1. Introduction

1.1 History, Position and Headdress Function

Headdress usage history can be said to equal length with the use of clothes, has been underway since the beginning of human civilization. Its main function is to protect the head from the sun, rain, dust and wind. At first humans exploit the broad leaves to cover the head, it can still be encountered in the villages when urgent weather conditions. Increased civilization and technology human is not solely used clothes and headdress only for practical reasons. Many things about the other necessities of life we could leave on the use of headdress such as a view of life, beliefs, cultural values, customs and tastes of the wearer. Although headdress does not have a role like the clothes covering, the use of headdress has a position that is important for his roles explains that more special. The head has the highest hierarchy in the human body, in addition to its place at the top, so that the head covering also has a strong chance to mark the wearer herself.

When we are in an environment that we do not know we would easily recognize who is the respected leader of the crowd to identify who wear a head covering different. Communities with high social status as kings, eminent figures public, the chief of tradition, beauty queen, bridal headdress marked with a treated form, of material and techniques that is distinguished. Generally various forms of headdress give their peculiar characteristics of the place, the originality of the society with their cultural background coloring, custom values, worldview held that certain forms such as ornaments of the head covering as a symbol of belief, philosophy or social institutions. The material used is closely related to natural resources, flora, fauna by accentuating processing techniques developed by the relevant community or specific communities. For example, Papuan tribal headdress always wear the best feathers of male birds of paradise. Cendrawasih known as Bird of Paradise because of the beauty of the feathers second to none in the world. So in addition to its physical function, since long ago headdress have demonstrated social and cultural functions.

1.2 Jember Fashion Carnival Costume Headdress

Since 2003 until now the district of Jember, East Java, Indonesia was widely known by the phenomenon of Jember Fashion Carnival/ JFC. This name is already familiar as often reported in various local mass media and abroad. JFC has an active web site contains the latest news about the activities of the carnival each year, programs are planned, live broadcast coverage of the show in various interviews and road shows. Photographs showing the creation of the JFC creators from year to year those have been attended by hundreds of participants, could easily be found when we searched the internet. In the JFC event participants are at once creators, because the costumes are designed, made and exhibited by the carnival participants. Not just the JFC Center course that contains news, but also media activities of various tissues, such as You Tube, watcher blogs and personal blogs who want to share experiences and shooting results we could get it easily. JFC costume creations more attractive from year to year, the creators always succeeded in processing sub-themes that have been set by the inspiration, Dynand Fariz and JFC Center.

The themes raised about the world and has a range of voices appeal to build the spirit of love, preservation, struggle in building a civilization, prosperity and culture, both national and transnational. As the theme Discover the World in 2005, Save the World in 2007, World Treasure in 2010, When Art Meets Technology and Illusion in 2013, Outframe in 2015, Revival in 2016. The theme event every year derived from sub-themes which have four categories: national culture, transnational culture, transnational issues and fashion trends. Beginning in 2015 until now there are 8-10 sub theme designed for JFC event, they are kept separate except in the decade-winning sub themes costume each year will be displayed again. Each costume which is designed by creator will display the sub theme set by JFC Center. Costume is not only the part attached to the body, but also other devices that showed as work expression.

Costume often do not form a single work but combined form as a treatikal work so need another addition to showing the exploration of creativity. Exploration of creativity, among others, the use of headdress, wings, tassel, certain symbols, wagon wheels and even the presence of companion actors. Headdress is the most central in the composition of the whole costume because it is located just above the head. Headdress which includes not only the part that attaches at the top of the head but also all explorations conducted by creator towards the top of the head. Headdress size elevated and widened at the top of the head, causing additional headdress dimension can no longer be borne by the chief creators. For that reason the headdress will be borne by shoulder using a metal construction for strength brought walked, danced and choreographed.

