Fines, Jail Sentence For Drunk Drivers In Effect Now

A mandatory sentence of three days in jail will be served by any person convicted of driving while under the influence of alcoholic beverages, according to an Ohio state law which became effective Oct. 21.

Bowling Green Chief of Police Guy D. Spitzer said the minimum penalty under this law is three days in jail, but fines and costs up to $500 and six months in jail can also be given.

Campus police have authority to arrest students on or off campus for driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages, according to Director of Safety William J. Rohrs. The arrested person would generally go before the city mayor for trial, he said. He might later be tried by the University student court, Rohrs added.

Chief Rohrs said that extra campus police will be on duty over the Homecoming week end.

Campus police are granted authority by the state of Ohio to enforce all state laws, especially traffic regulations. They are also sworn in as members of the Bowling Green city police department, Rohrs explained.

Two Plays Tonight At Gate Theater

Tonight the first two one-act plays of the season will be presented at 7:30 p.m.

"Sorry, Wrong Number," directed by Noel Greenhill, and "Hamburgers," directed by Robert Staeger, will be presented in the Gate Theatre.

1953 HOMECOMING QUEEN DOROTHY FARLEY

Reunion, Awards Highlight Weekend

Senior Dorothy Farley will be crowned Queen of the Homecoming festivities in ceremonies tomorrow afternoon before the Bowling Green-Kent State game.

Attendants to Miss Farley, elected at an all-campus election, will be Jackie Gribbons, senior, and Joan Yohn, freshman. The ceremony will take place at 1:40 p.m. The queen and attendants will also be presented at the Homecoming dance tomorrow night.

Pre-game ceremonies tomorrow afternoon include the flag-raising and exercises by ROTC in readiness for action. The howitzer will be fired after each Bowling Green touchdown.

The Alpha Chi Omega trophies for the best decorated men's and women's building will also be presented before the game. The awards will be given to the first and second place winners in each division by Margaret Richards, president of the sorority. Judging of decorations begins at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Approximately 225 alumni will attend the annual alumni luncheon Saturday at 11:30 a.m. in the University Commons, according to Dr. Zaugg. Cost of the luncheon is $1.50.

At this luncheon, the class of '28 along with faculty members with 25 years of service will be given special recognition. There are 17 in the latter group, not 15 as previously announced, with the inclusion of Miss Laura E. Heston, chairman of the department of home economics, and Prof. Ruby L. King, assistant professor of library science.

Pres. Ralph W. McDonald, along with Mr. Tobias Edwards, president of the class of '28, and Miss Elizabeth Boyer, president of the alumni association, will address the group.

Open house and buffet dinners and suppers will be held by the majority of fraternities and sororities, beginning at 4 p.m., following the game.

MIS Holds Dance

Throughout the morning, starting at 9 a.m. and continuing throughout the afternoon, the various departments of the University will also hold open house.

The finale of Saturday's activities will be the annual all-campus dance, sponsored by MIS, which will take place in the Men's Gymnasium from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

While the majority of activities will be held on Saturday, several fraternities along with the United Christian Fellowship and Chi Omega will hold breakfasts and open house on Sunday until 12 noon.

Dr. Zaugg has invited all faculty members to attend the five Homecoming activities which will be of special interest to them; recognition breakfasts, the alumni luncheon, the Kent - BG football game, departmental open house, the special interest group reunions, and the all-campus dance.

Plane Won't Drop Football At Game

No footballs will be dropped from the air in the pre-game ceremonies tomorrow as has been the custom at the Homecoming games for the past several years. This announcement comes from F. Eugene Beatty, assistant to the president, who stated that irregularities of the practice in the past led to its discontinuation.

Mr. Beatty stated that the event originated about six years ago by a local fraternity, and that it has not been a regular practice in the interim, having been carried out in only three or four games.

Court Judges Fraternity Innocent

IFC Prosecutor Howard Beplat congratulates Theta Chi Defense Attorney after the judges announce the fraternity "not guilty of a violation of the rushing rules." David Freidheim, IFC president, looks on.

Three University faculty members acting as judges for Interfraternity Council, threw out an attempt of the pledge rules and infractions committee to fine Theta Chi fraternity for violation of the rushing rules. The decision was made by the judges at 5 p.m. Monday in the Student Center after a lengthy trial highlighted by the defense summation by Jerry Helwig, who defended Theta Chi.

The trial centered around two rushees, Darrell Askey and Donnel Clark, reportedly seen associating with members of Theta Chi at the Bowling Green-Baldwin Wallace football game. The fraternity was charged with holding an illegal smoker with these men.

