State schools try to adjust to alcohol law

by Carolyn Van Schalk and Andrea Spencer

Bowling Green freshmen need not feel they are the only underclassmen across the state who cannot drink. Other Ohio universities have adopted stringent drinking policies.

Ohio State University, for example, is making a valid attempt to program alternative activities for its freshmen. The university has initiated the Alcohol Education Task Force to aid in this transition.

"The Alcohol Education Task Force advises campus organizations on new programming ideas and familiarizes students with the new policies," Mitchell Livingston, dean of student life said.

Livingston also mentioned there are separate programming committees within both residence halls and greek living units designed to aid in the planning of non-alcoholic events. Campus-wide activities are arranged for the two university unions through the Ohio and Drake Union Board, he added.

"ALSO, THE FIRST week back for students at the university is what is known as 'Welcome Week'. This runs from September 19 through September 26 and includes such events as an ice cream social, square dancing, and various other dances, many of which are geared toward the new students and are therefore non-alcoholic," Livingston added.

Livingston also mentioned that, as with Ohio University, all rush activities are dry. Although other beverages will be provided, no alcoholic beverages will be served.

Another college, Miami University, has to deal with the situation on a much smaller scale. The residence halls are divided into freshmen and upperclassmen living units, alleviating any controversy over who can or cannot drink within the dorm, Diane DeVestern of the student affairs division at Miami said.

Another university that does not foresee too many problems concerning the new drinking laws is Ohio University. At this time, Ohio University has an interim policy which is expected to be approved by the start of the fall quarter.

"OHIO UNIVERSITY plans to uphold the law of the State of Ohio so 18-year-olds won't be able to consume beer," Holly Sternecker, director of the department of residence life.

This is not a major problem because Ohio University, like Miami, has the advantage of separate living units for freshmen and upperclassmen. In freshmen residence halls there will be no floor parties with alcohol, and no alcohol permitted in these halls, Sternecker said. In upperclassmen halls, students will be permitted to consume alcohol. They will be permitted to have floor parties and room parties with alcohol as long as both activities are approved by hall directors, she added.

Sternecker said she envisions few problems in planning activities for freshmen.

"Parties with music and non-alcoholic beverages and food will be planned for freshmen. For example, there will be a party for all the freshmen dorms on campus next weekend. There will be a local disc jockey from Athens and instead of kegs of beer, the party planning committee will provide kegs of cider and other non-alcoholic beverages," Sternecker said.

ALL FRATERNITY AND sorority rush activities will be conducted without alcohol. The inter-fraternity council has set up a group to monitor and enforce this.

At Kent State University, non-alcoholic programs centered around a specific theme have been the most successful, Anne Gosky, assistant director of student development, said. "The first week we programmed a sock-hop which was very successful," Gosky said. Future non-alcoholic programs will involve such themes as a western night and a luau.

The policy of residence hall parties at Kent State resembles the interim policy Bowling Green has adopted. Proper identification must be presented at the door, alternative beverages must be provided, and persons of legal drinking age who are not consuming alcohol must be present to monitor activity.

Hitchin a ride: A day off work and nice weather was all that was needed for University alumnus Dave Hollinger to take his son and daughter for a walk, or a carry and ride on a tricycle, as the case may be. Christopher, age 3, follows his dad and his sister, who enjoys an easier mode of transportation back-pack style.

Begin Cabinet angry, rejects Reagan plan

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government angrily rejected President Reagan's Palestinian plan yesterday, declaring it would enable PLO chief Yasser Arafat to take over the West Bank and launch "an onslaught against Israel" with Soviet and Arab support.

The Cabinet's unanimous rejection of the new U.S. policy appeared to put Israel and the United States on a long-expected collision course over the Palestinian issue. But the Reagan administration said it was "not surprised or disappointed" at Israel's initial rebuff.

A long Cabinet communique argued that the proposals - calling for a freeze on settlement in occupied territory and Palestinian autonomy in association with Jordan - deviate from or contradict the Camp David accords, the 1978 framework governing negotiation of the Palestinian question.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID the proposals "could create a serious danger to Israel, its security and its future," and the government "resolved that on the basis of these positions it will not enter into any negotiations with any party."

"Were the American plan to be implemented, there would be nothing to prevent (Jordan's) King Hussein from inviting his new-found friend, Yasser Arafat, to come to Nablus (the biggest city on the West Bank) and hand the rule over to him," it said.

"Thus would come into being a Palestinian state which would conclude a pact with Soviet Russia and arm itself with every kind of modern weaponry. "Then a joint front would be established of that 'Palestinian state' with Jordan and Iraq behind her, Saudi Arabia to the south and Syria to the north. All these countries, together with other Arab states, would, after a while, launch an onslaught against Israel to destroy her. . . ."

THE BEGIN GOVERNMENT was reported to be furious that the Reagan proposals were drawn up and announced without prior consultations with Israel, contradicting a 9-year-old U.S. commitment to coordinate Middle East policy with Israel.

A Cabinet official, in a briefing to reporters, said the proposals were accompanied by unpublished commitments to Israel, but he said the government had lost confidence in American promises.

The official quoted Begin as telling U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis when he delivered the proposals Tuesday night that "any government that would accept this plan would betray its own people. We will not betray our people."

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes said the United States never expected Reagan's proposals to immediately be embraced by Israel.

The administration, he said, was not disappointed at the rejection of the Reagan proposals "in the sense that these (points) are going to involve some hard negotiations and discussions."

"So (the initial reaction) it is not surprising," he said. "This is what we intend to work for, to reduce these differences."

The recent dry weather may be partly responsible for a barn fire that occurred in Haskins Twp. Thursday. The call was answered by the Haskins Twp. Volunteer Fire Dept. Despite their efforts the barn was mostly destroyed.

Rioting: Poles continue union support

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Polish youths fought riot police in Lubin yesterday for the third consecutive day and authorities blocked roads into the southeastern town, reliable sources there reported.

They said new fighting broke out in the copper-mining town at about 5 p.m. after two days of unrest that began Tuesday with nationwide protests called by the suspended independent trade union Solidarity.

Witnesses said riot police fired tear gas and flares at hundreds of rioters angry over the killing Tuesday of two protesters. Police dismantled five memorials built by the youths, the witnesses said.

There were five memorials and some townspeople told a reporter five people had been killed, but officials denied it.

SOURCES IN LUBIN said the dead men were aged 32 and 25, and worked in electrical and construction businesses. A sign on the wall of a house said "Mieczyslaw Pozniak, born 1957, was killed here. The funeral will be Sunday."

The official news agency PAP said security forces killed the two protesters in Lubin on Tuesday. It reported that more than 130 protesters and police officers were injured and 4,050 people were arrested in Wroclaw, Krakow, Czestochowa, Gdansk, Lubin and other cities.

Press reports indicated the Tuesday protests were the most widespread since martial law was imposed last Dec. 13.

PAP said Piotr Sadowski, 22, of Gdansk, died after he "fell in the street" during Tuesday's riots. It said an autopsy "showed features of sudden death, but no bodily injuries which could have caused death."

The Communist Party Politburo met yesterday and condemned the nationwide rioting.

Riots engulfed Warsaw and a dozen other Polish cities on May 3, and violence erupted periodically in June, July and August. Police used high-pressure water to break up protests in Warsaw in late August, and there was a major protest Aug. 13 in Gdansk, the Baltic seaport where Solidarity was born.

Rocky search

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Former astronaut James Irwin, just back from a fruitless ground search for Noah's ark, says he may return to Turkey's Mount Ararat this month and make an aerial search.

Irwin talked of his plans at a news conference at his office at High Flight, the Christian evangelical foundation that sponsored his trip.

He wore a baseball cap to hide scars and shaved head resulting from injuries suffered in a fall on the mountain. He lost four teeth and had surgery above his right eye and sutures on his scalp.

A night of joy

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - A fire company has allowed 4-year-old Jill Smith to swing down the pole, sit behind the steering wheel of a fire truck and watch a practice run, fulfilling a dream of the young cancer patient.

Jill has a rare form of childhood kidney cancer called Wilm's tumor. She has lost one kidney and has only one-eighth of her second kidney left. A tumor continues to grow.

Cash for the Plum

CLEVELAND (AP) - A Saudi billionaire who lives in Miami and has a reputation for spreading around his money has been invited to visit Cleveland by unanimous vote of the City Council.

Shiek Mohammed al-Fassi, 27, has said he will gladly visit any city which invites him, so the council passed the measure Tuesday night.

"I don't think we can be so arrogant as to turn up our noses to someone seeking our friendship," said Councilman Gary Kucinich, a sponsor of the resolution.

More spacemen

MOSCOW (AP) - Cosmonaut Svetlana Savitskaya, the second woman in space, said Thursday she thought all-women orbital crews are possible and hinted the Soviet Union plans larger space stations.

Appearing at a news conference with fellow cosmonauts, she said in response to a question: "I think that an international women's crew would be interesting. An all-woman crew would also be possible."

Reagan's new plan weeks late for PLO

With his new proposal for Palestinian autonomy, Ronald Reagan the feared warmonger is making his big push to become Ronald Reagan the peacemaker.

Reagan's proposal calls for a Palestinian state on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, to be co-ordinated with Jordan. This proposal comes much to the chagrin of the Israeli Knesset, which views the plan as a violation of the 1978 Camp David agreement. That proposal called for an autonomous Palestinian state but did not mention any Jordanian involvement.

