Israeli warfare resurges

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Israeli tanks and troops surged into west Beirut Wednesday and their gunboats opened up with missiles in a new offensive against Lebanese leftists offensive against Lebanese leftists and Palestinian guerrillas following the assassination of President-elect Bashir Gemayel.

The gunboats opened fire on the oceanside neighborhood of Rouche and the Carlton Hotel area after a ground penetration of about 2.5 miles into west Beirut that the Tel Aviv command said was aimed at prevent-ing a dangerous new linkup between ing a dangerous new linkup between the leftists and some 2,000 PLO guer-

The Moslem half of Beirut was shaken by the naval bombardment as Gemayel's funeral was conducted in a solemn Maronite Christian rite at the packed church in his hometown of Bikfaya, 12 miles east of Lebanon's capital.

THE DEATH of Gemayel, who was to become president next week, threatened to plunge Lebanon into a new round of warfare. The presence of Israeli troops and Syrian forces in eastern. eastern Lebanon also carried the threat of a new confrontation between those two countries.

Weeping bodyguards in the brown uniforms of Gemayel's Phalange Party threw themselves across his flag-draped coffin as the Mass was read in Arabic at Bikfaya's St. Abda's church.

The wooden casket was then placed on an army gun-carriage and taken in a slow-moving procession to the cemetery. A 21-gun salute echoed across the mountain peaks of central Leb-anon as the 34-year-old slain leader was lowered into his grave to the drumbeats of an army band. U.S. presidential envoy Morris Draper traveled from Israel to Leb-anon in time for the funeral. Israeli

Corporation requests show

MTV possible in Bowling Green

by Lou Wilin staff reporter

The Wood Television Corporation made a request to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Tuesday asking permission to televise the Music Television Network in Bowling Green, Roger Wise, presi-dent of Wood Television Corporation, Specifically, Wood Television's re-quest is to eliminate Channel 8, Cleveland, from its offering, because the corporation cannot afford to add one station without cancelling another, he said. He added that the network would be televised for a minimum of three ears. MTV is a 24-hour cable channel which shows rock stars in concerts, interviews and animation. 'Contemporary music is their bit," Wise added that he could see no reason for the FCC to prohibit the move, since Wood Television is trying to meet the demands of its market.

"We're responding to customer de-mand," Wise said. "We've gotten a lot of requests (for the station) in the last 60 days." He added that record stores have asked Wood Television to bring MTV to Bowling Green.

"I THINK students have prompted their request," he said. Wise said that not necessarily everyone would be happy with MTV, but he thinks Wood Television needs to add something different to its cable TV repertoire.

"I would suspect there's always a lot of people unhappy with a change," he said, but added, "It's very appar-ent that another network station wouldn't do much good."

Wise said he did not know how long it would take for the FCC to approve or disapprove of Wood Television's application

"It could take three days, it could take three months," for the FCC to approve the request, Wise said.

IF THE FCC approves Wood Television's application, the company will wait a few weeks before programming MTV, Wise said.

"We could do it in 20 minutes, but we wouldn't," Wise said. "That's just not the way to do it. We have a marketing strategy to pursue and just to sneak it on fast is not the way to do

The advertising campaign would be "in conjunction with MTV," Wise said. "They do the broad outline, we do the specifics."

He added that the campaign may include newspaper and radio advertising and contests.

Monaco mourns death of Princess Grace

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) - The stunned people of Monaco filed in mournful lines past Grace Kelly's coffin Wednesday, in the hilltop palace where the fabled Hollywood beauty first joined them 26 years ago.

Word of her death shocked the people of Monaco because her injuries - reportedly two broken ribs, a frac-tured collarbone and a broken right leg - were thought not to be critical. Although no detailed report on the cause of death was issued, medical experts elsewhere noted that undetected or seemingly minor head injuries sometimes produce cerebral bleeding that can suddenly become LATE WEDNESDAY afternoon, Princess Grace's open casket was put on public view at the palace. Education: Court cites article by prof

by Andrea Spencer

A University professor co-authored a journal article that was recently cited in a Supreme Court decision concerning the educability of mentally-retarded children.

Dr. James Krouse, assistant professor in the department of special education, collaborated with J.M. Kauffman, associate dean of research at the University of Virginia, in writing an article that was published in a 1981 issue of Analysis and Intervention in Developmental Disabilities magazine. The article questioned whether a person placed in an educational environment will be truly edu-

"In my profession I essentially have taken an unpopular stand," Krouse said. "In my article I stated that there is a difference between being educated and being educable."

"ONE FACET of the legal defi-nition of educable is that a child can be provided a program designated as educational, with no guarantee of results such as improved skills," Krouse quoted from his article. "This definition of educability is sufficiently vacuous that we need not belabor its

The article dealt with the dilemma created by the "mainstreaming law,"

Area draft advisor counsels objectors

Scott Carpenter staff reporter

With the reinstatement of the draft registration and President Reagan's threat to prosecute nonregistrants, several people are seeking alternatives to registering, Draft Counselor Reverend Vaughn Maatman of the United Christian Fellowship Church, said.

Maatman said that most of his work as a draft counselor involves work as a draft counselor involves advising persons on creating a conscientious objector file. A conscientious objector, he said, is someone who states that he would not be willing to serve in combat during a war because his moral or religious training coefficient with religious training conflicts with military duties.

One can only obtain conscien-tious objector status after a draft has been instated and he has been inducted, Maatman said. The person must submit a written statement of conscientious objector; three to five letters of support from family, friends, or organizaartions; and, preferably, proof of an affiliation with some sort of religious or peace group, Maatman said. The conscientious objector must prove his affiliations and convictions within 10 days of being instated, he added.

MAATMAN SAID he helps a conscientious objector to prepare these written statements so that if a draft is instated he would be prepared before the ten days expired.

"I will give anyone assistance that asks me for it, in helping them write their letter or reviewing it with them." he said.

