Board votes to not refill empty posts

by Amy Burkett
staff reporter

The University's Board of Trustees is reducing personnel costs $1 million by not refilling more than 20 full-time faculty positions.

The reduction is 1 percent of the University's entire educational budget.

Christopher Dalton, vice president of Planning and Budgeting, said the Faculty Senate Budget Committee and the University Budget Committee submitted personal recommendations that would not necessitate a large tuition increase, considering the limited subsidy increases.

"The reduction means that 20 to 25 positions throughout the University will not be refilled," Dalton said. "But at least half of those positions are already vacant."

There was some discrepancy among the trustee members on whether or not they should approve the personnel budget cuts.

Trustee Virginia Platt voted against the proposal at the Dec. 18 meeting.

"The committee was already in session when I received the information so I did not feel that I knew enough about it to be in favor of it," Platt said, "since it affects the College of Arts and Sciences the most and that in turn affects a very large number of University students."

"I am concerned what the outcome will do to the students."

According to Dalton, the College of Arts and Sciences had the largest number of positions not to be refilled.

County jail work program viewed

by Kelly Rose

Inmates at the Wood County jail may soon have the option of earning money while serving their sentences.

County Commissioners are considering beginning a prison work program that would allow inmates to earn a salary while working in food services, janitorial or other prison duties. Room and board funds would first be taken out of the inmates wages.

Linda Amos, jail project director, said the inmates who chose to take part in the optional program will probably earn minimum wage.

"None will come out of jail millionaires," she said. The Commissioners are studying a pilot program that would be put into use at the Wood County jail and further expanded upon once the new county jail to be located on East Gypsy Lane is completed in 1989.

Soviets to attend Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced yesterday that it will attend the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. The decision clears the way for Soviet and American athletes to face each other at the Summer Games for the first time in 12 years.

The decision of the National Olympic Committee was reported by the official Tass news agency.

Tass said the committee made the decision "guided by the Olympic ideals and the interests of strengthening the unity of the international Olympic movement," and because of the Games' role in fostering peace and international understanding.

All Soviet-bloc nations, except Romania, boycotted the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, claiming they were given insufficient security guarantees for their athletes.

That boycott was widely seen as Soviet retaliation for the decision by the United States and 65 other countries to stay away from the 1980 Moscow Olympics to protest the USSR's military drive into Afghanistan the previous year.

A Soviet boycott of the Seoul games had been considered possible because of disputes between communist North Korea and U.S.-allied South Korea, which has no diplomatic ties with Moscow and its allies.

North Korea demanded in 1985 that it be made a co-host of the Games. The International Olympic Committee offered to let North Korea stage five events, but North Korea has insisted on hosting not less than half of the Games.

Five rounds of talks between North and South Korea under the auspices of the IOC have failed so far to resolve the issue.

Student/artist killed

by Rebecca Thomas
staff reporter

A University student and award-winning artist died in an automobile accident Dec. 21.

Junior painting and mixed media major Craig Schnuth, of 14120 Powell Road, Portage, was killed when his car hit a bridge abutment on Kramer Road, according to his father, Gary Schnuth.

Schnuth

Schnuth was originally from Bowling Green and graduated from Bowling Green High School in 1983.

Schnuth had recently returned from the Penland School of Crafts, Penland, N.C., and was planning on starting a fellowship at Penland, Mr. Schnuth said.

"Since he kind of put the University on hold to go to Penland, he wasn't really sure when he was going to graduate, but it was going to be soon," Mr. Schnuth said.

A special interest in glassblowing prompted Schnuth to plan an exhibit called "A Gathering of Glass" along with Rosemarie Basile, owner of Currents, 126 E. Wooster. The exhibit, which was planned a year ago, will feature work by University students Michele Khouzam and Brett Young along with Schnuth's work, Basile said. "A Gathering of Glass" will start today and end with a reception on Jan. 30, Basile said.