Former president Jimmy Carter says Reagan is acting within the Camp David accords. Begin, in a speech yesterday, begged to disagree. The only other man who would know how this proposal compares to the Camp David accords - Anwar Sadat - was assassinated last year, leaving it as an argument between two governments who have been on a collision course since Reagan took office.

The question we should ask ourselves is not which side is "right," because that is a question no one has been able to answer since the issue of a Palestinian state originated with the creation of Israel in 1948.

Rather, the real question is what rationale does the Reagan administration have for releasing this plan now, in the wake of Israel's virtual destruction of the Palestinian Liberation Organization and city of Beirut?

If Reagan had really wanted to promote peace in the Middle East, he would have acted during the recent war, when he could have used the diplomatic power the United States should have over a country whose weapons are primarily manufactured by Americans.

Instead, Reagan waited until after Israel had virtually destroyed an Arab country before he offered a proposal which just angered the Israelis more and did little to assure the Arab world of any accommodation for the Palestinians.

Attendance mandatory for NCAA Division I-A

Another collegiate football season is suddenly upon us, and Bowling Green's chances of success in the Mid-American Conference have never been better.

Yet, this is no ordinary season. There is a cloud hanging over tomorrow's season-opener between BG and Ohio University at Doyt Perry Field. That cloud - which began to form when the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) reclassified BG and the MAC from Division I-A to I-AA in football last winter - will not dissipate easily.

This is the year of reckoning for the Falcons if they are to return to the Division I-A status that the University's athletic department so desperately wants to regain.

The new Doyt Perry Field bleacher seats - 5,000 more in the two end zones - won't get BG reclassified by themselves. People, preferably of the student-type, must fill them.

For the Falcons to regain I-A status, they must draw an average of 17,000 in paid attendance over five home dates this season. Last season, BG did not draw that many, according to University Sports Information Director Allan Chamberlin.

Apparently, many University students just do not get excited about MAC football, opting instead for collegiate games between the bigger names on the tube on Saturday afternoons. Making that decision is an individual's prerogative.

But don't judge MAC football without first taking in a game at Doyt Perry Field. MAC football - more specifically Bowling Green football - can be exciting and intoxicating, and the Falcons should have a good team this season.

Quite simply, the Falcons need more fan support this season - now more than ever.

Many things are at stake this season for BG's football program. If BG and the MAC lose their appeal to be reclassified to I-A at the end of this season, they cannot appeal again until 1985.

By that time, the program could be in sad shape if it remains classified I-AA. Division I-AA opponents who have been scheduled down the road will undoubtedly start avoiding I-AA teams like the plague - and teams like Bowling Green will no longer be able to secure lucrative guaranteed contracts with teams like North Carolina, Michigan State or Baylor.

So, now is the time for BG football fans to literally stand up and be counted. Starting with tomorrow's 1:30 p.m. game at Doyt Perry Field, the future of BG's football program will hang in the balance.

Warlord Sharon uncontrollable

Why do they do it? They never win, those who sign up for the session of psy-war known as an interview with Oriana Fallaci. She heckles and presses and woos and insults her subjects until, at last, a crack appears in the polite surface assumed at first, and some personal emotion breaks through.

COMMENT by Garry Wills

She succeeds with the shrewdest diplomats, even Henry Kissinger. She succeeds with the most self-assured fanatics, even the Ayatollah Khomeini. She certainly succeeded in her last effort, her interview with Ariel Sharon.

Approaching Sharon as an Israeli warlord, Fallaci "asked" him if he were not a wild man, out of control, not submissive even to his own government. He denied this, of course, several times. She kept coming - didn't he really want to take Beirut? He said no. She kept coming. Then the crack opened: "Believe me, had I been convinced that we had to enter in Beirut, nobody in the world would have stopped. Democracy or not, I would have entered even if my government didn't like it." There it was. The warlord answering to no one but himself.

LIKE HER OTHER subjects, Sharon realized too late what he had said, and tried to backpedal: "I mean, I would have persuaded them." But later, in other contexts, his essential attitude comes through: "I always do what I want."

Sharon, who should have known that Fallaci does her homework, expressed surprise when she came up with a key speech he had given to the Institute of Strategic Studies, where he said: "Israeli strategic interests... must be broadened to include countries such as Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, regions such as the Persian Gulf and Africa, particularly the countries on north and central Africa."

Sharon, not normally a conciliator, tried to give a moderate interpretation to his own remarks. He said Israel would just have "preoccupations" in all these areas if the Soviet Union moved into them. But, later, his real view came out under her relentless questioning. Fallaci asked if Sharon had not bred a generation of Palestinian resistance from the 10,000 men scattered to the winds out of Beirut. Sharon answered with advice to any PLO members thinking of continuing the struggle:

"I WOULDN'T even try. I made those murderers a gift: the gift of life. I gave them the chance to live. They are alive because I chose to let them live. Such luck is not a guarantee for the future. Woe to them if they dare to start again with their bloody activities, even in countries which are far from Israel. Woe to them!"

The Sharon view, shared by Mr. Begin, is that the PLO has been crushed. If any Palestinians try to give the lie to that minority opinion - which is on a par with the same men's view that the PLO does not represent Palestinians in general - then woe to them, and woe to any country where Sharon may have to chase them. We no longer have an excuse for surprise when "Israeli security" no longer means defensible borders, but "hot pursuit" anywhere in that wide arc of nations (including "Africa") that Sharon has marked out as his own sphere of influence.

EVEN WHEN SHARON tries to be pacific, he is disturbing. Asked if the troops will stay in Lebanon for 15 years, as they did in the Sinai, he answers: "No, I really believe that this time we will stay much less." Will it be necessary to attack the Syrian capital? "It should not be necessary to go to Damascus. It should not be necessary to go that far." But: "Our troops and artillery in the Bekaa valley are in the range of 25 kilometers from Damascus. That means we can shell Damascus any moment."

It is said, and I hope it is true, that Sharon does not speak for his own country, or even for his own government. But, in that case, why is he still minister of defense? He has now said he would give battle when he decides it is necessary, "democracy or not." Gen. MacArthur was fired for statements much milder than that. Mr. Begin should read a good biography of President Truman.

Nuclear weapons force peace

Mankind has been in almost a continuous state of war with and among itself since its earliest conception. Mankind as a species has never been able to avoid the use of violence in solving its problems. One might be able to say, and be quite accurate, that aggression, violence and war are innately human.

For the moment lets sadly accept war as a fact of life, mankind has, and it looks like it always will, resort to its most primitive and archaic instincts in solving its differences. Both sides in a dispute will continue to methodically gather up all their forces and basically slug it out until one side either capitulates or is destroyed. Thus the use of violence is an essential as well as a valid part of human relations.

Our ancient ancestors started off by using sticks and stones to solve their differences. Gradually, mankind progressed to more efficient and civilized problem-solving methods: from those sticks and stones came spears and swords, then guns and cannons, jet-bombers and tanks, followed by the ultimate problem solver - nuclear weapons.

WITH THE NUCLEAR weapons functioning as the modern problem-solving device, one can at very best be only slightly optimistic concerning the future of mankind as a race. This slight optimism stems from the fact that mankind as been given a mandate to live in peace. Nuclear weapons, the modern-problem solving device, has told mankind "Either Live Together or Die Together."

As ironic as this may sound, consider it for a few moments. Presently, there are only six members in the so-called "nuclear club," countries with proven nuclear weapon capability: the United States, the Soviet Union, France, China, Great Britain and India. The general consensus is that since these countries are relatively stable and therefore rational the threat of nuclear warfare is minimal. But one must consider, using the most conservative estimates, that there will be over 30 members in the nuclear club by 1987. Among those countries expected to attain nuclear capability will be such unstable and irrational nations as Libya, South Africa and Argentina.

ASK YOURSELF the questions, "Would the military junta of Argentina have refrained from using nuclear weapons if they had had them available in their latest squabble with Britain in the South Atlantic?" "Would Prime Minister Thatcher have ordered a retaliatory strike had Argentina used them?"

It does not matter if the next war is a "defensive war" or a "just war," for the next war might be the last war. Nuclear weapons have done mankind a great service - they have made war obsolete. No longer is it a viable means for countries to settle their differences.

Nations can only be directed towards the mandate of world peace through the thoughts and actions of those individuals who make up nations. For is it not true that a nation is simply a conglomeration of separate individuals. We as individuals have the burden of leading society as a whole towards peace. Each and every individual must internalize and practice such virtues as patience, tolerance, compassion, trust, reason and, most importantly, brotherly love in order to overcome those trivial differences which exist between nations, races, religions, ideologies, etc.

WE AS INDIVIDUALS cannot expect nations to live in peace with each other until we learn to live peacefully with our neighbors, family and friends. For it is by example alone that peace is promoted.

The future of mankind, all its hopes and all its dreams, rests in your hands. Please don't fumble.

LETTERS

With BGSU's first home football game coming up this Saturday, I am most anxious to address you on the importance of student attendance at our five home games this fall.

To retain NCAA Division I-A football status, we must average 17,000 in paid attendance for our five home games in 1982. Bowling Green has maintained a successful Division I athletic program for the past 20 years, and it is extremely important to the total University community that we preserve our I-A football rating.