Maatman also said that he can help a conscientious objector to get on file with an organization that would help that person establish a Maatman began draft counseling after being trained by the Central Committee of Conscientious Objectors as a college student in the early seventies, during the Vietnam conflict. When the registration was reinstated in 1979, Maatman said he felt it was time to that here into action and hele "get back into action and help people with questions."

Maatman said he views the threat of prosecution from Washington as a scare tactic. He added that to his knowledge there are over 800,000 non-registrants. The number of people that the government is using as examples is "not even a dent in the total number,"

MAATMAN SAID he knows of nonly two other draft counselors in Northwest Ohio – Reverend Ross Miller, also of the UCF church, and a Toledo attorney whose name can only be disclosed as a referral to people needing his assistance.

Treasurer's integrity leaves News boiling

The time has come to question an administrator's integrity In a story on the front page of Wednesday's paper, University Treasurer Paul Nusser said maintenance officials believed a refrigerator in room 324 in Bromfield Hall caused the short circuit which damaged the property of some of the hall's residents.

There were a few people up in arms about the story, including Jim Deliman, a freshman microbiology major who lives in room 324. Deliman said the story was making a liar of him by saying the short circuit was caused by his refrigerator. Deliman added that he had spoken with the University's head of maintenance after the story had run and he had been told that the maintenance department was not sure if the refrigerator was the cause of the short circuit - they were not sure if they would ever know the cause.

Deliman was rightly upset that his refrigerator was pinpointed as the cause of the incident on the front page of this newspaper. We were upset that we printed misinformation, given to us by Nusser.

Deliman took his problem to the top by phoning Nusser Wednesday afternoon. According to Deliman, Nusser told him that a maintenance man had told Nusser a refrigerator was probably the source of the short circuit, and Nusser said he assumed the refrigerator in question was in room 324.

In high school journalism class, we were told never to assume, because when you do, you make an 'ass' out of 'u' and 'me'. Unfortunately for Deliman and the News, Nusser did not learn that

In junior high school, we were taught a code of ethics, another lesson which Nusser must have missed out on. When our reporter, Mike Towle, interviewed Nusser in the treasurer's office, he was informed afterward that Nusser had recorded the interview on a cassette - without Towle's knowledge. When we were told of this, it was tough to stomach that kind of attitude on the part of an administrator, but we realized there was nothing we could do if Nusser wanted to play Dick Nixon in his own office.

What Nusser has done with the tape is where we have to draw the line. During his conversation with Deliman, Nusser said the tape was available for anyone's use if they wished to hear him caution Towle against using Deliman's name in the article (Towle did not realize Nusser had anything to lose by having Deliman's side of the story printed).

Nusser will undoubtedly say that it is his word against ours. Let him, if he thinks the students can trust an administrator any more than the News. That's a strong challenge we are more than ready to accept, and one we are sure he will regret issuing.

The fact we are students makes us no less human than any of the administration, and it certainly does not make us toys Paul Nusser can manipulate at will and discredit just as easily. We gave Nusser an honest chance to express his views of the Bromfield debacle. It's too bad he did not have the integrity to deal with us as well as the student body in an equally honest manner.

Public misses focus of Lattaville issue abor Day weekend's 'Lattaville' protest in City Park was an aunabashed media event designed to bring attention to U.S. Representative Delbert Latta's poor record on jobs in Northwest Ohio. The event was sponsored by the Committee to Save the 5th Congressional District, a non-partisan group of people from all over the 12-county district.

Unemployed families from around Northwest Ohio were invited to dine on bean soup and hotdogs (or Reagan Steaks, as the committee billed them) and to pose for the TV cameras. A 'safety net,' ragged and ripped, was hung up with cards labeling various groups and programs which have fallen through, despite promises of protection from President Reagan. Signs of protest and countywide tallies of the unemployed were hung about the picnic shelter where a few hundred people milled during the Sunday event.

Latta was faulted for his leadership ro in Reagan's eco policies, including his staunch support for defense spending at the expense of social programs, including those which help the unemployed. His protest that inflation is the more immediate problem to be solved falls on incredulous ears when he has been the sponsor of the last two federal budgets - this year's with a deficit approaching $100 billion and next year's which may be in the red by as much as

The protest was the lead story on the 11 o'clock news on both Toledo television stations which covered it. Many area newspapers ran articles on it in their Monday editions. The event was a "success" in the eyes of Alice Bunge, coordinator of the coalition. It dramatized the depression-level unemployment rates of the 5th District, one of many in double digits in Ohio.

But the real story of life in 'Lattaville' was missed by the media. It was not staged for the TV cameras, happening after the crews had packed up their equipment and headed north in their station wagons. There were no newspaper people left to cover the story as the protest ended, the 'events' long over. As coalition members cleaned up, Alice Bunge divided up the leftover food and passed it out to unemployed families, many who had not received a paycheck for over two years. Fourteen families in all received bean soup and hotdogs, enough for a few meals. The gratitude of the families brought tears to Ms. Bunge, who was acting out of a sincere concern for their well-being, not as another media event to win support for Latta's opponents.

This is what unemployment is all about in 'Lattaville' - not going on government relief and draining the budget, but trying to pay for tomorrow's food. Fifteen percent of the 5th Congressional District's workforce is unemployed. That is a lot of families that must be fed.

Accusations unhealthy to Israeli issue

The Middle East is again in the news and most of us have become accustomed to the slew of half-baked and hyberbolic comments and analy-ses that generally attend events in that troubled portion of the globe. I must say, however, that I was unpre-pared for the vitriol and downright nastiness that spewed forth from the editorial and 'analytical' article on Israel published in the September 15th issue of the BG News.