Schnuth's work has been featured in several shows throughout Ohio, including the Ohio State Fair Fine Arts Exhibition and the All-Ohio Show at the Canton Art Institute. He was also involved in the 52nd Tri Kappa Regional Artist Exhibition at the Fort Wayne Museum of Art.

His awards included two glass scholarships from Penland School of the Crafts and the University's School of Art Special Talent Award.

A scholarship fund has been established and donations are being accepted, Mrs. Schnuth said.

Former BG prof dead, 81

Eugene Lukacs, the first University faculty member to be named Distinguished University Professor, died Dec. 21 in Washington, D.C.

A former professor of mathematics and statistics, Lukacs was 81.

Born in Hungary in 1906, he was raised in Vienna, Austria. In 1930 he received his doctorate from Vienna's University and the Institute of Technology. A year later he was granted the degree of actuary, the European standard for the degree above a doctorate.

Mistake delays class schedules

by Catherine Hoehn
staff reporter

A "vast majority" of University students did not receive classroom schedules in the mail, along with their grades, due to a "human error" on the part of someone in Computer Services, according to University Registrar Duane Whitmire.

Due to a mix-up caused when someone in the computer services office misread Nov. 13 as Nov. 3, many students did not receive their classroom schedule for spring classes along with their fall semester grades.

"I've been here 15 years and I've never run into this situation," said Ronald Thompson, director of computer operations.

Computer Services randomly assigns many of the classrooms in which certain classes will be held. However, "some departments have the ability to pre-assign certain rooms that they know they will be using," said

Susan Pugh, director of registration and scheduling.

The weekend of Nov. 3, the students' class schedule programs were run by Computer Services, as were the building and classroom schedules. Thompson and his staff found they had to create an entirely new program to erase the inaccurate information while retaining the students' schedules.

"I went in (to the office) the next morning thinking everything was peachy keen, only to find we had to write a special program...to save from losing all the information on the files, to clear the buildings and rooms off," Thompson said.

It took employees 12 hours to rework the program, according to Thompson. After the computer work, one individual in the Registrar's office works on arranging classrooms and takes into consideration which instructors need

Senior dies New Year's Day in unrelated incident

Senior psychology major Scott Sheley died New Year's Day when he choked on a piece of food.

Efforts to revive Sheley, 23, of Eaton, were unsuccessful, according to his former roommate, David Bowling, junior education major. He was on a street in the Oregon District, of Dayton, when the incident occurred.

Sheley was the son of Glen and Betty Sheley, of Eaton.

Bowling said he also roomed with Sheley two years ago.

"He was the nicest guy you would want to know," Bowling said. "He loved life. There isn't much to say, nothing can be done now."

Sheley was also a volunteer at The Link.

New city officials sworn in

"And days of auld lang syne..." The good old days have long since passed, and with the new year in full swing, a changing of the guard has occurred in the city government.

New city officials who took the oath of office Jan. 4 include, Edwin Miller (mayor), Donald Pond (Ward 1 city council), Jeffrey Gordon (Ward 2 city council), Thomas Anderson (at-large city council), and Patti Kopp (clerk of council).

Miller defeated Patrick Ng in last November's elections to replace the retiring mayor Bruce Belard. Pond, a sophomore accounting major, ousted incumbent council member Jim Davidson in the first ward, while Gordon won the ward two seat over Keith Gorajlske.

Anderson, who fills Miller's at-large post, defeated Pearl Wotschak, and Kopp was hired to replace acting clerk of council Karen Radish.

Third Ward Council Member William Blair and Fourth Ward Council Member William Herald were each elected to their third terms.

John Quinn and Joyce Kepke began the second year of their terms as at-large council members, and council reappointed Quinn as president.

The new officials were sworn in by Bowling Green Municipal Court Judge James Bachman. The next council meeting will be Jan. 18, at 8 p.m. in the council chambers, 304 N. Church St.

Where will it end?

The infamous Pittsburgh oil slick has now slid through three states and is expected to affect yet more cities as it continues to pollute the nation's waters.

The slick has caused headaches and money losses for many residents of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. But the saddest part of the situation is that it could have easily been prevented.