An all-out football ticket sales campaign is currently under way, and student attendance is of critical importance. Nearly 5,000 of you have already purchased a 1982-83 Student All-Sports Pass, and we are most appreciative. To be counted in our paid attendance totals, however, you must attend the games and pass through our special student turnstiles. We also encourage those of you who have not yet purchased an All-Sports Pass or a single game ticket to do so immediately and attend all games throughout the season.

Join our effort as we strive to establish an athletic reputation of excellence that will parallel our existing tradition of academic excellence.

See you at the stadium for a victory over Ohio University on Saturday!

Jack C. Gregory
Athletic Director

Return to BGSU brings return of local issues

Returning to Bowling Green once again, I feel stimulated to comment on my past experiences in this environment. This is the first time I have lived off campus although I have many fond memories of dorm life and remember both how much fun and how frustrating and depressing living in a large institution can be. The new state beer law will put 18 year olds entering campus in a very tempting situation, especially when their friends and roommates may be legally able to drink. The only solution to this problem is not to get caught, which then shifts the burden to another fine campus faction, the resident advisors. It must be realized that these people are only enforcing state and University rules to the best of their ability, as they would be on any job, and terrorizing these people never helps relations.

Another problem of this social situation is the relative apathy of a great portion of the student body. Many of the organizations that affect all students, University executives and both student and city governments, are

Celebrezze brothers act could raise questions

The integrity of Ohio's judicial system could be threatened in the near future by charges of bias, prejudice and favoritism, depending on the outcome of this November's general election. The problem is relative, so to speak. Chief Justice Frank Celebrezze may be joined by his brother, James, on the state's highest court, and their first cousin, Anthony, presently the Secretary of State, could be Ohio's next Attorney General. No doubt these men are honorable and I do not wish to question their integrity. My concern centers on the reputation of our judicial system when three members of one family ultimately decide the crucial issues and how they shall be resolved.

The appearance of nepotistic favoritism would be almost impossible to avoid. Such a charge would appear to be inevitable, and the legal system would grind to a halt to accommodate the extensive investigations required to clear the air. Yet, the damage would be done and the taxpayer money needlessly wasted. Ohio citizens must put their faith in our court system, especially the Supreme Court and the Attorney General's office. We should avoid situations which tarnish the image.

This letter is not a plea to vote against any one. Rather, I hope to bring this potential conflict to the attention of voters and the Democratic Party. Am I the only person in Ohio concerned about having three members of one family holding three of the top eight legal positions in the State of Ohio - and on both sides of the bench?

Draft non-registrants deserve their fate

It makes my day each time I read of a non-registrant for the draft being indicted. Your statement of this or any other federal program allowing any non-compliance (The BG News, 9-2) is absurd. A law is a law regardless of its intent. We've seen two years go by since registration went into effect without any threat of an actual draft. Further investigations of these incidents and the punishments thereof should not be relaxed.

Green Sheet

Vol. XV, No. 1

Bowling Green State University

September 3, 1982

BG hosts OU in season opener tomorrow

Football to play a 'numbers game' on the field and at the turnstile

The Bowling Green football program will be fighting two battles this season.

The first battle, as always, will be on the field as the football Falcons fight for the Mid American Conference championship—a fight which many football experts believe Bowling Green has an excellent chance of winning.

The second battle will be at the turnstiles, as university officials try to encourage more than 17,000 football fans to attend each Falcon home game.

The battle on the field will determine which MAC team travels to the California Bowl; the battle at the turnstile could determine the future of Bowling Green and Mid American Conference football for many years to come.

"This is a critical year for us. We need the support of every student and every Falcon football fan," James Treeger, director of athletic promotions, said. "We need people to come out to our games."

The importance of attendance at this year's games began after the end of last season, when the NCAA demoted Bowling Green and the MAC from Division I-A to Division I-AA.

To regain I-A status, the football program needed to add 5,000-plus seats to the Stadium and average 17,000 paid attendance for the five Falcon home games. The extra seats were constructed at the ends of the field this summer, now the only question is how many people will be at the Stadium to sit in those seats?

For the conference to regain I-A status, a total of six MAC schools must meet the requirements set down by the NCAA, and most prognosticators agree that Bowling Green will be the key to the conference.

While not regaining I-A status will certainly be a blow to the pride and prestige of the University's football program, the loss of the I-A rating could have a disastrous effect on the financial side of the program.

The drop to I-AA status could mean a reduction in television appearances, and it could make scheduling major college football teams, such as Michigan State, Baylor and North Carolina (which Bowling Green has played recently or will play this year) more difficult. And the loss of those items could mean hundreds of thousands of dollars in lost revenue over the next several years.

Bowling Green opens its football season at 1:30 p.m. Saturday (Sept. 3) when it hosts the Ohio University Bobcats, and to prepare the team's 12th man (the fans) for the contest, a pep rally will be held at 6 p.m. Friday on the lawn south of Memorial Hall.

In addition to the football team, the cheerleaders, the pep band, and Freddie and Frieda Falcon will be in attendance.

To encourage ticket sales, the general admission ticket prices have been revised.

For Bowling Green students, the revision enables groups of 15 students or more to purchase (in advance) reserved bench seats on the east side of the Stadium for $2 each.

The BGSU student general admission ticket is still $2, and end zones seats can be purchased for $2.50.

But the best deal for University students continues to be the All-Sports Pass. For $20, students gain admission to all football, basketball and hockey games—an offer which averages out to an admission price of approximately 55 cents per contest.

All tickets can be purchased at the Memorial Hall ticket office. Hours for the ticket office are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and ticket booths at the Stadium will open at noon on game days.

To make the deal even sweeter, the Falcons are expected to put one of their best teams in recent years on the field Saturday (Sept. 3), when they open their season against Ohio University at the Stadium.

Returning this season are All-MAC selections Martin Bayless (defensive back), Bryant "Cowboy" Jones (running back), and Jim Phelps (punter). All three are not only expected to repeat as All-MAC players, but many believe they have the opportunity to be named All-America.

"Playboy" magazine and The Cleveland Plain Dealer newspaper selected Bowling Green as the cream of the conference, and ABC television in their pre-season special mentioned the Falcons as a power in the conference.

This Saturday, the team will take the first step to a championship, and the fans will take the first step toward the future of Bowling Green football.

Good seats open for Anton concert

While all of the $10 tickets have been sold, good seats in the $8.50 and $5 price ranges still remain for the 8 p.m. Nov. 6 Parents Day Show featuring the multi-talented Susan Anton.

Backed by a 22-piece orchestra, Anton will share the stage with the University's Jazz Lab Band, which will present a program of music from the "Big Band Era."

Tickets may be purchased at the Mileti Alumni Center. Hours of the Center are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Perhaps best known as the sexy salesperson for Serta mattresses and Muriel cigars, Anton is a frequent performer at famous night spots such as the Las Vegas MGM Grand Hotel, the Riviera Hotel and Atlantic City's Regency Hotel.

She has also hit the "Top 10" country music record charts with her recording of "Killin' Time."

Anton is also a frequent performer on television, starring in four NBC musical variety specials and one made for television movie "Goldengirl." She has made 19 appearances on the "Tonight Show" and has been a guest on "The Merv Griffin Show" more than 40 times.

HPER kids clinic needs volunteers

Twice each month, dozens of handicapped children come to Bowling Green to run, swim, ride bicycles, jump on a trampoline, play basketball, or become involved in some other activity.

For many of these children, the Saturday mornings spent at Bowling Green are the highlight of their existence. The opportunity to move freely and be active is cherished by the children; the opportunity to develop physical skills is encouraged by their teachers and parents.

The children are enrolled in the School HPER Saturday Clinic for the Handicapped, a clinic which would not exist without the help of University students.

And with the beginning of the new school year, the Clinic needs student volunteers who are willing to donate a few hours (11 a.m. to 1 p.m.) two Saturdays every month. (Students will be able to receive academic credit for their work.)

An organizational meeting for interested students will be held at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday (Sept. 8) in 106 Eppler Complex, North. Students unable to attend the meeting should contact Mary Bobb, 372-2625, before Friday (Sept. 10).

The first clinic will be held Oct. 2. Dolores Black, an associate professor in the School of HPER, is director of the clinic.

Art exhibit opens Tuesday

An art exhibit by Bowling Green graduate Emmanuel Enriquez will open Tuesday (Sept. 7) in the Mileti Alumni Center.

Free and open to the public, the exhibit will continue through Sept. 26. Exhibit hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Kenny Loggins at BGSU Sept. 17

Versatile, creative, dynamic, and magical are only some of the adjectives critics have used to describe music superstar Kenny Loggins, who will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Sept. 18 in Anderson Arena.

Tickets for this versatile, creative, dynamic and magical performance are now on sale at the Union Ticket Window at the Information Desk. The cost is $11. Tickets are also on sale at The Source and all Finders Records in Bowling Green.

Workshops, "mini-courses" planned

Again this year, the University Activities Organization and the Student Recreation Center will be offering "mini-courses," clinics, and special programs for students.

Registration for UAO's mini-courses is now being held in the UAO office, third floor of the Union. Registration hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays through Friday (Sept. 10).

This semester's selection of non-credit courses include Asian and Indian cooking, beginning guitar, yoga, mixology, juggling, bicycle maintenance, filmmaking, and frisbee. Registration fees for courses range from free to $30. Additional information can be obtained by contacting the UAO office.