The three judges, Everett C. Meyers, Charles R. Minton, and Robert G. Riegler stated in their decision, "So far as the court could ascertain, no evidence was presented of intent on either side of the defendants that this meeting was planned or prearranged. The court feels that this is a critical and important matter in making this decision. The court finds that this was not a prearranged meeting nor was the purpose such as would indicate any attempt to rush a rushee. Further, the court finds that this meeting was a casual one under uncontrolled conditions since it was a public meeting and there was no intent to violate the rules of rushing."

Upperclass Senators' Election Dismissed

In two major moves Monday night, Student Senate dismissed the election of upperclass senators, held Oct. 21, as invalid and was also upheld by Student Court in refusing to accept a petition of referendum on Oct. 12, which Senate deemed illegal.

After David Dawson, chairman of the Elections Committee, presented the results of the all-campus election, Patricia Scott moved to invalidate the returns of upperclass senators. Senate president, Charles Green, read protests of the senatorial election which had been filed by Kappa Delta and Alpha Phi sororities. The protests maintained that freshmen were allowed to vote for upperclassmen part of the day and that the rules of the procedure were varied. The selection of freshman class officers, senators, and Homecoming Queen were not contested.

Dawson admitted the discrepancies had taken place. He further assumed the full responsibility of the error to his group and expressed the opinion that Senate should not be blamed. He added that a second election will be held soon and that the shortcomings of the first one would be explained in the B-G News, through the Senate public relations committee, and over the campus public address system. The elections committee did not disallow the results itself because protests must be made to Senate before action may be taken, he pointed out.

Daley Petition Invalid

In a special afternoon session, Student Court ruled that the petition presented by Richard Daley to Senate Oct. 12, was invalid. The petition protested the action of Senate in selecting the student

Blood Donation Quota Surpassed By B-G Students

Students responded to the plea for blood donations from Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, by donating 143 pints of blood, 18 more than the quota. The donations were received by representatives of the American Red Cross Tuesday in the Rec Hall.

James Haskins, chairman of the drive, stated that approximately 60 donors were students who did not register. He added that women donors outclassed the men by a three-to-one ratio and more upperclassmen contributed than freshmen. Haskins mentioned that many of the contributors had previously donated to the drive.

Women affiliates of A Phi O, faculty members, and local Red Cross members assisted in the scheduling and registration of the students. Jenney Shelley was in charge of posters for the drive.

members of University committees. Green referred the document to court because its 53 petitioners were not members of "any class or other student organization" as demanded by the Senate constitution.

Daley maintained that "class" and "student organization" were not defined in the constitution and could be construed to mean any students with common interests. The court decision, as delivered by Chief Justice Jerry Helwig, ruled that "class must be interpreted to mean a group of students whose year of graduation from college is the same." Student organization implied an "organized group and not the loose, general group of individuals with interests, as suggested by the petitioners," the decision stated.

In Our Opinion

Strength For Alumni

A letter of the editor today calls attention to a problem which becomes especially noticeable to present and returning University students at Homecoming time. Too often Homecoming visitors return to one social group to which they belonged while on campus, and are not interested in the entire University. This situation is to be expected since the college life of the individual centered about that particular social group or housing unit. It is a bad situation however, for the welfare of the University and for the strength of the alumni association.

With the reorganization of the Alumni Bureau this year, director Dr. Walter A. Zaugg has taken several steps to overcome this weakness of the bureau. More than 9,000 letters were sent out by the bureau to University alumni to get corrected addresses, and urge former students to return for Homecoming. Increased subscriptions to the alumni magazine are being sought.

Alumni organizations are already established in several cities, such as Chicago, Cleveland, and Columbus, and plans are being made for others in Findlay, Lima, and Dayton. These groups will work closely with the Alumni Bureau and the University to form a strong unit of former students. Dr. Zaugg hopes to be able to establish alumni projects for these organized groups so that they can better serve the University. One of the biggest benefits would be scholarships for prospective students, and arousing interest in the school in top-quality high school graduates. These groups could also serve to interest more grads in returning for Homecoming, commencement and other special events.

One of the major points to begin formulating a strong alumni association would be with the graduating senior classes. These groups could be interested in actively participating in the organization, while their interest is still with the University.

Several years ago a dinner was given by the alumni group after commencement exercise, and graduates were initiated into the organization. That process was discontinued.

Perhaps this procedure could be reinstated, but held at a more convenient time for the seniors. Carrying the class organization over after graduation could also serve to create stronger alumni relations. Beginning now with an interested graduating class could, in a few years greatly strengthen the relations between alumni and the University.