The tank that crumpled and spilled 1 million gallons of diesel fuel into the Monongahela River was 40 years old, and unable to hold the oil. Ashland Oil Co. officials should have realized that fact before the disaster occurred.

Instead, the Ashland officials chose to falsely claim that the tank was made of brand new steel, and were later forced to admit that the tank had never been inspected in the first place.

After coming clean with those facts, the company should now be willing to accept responsibility for the damages caused to individuals who have been financially hard hit after having to close their businesses.

But officials are refusing to compensate individuals.

The company should rethink its position on this matter and respond more sympathetically to those who lost money because of Ashland's negligence.

Otherwise, the company will lose more than the 3.5 million gallons of oil and the cost of cleanup. It will lose any credibility it may still have left.

Past mistakes irrelevant

By Mike Royko

A newspaper in downstate Illinois has raised the question of whether Jesse Jackson once cheated on some sort of English paper while a freshman in college.

The paper said it's possible Jackson lifted a few paragraphs from a magazine article and passed them off as his own writing.

This, the paper said, might be why Jackson left the University of Illinois after his freshman year—because he was caught committing plagiarism.

The whole issue is kind of vague because the professor who taught the class says he doesn't remember, Jackson denies it, and the newspaper apparently doesn't have any documented evidence.

But because Jackson is a presidential candidate, and the story has been printed and picked up by the wire services and the networks, it is now considered news.

So I'm going to raise another question. It is a question that more editors should ask before they decide to publish something that is supposed to be an expose.

The question is: "So what?" Yes, I know that we're going through a goofy phase in journalism in which we are supposedly looking into the "character" of presidential candidates.

But is what someone did 27 years ago while a college freshman really relevant to judging his character today?

I suppose it might be if he had burned down the administrative building or robbed a bank. But lifting a few sentences from Time magazine? The worst he can be accused of is having poor literary taste.

Under certain circumstances, plagiarism can be a serious legal matter. If best-selling writers are caught stealing somebody else's words, as some have, it can cost them a bundle of money and taint their reputations.

But college students? They filch words all the time and are seldom found out.

It should also be noted that Jackson was at Illinois on an athletic scholarship to play football. Are we to believe that all of the hulks who have gone through four years of football at Illinois are held to the highest academic standards? If you believe that, you've never heard football players being interviewed.

I gather that these allegations are newsworthy because in the past Jackson has said he left Illinois because he was black and would not be able to play quarterback.

So if it turns out to be that he left for other reasons, it would mean that he has not been telling the truth about why he switched to another school.

Once again, I ask, so what? A recent study of job applicants shows that the vast majority of people tell one kind of small fib or another when they compose a resume. They know that most potential employers aren't going to check all the details.

Does that make it right? No, but it doesn't mean that it's a big deal, either, unless you're a medical school dropout who is doing brain surgery.

What we have here is not any evidence of a flaw in Jackson's character. Considering his troubled origins, the fact that he got any kind of scholarship in the first place is to his credit. And the fact that he eventually got through another college is to his credit. So is the fact, whether you like him or not, that he's come a long way from the illegitimate black kid from the South.

What we do have here, though, is another example of political investigative reporting running amok.

This isn't Gary Hart arrogantly flaunting his trouserdropping while a major political figure. Or even a Joe Biden being dippy enough to filch the colorful words and background of a presidential politician while he's a Presidential candidate.

This is about what a person may or may not have done while in his teens and a college freshman.

What makes the whole thing even more ridiculous is that we're talking about words and the possibility that Jackson may have stolen a few.

Does anyone who has heard Jackson speak really think he needs somebody else's words? If anything, the man has 10 times more of his own words than he needs.

OK, what sensational revelation can we expect next? Ah, I know — Paul Simon may have cut a class and gone for a malt while in high school.

Revolutions start small

By Mike Doherty

In the face of the barrage of media-oriented lists of New Year's Resolutions we have all been bombarded with in the past two weeks, I quietly made one to myself that I would not resort to such a stock, common theme for my first column of the new semester.