The Student Recreation Center also has a full range of programs planned for students.

Titles for mini-workshops include "Fit-For-All," "T.O.N.E. (Turn On To Noon Exercise)," "Slinnastics," "Weight Loss Workshop," and "Jazz It Up."

Clinics being offered include platform tennis, racquetball, squash, the use of nautilus and universal equipment, and wallyball, an "off-the-wall" variation of volleyball.

In addition, swimming classes for persons of all ages and abilities are being offered, as are courses in diving, scuba diving, and aqua dynamics.

Additional information on all of the Rec Center programs can be obtained by contacting the Center's office. Registration for all of the programs begin Tuesday (Sept. 7) and end Sept. 17. There is a $5 fee for the mini-workshops and the swim programs.

Black Greek Leadership meetings set

The University Union will be the site for the first Black Greek Leadership Conference to be held Saturday and Sunday (Sept. 4-5). Free and open to the public, the conference will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday with a registration reception.

Topics to be covered during the two-day conference include Parliamentary procedure; leadership styles, financial management, program planning, developing service projects, the need for Greek unity, projecting a good chapter image, and the need for Black leadership at Bowling Green.

Guest lecturers at the conference will include Dr. Andrew Chisom, special assistant to the president at the University of South Carolina; Michael Price, public relations director of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity; and Eliner Allen, Toledo regional president of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

The conference is being sponsored by the Black Greek Council, Minority Student Activities, University Student Activities, Greek Life, and the Developmental Education Program.

Rec Club to sponsor road race Sept. 25

Entries are now being accepted for a 5- and 10-kilometer road race set for Sept. 25 and sponsored by the University Rec Club.

Set to begin at 10 a.m. at the Intramural Fields east of the Stadium, the racers will weave their way through the campus before returning to the playing fields. Prizes will be awarded to the top male and female finishers in four age divisions, and visors will be given to the first 200 persons to enter the race.

Additional information and registration material can be obtained by contacting the Rec Club, 200 Eppler Complex, South. A registration fee of $5 will be charged to those who pre-register for the race; a fee of $6 will be charged to those who register on race day.

'Brigadoon' to reappear for encore performances

Just like the magical village which is the center of the story, the summer musical "Brigadoon" will reappear for three encore performances Friday through Sunday (Sept. 10-12) in the Moore Musical Arts Center's Kobacker Hall.

Lerner and Loewe's musical fantasy about a Scottish village which exists just one day every 100 years will be staged at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets for the Friday and Saturday performances are $2 for University students, $3 for other students and senior citizens, and $5 for all others. Tickets for Sunday's performance will be $2 for all students, $3 for senior citizens, and $5 for all others. (Children under the age of 12 will be admitted free to the Sunday performance when they are accompanied by a paying adult).

Tickets are on sale at the Moore Musical Arts Center. Hours for the box office will be 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, and two hours before curtain time. Additional information and reservations can be obtained by calling the box office at 372-0171.

Green Sheet

Green Sheet is produced by the Bowling Green State University Office of Public Relations in cooperation with The BG News.

The next issue of Green Sheet will be published Sept. 17 and will cover events occurring between Sept. 20 and Oct. 3. The deadline for submitting information to be listed in that issue is noon Wednesday, Sept. 15.

All events must be submitted in writing to the Green Sheet editor, 808 Administration Building. In the event of space limitations those events submitted at the earliest date will be given preference.

Senior Marie Cisterino is serving as assistant editor this year; junior Tom Hisek is serving as calendar editor.

Gubernatorial race begins

Workfare major issue in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - With the issues of workfare, energy and New Federalism serving as ammunition, Clarence Brown and Richard Celeste came out swinging yesterday in the first round of the fight for the governor's office.

The two candidates exchanged views before the Chamber of Commerce in Youngstown and the Ohio Conference of Teamsters in Columbus, their first appearances together since before the June primary.

Brown, a Republican congressman from Urbana, told the Teamsters conference that a workfare program could help supply labor for badly needed maintenance of state property.

"THE FILLING of potholes, the building of bridges, even the mowing of median strips could be done by people in that situation (welfare)," Brown said. "It not only saves us public funds that otherwise would have to be spent on this... but it would also provide good benefits for the individual."

But Celeste, a Democrat from Cleveland, sounded a cautionary note.

"Workfare should never provide the use of people from welfare rolls in paying jobs that would otherwise be occupied by someone who would be out looking for full-time work," Celeste said. "It's a very dangerous precedent."

"All budgets have been severely cut," Brown replied. "That's why the use of some of these people on workfare would be helpful. We have a massive amount of work that has to be done in the infrastructure sector that we've got to catch up with. This is the best time to do it because it seems to be the most economic time."

AT THE Columbus conference, the candidates sat side by side at one table, fielding questions from three Teamsters officials and taking notes while the opponent was speaking.

When Brown was asked what he as governor would do about soaring natural gas rates for utility customers, he said he favored a state law forbidding companies from buying high-cost gas when low-cost gas is available.

"Unfortunately, those gas rates are part of law that was passed in 1977 under the administration of President Jimmy Carter that enabled and really encouraged some of the gas companies to go out and purchase high-cost gas and fold it into their gas costs," Brown said. "I've entered suit with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on this issue in the hope that we can break that practice. It's a bad law."

IN HIS summary remarks, Celeste accused his opponent of having been one of the strongest advocates of decontrol regulation.

The session was plagued by technical difficulties with the sound system. At one point, Brown was interrupted by music that suddenly began blaring from a loudspeaker.

"I'm not sure I can do it (answer) in time to the music," he quipped.

Celeste said he would work as governor to repeal the Motor Carriers Act of 1980, legislation that Teamsters officials say influenced the closing of 181 Ohio trucking companies.

Brown said he voted for the bill and that the legislation had the support of the Ohio Conference of Teamsters at the time. He said the Interstate Commerce Commission hasn't properly administered the law and that he favors its repeal unless the agency does so.

EARLIER, at the Youngstown meeting, Brown said President Ronald Reagan's "New Federalism" program should help increase federal tax dollars returned to the state. But Celeste called the plan "hopelessly optimistic."

Both candidates voiced opposition to a proposed constitutional amendment to require that members of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio be elected.

Celeste said he favors having the governor appoint PUCO commissioners. If he is elected, Celeste said, his criteria for appointing commissioners would include their education, management skills and concern for consumers. He also promised to appoint a senior citizen living on a fixed income to the panel.

Students explore aqua sports

Scott Carpenter
staff reporter

The athletic department's scuba and sailing clubs offer University students the opportunity to enjoy water sports as well as some chances to travel and participate in some unusual activities.

The sailing club is a way for students to practice their skills in small boat sailing on campus, in Lake Erie and even in the ocean.

In the past the club has practiced in the golf course lake and had outings in the Maumee Bay area of Lake Erie. During spring break of last year the club traveled to Florida where they set sail for the Bahamas.

Warren Scholler, coordinator of the sports club for the University, said the club competed last year, winning the Laser Two Regatta race. Scholler also said this year the group would like to compete in a national tournament, something they haven't done in recent years.

SCHOLLER SAID THE University owns a small boat the sailing club uses for nearby outings, and they rent other boats for distant voyages. The cost, according to Scholler, can be expensive as the club is allotted little money from state funds. The actual amount varies, he said, and depends on what activities members involve themselves in.

"Sailing is not a poor man's sport," he said.

Last year the club had thirty members. The total membership for this year is uncertain, as it is still in the organizing stage. The club is supervised by its commodore, Nancy Stark.

The scuba club, under the direction of assistant aquatic director at the Student Recreation Center, Chuck O'Brien, is also in the process of organizing for this year.

Last year the club had about 35 to 40 student members and participated in many activities on and off campus. Its members are mostly certified divers, according to O'Brien. Anyone who is not certified but wishes to join is encouraged to take lessons at the Student Recreation Center.

IN THE PAST, the club has held underwater endurance marathons for charity, outings to local diving sites and playing underwater hockey. The group has also traveled to Florida during school breaks to enjoy ocean diving.

The scuba season is year-round and during the winter months the club may participate in activities in Cooper Pool or even try some ice diving.

O'Brien said the main goal for this year is increasing travel and getting together with other diving clubs. "I am hoping for major changes in the club this coming year," he said.

O'Brien said the Student Recreation Center has one full outfit that students can use for those who can't afford the normal $850 cost. Equipment also can be rented from sporting goods stores and diving shops.

The main responsibility of the office of Standards and Procedures is to enforce the rules and regulations of the student code, according to Derek Dickinson, director. This code covers student behavior on-campus and any violations are referred to Dickinson's office.

Standards and Procedures hears about 400 cases per year. "The leading offense is drunk and disorderly," Dickinson said, "and theft is right up there, along with marijuana, and destruction and vandalism."

A major problem Dickinson encounters is the theft of street signs and property damage to homes in Bowling Green. Because of this, his office attempts to maintain a two-way communication system with the city.

"Students can be charged with a code violation by anyone, including faculty, staff and other students," he said.

Students charged with a violation are given the choice of having their case heard before Dickinson or in front of the Student Arbitration Board.

"The Board is totally run by students. It is made up of five 'justices' who hear the case. There are also student prosecutors and student defense attorneys," Dickinson said.

THE BOARD members are appointed and approved by the Undergraduate Student Government.

