Children's and Adolescent Literature: A Roundtable Discussion

Roundtable Abstract: The theme of this roundtable discussion is Children's and Adolescent Literature within the context of scholarly academic discourse. Three different professors of Children's and Adolescent Literature with their own unique approaches to the field have composed themed questions on the subject for the students of the roundtable to consider and discuss with one another. Each student participating brings unique experience within the field of Literature, Child/YA Literature, Critical Analysis, or from one of the three professor Chairs specifically and provides the roundtable with their own scholarly experience and perspective from past courses and experiences with the literature.
