CAMPBELL C. JOHNSON PAPERS

Collection 57-1 to 57-36

Prepared & Revised by:
Wilda D. Logan
June 1980

Scope Note

Campbell Carrington Johnson (1895-1968); social worker, lawyer and community activist, is noted for his efforts in fighting for desegregation of the military and increased opportunity for Negroes who served in the armed forces. Johnson began his association with the military during World War I, entering the U.S. Army as a first lieutenant in the infantry. Although he served in active duty for short periods during World Wars I and II, he maintained his commitment to the military serving in the U.S. Army Reserve having ultimately Achieved the rank of a senior colonel.

Campbell Johnson made significant contributions to military life in his work with the Selective Service System. In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed him executive assistant to General Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service, National Headquarters. His duties included interpreting the system to veterans, and in this capacity he became an avid spokesman for the needs and concerns of veterans. Johnson served in various positions with the Selective Service System, ultimately achieving the position of assistant director. As assistant director Johnson was responsible for supervision of administrative functions, a position he held until his death in 1968.

The papers of Campbell Carrington Johnson span 15 linear feet and cover the period from 1940 to 1955. The papers were donated by Johnson in 1968 and relate specifically to his career with the Selective Service. A large portion of books and periodicals were transferred to the MSRC's Library Division.

The biographical series offers an excellent overview of Johnson's military and civic pursuits. Of special significance is a copy of an autobiographical text with focus on his younger years.

The correspondence series is arranged in three groups, general subject, case files and office files. General subject correspondence is arranged alphabetical by the subject. Case files are arranged in alphabetical order by the name of the individual whom the case concerns. Office files are bound correspondences from the office of the Selective Service, arranged in alphabetical order. Most of the correspondence relates to inquires, assignments or special requests by Negroes seeking information or changes in military status from the Selective Service Board. U.S. Military's racial policy during this period is quite evident in this series.

The speech and statements series are reflective of Johnson's active role in the community. He was an active worker in the D.C. branch of the YMCA. Many of the speeches deal specifically with the Negro and his social, racial and military status in the U.S.

In addition, there are twenty boxes of newspaper clippings grouped by branches of the armed services, racial relations, military camps, veterans, fair employment, National defense, etc. Most of the clippings can be identified by date and name of newspaper. However their greatest asset is the overall view of Negroes in the U.S. Military system during World War II and the immediate post war period. Official photographs, produced by the various military branches, showing Negroes in training are quite interesting.
