

Forces

Volume 2007

Article 49

5-1-2007

The Comma Splice Assassins

Julie Rosentel

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces>

Recommended Citation

Rosentel, Julie (2007) "The Comma Splice Assassins," Forces: Vol. 2007 , Article 49.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces/vol2007/iss1/49>

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Collin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Forces by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Collin. For more information, please contact mtomlin@collin.edu.

JULIE ROSENTEL

Dedicated to Pat at the Spring Creek Campus Writing Center

Idioms, jargon, faddish language to boot,
Gerund phrases clichés run amuck; they're a hoot.
Dangling modifiers climb unhindered throughout,
Whilst demonstrative pronouns detract from the clout.

Oh what a sinner forlorn and for-lost
Can anyone save me from adverbial clauses,
Infinitive phrases, and intransitive verbs?

But wait, what's this that I see?

Language heroes are waiting
To wade through the mire
Thwart back the language,
Find a thesis for hire.
They'll split your infinitives, destroy additive phrases,
Save you from wordiness and idiom mazes.

These modern day prophets,
These saviors from doom
Reside in the Library,
I meet them at noon.
Gone are my comma splices, don't miss them a bit.
For me a trip to the Writing Center is Always a hit.