So, in keeping with the ability I have shown to stick to other resolutions in past years, here it is anyway.

See, as I was moving back into Prout on Sunday, I had the misfortune, er, opportunity to run into - literally - my old next-door-neighbor Spuds Grobnik.

After getting our legal obligation to say "How was your break?" to each other out of the way, the Spudster's first question to me was, "So, pal, what are your resolutions for the New Year?"

Well, Spuds, I've firmly resolved never to make any more resolutions.

"Har har. That's pretty funny. Did you write that one yourself?"

Now it's true that virtually every comedian in the world has used that line at one time or another, but I was taken aback by Spuds' unabashed sarcasm. He's never been one to enter into a battle of wits with anybody, as going into any kind of duel unarmed can prove dangerous.

So what's the deal, Spuds? Why the sudden burst of critical thinking?

"Well, it's just that I think way too many people pass up this opportunity every year to make a change in their lives. I think everyone should try to enter a New Year with resolutions to make themselves better people."

That's very noble, Spuds, but I really think your Uncle Slat would be disappointed at your naivete. Sure, I could draw up a list of ways I'd like to improve myself, but realistically, I never ...

"Name a couple."

What? I really don't think that's any of your ...

"No, seriously now - if you're so sure that New Year's Resolutions are unrealistic, I'm curious as to what yours are."

Well, like I said, none this year - but if I were to make a list, I suppose it would include all the regulars: getting in shape, staying organized, saving more money ... but those are my New Year's resolutions every year, and I never even make it to February with any of them.

"Now, see, that's just the problem. Keeping New Year's resolutions is unrealistic, for you, because the kind of resolutions you make are unrealistic. In fact, they're not even resolutions, really."

Oh no? Then what, pray tell, are they?

"They're revolutions - you're trying to change your whole way of life without making specific resolutions as to how you're going to go about doing it. Saying 'I'm going to be organized this year' is great, but it's such an abstract idea that it's too easy to go back on."

"If you start with a whole bunch of little resolutions - like, say, 'I'll actually use my datebook this year so I know when things are due' or 'I won't haphazardly dump stuff on my desk' - things you can resolve to do every day, then you aren't overwhelmed by the complexity of the revolution you're pursuing."

"Then, before you know it, the revolution is successful, and all because you made your resolutions reasonable."

Spudster, you're amazing. I never thought about it that way before - and it does make a lot more sense your way. When did you get this brilliant revelation anyway?

"Oh, no big deal. I've always been brilliant - it's just that this year I've resolved to share it with everybody."

Doherty, a senior English major from Bowling Green, is a columnist for the News.

King's dream remains basically unfulfilled

Harriet Tubman was one of those who started a 'journey.' Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was another. Many others have also given of themselves so that their Black brothers and sisters could further themselves as a people.

While Dr. King's dream remains basically unfulfilled, he did manage to see substantial strides being made towards its final fulfillment. By the time he was assassinated in April 1968, Dr. King had reached the point of advocating basic and fundamental changes for the transformation of American society.

During what turned out to be the last year of his life, he had started to speak out more linking the Black struggle in the U.S. with international issues. His 'Beyond Vietnam' address on April 4, 1967 in New York's Riverside church marked his first major public speech calling on his government - the U.S. government - to cease being the 'greatest purveyor of violence in the world.'

Later on, the most significant of Dr. King's last radio addresses came over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's December 1967 Massey lectures.

Among the things that we must remember King said was that nonviolent protest must progress to the higher level of mass civil disobedience because of heightened Black impatience and firmer white resistance in the struggle for justice and equal rights. He once again called for an end to American involvement in Vietnam and stated that there should be support for the struggles of poor nations and poor people against the old systems of exploitation and oppression. He pleaded for America to 'stop spending more money on military defense than on programs of social uplift' as he argued that such action brings the nation 'toward approaching spiritual doom.'