Whatever one's particular attitude toward the recent conflict, it is an affront to the victims of Nazism, both Jews and non-Jews, to associate Isreali military activity in Lebanon with the atrocities of the Third Reich. Isreal had no intention of engaging in a 'final solution' to the 'Palestinian problem' as Mr. Liarakos suggests and any allusion to the brutalities of the Final Solution is an unconsciona-ble distortion of history. As we now know, the figures of Israel 'genocide' were gross exaggerations. As David Shipler of The New York Times, Rowland Evans and other observers have clearly pointed out, Israel often went out of its way to spare civilians in its attack upon Palestinian terrorism. How else do we explain the enthu-siasm with which many Lebanese greeted the Israeli army? How else do we understand the unwillingness of Isreali military officials to enter Bei-rut when they could have easily done so? The editors of the BG News may believe that Menachem Begin is in-transigeant and has ignored serious peace proposals. To equate an under-standable fear of annihilation with the megamaniacal desires of Nazi Germany, however, seriously clouds the issue and raises disturbing questions concerning the objectivity and moral sensitivity of your editorial staff.

And why concentrate soley upon Israeli 'intransigeance' and 'warmongering'? Neither the News' editorial nor Mr. Liarakos bother to discuss the reason why Israel entered Lebanon in the first place – the violence committed by the PLO against both Israeli and Lebanese civilians. Mr. Liarakos notes that for the first time in the PLO against productions in the PLO against part of the first time in the PLO against productions. time in its history, the PLO con-fronted the Israeli army and was defeated. Rightly so, since up until the present confict, it has been directing its assaults upon innocent Israeli civilians. And what about PLO attacks against Lebanese civilians? The devastation that regrettably occurred as a result of Israeli bombings is in a large part the result of the PLO's effort to use Lebanese citizens and structures as shields against potential attack. Even the cynical Arafat recognized that Israel vould be unwilling to engage in a frontal assault upon PLO positions in Beirut if it meant the destruction of innocent lives. Once again, American news reporters and Lebanese officials have clearly demonstrated that the killing and destruction during the seven years in which Lebanon was under PLO and Syrian domination were far greater than the casualties suffered as a result of the Israeli intervention. Indeed, Israel has done Lebanon and the western world a favor by forcing the PLO out of Beirut. And in standing firm against Syrian troops whose guns are aimed at both Lebanon and Israel it anned at both Lebanon and Israel it not only justifiably defends itself but also offers the hope that in the near future, the Lebanese people can once again determine their own destiny in peace and security.

The issues in the Middle East conflict are complex and not easily soluble. Intemperate and irresponsible statements concerning either side does little to inform your readers and serves only to feed irrational hatreds and suspicions.

David Weinberg is an associate professor of history at the University, with an expertise in Nazi Germany.

I love to read the excuses that the University puts forth to cover it's own mistakes. I am refering to the Bromfield injustice, in which University 'maintenance officials' blame the short-circuit on a student's refrigera tor, despite the fact the student had used the refrigerator two months prior to the short-circuit.

Last spring quarter, when my ceiling collapsed, the University told the BG News that my ceiling collapsed due to blasting in the area. First of all, the only blasting 'in the area' was taking place on Wooster Street by Roy Roger's Restaurant. Secondly, why would my ceiling collapse? Ob-viously, the ceiling was in bad shape and not repaired, although reported.

Let's face facts. The University is at fault. How will they handle it if someone is injured or possibly killed? I have pictures of the plaster and asbestos that piled high on my pillow on my bed. Had I blown off my class and remained in bed that day, I most likely would have been injured when the plaster and asbestos hit my head. What would the University have done then? Claimed no responsibility?
In conclusion, I believe this incorrect policy needs changed. If the State and University can change and revise our alcohol policy (which I personally believe has gone to extremes), why can't this mistaken policy be changed? Something has to be done for the University's sake and the next victim(s) of Unversity neglect.

Deferment options critical for students

Have you registered for the draft yet? You know what has happened recently to some people who didn't register. So far, six have been put under arrest, and two have actually been prosecuted. Of the more than a million who have failed to register at this time, that is not very many; but a $10,000 fine and five years in jail is a pretty stiff penalty to pay if you get

Before you registered - or failed to did you talk to someone to find out what your options were? Draft counselling is available, if you look for it. Considering that many government officials are predicting a draft sometime next year, I suggest you start to prepare for it now. If possible, see a draft counselor, such as Vaughn Maatman from UCF. If not, at least read over the information I will give

If a draft occurs, you will have 10 days to comply with it or claim deferment. Being a student will only delay this until the end of the term, or one semester at most here at BG. After that, you are just like anyone else. This is a change in the law since the last draft was terminated in '72, and it is a good idea to be aware of it

There are presently only 16 defer-ment categories. They will not draft you if you are are already or have been in the Active services, ROTC, or the reserves, but that does not matter to most of us. If you are a clergyman or studying to become one, you are also safe from the draft. If you are medically unqualified or a citizen of a foreign country, the draft cannot take you. If you are the last surviving son of your parents, meaning that they have had at least one other who died for reasons other than health, or you have to work to support your family a hardship case – they will not take you. They don't take government officials or treaty aliens, or people who are doing or have done alternative service as a conscientious objector. of all the people left, they will probably not try to draft more than 15 percent, with the other 85 percent being considered in the 'holding category'. This simply means that they can't be. The left two classifications are be. The last two classifications are both types of conscientious objectors.

It is not really necessary to belong to a religion to be a conscientious objector, or CO. All that is required is that you be able to prove some deep moral objection to killing other people or war in general. This leads to the two classifications of CO: noncomba-tants and total CO's. A noncombatant is willing to join the service, but not kill another, so he is assigned to a support or medical position for a standard tour of duty, two years ac-tive or six years in the reserves. A total CO refuses to have any part in the service, so he is assigned to do one year of civilian service, such as Peace Corps or Vista, at minimum wage.

Remember, though, you must be able to prove a CO claim. This means you must have three independent witnesses who are familar enough with your past to substantiate your claim. You must have a history of things you have done on the basis of your beliefs, and a one page statement of what you believe, and also three-to-five letters supporting your claim. If you want to make a CO claim, you must have a proven his-tory, so you should have started assembling your claim already. There are several organizations to help you substantiate your CO claim. One such is the National Inter-Religious Service Bldg., 15th & New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005. Be-sides NISBCO, there are many other similar organizations, such as CCCO and Card.