In this part JFC creators produce specialized forms to respond to the sub-theme costumes those carried. The special form is the important things of the sub-themes that will be delivered by creator once was the carnival actor to the audience. The sub-theme costumes are distinguished into four categories and their headdress will communicate the strongest designation of sub-themes are carried. Headdress on JFC no longer fungional interpreted as a head covering but rather interpreted as a means of communication, the medium to convey the messages of the culture, values, hopes and aspirations of the people. Headdress both attached at the top of the head as well as the exploration carried by shoulder is the most important part of the costume which became a central communications. The messages contained in the title of sub-themes could be strong legible through headdress and its exploration although each creator has its own different way to express separately.

2. Research Methodology

This study uses an analytical interpretative against the potency of headdress creator costume in Jember Fashion Carnival. We can gain significant value from exploration Headdress like cultural values, social values, society philosophy, education, creativity and so on. The cultural diversity that exist in the sub-themes that are displayed on the event each year drive the headdress are also shown very diverse. Research will be conducted on randomly selected costumes by category with emphasis on visual content that expresses sub-themes. Several studies have also taken Headdress of the Best National Costume created by Dynand Fariz and his team who often win the title of best national costume at the Miss and Mister International. Data collection for research conducted through participant observation empirically when the event occurred in the town of Jember, conducted a study of the documentation and bibliography of web sites and record life video, then worked on the analysis and interpretation.

Costume national cultural categories raise the culture of ethnic groups in Indonesia such as costume of Minang 2009, Madurese 2010, Betawi 2011, Toraja, 2010, Reog 2016. Headdress shown are typical code that supported the ethnic sub-themes. Costume transnational cultural categories uplift history of the distinctive culture of other countries such as the Chinese Opera in 2007, Thailand in 2010, Venice in 2013, Apache 2014, Egypt 2015. In the category of national and transnational issues headdress costume featuring world issues that has occurred, is occurring or is predicted to occur in the future. Natural disasters such as tsunamis, volcanic eruptions, soil erosion due to deforestation is an issue that has occurred, but also a warning for the world community to preserve nature. The issue of the world of sports tournaments World Cup 2006, the conservation of nature such as the sub-theme costume Dream Sky 2010, Roots, 2011, Savana 2012, Pine Forest, 2014, Planet Heredity 2012. In these sub-themes ,headdresses explore forms that describe the image of natural events and sustainable environmental welfare. Image provided headdress more to communicate the memories, warnings and moral messages.

On the fashion trends category , sub-theme costumes tend to appreciate the richness and natural beauty that is rarely touched by humans. JFC also display the sub-themes that explore the world of myths like in a costume with a sub theme of Apocalypse 2010, Dragon 2012, Phoenix 2014, Pegasus 2016. 2016. JFC creator process headdress by taking a piece of icons that represent the theme sub form. Fragment of icons that can be either the severed heads, wings, bones, bones of the head, fins, tentacles and so on. It might be made by exploring the shape and dimension then placed it on top of the head creator. Headdress made with local materials which are easily obtained, local technique and color selection that freely to highlight creativity. The tendency to use symbols freely on the sub theme costume then carried into headdress then explored in the form, color, dimensions, materials and techniques, those would have been the focus of the research.

Julia Kristeva in the theory of intertextuality (Piliang, 2012: 265) states that the sign is not always built as a unified whole there was a sign outside that were built in crossing traffic sign. The sign is called the sign is located on the semiotic networks, the networking meeting, mixing the signs that come from various sources in the form of quotation marks, codes, signifier,signified, text that met each other in the text space. Signs intact viewed as a unity among its elements, unity between the signifier with the signified. A cup of hot coffee in the morning was a unity on cups, spoons, coffee, sugar, creamer and hot water is a sign of wife’s attention and affection to her husband. This sign has been accepted by convention as something inherent, standardized, a relation that is closed. Intertextuality opens a blend of different composition, a relationship that is open to other possibilities even contradictory, thereby rejecting a stable meaning.

On intertextuality it is possible a meaning that is half pity, half annoyed, dear but also irritated, a cup of coffee just to show his anger or a paly, allowings something dynamic nuances of meaning. In other words intertextuality opens the door wide to the multiplicity, plurality, quotes various sources, even by convention considered anomalies, irregularities and though contradictory. Roland Barthes said of contradiction or antagonism as something unnecessary prevented otherwise as a pleasure text to be released, because nobody really antagonistic all text is plural. (Barthes 1998: 31). The composition is actually different from the principle of common unity but mixing two or more that unusual, double iconic, iconic and a symbol, a hybrid code into a fervor that marked the contemporary phenomenon.