Dr. King pointed out that America's young people were beginning to recognize that international problems were interconnected with their own local problems. He re-stated that a world perspective was needed by citizens of the United States because to achieve peace in the world (America was 'at war' in Vietnam in 1967) and to have goodwill towards other humans, a belief in the ultimate morality of the universe was essential.

At this time when we celebrate Martin Luther King's birthday, we in the Progressive Student Organization remember King for his words, and work for the ideas and ideals that he so eloquently expressed and left as a part of his very important legacy.

University prepared to deal with AIDS threat

I am writing in response to the Dec. 2 editorial, "AIDS Education Must Continue."

I appreciate your fervor about the seriousness of the threat posed by AIDS and the need for education. I want to assure you that the University administration is not underestimating the severity of the problem. There has been an extensive education program, not only this semester, but for the past two years. Education efforts have included distribution of pamphlets, guest lectures in classes, evening and noon programs, BG News articles, workshops for student and staff groups, and individual counseling, in addition to the English proficiency exam.

As to the question of a written policy, I would like to suggest that study, discussion and planning can, and have, taken place without creating a written policy. It may not be useful to prepare a written plan that tries to address all possible problems, particularly when our knowledge and understanding of AIDS is evolving rapidly. However, it is a mistake to equate the lack of a written plan with a lack of preparation. I assure you the University is prepared to deal with a student with AIDS.

New attorney named

by Julie Wallace
assistant wire editor

The recently appointed city attorney for Bowling Green is following in his father's footsteps.

University graduate Michael Marsh, an attorney with the law firm Marsh and Marsh, 249 S. Main St., was appointed city attorney by Mayor Edwin Miller at the Jan. 4 City Council meeting.

Marsh replaced Patrick Crowley, who held the position for 12 years under the administration of former mayor Bruce Bellard.

Richard Marsh, Michael's father, was city attorney for 16 years. Local attorney John Cheetwood followed him in the position and was replaced by Crowley.

Miller said the appointment is appropriate because Marsh is an "outstanding attorney in Bowling Green," and is a fourth-generation resident of the city.

"He works well with all the people in Bowling Green and is very active in trying to help downtown improve its position in the competitive market," Miller said. "He really knows the city."

Marsh, a life-long resident of the city, graduated from the University in 1976 and obtained his law degree from Ohio State University in 1978.

Following graduation, he returned to Bowling Green and joined his father's law firm.

The city attorney position requires Marsh to advise the city departments and agencies on legal matters, defend city employees in legal cases, handle property negotiations for the city and review any bonds and contracts the city enters into.

City legal positions filled

by Julie Wallace
assistant wire editor

As Mayor Edwin Miller's administration takes shape, two positions were recently filled when the city attorney appointed the new city prosecutor and the assistant prosecutor.

Michael Marsh, appointed city attorney on Jan. 4, named attorney Mark Reddin as city prosecutor and reappointed attorney Jodie Stearns to the assistant prosecutor's position.

Reddin, of the law firm Reddin and Reddin, 136 N. Main St., is also the city prosecutor for Pemberville. Marsh said Reddin will "probably continue doing both positions."

Reddin was unable to be reached Monday for comment.

As the part-time assistant prosecutor, Stearns continues in the position following a 20-month term under former mayor Bruce Bellard. Stearns was first appointed to the special requirements, such as access for the handicapped. The completion of this process takes six weeks.

Whitmire, Thompson and Pugh, after reviewing the situation, decided to go ahead with the backup file, and to go ahead and send grade cards home to the students without the classroom schedules on them.

About 3,000 students did receive their classroom schedules with their grades if their instructors turned in their grades later than the Dec. 21 deadline. For those students who did not, schedules were mailed first-class to all on-campus residents, on-campus mailboxes and to students with no on-campus address. According to Pugh, about 200 schedules were not inserted in the on-campus mailboxes of off-campus students.

"They were left sitting there in a box...I don't know why that happened," she said.

She said second copies of the schedules are available on the second floor of the Union, and the information is posted around campus, including various resident halls, the Union and the Administration Building.

Whitmire said costs to correct the error were high.