Even if a draft does occur, chances are low that you would get called up. What will happen is that during a draft, someone in the Selective Service will draw several dates from a bowl. If you were born 19 years ago on that date, then you will be called up. You will be sent a notice in the mail and when you recieve it, will have 10 days to report or file for one of the deferment categories. You cannot file for more than one, nor do you get a second chance if the draft board de-cides your claim is not valid. For the record, the state of Ohio has selected its regional draft boards already, and all that is necessary is that the order for the draft be given for the process

That is practically the limit of my knowledge on the draft. I am not a legal draft counselor, just a person who is concerned about the present situation and is trying to do something about it. If you need more information consult a draft counselor. I did tion, consult a draft counselor. I did, and I am ready to make my claim when it starts. Of course, I am registered for the draft; but when it comes, I won't need to run, or fear the consequences of my actions. This letter will be in my CO file as proof.

'Religion' editorial shows hypocricy

The editorial on public preaching on campus left me with some serious questions. First, I was quite surprised to find your paper speaking out against this form of free speech. How ironic it was to find a guardian of free speech speaking out against it.

Second, I would like to know how one man standing on the oval speak-ing to whomever would stop to listen equates to 'accosting students on their way to classes'? I was always under the impression that the University was an open forum for the exchange of ideas. How can it be that we should be so closed-minded as to not allow the topic of Jesus Christ to be discussed on campus? I know that many students on campus including myself have had our lives changed by the age that these men share. I'm grateful that they're out there pre-senting a subject which will never be presented in the classroom.

Greg Petropoulos

Editor's note: We do not feel a person standing on the oval and speaking is bad. There is a distinct difference between "speaking" and "accosting." I have no qualms about the line "Jesus loves you," but don't you see something wrong with a man yelling to a woman he has never seen before: "Repent, you little slut"? There is a quite a difference. If this "guardian of free speech" were to use language like that mentioned above, we would be faced with a little number called

Actions of Board debatable at best

The new president of the university will arrive on campus some time this week. His arrival at this late date – at least two weeks after the start of classes - will no doubt arouse a lot of bad feelings among both faculty and students. But before everyone gets riled up at him for not being here for the start of semesters - the first time BGSU has been under that system in 14 years - let's take a look at who should really be blamed

The Board of ones who granted him permission to take the time off. The same board who changed the calendar year from quarters to semesters without consulting the staff or students evidently thought the school could get along with out its president for the first two weeks of this crucial semester. So who can blame Dr. Olscamp for taking his scheduled vacation? should he want to be around when the school is trying to adjust to a new system, when complaints of virtually every nature would be coming his way? I say it was a great move taking off the first couple of weeks. By now, faculty and student members have settled into a routine they are used to. Just compare the amount of com-plaining you heard two weeks ago about semesters to how much you hear now.

So when you get mad, don't take it out on the president. Vent your anger on the responsible party, the Board of

If Olscamp's absence isn't enough to make you a little angry with the board, how about this: As part of his contract with the university he was granted tenure in the Philosophy Department. This was done by the Board without even consulting the Philosophy Department.

Now I could be wrong about this but it seems to me that the department with which tenure is going to be granted should at least be consulted. before tenure is granted. But then again, the Board didn't bother asking anyone about semester conversion.

If that isn't enough, how about one more little Board doing? It seems that Dr. Olscamp's wife, who has a Mas-ters in Speech Pathology, has been named director of the Speech and Hearing clinic, by you guessed it, the Board of Trustees. Sure, they are well within their rights to hire who they want to run it, but the fact that Mrs. Olscamp's salary will be higher than many PHD's in the same department makes me wonder a little about the fairnessof this hiring. Oh, one more thing, the speech therapy department wasn't consulted at all about the ap-

So in three easy steps the Board of Trustees has alienated the Philosophy Department, the Speech Therapy Department, the students, and countless faculty members from its incoming president. Nice move, Board. My question would be, do you run your businesses in the same dictatorial style that you run this university?

Enrollment increases in campus ROTC

The United States Army and the Airforce have acted on a growing interest and enrollment in the Reserve Officers Technical Corps in the last few years.

The large interest is reflected in the statistical growth of the number of men and women enrolled in the Army

During the 1980-81 academic year, the number of University enrollments was 290, according to University ROTC enrollment figures. The figures show the academic year of 1981-82 displayed a prominent growth as the

This year, 1982-83, has brought about 225 ROTC participants to the University, and more applicants are expected in the spring semester, Coomler said.

This year, 1982-83, has brought in the spring semester, Capt. will come to us in the hopes of joining in the spring semester," Capt. Coomler said.He also added that the ROTC enrollment usually increases

> CAPT. COOMLER explains that there are three basic reasons for the growth in interest.

First of all, "patriotism is no longer a dead issue," he said, "Viet Nam was a bad influence for the U.S. Now that it has passed, people are willing to become involved again," he added.

Financial aid possibilities have also prompted the enrollment increase. Although there is no aid given to those who are financially disabled, there are academic scholarships available for those who are willing to master the grade.

"Even though the financial aid programs are decreasing in the college area, the government is providing the ROTC program with funds for their scholarships because of a stronger defense for which Congress wants to build," Coomler said.

A college campus is an excellent place for training and educating offi-cers because of the college educational advantages, he said.

"WE TRAIN on college campuses because that is where all the intellegent and bright people are," he said. "This also enables us to bring in students that are citizens who working toward a career in another field other than the army. This is a citizen army, not an inbred army.'

The definite advantage and experience ROTC gives its participants as they leave the service and enter the market also contributes to increased interests, he said.

"It can open many doors," he said.

"That is why we stress the impor-tance of grades and college studies," he added

Cadet Officer Marty Hanrahan, a freshman enrolled in the junior year advanced course after completing a nine week training camp program earlier this summer, said he became involved with ROTC because he al-ways was interested in the military.