The Board is responsible for conducting a hearing, making a decision and sending their recommendation to Dickinson, who makes the final decision concerning each student's case.

"I have veto power over the Board," Dickinson said. "But what I'm most concerned about is due process and fairness and if the correct procedures are used."

If a student does not want his case heard by the Board, he can have the case heard by Dickinson in the informal atmosphere of his office.

"It's really up to the students," he said. "Wherever they feel most comfortable," is where they usually ask to have their case heard.

In either situation, students have the right to receive all documentation of charges and can present witnesses on their behalf.

"Standards and Procedures deals solely with circumstantial evidence or the preponderance of evidence," Dickinson said. Defendants do not have to be proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

IF A STUDENT is found guilty of violating any section of the student code, he can appeal the verdict to the University Appeals Board which can reverse or uphold the decision, Dickinson said. The Appeals Board cannot increase the penalty. "The Board deals with procedural errors," Dickinson said. "It does not retry the case."

The University Board of Appeals is composed of two faculty members appointed by the Faculty Senate, one administrator appointed by the president, two graduate students appointed by the Graduate Student Senate and two undergraduate students appointed the Undergraduate Student Government.

If a student is found guilty of violating any University regulation, from academic misconduct to selling or possession of narcotics, he is subject to a number of penalties. Penalties, which depend on the severity of the violation, range from written or oral warnings to dismissal from the University for at least one academic year.

Aide disguises identity to gain campaign data

OBERLIN, O. (AP) - A consulting firm for Timothy Martin, Republican challenger to Congressman Donald Pease, alleges that a Pease aide tried to gain information about Martin's campaign by disguising his identity.

Pease called it a foolish incident, but said he did not think any laws were broken.

Pease aide William Goold went to the Washington, D.C., consulting firm of Talcott, McCabe and Bowser, said Tom McCabe, senior partner of the firm.

The firm is doing campaign work for Martin because McCabe was a college friend of the Republican challenger at Taylor University in Upland, Ind., McCabe said yesterday.

On Aug. 19, Goold came in and sat down and told me he was thinking about running for office in Virginia," McCabe said. "He told me he lived in Virginia and worked for a big firm."

McCABE SAID he later called the firm - Patton, Boggs and Blow - but a spokesman said the company did not have an employee named Bill Goold or Gould.

McCabe said he was aware that a Bill Goold worked for Pease, but that Goold spelled his name as "Gould" in McCabe's office Aug. 19.

"I wouldn't give any information to anyone, let alone someone named Bill Goold," McCabe said. "I don't think he gained anything from his time here."

Goold wanted to know how the campaign was going, what the firm was doing and what issues were being examined, McCabe said.

Pease said yesterday from his campaign office in Sandusky that Goold did not ask about Martin's campaign, but that he did visit McCabe's office.

"He made that visit without my knowledge or my permission, which I certainly would not have given. It was a foolish thing for him to do and I have made it plain that I want no repetition of such activity," Pease said.

Goold made the visit on his lunch hour, Pease said.

"MR. GOULD has been assured by legal counsel that the incident involves no violation of law," the congressman said.

Martin said he intends to mail complaints Friday to the Federal Election Commission and the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, said Dean Bishop, media director for Martin's campaign.

Singer warbles for social problems

Charlene Hill BG News photo/Jerry Cattaneo

by Scott Sleek
news editor

Like any promising talent, Charlene Hill wants to become a famous and wealthy star via her vocal chords.

But the freshman music major, who made a record at the age of 16, wants to use that glory to make her stand against social problems.

Hill has become a devout Christian, and when she reaches the top, she wants to use the glamorous earnings associated with stardom to help drug addicts, alcoholics and prostitutes rehabilitate themselves.

"I want to take people like that and put them in a Christian home, and reform them," she said yesterday.

She added that she hopes her public image will inspire others to do their part in combating social ills.

"I CARE A LOT about people," she said. "Therefore, I'm pro-life. I'm for hand gun control. What I think affects our rights, I'm involved in."

Hill, who moved to McDonald West from Perrysburg, maintains an invulnerable optimism toward her future. When she talks of becoming famous, she uses the word "when," not "if." Scattered listeners have heard her voice on the few 45 rpm recordings released from Ken R.

Inc. in Toledo.

About five hundred copies of the record were released from the Ken R. studio, Hill said. The record featured a country-rock tune entitled "Georgia Ann." On the flip side is "Enjoy the Boys," a song that isn't as suggestive as the title infers, she said.

Before signing a contract with the Ken R. Inc. studio, Hill traveled around Nashville looking for a suitable recording company to distribute her songs.

But she said the Nashville music businessmen charged high prices and didn't appear trustworthy. So she returned to Toledo to make her record debut. Hill concentrates on Christian rock music as a specialty, but she finds strength from big-name artists in the rock'n'roll world.

"I THINK rock'n'roll has influenced me a lot," she said. "John Denver, Blondie, Pat Benatar—they inspired me."

As a Christian, she decided to move toward the religious rock sector of pop music.

"People say 'a Christian girl like you shouldn't be singing rock and roll,'" she said.

But when she sings pop music she directs the lyrics toward God. It was a concept she acquired when she learned that Debby

Boone was talking about God in her hit recording, "You Light Up My Life."

At 14, she committed her life to God, a step she said enhanced her self-image and became the driving force behind her career goals.

"I REALLY THOUGHT that I could reach out and touch people with my songs," she said. "I had been a Christian before, but I kept backsliding a lot. And I judged people, and I didn't like myself. I hated myself."

As she begins her University career, Hill will work as a waitress at Frisch's Big Boy Restaurant on East Wooster Street. She also plans to continue to sing at weddings and hopes to form a singing group to perform on campus.

She plans to head for California when she graduates from college. Acting is her long range goal, and she particularly hopes to perform in musicals.

But the lavish lifestyle of a star doesn't appeal to her. She said she would rather lift the spirits of her audiences through her music.

"I'm not up on material things," she said. "They're not going to last. But reaching out to people—I think people are more important and God is more important."

New Frazee residents confident

Damaged apartments rebuilt

by Karen Sandstrom
staff reporter

Lightning never strikes twice, or at least that's what some tenants of 818 Frazee Ave. are hoping.

The apartment building was struck by a Piper Cherokee 140 plane flying out of Wood County Airport last May. The Frazee apartments were reconstructed during summer, and although the rebuilding was completed within a few months, tenants said they are generally happy with their apartments. "Love it," said Lisa Mack of apartment 10. Her roommate, Kim McCoy said "The walls are kind of thin. You can hear everything, but everything is new."

Apartment 10, as all other apartments in the 818 complex no longer has a back door. Before the plane crash and subsequent fire, all the apartments had back doors. These were the exits through which the tenants in the building escaped when the crash occurred.

WOOD COUNTY CHIEF Building Inspector Robert V. Connelly said, however, that the single exit is in compliance with housing codes.

"The way the code (concerning apartment exits) reads, if the door of the apartment opens directly to the outside, then there has to be two ways to go from there. In this case, left or right (once a person was on the walkway outside).

"But," he added, "there's nothing for the size of that building that says there would have to be two doors."

Some of the second story apartments, although they no longer have back doors, have a back walkway accessible by window.

"Where there used to be a door, now there's a window big enough to walk through," said Steve Howell of apartment six. "I'm a firm believer in the philosophy that lightning and planes never strike twice," he added. Although Howell does not fear a recurrence of last spring's tragedy, he noted that planes still come in on the runway by Frazee.

THERE WAS A plane that flew over here yesterday, -we kind of wondered if it was gonna clear the roof," Howell said.

While some tenants, such as Jerry Schrock of apartment eight, think airplane traffic by Frazee has been minimized, Pete Perry of the Wood County Airport said he thinks that is "wishful thinking."

"In truth, which runway is used has to do with a number of factors," Perry said, and cited size of the aircraft and wind direction as examples. Perry added that although runway 624, which runs toward Frazee, is the longest runway at the airport, there is a proposal waiting approval by the U.S. Department of Transportation that would extend use of the runways going away from town and would close runway 624.

Financiers seek economic cure

TORONTO (AP) - Fears of an international lending crisis haunt a week of talks by finance ministers and bankers gathered from across the globe in search of economic cures to the world-wide recession.

The occasion is the 37th annual meeting of the two major world lending organizations, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. Economic leaders from more than 140 nations are expected to attend sessions which get underway this weekend.

The mood is grim. Grim about a deteriorating economic outlook for rich and poor nations alike; about mounting financial strains on the world's most indebted countries; about a widening rift between the United States and its allies over trade, economic policies and relations with the Soviet Union.

The main dispute at the formal meetings involves money: how much in new loans other countries can extract from the United States and how little the United States can get away with contributing to the IMF and World Bank.

Informal discussions will focus on the threats the international banking system faces from a growing list of troubled debtors unable to meet payments on their multi-billion-dollar debts, such as Mexico, Argentina, Poland and Cuba.

"Obviously, there is danger in the banking system at this point until such time as these problems can be worked out," concedes U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, who is heading the American delegation along with Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker.

In regards to the emergency aid plans that private and government lenders are negotiating with troubled countries to avert defaults that could trigger a crisis, Regan said, "We're hopeful they can be handled and they can be worked out."