"It cost $600 for postage alone," he said.

New director chosen

Hilty has high expectations for $14 million changes

by Tim Maloney
copy editor

Thomas Hilty received an early Christmas present from the University. At the conclusion of fall semester Hilty was named director of the School of Art, and said he hopes to lead the school through major changes. Foremost of these changes is a plan approved by the Board of Regents for an addition to the Fine Arts building, Hilty said. The addition, which will cost more than $14 million, will eventually bring all art students back into the Fine Arts building.

Hilty had been interim director of the School of Art since the summer of 1986, when former director Maurice Sevigny left unexpectedly.

"I was not pursuing the position at that time," Hilty said. "I was as surprised as anyone else when Dr. Sevigny left."

During Hilty's term as interim director, the School of Art conducted a nationwide search for a new director. He remained in the interim position until the nationwide search was scrapped last semester.

Hilty applied for the position last semester when an in-house search for a new director was initiated.

"When I had the position for a year, then it opened up in-house, I was very interested," he said. "I've had an opportunity to initiate a number of things and I want to see them through."

The addition to the Fine Arts building, Hilty said, is expected to be completed by 1992. Hilty has been hired for a five-year contract, and expects to see the addition completed.

"We fully expect to go through with this project," he said.

Like the building itself, the School of Art is going through changes. Hilty said he has hired a number of new faculty and will continue to do so.

Hilty has been with the University since 1968, and said he has seen major changes over the years.

"I came here during the beginning of the building boom," he said. "The campus has come very close to doubling in size since I've been here."

Budget

Continued from page 1. dollar amount cut, $190,000 or 1.1 percent, but it was not the largest percentage cut. Dalton said the University's operating budget was reduced $169,417 or 2.55 percent.

"We've already cut $1 million off the expense side of the budget," he said. "But the general cost of living will rise, approximately 4 to 5 percent for the next year and we have to accommodate for that."

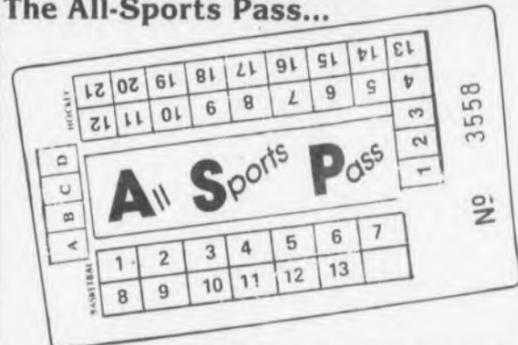

"If the budget were to remain the same next year as it was this year, this reduction would prevent a 2.5 percent fee increase in tuition."

Although the cut will mean a reduction in full-time faculty members, Dalton said he did not think there will be a large impact on the students.

"Since a number of these positions are already vacant the students will notice a small increase in the number of classes taught by part-time faculty members instead of full-time ones," Dalton said. "There should be no significant impact on the availability of classes."

Dining hall work delayed

by Jeff Batdorf
staff reporter

Renovations for Harshman Quadrangle's dining hall will continue for more than two weeks past the Jan. 5 deadline, according to Jane Schimpf, director of Food Operations. Schimpf said she is enforcing a $750-a-day liquidation damage clause on the contractor, the Spieker Company, to move up the completion date of the project. Renovations will continue at night and the cafeteria will remain open during the day. The project which began Dec. 6, was delayed because of late deliveries of materials, according to Norman White, president of Spieker. "We didn't get deliveries on some manufactured casework," he said. White said he hopes to have the casework delivered sometime this week and hopefully have the renovations done by next week. Some of the things that still need to be renovated include cabinets, dividers and counter-tops. The renovations are part of a two-phase operation for Harshman's dining hall. The first phase was completed about three years ago when new chairs, a salad bar and an ice machine were installed. The second phase was scheduled to take place over the summer, but due to fear of going over budget, the second half of phase two was postponed until this winter, Schimpf said. The renovations include a rebuilt beverage area and a new cashier stand. Because cost estimates for the renovations were lower during the winter, renovations are now taking place at the cafeteria. The costs were set at $57,000 during the winter instead of the $82,000 estimated during the summer. The first part of the second phase of the work, the replacement of carpeting and draperies, was completed during the summer. Some cafeteria employees were laid off work because of the limited number of jobs available after renovations started, Schimpf said.

