Rules for the Road

- Labs are for currently enrolled law students
- No food or drink in the labs.
- Bring your own flash drive and take it with you.
- Backup your work periodically – email your documents to yourself.
- You will need a card for printing.

About Printing

- Network printers
- Lexis stand alone printers
- Think before you print

- Westlaw, LexisNexis, and Bloomberg
- The Internet – fun, but ineffective for your legal research assignments.
- Passwords are in your library packet.
- There are mandatory training sessions during the semester.

Bloomberg LAW

REGISTER TODAY

1. Go to bloomberglaw.com/activate to register for access to Bloomberg Law.
2. Follow the on-screen prompts to register.
 - You will need to enter your contact information, including your official (.edu) law school email address.
3. After registration, you will receive an email with a verification link.
4. Once you have clicked that link, you will receive a second email with your access information.

How to Brief a Case

This is an exercise designed to introduce first-semester law students to the basic elements of a typical case "brief" and to teach them general methodology for writing their own briefs. The exercise consists of three parts: (1) an introduction to the purposes and uses of a case brief; (2) a detailed examination of each of the ten components of a typical case brief (with examples); and (3) two actual cases that students are asked to read and then to brief, using the methodology described in this exercise. A sample brief for each of the two cases is also provided, thereby allowing students to correct and modify their briefs by way of comparison.

How to Find Case Law Using the Digests

This exercise will provide the student with a detailed introduction to using the digests to find case law. Example pages from the West reporters and digests are provided and hypothetical research issues are demonstrated to show how these books are used.

Note: A brief excerpt from this lesson is available as the separate CALI Lesson "Anatomy of a Case".

How to Prepare for the Study of Torts Law PodCast

Professor Ron Eades has taught Torts Law for over 25 years. In this podcast Prof. Eades offers advice on preparing for class, classroom dynamics, note taking, post-class studying, outlining, ways to measure your progress, "pitfalls" to studying Torts, what students should try and get from class. He also offers general advice for 1Ls starting law school and the study of Torts.