"I hope to make a career out of it by serving 20 years," he said. "Af-terwards, I hope to work in the State Department."

The ROTC Air Force program has shown a steady increase in their en-rollment. As of this fall, there are 116 students in the program. Sixty-three of those persons are upperclassmen in the advanced program. Among these students is cadet, 2nd Lt. Mike Hofrichter.

Hofrichter has been enrolled in the Air Force ROTC program for three years. His major goal is to be able to

This calculator thinks business. The TI Student Business Analyst.

If there's one thing undergrad business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Student Business Analyst. Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions-the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

It all means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many. The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom. A powerful combination.

Brezhnev seeks peace

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev called President Reagan's peace plan for the Middle East "basically vicious" Wednesday for de-nying the Palestinians an independent nation, and announced his own proposals for "lasting peace."

Brezhnev's plan is the third major initiative for a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement in as many weeks, and appeared identical to the plan adopted by the Arab summit meeting in Fez, Morocco last week. He seemed to be bidding for a more active role in a settlement by emphasizing the role of the U.N. Security Council or its perma-nent members, of which the Soviet Union is one. Brezhnev also reiterated the long-standing Soviet proposal for an interna-tional conference on the Middle East.

The Fez declaration was adopted a week after Rea-gan laid out his own blueprint for a Middle East jected both the Arab plan and Reagan's, which differs in several respects from both the Arab proposals and the Israeli government's position.

Brezhnev, speaking at a Kremlin dinner for South
Yemen's President Ali Yemen's President Ali Nasser Mohammed, claimed Reagan was merely "pretending to be trying to find a settlement of the Middle East con-flict."
"But the proposals of the U.S.A. are basically vi-cious," Brezhnev said. "They deny the Palestin-ians the right to self-deter-mination and creation of mination and creation of their own state ..."

his own proposals could obtain "a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Like the Fez plan, they call for:

• Complete Israeli with-drawal from the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, includ-ing dismantling of Jewish cattlements settlements.

· Establishment of a sovereign Palestinian state on those territories, including east Jerusalem, which Israel annexed in

• Giving Palestinian ref-ugees the opportunity to return to their former

The Soviet leader said he was "profoundly convinced," in contrast, that pensation for the property they left

 A guarantee of the re-gional peace settlement by the 15-member United Nations Security Council. As an alternative, not offered in the Fez plan, Brezhnev suggested a guarantee by the council's five perma-nent members: Britain, France, China, the Soviet Union and the United States

 Secure, inviolable borders for Israel and its Arab neighbors, including the "right of all states in the area to safe and independent existence."

Japan's traditional public bathhouses bare

TOKYO (AP) - Afflu-ence, inflation and the spread of Western lifestyles may spell the end of a centuries-old Japanese tradition - nude communal bathing.

In Tokyo alone, public bathhouses are going out of business at a rate of one every 15 days. Of 2,314 public baths still operating – down from 2,634 in 1968 – almost all depend on out-side sources of income to stay in business.

"We took a triple blow after the oil shock of the early 1970s," said Masaru Maruyama of the Tokyo Public Bath Owners' Union. "First there was the sharp jump in fuel prices, followed by the need to raise prices. Third was the increase in Japanese homes with private

The sights and sounds of public bathing are still very present in Japanese cities: old people with towels wrapped around their heads, young couples lounging outside the bath on a cool summer evening, the clatter of high-heeled wooden "geta" clogs in the narrow alleyways.

BUT MARUYAMA said only about 3 million people go to public baths in Tokyo less than half the number of a decade ago. In contrast to pre-World War II days, when even the rich would often share their soap in egalitarian soaking, today more than two-thirds of Tokyo households have their own baths. The trend is nationwide, Maruyama said.

Yataro Kawabata,

Tokyo's "old town" area of Ueno, blamed Japan's economic growth for the de-cline of public bathing. Now everyone wants, and is able to buy, their own home with car, color tele-vision, and private bath.

That's the modern concept of paradise," he said. Kawabata, 60, said Japanese still enjoy the tradi-tional bath, boiling out the day's tensions in waters as hot as 108 degrees Fahrconversations with neighbors. Japanese, both young and old, still flock to the thousands of hot springs and "ryokan" inns around country where vacations are centered around leisurely eating, drinking and bathing.

But he said that with the price of admission to a "sento," or public bath, up compared to 48 yen in 1972, "gone is the day when we can just offer hot water.".

MORE THAN half of Tokyo bathhouses have added coin laundries to bolster sinking incomes. Others have tried to combine bathing facilities with saunas, coffee shops or supermarkets.

The Tokyo metropolitan government has come up with a "community sento" concept in which bathown-ers expand or rebuild facilities with game rooms, play rooms, reading rooms, or space for prac-ticing traditional arts.

when bathing was a very social affair.

THE FIRST recorded public bath opened in Edo, as Tokyo originally was known, in 1591. From the start the bathhouse also offered a place where men and women could drink tea and sake, play the board game "Go" or discuss af-

The late 17th century was the brief heyday of "yuna" (water woman) baths, in which young women scrubbed backs, served drinks and were available for other, more Falcons' freshman back-up quarterback Brian McClurelooks over BG's situation in the Falcons Sept. 4th victory over OU.

Frosh McClure impresses Stolz

by Keith Walther assistant sports editor

Bowling Green's Brian McClure was told ahead of time that he was going to play in the Falcon's game against Ohio University back on September 4th, but that doesn't mean that he wasn't nervous anyway.

The 6-foot-6 freshman backup quarterback was initiated into Mid-American Conference football early in the second quarter of that game. Not only did he overcome his nervousness, but did he overcome his nervousness, but he left a big impression upon his coach Denny Stolz.

"McClure was outstanding today," Stolz said after the game. "Once he gets a little more familiar with everything he's going to be a real talent."

It was a little surprising to most how early Stolz used McClure. However what was even more surprising.

ever, what was even more surprising to some was the way he handled the pressure of his first collegiate game.