Drinks Come High

With the Homecoming week end upon us, student drivers would do well to note the news story on page one, concerning the new law about drunken driving.

A minimum of three days in jail will be served by all persons convicted of driving while under the influence of alcoholic beverages. The fines and costs can bring the cost as high as $500, and 6 months in jail, if the judge should decide to do so.

Director of Safety William J. Rohrs has said that extra policemen will be on duty over the week end. Students are also reminded that campus police have authority to enforce state laws, on or off campus.

 "A better private library of philosophy than any other in this area including the University library," was the statement that Dr. Tom H.  The philosophy section contains books on the history of philosophy, metaphysics, and the philosophy of religion. A section on the history of religion contains the bibles of the 11 living religions and commentaries written on the different religions. The last section, reference books, contains leading encyclopedias, religious dictionaries, and dictionaries of word origins.

Findlay Trip Slated For Business Classes

Two business administration classes will travel to Findlay early Tuesday morning, Nov. 3, to make a field study of the National Automotive Fibres Incorporated plant. The classes are conducted by John W. Darr, assistant professor of business administration.

The automobile caravan consisting of 55 juniors and seniors, will observe factory operations by tours conducted by plant supervisors.

The office organization and management class will study office procedure with view on how office managers would look in evaluating and its effectiveness," said Professor Darr. The motion time study class will be introduced to development of time study and dates as it applies to the plant," he added.

This Findlay industry is one of the nine branches of the National Automotive Fibres Incorporated. Other branches are located in Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, and Trenton, N. J.

This industry was chosen for the field study because of its known efficiency and effectiveness, stated Professor Darr. "This will give the students a chance to see and practice the theories we discuss in class," he concluded.

Letters To The Editor

Class Loyalty Needs Organization; SICSIC Boosts Team, University

Dear Editor:

On the occasion of Homecoming it seems appropriate if we stopped and examined the relationship of the University with the alumni and think of ways of improving them.

Bowling Green has a reputation of being a friendly school. Everyone carries a friendly smile for you whether they know you or not. Yet, it seems one tends to develop intense loyalty to one's group. The result is that all the benefits that could be derived by associating with others is greatly reduced if not completely lost. All of one's activities get centered around the group with incidental interest in other campus activities. It was not surprising, therefore, to get a strange feeling when the graduating seniors at the last commencement were singing the "Alma Mater." Not many knew the words and there were some who could not get themselves to put the spirit behind those words. On the last day of their school, it appeared, they were participating in an activity with a group of fellow students whom they had hardly bothered to know during most of their years in college.

There are some schools where the class organizations greatly help create an "all-campus" spirit. There is one school known to the writer where class activities are one of the most important activities on the campus and the classes play a very important role in the student government. The class organization continues to function after the senior year and becomes a very important link between the University and the alumni. On behalf of the Alumni Association it solicits contributions for the school. These contributions form a very significant part of the total money spent for development purposes.

Such a venture at our University could be successful if the Bureau of Alumni Affairs and the student government took a serious interest in thematter. Possibly, as a starting point, a committee could be set up with representatives of the students, faculty, and the Bureau of Alumni Affairs to investigate the matter.

Harvard Professor Explains Plant Growth Thursday

How plants grow is being discovered by experiments described by Dr. Kenneth V. Thimann, professor of plant physiology at Harvard University, who will speak in a public lecture here Thursday, Nov. 5.

The lecture will be held in the Chemistry Bldg. lecture room at 8 p. m., according to Dr. David M. Krabill, professor of mathematics, and president of the local Sigma Xi club, sponsor of the affair.

Growth in plants is a complex of many processes, Dr. Thimann explained. The processes include: the uptake of nutrients, the synthesis of organic substances in presence of light, the transport of these substances from the cells in which they are made to those where they are metabolized, and the division and enlargement of these cells as a result of their supply of organic substances, minerals, and water.

Dr. Thimann was recipient of the Stephen Hales Prize from the American Society of Plant Physiologists in 1936. He has been a member and officer in numerous scientific organizations.

Dr. K. V. Thimann

A private dinner will be given for Dr. Thimann Thursday evening at 6:30 by members of Sigma Xi club. The club is composed of professors in the science, mathematics, and psychology departments.

AFROTC Team Drills At Homecoming Game

The Air Force drill team will perform before the raising of the flag at the Homecoming football game tomorrow according to Staff Sgt. Abraham J. Metrie.

The drill team is composed of about 50 cadets under the supervision of Sgt. Metrie and will execute precision movements during its appearance on the football field.