Edibles possess 'natural' appeal

Pat Nagel, owner of Nature's Manna, 134 East Court St., is a firm believer in the value of natural foods. Nagel lost 37 pounds while on a diet of natural foods. Her store stocks only natural foods and also offers classes in natural food preparation.

by Jean Dimeo
staff reporter

Although many University students become junk food junkies after living in a dorm for a year or two, some students seem to be interested in the "natural food craze," according to area health food store owners.

Pat Nagel, owner of Nature's Manna at 134 East Court St., said many students patronize the store and sign up for its bread-baking classes.

"The location is ideal for students," she said.

The bread-baking classes will begin at the end of September and run about four weeks, she said, adding a stir-fry cooking class may also be offered.

Nagel bakes all the breads and rolls she sells, and the products stocked in the store contain all natural ingredients.

The store carries butter, cheeses, pasta, honey, refined oils, dried fruits, herbs, spices, ice cream, soy nuts, and other snack items, she said, adding trail mix snacks are hand mixed.

THE STORE ALSO carries salt-free cooking books and fruit drying books.

"Anyone is welcome to come in and copy recipes from the books or from my files," Nagel said.

"I try to stress the term natural foods instead of health foods because health foods had a bad image in the sixties," she said.

Nagel added natural foods are healthier and higher in protein than most foods, and most people can eat them.

"Natural foods make you feel better and prepare your organs for what they were suppose to do," she said.

Sugar gives you a high for awhile, she said, but the initial feeling may lead to a low.

Nagel recommended the book, Sugar Blues, which talks about the effects of sugar on the body and what diseases it can cause. "You'll be astounded at what sugar can do to you," she said.

NAGEL, WHO LOST 37 pounds eating on a natural food diet, said some natural foods like walnuts are high in calories but others, like carob, have half the fat and calories of chocolate and have no caffeine.

"Whole wheat pastas are high in protein and don't leave you with a hungry feeling in a few hours," she said, adding natural foods can help you stop snacking between meals.

Nature's Manna will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 a.m. on Saturday's beginning next week.

Julie Kammer, employee at D.J.'s Health Food Center, said most customers are Bowling Green residents, but she was surprised to find that many students visit the store.

"A lot of students come in for snacks and vitamins," she said.

The Center, located on 115 West Merry St., carries a variety of health food products including dried fruit, whole grain breads, natural ice cream, crackers, carob candy bars, yogurt and soups.

WE MAKE OUR own peanut butter, and we carry all kinds of flour," Kammer said, adding the grains they stock include rye, soy, whole wheat, unleached and whole wheat pastry flour.

The store also sells herbs and a large selection of seasoned teas.

"We are remodeling the inside and outside of the store, and we will be expanding our stock and selection," she said.

Kammer said the employees will try answering any questions from their experiences with the store's products. "We don't want to act like doctors, but we will make suggestions on the foods we have tried," she said.

The Center also shelves a variety of books on natural food cooking and vitamins, and carries monthly health magazines.

The Health Food Center is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Racial harassment, obscenity incident tests Civil Rights Act

BOSTON (AP) - A black couple testified yesterday that a white teen-ager under court order not to harass his black neighbors exposed himself, urinated and made obscene gestures at them.

The state asked Suffolk Superior Court Chief Justice James Lynch to find Michael Gaine, 18, of Boston, in contempt of court. Prosecutors sought a $1,- 000 fine and a six-month jail sentence.

Gaine was one of eight white youths who consented to an Aug. 19 court order forbidding them from harassing blacks in the racially troubled blue-collar neighborhood of Ross Field.

Describing the events on Aug. 22, Charles and Bertha Brooks and a friend, Debra Stewart, said they were standing in the Brooks' yard when Gaine slowly passed by and looked at them, then joined a group of young men and women in the park. The witnesses said Gaine came back toward them and stood in the park about 25 yards away, where he exposed himself, gestured and shouted, "Hey, Bertha."

BROOKS SAID said Gaine's voice "was loud, nasty, mean and full of hate."

The court order forbidding harassment was the first test of the civil provisions of the state's 1980 Civil Rights Act. The case was brought July 9 by the state attorney general's office on behalf of several black families who claimed they had been harassed by the men.

Lynch's order forbids the youths from stoning, firebombing or otherwise intimidating their black neighbors. It also prevents them from meeting each other for one year in certain sections of the neighborhood.

Stewart said she saw Gaine walking toward the park with David Gilligan, another youth subject to the court's anti-harassment order.

The youths joined a group inside the park, she said, but then Gaine walked back to stand near an entrance across from the Brooks' home.

"HE WALKED over there, his hands on his hips. . . He unzipped his trousers and took out his penis. He was facing toward us in the yard. . . I saw him look down toward his private, and it seemed that he was urinating," Stewart said.

She said the youth rejoined the group, only to return to the spot opposite the house twice to make an obscene gesture with his finger.

THEY'RE OFF! Falcon-Bobcat clash the first step in race for Mid-Am crown

by Joe Menzer
sports editor

Before last season's Mid-American Conference game with Ohio University, Bowling Green's football coaching staff hung a large sign - with four simple letters inscribed on it - from the top of the west side of Doyt Perry Field stadium.

Thus, every time the Falcons took the practice field, they were reminded by the letters "WE OU" that OU had handed BG a heartbreaking 21-20 defeat in the season finale the year before - the Bobcats' third straight win over Denny Stolz's Falcons.

Apparently, that sign did little to remedy BG's problem of catching the elusive Bobcats on the football field. Once again, in last season's MAC season-opener in Athens, OU pried another victory from the jaws of defeat against the Falcons.

"WE GOT (BG interior offensive line) Coach Devine to work on another sign," Stolz revealed. "We have one coach work on a slogan for each game, and he hasn't been able to get us a winner yet. He always has the OU game."

Even though BG came back in the last 2:04 of last year's game to take a 21-20 lead with just 24 seconds left, the Bobcats utilized a costly pass interference penalty on BG's Bryan Meek to move the ball into field goal position in the final seconds. Ron Harter, who went on to become a first team all-MAC selection at placekicker, then drilled a 26-yard field goal with just two seconds left to give OU a 23-21 victory.

Despite the four straight losses to OU and the fact that the Falcons have not beaten the Bobcats at home since 1972, BG is favored going into tomorrow's 1:30 p.m. MAC clash at Doyt Perry Field.

HOPEFULLY FOR the Falcons, Coach Devine's new slogan - which is so corny it doesn't bear repeating - will produce better results on the field against OU tomorrow.

"Ohio U. has one of the best offensive schemes in the conference," Stolz says. "(Nineteen) points is the least number of points they've scored against us in the last five seasons, and that's in a conference not known for its scoring.

"They have been one of the most difficult teams to defend - even though they certainly are somewhat predictable. They are not a gambling, go-for-broke type team."

Yet the Bobcats can be a very exciting football team. In the three years that Brian Burke has been OU's head coach, the Bobcats have been one of the most productive offensive teams in the MAC.

BUT LAST YEAR'S offensive unit, which averaged 358.1 total yards, 20.7 points and 219.7 yards passing per game, has been depleted by graduation losses. Among those gone are quarterback Sammy Shon, the MAC's Offensive Player of the Year in 1981; top running back Todd Yoho; star wide receiver Mark Green; and steady tight end Shawn Silcott.

The loss of Shon is obviously the most devastating to the Bobcats, who went 5-6 overall last year and finished fifth in the MAC. Shon led the conference in total offense and threw for 2,366 yards and 14 touchdowns last year.

"He was (offensive) Player of the Year in the conference - that's not bad for a guy who only weighed about 153-pounds," Stolz said. "We don't prepare for ghosts, but how their offense is going to be different - how they are going to attack us differently - I don't know."

"WE'RE TRYING to get a feel for a team that hasn't played a game. This is a different team from the one we played a year ago. There's no way we can be completely ready for it, unless they'd let us go down and film some of their practices."

Burke apparently will go with junior Donny Harrison at quarterback, although he reportedly said in an Athens newspaper last week that the QB job was still unsettled.

"Don Harrison sat the bench behind Shon for three years; he has had just about no experience on Saturday afternoons," Burke said last month at the MAC football meetings at Kings Island. "We had to throw a lot last year because we had Shon - it would have been a waste of his talent not to throw the ball. I do not expect to throw as much this season."

STILL, BG'S defensive secondary - led by veterans Martin Bayless and Jac Tomasello - will be on guard because Stolz said that he expects the Bobcats to throw. Shawn Simms and Kevin Tally will be the other starting defensive backs.

Dayne Palsgrove will start at quarterback for the Falcons, who will be trying this season to improve on their 5-5-1 overall finish of a year ago. Palsgrove started the last six games last season, and led the Falcons to all five of their victories.

"Palsgrove is a good, solid performer. He can play with a little more confidence today because of the experience he gained last season," Stolz said. "The truth about the quarterback, though, is that he's kind of in the middle on the list of importance. If you can't protect him, forget it."

That is why Stolz is especially pleased with BG's offensive line, the unit that he said is the most improved on the Falcon squad since last year.

One unforeseen problem that may crop up tomorrow involves the Perry Field scoreboard. The addition of bleacher seats in the south end zone may block the scoreboard from view for the players and coaches on the field.

"I assume they will have the scoreboard where we can see it. There have been some games where I haven't wanted to see the scoreboard. Hopefully, that will not be the case (tomorrow)," Stolz said.