"I wouldn't have played him if I didn't think he could do the job," Stolz explained yesterday at his weekly press conference. "I have confidence in him. The thought even crossed my mind to start him. I'm glad I didn't though, because Dayne (Palsgrove) played a great game.

MCCLURE, who ran for a touchdown and completed seven of 16 passes for 116 yards in the game against the Bobcats, admitted to being nervous about his debut.

"I was nervous but I wasn't really surprised (about playing)," he said "The day before the game he (Stolz) said that he hadn't decided for sure who was going to start. Now that surprised me!" Stolz elected to go with the more experienced player, the senior Palsgrove. McClure agrees with the deci-

"Dayne probably has more football sense than I do. He really knows what is going on," the Rootstown, Ohio native said. "Dayne had a great game and deserves to start. He really has helped me a lot. So has (senior) Steve Swan (the Falcon's third-string signal coller)

'I was nervous when I went out on the field, but when you have guys like (Shawn) Potts and (Greg) Taylor to throw to and that offensive line of ours, it really calms you down in a Stolz has said that he intends on having a two-quurterback system. In other words, he will play both Palsgrove and McClure. This in itself is something that is looked down upon by many in football, however Stolz feels that it will be successful this season at BG. season at BG.

"DAYNE KNOWS he can play and McClure knows he can play, and I know they both can play," he said. "It's an old bugaboo not to have two quarterbacks playing a lot. I never could understand that. But I think I'm coing to go with two for awhile to see going to go with two for awhile to see how it goes."

Success has come quickly for the lanky McClure. But he realizes that this Saturday's game with Central Michigan will provide a stiffer test than Ohio University did. He also says that he must continue to learn his position; how to read defenses etc. But mainly he knows that he is playing a different brand of football now than he did in high school.

"I went into the OU game with a lead and the guys really were giving me a lot of confidence out there," he caid "it's not always really give to be like. said. "It is not always going to be like

"I was a rollout passer in high school, now, at Bowling Green, I have to get used to being a drop back passer. We used to throw a lot in high school - 25 to 30 times a game. At BG we won't be doing that but we will be passing quite a bit. With my height that's what I'm probably best at."

THE FALCONS will need a strong passing attack and overall strong performance against Central Michigan. CMU has always been tough on the Falcons. So tough that a BG team has not beaten a Chippewa squad in 30 years (since 1952 when the Falcons won 20-7). As a freshman, McClure does not know about the past failures against CMU. And frankly, he doesn't

"All I know is after this game one of us will be first in the conference," he said. "Last year doesn't really matter to me. This year I expect more scoring (CMU defeated BG 6-3 last year) and I expect to win.
"I'm not worried about playing time or anything like that. I set one personal goal at the beginning of the year - to make the traveling squad. I've done that. Every game is going to make me nervous. But me and the rest of the team are anxious to play."

KSU outlasts BG spikers in home opener

by Kermit Rowe sports reporter

A cliff-hanger.
That would probably be the best way to describe last night's womens' volleyball match between Bowling Green and Kent State at Anderson

But, unfortunately for the Falcons, the scales tipped in KSU's favor when it counted, and as a result, BG dropped a 15-10, 14-16, 15-8, 9-15, 12-15 season-opening decision to the visit-ing Golden Flashes.

According to BG head coach Sandy Haines, there was a simple reason why the game was so close - the

"I think when you are that even with a team, you get a game like this," said Haines, who is opening her third year as head coach at BG.

"We both had good hitters. Our weaknesses were in the same areas as theirs. We both had the momentum going at many points. We had a let-down on the serve receiving, and that what made the difference in the match, especially in the fifth game."

The Falcons got the momentum going their way first as they grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first game. KSU tied it at four-all and grabbed a 10-6 lead, but Falcon Tracey Livesay turned in a string of seven straight service points to turn the momentum back to BG and freshman Cheri Pumphrey served the freshman Cheri Pumphrey served the final two points to give the Falcons the first game victory.

THE SECOND game was even closer, as BG spotted the Flashes the first seven points of the game only to rally back with the following nine points to grab a 9-7 lead. The rest of the second game was nip-and-tuck all the way as KSU won it 16-14 on a foul handle by BG.

BG responded to the close second-game loss by playing their best game of the night in the third game. After falling behind 2-0 to the visi-tors, BG rallied with the next four points and to knot the score to 6-6. From that point, the Falcons claimed nine of the next 11 points to take the game rather easily by a score of 15-8. Dawn Pemberton had six points in that game while Pumphrey added

Then came a Falcon dry spell as the Flashes streaked to 13-2 lead in the fourth game. The Falcons managed a small rally in the late stages of this game, but it was too little, too late, as KSU took the fourth game with as much ease as the Falcons claimed the third game, posting a 15-9

"In the fourth game, they were really on with their serves," Haines said of KSU's sudden turn around. "We also suffered from some fresh-man mistakes, such as having the ball in the air and nobody calling for it. But you have to let them (the Falcons started two freshmen last night) make those mistakes, you have to let them learn. Everything was going their way."

THE STAGE was set. The games were even at two. Both teams were even talent-wise; but they were not even in one important factor - mo-cingly seemed to give the momentum factor to the Flashes and as a result, they jumped out to an 11-4 lead. It looked bad for BG.

But the younger Falcons were equal to the task as they pulled to within two points of KSU at 14-12. But the early deficit proved to be too much for BG as the final point traveled out of bounds giving KSU the eled out-of-bounds, giving KSU the game 15-12 and the match at three games to two.

Despite the tough loss, Haines saw a lot of pluses in last night's game.

"Mentally, we are as strong as we have ever been," Haines stated. "The girls kept pushing when they were down. That says a lot about them. They were scrambling exceptionally well. The leaderhip and teamwork are there, we are backing up each other real well.

"For a first game, we played excel-lently. We are playing better now than we ever did last year. We just need some improvement on the serve re-

"When I got drafted, I knew I was a good football player," said Robinson, a 6-foot-4, 265-pound defensive end. "The draft didn't go my way and I just felt deep down inside that I got a raw deal."