Falcons Ready For Kent State Invasion

Cullom Sparks Golden Flashes: BG Passing Tenth In Nation

By DON KELLER

The Bowling Green Falcons will try once again to get back on the win trail when they meet the Golden Flashes of Kent State here tomorrow in the annual Homecoming game.

However, Coach Whittaker's men will have their work cut out for them since this will be a key game for Kent if it expects to get any recognition in the Mid-American Conference race. They now have a 1-1 record in conference play and need a win this week to help assure them of at least third place.

For the Falcons it is also a "must" game, since winning could keep them from digging out of the cellar, and of course, it is Homecoming.

Cullom Is Threat

Speed on the ground will be the Flashes' greatest attack. Jim Cullom, their bruising fullback is slated as the big threat with Lou Mariano also running from the backfield.

Cullom netted 822 yards on the ground last year for a 5.2-yard average per carry. He finished second only to Fred Durig in the MAC last year, who gained 849 yards rushing. Cullom also scored nine touchdowns.

Kent also has an All-MAC line-man of last year in right tackle Al Kilgore.

The starting lineup for Kent will probably find Sonji Herzberg and Gene Gioia at the ends, Dick Raidel and Al Kilgore at the tackles, with Gene Monastra and Dick Tate at the guards, and Nunzio Polichene playing center.

In the backfield, Don Burke fits into the quarterback slots, with Jack Rittichier and Bob Spence running at the halfback positions and Jim Cullom at fullback.

BG Physically Fit

As for Bowling Green, they should be in good physical shape if no serious injuries occurred this week during practice. However, Les Green is still bothered considerably with an ankle injury and John Ladd has a bad knee.

For a team that has only won a single game while dropping five, the Falcons, surprisingly enough, have quite a few outstanding records among small college football.

Quarterback Bill Bradshaw is rated 13 in the nation in yards gained. In five games he carried 117 times for a 576-yard total.

Jim Ladd is seventh in pass receiving. He has caught 20 passes in five games for 290 yards and two TD's.

Passing Is Tenth In Nation

In pass offense, Bowling Green is rated tenth among small colleges with 93 attempts, 43 completions, and only 9 interceptions for a 46.2 per cent of completions. This totals 676 yards through the air for 135.2 yards per game and six touchdown tosses.

In the punting department, the local gridders are rated fifth with a 41.6-yard average on 24 punts in five games.

Kent State holds a 4-2 record thus far and also recorded a win over Marshall last week 27-7 while Bowling Green has a 1-5 record and dropped a close one to Toledo 20-19.

Sigs, Theta Chi Lead In Football; Snakes, SAETie

With the fraternity touch football season a little more than half over, Sigma Chi is well on the way to its second consecutive league championship. Last year's fraternity champions have rolled over their first three opponents with comparative ease. Theta Chi holds the top spot in League I with a record of 3-0.

In Monday's games Sigma Chi defeated Phi Kappa Psi 53-0, Alpha Tau Omega downed Pi Kappa Alpha 6-0, and Delta Upsilon trounced Sigma Phi Epsilon 25-0.

Wednesday's games saw Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Nu battle to a 6-6 tie, both had previously been unscathed upon; Theta Chi romped over Phi Kappa Tau 35-0; and Phi Delta Theta defeated Delta Tau Delta 27-12.

In League II games scheduled for Monday, Nov. 2, are Sigma Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Phi Kappa Psi, and Alpha Tau Omega encounters Delta Upsilon.

The R-9 Ramblers and the North West Ohio All-Stars captured the independent touch football league championships. Both the Ramblers, champs of League I and the All-Stars, League II title-holder, emerged from their four-game schedule unscathed.

A play off game to decide the Independent champ will be scheduled after the completion of fraternity play. The Fraternity champ will then meet the Independent's representative to decide the All-Campus Champion.

Redskins Take OU Scalping; Conference Race Tightens

The mighty Miami Redskins took a scalping last week end that could result in Ohio University taking over and holding the Mid-American Conference football crown.

Miami could only squeeze out a 7-7 tie with the Bobcats from Athens. The running of Tom Ascani and the passing of Bill Frederick will more than likely set up Ohio U. as the leading grid power in the MAC.

Conference rules provide for tie games to be counted as half-wins for each team. Ohio U. has a total of six encounters with MAC foes. Miami has only four.

The Bobcats' two remaining games in the conference are with Western Michigan and Bowling Green. Coach Carroll Widdoes' gridders are expected to win both of these games if MAC statistics mean anything.

Miami has only one game remaining in the MAC and that is with the Toledo Rockets. Although the Rockets don't have such an impressive win and loss record, they will give the Miami gridders a good battle. Toledo is carrying a 417.4 yards per game average to the opponents' 145.2 per game.

