

Journal of Applied Christian Leadership

Volume 10 | Number 2

Article 22

9-2016

The Trinitarian Foundation of Leadership: Working Together for God's Glory in Unity and Diversity

Matthew Dean Ross

Southern Baptist Theological Seminary

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.andrews.edu/jacl>

 Part of the Biblical Studies Commons, Christianity Commons, Leadership Studies Commons, and the Practical Theology Commons

Recommended Citation

Ross, Matthew Dean (2016) "The Trinitarian Foundation of Leadership: Working Together for God's Glory in Unity and Diversity," Journal of Applied Christian Leadership: Vol. 10: No. 2, 106-106.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.andrews.edu/jacl/vol10/iss2/22>

This Leadership Resource is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Andrews University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Applied Christian Leadership by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Andrews University. For more information, please contact repository@andrews.edu.

practiced in church life and therefore has potential for the future.

Ross, M. D. (2014). The Trinitarian foundation of leadership: Working together for God's glory in unity and diversity. Ed.D., The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

In the last decade, the theory of shared leadership has received considerable attention. This theory shifts the primary focal point of leadership discussions from vertical to lateral forms of influence. Moreover, it has been recognized that the shared leadership environment requires a unique understanding of identity. Working in teams that allow for lateral forms of influence requires that members have both a bounded and open understanding of identity.

This research examines the association between Trinitarian thinking and the understanding of personal identity in the context of positions of lateral influence. In particular the doctrines of the image of God, union with Christ, and covenant are examined from a Trinitarian perspective. Because the doctrine of Trinity emphasizes that the one God eternally exists as three persons, Trinitarian thinking requires that both universals and particulars be held together in an equiprimal relationship. Each of these doctrines is examined in order to highlight the significance of this equiprimal relationship in understanding personal identity.

This study proposes a model of leadership that values both the bounded and open aspects of personal identity, encouraging the development of ethical lateral influence through love, dialogue, and a covenantal understanding of authority. These three aspects of ethical lateral influence are then applied to the workgroup setting through the development of a particular organizational culture, which must build observable patterns of teamwork, diversification, and coaching.