FALCON NOTES . . . Senior tailback Bryant "Cowboy" Jones and senior defensive end Larry Stratton have been named as game captains for tomorrow's game. In the past, the Falcons have elected captains for the entire season, but Stolz and his staff decided to use game captains for the 1982 season. . . . Linebacker Bruce Bangert, offensive guard Joe Kastl and defensive back Tony Graham will miss tomorrow's game with injuries. . . . Bangert is out for the season. . . . Jones needs just 143 yards tomorrow to become the Falcons' fourth player to gain 2,000 career yards rushing.

BG women linksters begin season

by Tom Hisek
sports reporter

The emphasis will be on youth as Bowling Green's women's golf team opens its 1982 golf season today at Lady Boilermaker Invitational at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind.

Senior Shelley Dye and junior Jean Kempf are the only returning players to make the trip to the 36-hole tournament, which will conclude tomorrow. They will be joined by sophomore Susanne Ohlsson, a transfer from Central Michigan (which dropped its golf program), and freshmen Claire Batista and Terri Gruner.

"I'm looking for Dye and Kempf to lead the team but those five players are awful close in terms of talent. I will be looking for immediate contributions from the freshmen," Falcon coach A.J. Bonar said.

The talent is evident in the new recruits as Bonar tries to regroup a squad that lost five seniors off of last year's team. Ohlsson, originally from Sweden, alternated between the number one and number two spots when she played at Central Michigan. Both Gruner and Batista were the top players on their boy's high school teams.

"We have four or five players capable of shooting in the mid-70's on a given day. And all of the girls are good long-ball hitters," Bonar said.

There are 13 teams entered in the field, including such Big Ten teams as Michigan, Michigan State and Illinois. In last year's tournament, the Lady Falcons finished ninth out of 16 teams.

Bonar said his goal this year is to finish in the top five. The Falcons will be trying to reverse a pattern of mediocrity which plagued the team last season, when they always seemed to finish in the middle of the pack.

"All the best teams in the Midwest will be at Purdue. It will include a lot of teams which we will be playing later on in our schedule," Bonar said of the tournament, which could be a reflection of how his team will fare later on in the season.

The Falcons have revised their earlier schedule. A 36-hole dual match originally scheduled with Ferris State at home for next weekend has been cancelled.

Therefore, in the words of country-western singer Willie Nelson, it's "On the Road Again," for the Falcons as they hit the road for the next three weekends.

Browns' Rucker steps down to make room for young players

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - Cleveland wide receiver Reggie Rucker retired yesterday from the National Football League after spending 12 years with the Browns, New England Patriots, New York Giants and Dallas Cowboys.

Rucker, 34, joined the Browns in 1975 in a trade with New England and caught 310 passes for Cleveland, leaving him 22 short of Gary Collins' club record.

"It's just I think the time has come. I don't like being second to anybody," Rucker said. "I tried. It just didn't fit."

Rucker started 89 of 90 games for the Browns from 1975 to 1980, but was relegated to a backup role midway through last season because of injuries.

"I look at guys we have now and I can picture when I came into the league," a teary-eyed Rucker said. "I remember saying, 'Why don't some of these older guys get their tails out of here so I can play.' I imagine some of these guys are saying the same thing about me."

"THESE TEARS are not tears of sadness. This game has meant a lot to me. Nobody ever wants to leave."

Rucker, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound product of Boston University, joined Dallas as a free agent in 1969 and moved from the Cowboys' taxi squad to the Dallas lineup in 1970. He started at wide receiver for the Cowboys in Super Bowl V against the Baltimore Colts.

He was released by the Cowboys after foot surgery in 1971, then he was signed but released quickly by the New York Giants before being picked up by New England.

He led Patriot receivers with 44 catches in 1972 and was ranked as the top receiver in the American Football Conference with 53 receptions in 1973.

A fractured wrist bothered him in 1974, and he was traded to Cleveland for a fourth round draft pick in 1975. In 12 years in the NFL, he caught 447 passes for 7,065 yards and 44 touchdowns.

"When I look down the list of statistics and teams, I have no regrets about this," Rucker said. "Physically, it became very difficult for me last year. I didn't feel right being out there when it was more because of respect for what you've done than for what you have the potential to do. I just didn't feel that was me."

Rucker said he would continue working for the Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Cleveland.

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - The Cleveland Browns yesterday placed free agent nose tackle Jamie Giles on the injured reserve list and signed veteran linebacker Bob Golic, who was released Tuesday by the New England Patriots.

Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano said Golic would be switched to nose tackle and used as a backup to starter Henry Bradley.

The moves left the National Football League team with 59 players on its roster, which must be reduced to 49 by Monday.

Reigning U.S. Open champion McEnroe strong in first match

NEW YORK (AP) - Riding his booming serve and moving to the net at every chance, top-seeded John McEnroe began the defense of his U.S. Open tennis championship yesterday by downing a stubborn Tim Gullikson 7-6, 6-4, 7-5 at the National Tennis Center.

The two No.3 seeds played night matches. Tracy Austin took on Beth North and Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia played Tim Mayotte.

Advancing into the third round of the men's singles were sixth-seeded Gene Mayer and No.9 Yannick Noah of France, while No.13 Mark Edmondson of Australia was upset by Matt Doyle and No.15 Raul Ramirez of Mexico lost to Schalk van der Merwe of South Africa.

IN THE WOMEN'S singles, five-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd moved into the third round, while No.10 Barbara Potter became the first seed to be ousted.

Mayer defeated Stefan Simonsson of Sweden 6-2, 6-1, 6-1; Noah stopped Brian Gottfried 6-3, 6-4, 6-4; Doyle surprised Edmondson 1-6, 7-6, 6-2 and van der Merwe ousted Ramirez 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

Lloyd needed just 41 minutes to crush Kelly Henry 6-1, 6-1, while Potter fell to Ros Fairbank of South Africa 6-4, 6-1.

The world's richest tournament, America's premiere tennis event runs through Sept. 12, when the singles champions will collect $90,000 each.

McEnroe, completing a match which had been halted by rain and a light failure Wednesday night, showed the agility and mobility that has carried him to three straight U.S. Open titles.

MCENROE AND the right-handed half of the tennis-playing Gullikson twins had traded service breaks and were tied 3-3 before a battery of lights on the east side of Louis Armstrong Stadium went out Wednesday night. Before electricians could get the lights back on, rain, which had delayed play several times, began again and the match was postponed until yesterday.

The two then held serve, sending the opening set to a tiebreaker which McEnroe won 7-2.

McEnroe broke Gullikson in the fifth game of the second set as he began dominating play. The defending champion was holding serve at love or at 15, while Gullikson had to fight back from 15-40 in the third game and from deuce in the seventh. Gullikson took a 3-0 lead in the third set, breaking McEnroe in the second game. But McEnroe captured the next five games before Gullikson held serve, then broke McEnroe in the 10th game.

McEnroe broke right back in the 11th game, although Gullikson fought off four break points before falling. The champion, serving for the match for the second time, then closed it out after going to deuce.

One Menz OPINION

NCAA toying with MAC teams

The new bleacher seats at Doyt Perry Field are enough to make a casual passerby on Interstate-75 burst into laughter.

But members of Bowling Green's athletic department aren't laughing.

Anyone who travels I-75 on Saturdays can see the stadium, a stadium that was rarely filled even when its capacity was 23,272. Now, by adding over 6,000 seats to a stadium that was often close to half-empty for games anyway, the University is running the risk of creating a ghost town-type atmosphere for BG's home games.

The University has had its hands tied, however, by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), an organization that now says a Division I-A football school must have a minimum of 30,000 seats. Thus, the University installed the new seats at Perry Field.

THE NCAA tied BG and the whole Mid-American Conference to the stake when it reclassified the MAC, among others, from Division I-A to I-AA last winter. An NCAA meeting in December will decide whether BG's football program burns at that stake.

The men who run the NCAA circus might be better off to call up the Ringling Brothers and apply for jobs as clowns. In recent years, the NCAA - which is supposed to be the governing body for intercollegiate sports - has projected a floundering self-image.

It is easy to envision those who make the major decisions as a group of Ronald McDonald-types dressed in three-piece suits, sitting around a huge table, smoking cigars and drinking scotch-on-the-rocks until a new idea for an NCAA rule change crosses their minds.

"You just flat out cannot keep up with the NCAA," BG head football coach Denny Stolz says.

SINCE LAST Feb. 2 - when the NCAA first announced that BG and 38 other schools would be dropped from Division I-A - the NCAA has changed their "interpretation" of how a school may qualify for I-A three times.

Even the MAC athletic directors are confused, although BG's Jack Gregory said last Tuesday that he thinks they finally have it figured out.

On Aug. 2, the NCAA said that it would allow schools to count members of the football team, members of the band, student ushers, etc., as those in attendance for a game.

by Joe Menzer

Last week, the NCAA changed its mind. Only members of the band will count in paid attendance figures now.

"How they came up with that, I'll never know," Gregory said.

If the Falcons are to be reclassified I-A after this season, they must average 17,000 in paid attendance over five home dates in 1982. BG Sports Information Director Allan Chamberlin admitted yesterday that he isn't sure what BG officially averaged in attendance last year, because the University's way of averaging attendance and the NCAA's way are so different.

WITH THAT in mind, who can be certain that the NCAA won't come up with yet another interpretation when the season is over - an interpretation that will keep the MAC in Division I-AA once and for all.