BG Girls Hockey Team Installs Fall Practice

The women's intramural team beat the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, 3-2, last week. This afternoon the team is playing Michigan State University here. Benches are being put up. Miss Gertrude Eppler, chairman of the department, hopes there will be many spectators at the game.

There are four games and a tournament scheduled. Outstanding players in the tournament will be chosen to play in sectionals. Ohio sectionals will be held at Ohio University this year. Members of the Buckeye League, to which Bowling Green belongs, play in local tournaments.

Miami Sports Scribe Goofs; Redskins Aren't So 'Superior'

By HAL VAN TASSEL

LIMELIGHTS—Last week the Miami Student, official student publication of Miami University, carried a column dealing with the great football team that the Redskins had in the Mid-American Conference.

Sports editor Dick Lotz, in his column "Time Out," discussed Miami's competition on the football field. He first referred to the "Bowling Green slaughter," then it was "Western Michigan farce," and finally the "Marshall fiasco." He asked the question "Why doesn't Miami drop out of the Mid-American Conference?"

Along with stating the fact that the Redskins have a "far superior" team to any of the other schools in the conference, Lotz claims that football is still "king."

As you may have realized, this column was written before the Ohio University Bobcats became the heroes of the MAC by holding the Oxford gridders to a 7-7 tie. And as it looks now, Miami won't be "far superior" and won't be the MAC football champions.

Lotz, and possibly the majority of the student body, should be reminded that the Mid-American Conference is not just a football get-together.

Bowling Green and the MAC is nationally noted for the strong brand of basketball it has. Swimming is no minor sport. Track and cross country don't draw the crowds and money which seems to be Miami's biggest headache with the MAC, but these sports are in the spirit of good athletic competition.

Lotz finished his essay with the advantage of having a good football team and a conference full of other teams that will lead to the "deterioration of of Miami football." He stated that "other schools have made no legitimate attempt to bring football to the level of Miami and Cincinnati."

We would like to know what a legitimate attempt is. Bowling Green doesn't recruit athletes. Bowling Green is nearly half the size of Miami. Bowling Green doesn't have the strong alumni that Miami has. Bowling Green, however, does have a well-rounded sports program.

Little Of Bermuda Appears In Form Of Socks And Shorts

By DAL BRIM

A mild stir was caused on campus last week when three freshmen paraded through campus donning Bermuda Shorts and knee stockings. They received many a wary eye from the female students, and many a surprised eye from the male students, for although the wearing of Bermuda shorts has gained national prominence through the efforts of Garry Moore on his daytime TV show, the style is entirely new to campus.

The men seemed very serious in their intent to wear the knee-baring apparel despite stares. However, at a dinner that evening, the men were greeted by their hosts who had donned shorts and bathing suits. Whether their hosts had worn these strange costumes to mock them or just to try and be polite is not known, but many a hairy leg and cold knee-cap was bumped under the table during the course of the meal.

Now that winter is practically here, we doubt that there will be further display of these short trousers. However, in the opinion of our three freshmen, who unanimously agree with Mr. Moore, the wearing of Bermuda shorts is on a comeback trail and will attract more men to the wearing of them during the hot summer months.

Well, men, you have all winter to think it over. Is next year's motto going to be "Bermuda Shorts for cooler, longer-lasting legs?"

Coordinated guidance facilities are available to all students who need remedial or correctional services.

Miami Pastor To Speak At Meeting

Sunday, at 6 p.m. in the Rec Hall, the United Christian Fellowship and the Lutheran Students Association are meeting together in commemoration of Reformation Sunday. The actual service will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the chapel.

Speaking at this service will be Rev. James R. Baldwin, Lutheran pastor to students at Miami University, Oxford. The Reverend's topic will be "The Meaning of the Reformation."

Sunday will not be the first time that Rev. Baldwin has appeared on the Bowling Green campus. During the 1950-51 school year he appeared here to speak on the formation of religious emphasis weeks.

Music will be furnished by a male quartet from the University, and the service will be planned by the LSA, Don Davis, president, announced.

Prior to this meeting, the Lutherans will hold a buffet dinner at the home of Richard Smith, pastor of the Bowling Green Lutheran Church. This buffet, which will begin at 5 p.m., is planned in Rev. Baldwin's honor, and will give the club members a chance to become acquainted with him.

WENRICK ATTENDS MEET

Dr. John E. Wenrick, chairman of the psychology department, attended a meeting of the board of governors of the Ohio Psychological Association at Columbus Friday afternoon. He is a member of the board.