Browns' Coach Sam Rutigliano convinced Robinson to put his disappointment behind him.

'Sam came to me and said, 'Look

Mike, don't worry about not getting drafted when you wanted. Just con-centrate on making the team and being a complete football player. You'll make up for everything you've

He had two quarterback sacks, forced a fumble and recovered a fumble in that game, which closed the Browns' season.

with the present. "This game is a separate, individ-ual thing," Gregg said of this Sunday's game at Three Rivers Stadium. "It doesn't make any difference what happened in the past."

The game will be a key one for both teams, as each tries to establish an early-season advantage in the divi-sion. Both were among the NFL's most impressive winners during the first weekend of the season. While the Bengals were shutting down Houston running back Earl Campbell and beating the Oilers 27-6, the Steelers were flashing their Super Bowl form of old by upsetting the secondary and the Dallas Cowboys 36-28. 246 yards and three touchdowns. "Yes, Ken Anderson played excep-tionally well," Gregg said. "Terry Bradshaw was fantastic, too."

Gregg acknowledged that much has been made of the Steelers' new looks on offense and defense, but points out that the Steelers' linebacking and defensive back corps are virtually the same as before.

Bengal jinx to continue? Kenny Anderson exterminates Riverfront Stadium boo birds

CINCINNATI (AP) - Flashback to National Football League Opening Day 1981: Cincinnati Bengals quar-terback Ken Anderson, intercepted twice, is booed by hometown fans and ultimately replaced by Turk Schonert, who rallies the Bengals to a victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

One year later, Opening Day 1982, Anderson completes 29 of 40 passes for 354 yards and two touchdowns, showing the same form that made him the NFL's Most Valuable Player the previous season.

Fan reaction? Wild applause. After leading the Bengals to a 12-4 record and their first appearance in the Super Bowl last season, Anderson no longer is subjected to boos in Riverfront Stadium.

But Anderson, as articulate as he is ow-key, accepts the applause with little more emotion than when he was booed. It's not his style to criticize or alibi when losing, or to get big-headed when he's a hero.

In fact, Anderson is a dull interview. He praises offensive linemen when he's effective and shoulders the blame when he's not. "Lindy (Infante) did a heck of a job calling the plays from the pressbox," Anderson said after the Oiler game. "We mixed the run and pass very

WHAT ABOUT his performance? Anderson's best comment was a private remark to Coach Forrest Gregg which Gregg later revealed - compar-ing fan reaction on the two season

"They (Oilers) were playing a lot of zones," he said. "We're not greedy. We'll take a lot of dinks and dunks." But Bengal receivers rave about Anderson, the master of the high percentage pass.

"Kenny is just absolutely awe-some," said Cris Collinsworth, who set a club record for receivers last season with 1,009 yards and caught Anderson's only "bomb" against Anderson's only "b Houston, a 50-yarder.

"He's not a guy who's satisfied with an MVP season," said Steve Kreider, who has made many clutch plays as the Bengals third wide receiver. "He wants more than that, and that's what makes him so great."

Rockets deal Malone to 76ers

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets traded Moses Malone, the Na-tional Basketball Association's most valuable player last season, to the Philadelphia 76ers yesterday in ex-change for forward Caldwell Jones and a first-round draft pick.

Malone has been an NBA All-Star five times. He is considered one of the the tenes. He is considered one of the top rebounders in league history, and the 76ers need help on the boards.

The Rockets will get the first-round pick in the 1983 college draft that the 76ers received in October 1977 from Cleveland in exchange for the late Terry Furlow.

The Rockets will draft in Cleveland's position in the 1983 draft and Rockets General Manager Ray Pat-terson said the team has a good chance to draft a top player.

"Cleveland won 15 games last year and the club closest to them had 31 victories, so the law of averages suggest Cleveland will not finish very high," Patterson said. Paterson said the Rockets had won 40 plus games the past few years and were unable to draft top picks. Patterson said the trade of Malone was only the first step toward improving the Rockets.

"It's difficult to improve your club if one player is receiving possibly 55 to 60 percent of your total budget, and that's what we were faced with," he

Rockets Coach Del Harris said Jones was an excellent rebounder who could play both center and for-

Man gives his 'right' foot for $100,000

 A man recruited two friends who chopped off his foot with a hatchet to fool investigators in a $210,000 insurance swindle, author-ities said Wednesday. Two men were held on $100,000 ball in San Jose on charges of insurance fraud, grand theft, and conspiracy in a scheme that shocked even hard-ened accident investiga"I just would never be-lieved someone would offer a foot for $100,000," said Milt Smith, a criminal in-vestigator in Sacramento for Farmers Insurance

Two years ago, Farmers paid Robert Paul Yarrington $100,000 after doctors amputated his left foot, virtually severed in a pur-ported accident Nov. 11, 1979, in which Yarrington's motorcycle was supposedly sideswiped by a truck.

Yarrington collected the additional $110,000 on a policy with another company. Its name was not immediately available.

"THIS IS ONE of the most bizarre cases" investigated by the California Highway Patrol, said Sgt. Dave Brewick.

Brewick said authorities were also investigating the possibility that Yarrington, 47, fraudulently collected disability payments after he left his job as a supervisor for computer programmers at Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Details of the alleged scam are contained in court affidavits based on a year-long joint inquiry by the patrol in San Francisco

Until a woman, Connie Martinez, told a San Jose police narcotics officer about the alleged plot, Farmers "considered the case closed," said Smith.

Police prudent toward bikers

- Police acted prudently when they allowed 150 members of a motorcycle gang to run red lights dur-ing a "national run" through Columbus earlier this month, Police Chief Earl Burden says.

"It would not have been prudent for a single police officer or a few police offi-cers to attempt to stop this large of a group without adequate backup," Burden

Burden acknowledged that officers decided to overlook the red light vio-lations by 150 Avengers gang members on Sept. 4. City Councilman Charles Mentel had asked Burden last week to explain why police stood by while the gang ignored several traf-fic signals during its 12mile trip. But Mentel, who earlier had wondered aloud whether people wearing motorcycle jackets were immune from the law, said after a Tuesday meeting with Burden that he accepted the chief's explanation about why police avoided issuing tickets.