It also would be nice if the University could offer $1 seating to its students, something that Gregory says "we would have loved to have had." But again, the NCAA has made that impossible.

Any tickets sold for under 33 percent of the face value of the highest ticket price do not count toward paid attendance figures.

The whole controversy surrounding BG's demotion to Division I-AA stems from the fact that the NCAA buckled last year under the pressure of the College Football Association (CFA). The CFA, made up of 61 of the top football schools in the country, demanded and got what they wanted last winter - reorganization of collegiate football's top division.

THUS, THE institutions exclusive enough to remain in Division I-A now more fully control their own football destiny. They have less I-A teams to compete with for television revenue and they have a better chance of getting what they want when the NCAA meets each year to discuss rule changes.

In short, they are the ones now in power. In the past, the bigger schools often brought proposals to the NCAA that got voted down because they would have cost the smaller I-A schools too much money. Now, the more budget-conscious football schools - like those in the MAC - will not be around to oppose such I-A rule changes.

Being in I-A is not just a matter of maintaining prestige on the football field; it is a matter of dollars and cents - and lots of it. Whether BG remains in I-AA or regains I-A status, its football budget will remain the same, according to Gregory.

The University will not save any money by remaining in I-AA. In fact, the only thing BG can do if it remains in I-AA is lose money. I-A schools like North Carolina, Brigham Young, Oklahoma State, Minnesota and Washington - all of whom are on BG's future schedules - will undoubtedly want to back out of playing I-AA schools like BG. When that happens, teams like BG will no longer be able to secure and collect the lucrative guaranteed contracts that the bigger schools offer.

It now seems that the NCAA is determined to keep schools like BG out of Division I-A. And, despite all the hard work and the equally-determined efforts of all MAC athletic departments, it also appears that the NCAA will do exactly what it wants to do.

If that means barring the MAC from I-A forever, then so be it. The NCAA will see to it that the MAC's appeal attempt after this season does not go through. And if that happens, BG and the MAC cannot appeal again until 1985. By then, the NCAA's Division I-A country club may be even more exclusive - and the Falcons will probably be left on the outside looking in.

Not even another set of new bleachers will be able to change that.

Malone signs with Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Moses Malone, the two-time most valuable player in the National Basketball Association, signed an offer sheet for a reported $13.2 million for six years with the Philadelphia 76ers yesterday.

Malone's agent, Lee Fentress, refused to disclose the terms of the 76ers' offer.

But earlier yesterday, radio station WSSV in Malone's home town of Petersburg, Va., reported the 76ers had offered Malone a $13.2 million contract over the next six years. The station said it was told by Malone that the 76ers' contract would pay him about $2.2 million a year.

"Moses brings a great strength to us offensively," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said at a press conference to announce the signing.

LAST SEASON, Malone won his second MVP Award. He played in 81 games with the Houston Rockets and averaged 31.1 points and better than 14 rebounds per game. In the playoffs, he averaged 24.2 points per game and more than 16 rebounds.

"Most important," Cunningham said, "he has improved every year he has been a professional."

Cunningham said he would rank Malone with the caliber of 76ers forward Julius Erving, the NBA's MVP in 1980-81, but predicted there would be no conflict between the two stars.

"He (Malone) has the ability to make everybody on our team a better basketball player," Cunningham said.

The 6-foot-10 center became a free agent this year after six seasons with the Rockets, who could still match the 76ers' offer and block the deal. Sixers owner Harold Katz said Houston must do that within 15 days of receiving a copy of the offer sheet.

KATZ WAS confident the offer would stand. "To match this offer in Houston would be a tough business deal," Katz said.

Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson said in a telephone interview that he would study the Philadelphia offer before deciding on his next move.

The Rockets offered Malone a contract reported at $1.7 million per year shortly before he became a free agent.

Malone left for The Netherlands yesterday on a promotional tour with several NBA players, but Fentress said the big center was excited at the prospect of joining the 76ers.

The 76ers won the NBA's Eastern Conference title last season, beating Boston four games to three, but lost to Los Angeles, four games to two in the NBA final round.

Malone jumped to pro basketball in 1974 from Petersburg High School, signing with Utah of the now defunct American Basketball Association

UT opens as defending MAC champ

Toledo's Rockets open defense of their Mid-American Conference football title tomorrow night against one of their favorite patsies, Northern Illinois.

Toledo has beaten the Huskies 11 of the last 13 times they have met, including a 31-0 thumping in the last game of the 1981 season. That clinched the league crown for Toledo and sent the Rockets to the first California Bowl.

In another Mid-American game tomorrow, Bowling Green awaits Ohio University. The Falcons were picked to finish second behind Miami in a pre-season media poll. The Bobcats will have a new quarterback since Sammy Shon, the league's Offensive Player of the Year, was graduated.

In other non-conference games, Central Michigan entertains Indiana State, Western Michigan plays visiting Grand Valley State and, at night, Kent State goes to Marshall.

Miami, Eastern Michigan and Ball State do not start their campaigns until next weekend.

The Northern Illinois game will mark the head coaching debut of Dan Simrell, a former Rockets' quarterback who was the architect of Toledo's splendid defense last season. He takes over for Chuck Stobart, now at the University of Utah.

"I'm doing something I've wanted to do for the last 19 years - be the head coach at my alma mater," said Simrell, who keeps nine defensive starters from last year's 8-3-0 squad. However, his offensive line is suspect.

Toledo will be without star tailback Arnold Smiley, sidelined with an injury, but expects to have quarterback Jim Kelso ready for the Huskies. Kelso apparently has recovered from torn knee ligaments that threatened to end his football career.

Northern Illinois' Bill Mallory, one of major college football's top 35 coaches in the last 12 years with an 84-45-1 record, is trying to rebound from his 1981 production of 3-8-0.

"We just didn't play well enough and I didn't coach well enough last year," said Mallory.

Bengals, Redskins clash in duel of preseason winless ballclubs

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Bengals and Washington Redskins have only moral victories to show for their preseason efforts, which climax when the two winless clubs meet tonight in Cincinnati.

Both clubs take 0-3 marks into the final preseason tune-up at Riverfront Stadium. Although they would both like to end the preseason on a winning note, they will have different priorities for the contest.

The Bengals, defending American Conference champions, are looking to fine-tune their impressive offense and sometimes shaky defense, but appear settled on their starting lineups for the regular season.

The Redskins are finding out how they will function without their top offensive weapon, running back Joe Washington, who was hurt in last Friday's loss to Buffalo and is expected to be lost for six weeks.

Neither team is ready to push the panic button over their winless starts. "TO ME, results of preseason games are totally irrelevant," said Bengals' wide receiver Cris Collinsworth. "They don't prove anything, so why worry about whether you win or lose them? And that's why I'm not in the slightest worried that we haven't won any up to this point."

Mistakes have been the biggest preseason obstacle for the Bengals, a team that made it to the Super Bowl last season by not hurting themselves with turnovers and penalties very often. They turned the ball over 11 times in their first two losses, to Kansas City and Green Bay, then set up the Detroit Lions' winning fourth-quarter touchdown drive last Friday by botching a fake field goal attempt.

The Bengals' first-string offense has moved the ball well when it's been on the field, although the defense has appeared a bit generous. The Lions rolled up 15 first downs in the first half last Friday and 242 net yards, running 44 plays to the Bengals' 22. Detroit won the game, 27-23.

THE REDSKINS have dropped games against Miami, Tampa Bay and Buffalo, with the last one the most costly. Joe Washington, the team's top offensive threat last season with 916 yards rushing and 70 pass receptions, hurt his knee and will be out for about six weeks.

Coach Joe Gibbs is expected to abandon his two tight-end, single back offense in Washington's absence and switch to a two-back offense. Fullback John Riggins was expected to start, and former St. Louis Cardinal Terry Metcalf figures to play for the first time since suffering a head injury in the off-season that affected his coordination.

Running back Wilbur Jackson is expected to return to the lineup following a week on the sidelines. Quarterback Joe Theismann, who played the entire game against Buffalo, will start.

The Redskins' kicking game should be settled during the game. Veteran Mark Moseley has gotten a tough challenge from rookie Dan Miller of the University of Miami (Fla.).

Cleveland's secondary much better

BEREA, Ohio (AP) - The defensive secondary of the Cleveland Browns, much-maligned for its pass coverage in recent seasons, is an improved aspect of the National Football League team this year, says veteran cornerback Ron Bolton.

"It's going to be good, you'll see," the 11-year cornerback said. "The guys upfield are doing a much better job. They're putting a lot more pressure on the quarterbacks, which is the real key to good pass coverage."

The Browns' linebacking has been improved through the signing of Tom Cousineau and the expenditure of a No.1 draft choice this spring to acquire rookie Chip Banks.

BUT BOLTON said the secondary play so far in three exhibition games has been much improved over recent seasons. The only major breakdown came when veteran quarterback Ken Stabler entered the game for the New Orleans Saints last Saturday night. In 20 minutes of play, Stabler completed 11 of 17 passes for 149 yards and two touchdowns. The Browns won the game, however, 20-17.

"Don't worry about that," Bolton said. "It wasn't so much Stabler picking us apart. There were a couple blown assignments that he took advantage of, and which made him look like the king of the hill."

"If we had executed the way we should, it wouldn't have been that bad," he said. "But again, remember, Stabler is a veteran
