinus properties, but have enhanced that entire area of our community, for which we thank you."

Other Homecoming events include an all-campus barbecue from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., an after-the-game reception under-tent at 4:30 p.m. (sponsored by the Alumni Association), and a pre-dinner theatre program entitled "Voices" at 5:30 p.m.

The days athletic events begin when the women's field hockey team faces William and Mary at 10:15 a.m., the volleyball team plays Delaware Valley at 11 a.m. and the soccer team plays Johns Hopkins at 11:30 a.m.

The football team will meet Swarthmore at 2 p.m. on Patterson Field. The halftime ceremonies will include an introduction of the Homecoming queen and presentation of the Bruins Club Award.

The Friends of the Library will sponsor an author party at 10:30 a.m., featuring Dr. Calvin D. Yost. He will autograph copies of the newly published "Ursinus College: A History of the First Hundred Years."

For more information about the day's events, contact the President Richard P. Richter, Alumni Office at 489-4111, extension 2202.

Campus security notes

By CHERYL ANN LAWRENCE

There were three incidents this past week, of males entering the women's dorms after visiting hours. The girls prop the doors open, allowing the Ursinus male students to come in anytime they want. When Security sees males entering the dorm that they have not been told about, they must investigate, they have no idea whether the males are from the school, or if the girls don't mind them being there, or if they really don't belong. Do to this problem Ursinus Security wishes that the males would tell them they are going to the Quad, so they will be aware of who is supposed to be there and who isn't. It may also help to prevent an embarrassing situation. ☆☆☆

A woman called the police saying that she was being shot at on the corner of Fifth and Main. The police and security investigated and found it to be a false report. ☆☆☆

A non Ursinus student on a bicycle was arrested on a trespass charge, when he began annoying several Ursinus females. ☆☆☆

A couple walking through campus early Sunday evening were approached by three non-campus male party crashers in a '67 brown mustang. Upon finding out that there were no big parties, the three became rather obnoxious and insulting not only toward the couple involved, but also toward the population of Ursinus College students. ☆☆☆

Earlier this week Collegeville Police Department was out of service. due to problems with the insurance company. The problems include high premiums, lack of availability, and the selection process now in use by the insurance companies. The Collegeville Police Department is not the only department in the state affected by this problem, many others are having the same type of problem. However, the state police are covering the area and the college more now than in the past, to cover for the Collegeville Police Department. The regular town police should be back on the beat as of Wednesday. If anyone does need to contact the police in any emergency, the regular number can still be used. The call will go to the county dispatcher, who will call the State Police. The State Police and the Security Office will respond to your call.