3. Analysis Headdress as Hibrid Codes

3.1 Analysis of National Cultural Categories Headdress

The costumes were selected on the strength of the Indonesian national cultural content that existed at headdress and its exploration that appear on the JFC show time and the winner of the election of the Best National Costume in the international arena.

3.5 Headdress Diversity Meaning

From the analysis above it can be a linear relationship between the majority sampling of Jember Fashion Carnival Headdress and winner of the Best National Costume Headdress namely their propensity for mixing signifiers. Mixing of the signifiers may be double icons, double symbols, or combination of symbols and icons, the interaction of national and transnational cultural codes, the past code, the present code even hope for the future. Various text mythological at the past, traditional cultural heritage, natural resources, fauna and flora were presented today at Carnival fashion context that is different from their original context. Text costumes national culture and transnational cultural presented as signifieds, mixed codes, symbols and icons that are double, to be a hybrid code, which are overlapping relationships beyond the conventional. Text costume actual issues tend to communicate the criticism and warnings to safeguard the environment, preserve natural galaxies, sea caves to the harmony of the human race.

Text costume fashion trend communicate a sense of love, appreciation in the harmony of human life to the life of fauna and flora, human beings should not be dominated by committing acts that threaten the lives of fauna and flora. The texts of Jember Fashion Carnival costumes became the language / communication medium to subversive to the conventional meaning of the costumes sign. Text is able to convey a different meaning, new, dynamic, transient, hybrid because the signs were there in costume constantly moving, playing in diversity, interacting, crossing each other, is transformed into combinations are always changing beyond the existing code on nature or who has been accepted by society. A combination of signifiers, varied codes and constantly updated by the creators at each event will produce a richer meaning even contradictory. For example stallgmite ice combined with flower petals, octopus with wings that resemble fins, four-horned unicorn with pegasus, stupa with female gender.

Unusual engaging and tend to be contradictory will bear a different meaning that is no longer same. Meaning not always have to be present, can be meaningless because the emphasis is excitement game signifier. Unlike in semiotics structuralism each signifier has a signified that is stable, has not changed much since on the basis of the convention. Jember Fashion Carnival costumes are always present in the difference, no one else twin costumes even in the same sub-themes. Costumes text always move dynamically so they produce meanings that are temporary, due to the combination of constantly changing from time to time, the costume is not always present a definite meaning.

4. Conclusion

Costumes headdress in Jember Fashion Carnival has become a sign of contemporary phenomena those are subversive conventional headdress sign, which closed prioritizes relations between signifier and signified and the element of signifiers are fused together as one commonly accepted conventions. Costume headdress in Jember Fashion Carnival has done signification which opens wide the door to a variety of engaging in shape, texture, colors, materials, techniques, codes, cultures thus found form double iconic, hybrid codes, engaging icon and symbol to communicate different meanings. No longer a linear meaning, which is prevalent in stable signification system but at the costume headdresses have been loaded with morals, criticisms and appeals.

Through the sign of interacting, this headdress which has the potential visual space is able to influence the world community to respect the national and transnational culture in a parallel relationship. JFC headdress can be an effective intercultural visual communications media because the ability to melt down visual cultural barriers successfully so there was no real boundaries between one culture with other cultures, they are equal (Denissa, 2016:37). Headdress signifiers which are made by creators are interchangeable, juxtaposed to one another so resulting similar dialogue. Crosses icons, overlapping symbols precisely subtly able to communicate the message, constructive criticism and appeal the world community through the silent expression that exist in the visual culture of Jember Fashion Carnival. Excitement in doing crosses these signifiers also coupled circuitry enthusiasm of the world community. It can be seen from the increasing number of spectators, both domestic and abroad who come to visit their appreciation from year to year.