"THE ONLY DANGER is, what if they decide to do it again? I wouldn't want them to think they could do it again. We should let them know there would be citations issued," Mentel

Burden said that based on information he had be-fore the gang's planned ride, he decided police should "keep a low profile and continue to monitor their activities with the option to activate officers events by the Avengers during the visit to Columbus, which indicated a problem would develop," Burden said.

New paper sells big

ROSSLYN, Va. (AP) USA Today, a new daily newspaper with ambitions of becoming the nation's largest, was a sellout in its debut Wednesday on the streets of Washington and Baltimore.

Next week, the generalinterest paper marches on Atlanta in the second phase of the Gannett Co.'s plan to have it available every weekday morning in most of the country.

By the end of 1983, Gannett expects to have USA Today on sale in parts of 32 states and within reach of 42 percent of the American public.

In five years, the owners hope the paper will have a circulation of 2.3 million, more than the two million daily sale of the Wall Street Journal, a businessoriented newspaper circulated nationwide.

THE NEW YORK TIMES publishes a national edition that sells about 100,000 copies weekdays and about 200,000 Sundays, according to a Times spokesman who said The Times is aiming at a narrower readership base than USA Today.

Rape: Three Columbus youths victim

BEXLEY, Ohio (AP) -The mothers of two of three children who were beaten and raped while on a picnic in a city park have criticized officials of this affluent Columbus suburb for failing to tell the news media of the assaults.

"People ought to be aware of it. It ought to be in the papers. Residents of Bexley would want to know about it," one of the mothers said.

Four Columbus youths were found guilty Tuesday in the Aug. 25 attacks, which lawyers described as one of the most heinous cases ever heard in Franklin County Juvenile Court.

The victims were two boys, ages 11 and 12, and an 11-year-old girl. The children were having a pic-nic in Bexley's Jeffrey Mansion's Park about noon, when five youths approached them. The incident ended about 25 minutes later, when a po-lice officer appeared in the THE YOUTHS were charged with delinquency counts of rape, gross sex-ual imposition and assault. Committee backs candidates

by Carolyn Balster reporter

The Ohio Conference of the American Association of University Professors, by forming the Political Action Committee, has for the first time become actively involved in the en-dorsement of candidates, Dr. Elliott Blinn, Bowling Green representative to the AAUP-PAC-Ohio, said.

Blinn, University profes sor of chemistry, said AAUP felt it had to defend academic freedom on college campuses.

NEW YORK (AP) - The man who wrote "How to Make Love to a Woman" has been told to stand trial next week for allegedly punching his girlfriend in the face after he found her in their apartment with another man.

"He's not guilty so he's going to trial," defense lawyer Richard Wojszwilo said Wednesday after Criminal Court Judge Jay Gold set a Sept. 21 trial date for lawyer Michael Morgenstern of Hamilton, Ohio.

If convicted of the thirddegree assault charge, Morgenstern faces up to a year in jail.

Morgenstern's book is
No. 12 among nonfiction
books on the New York Times' best-seller list. In it, he urges men to "take in relationships and display sensitivity to-ward women.

Morgenstern, 30, did not appear in court Wednes-

THE AUTHOR is accused of hitting 22-year-old fashion model Ethel Parkson Aug. 5, 1981, several days after he had returned unexpectedly from a busi-ness trip to their East Side apartment and found her

"in the company of an-other man," according to papers filed by his lawyer.

Miss Parks moved out of the apartment Aug. 5. A Criminal Court complaint charges that later that day, Morgenstern went to the apartment where she was staying, knocked on the door and when she opened it, "punched her once in the mouth, fracturing one of the bones in her upper jaw and breaking a

Cigarette tax boost unlikely

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Ohio probably will not increase cigarette taxes, as recommended by a state official, because of a recently approved boost in the federal cigarette excise tax.

That was the consensus Wednesday at a meeting of a joint tax study committee looking at possible tax changes. It will make recommendations to the next legislature.

State Tax Commissioner Edgar L. Lindley recommended to the Senate-House panel earlier the cigarette tax be boosted from 14 to 15 cents a package as part of a broader plan to bolster state revenues.

But Congress enacted President Reagan's federal tax hike and revision bill, which included an increase in the cigarette excise tax from eight Sen. H. Cooper Snyder, R-Blanches-ter, whose southern Ohio district produces tobacco, urged holding the line on the state tax. "Don't touch to-bacco," he said.

THE COMMITTEE omitted cigarettes from a list of possible tax law changes it agreed to study further, asking for revenue data on a number of proposals. The possible changes were gleaned from a 14-page list of recommendations received piecemeal in testimony over the past several months.

One of the study areas will be a 1976 law that sought, in part at least, to prevent property taxes from going up automatically because of inflationary increases in property values.

Rep. William E. Hinig, D-New Philadelphia, co-chairman of the joint committee, said the bill was enacted at a time when property values were

But local government units, including school districts, suffered the loss of revenue growth, he said, adding that "property values now have sort of stabilized."

THE COMMITTEE also agreed at a day-long meeting to consider phasing out the intangible personal property tax, a levy on earnings from stocks, bonds, and other types of securities.

Long-time opponents of the 5 percent tax claim it is unfair because it unduly penalizes senior citizens and others seeking to live on interest from However, the tax yields about $111 million a year, mostly collected and used locally to finance libraries, and the committee did not decide how the revenue could be replaced.

Various elements of the state income and sales taxes also were placed on the study list, without recommendations as to changes in rates

Hinig and Sen. Richard H. Finan, R-Cincinnati, the committee's other cochairman, requested the taxation de partment to provide revenue esti-mates - losses as well as increases which would result from the myriad

The committee scheduled its next meeting for Sept. 28.