Reddin

Continued from page 3. position by the former city attorney, Patrick Crowley and worked under former city prosecutor, Michael Crowley. Marsh said the term length for the positions is "usually four years," but can be shorter. "It is in theory at the discretion of city council how long someone remains in the positions," he said. The duties of the city prosecutor, Marsh explained, involve any prosecutions enacted by the city in Municipal Court.

Inmates

Continued from page 6. Amos said putting inmates to work will make them more responsible once their sentences are over. "In most cases, jail just makes a person angrier and working will give the inmates the responsibility of paying rent like everyone else," she said. The proposed program was formed while county commissioners traveled to jails in search of new ideas for the future Wood County jail, Amos said. No definite plans have been set for the pilot work program but, Amos added, the program should be started by next spring if the committee formed to study the proposal accepts the program.

Lukacs

Continued from page 1. Lukacs came to the United States in 1939 to continue his statistical studies and familiarize himself with American and British literature on Theoretical Statistics. He taught in Baltimore from 1940-1942 before holding various positions at Illinois College, Berea College, Ky., and Our Lady of Cincinnati College. Lukacs was appointed Head of the Statistics Branch of the Assessment Division, U.S. Naval Ordinance Test Station at China Lake, California in 1948. He left the position two years later to join the National Bureau of Standards as Head of the Statistics Branch. In 1955, he became the director of the Statistical Laboratory at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. Upon his retirement in 1972, he was named Professor Emeritus at the University. Lukacs came to the University in 1972 and was on the faculty until 1975. In 1973, he became the first Distinguished University Professor. He was also editor of the Academic Press series in probability and mathematical statistics and he wrote five books and over 100 articles during his life time. Lukacs is survived by his wife, Elisabeth Weisz, whom he married in 1935.

A103 Art and reason

When Mark and I decided to spend the weekend at his mother's house, I never imagined I would be walking into a mouse's nightmare. There were cats everywhere.

Cat plaques, cat statues, cat clocks, even a cat mat. I couldn't begin to duplicate her collection of kitty litter if I spent a year at a garage sale. Conspicuously absent, however, was a real cat. Strange, I thought, and began to fear that a weekend with cat woman could be a lot less than purr-fect.

But then she came home, and Mark introduced her. She was dressed surprisingly well—no leopard pants. In fact, you could say she was the cat's meow, but I'd rather not.

She offered me a cup of Dutch Chocolate Mint. Now that was something I could relate to. Then she brought it out in the most beautiful, distinctly unfeline china I'd ever seen. As we sipped, I found out that Mrs. Campbell has my same weakness for chocolate, loves the theater as much as I do, but, incredibly, never saw "Cats." So Mark and I are taking her next month.

Reagan aids Voinovich race

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Reagan stirred Ohio's political waters yesterday with a quick visit to boost the U.S. Senate campaign of Republican Mayor George Voinovich and an appearance before Cleveland's City Club.

Reagan spoke before a luncheon audience of about 1,350 at The City Club, which routinely hosts famous speakers. The president met with 350 Voinovich backers who paid $1,000 each to the campaign for a few minutes with the president.

Voinovich said his campaign netted about $250,000 from the fund-raiser.

Voinovich is seeking to unseat U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Reagan arrived at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport aboard Air Force One and was greeted by Voinovich and Gov. Richard Celeste. The governor said he spoke briefly with Reagan about Ohio's elimination as a site for the $4 billion Superconducting Super Collider project.

Ohio was not among a list of finalists for the project. Celeste said Reagan smiled and said, "They didn't put California on the list, either."

Reagan opened his City Club remarks with a mention of the Cleveland Browns' 38-21 NFL playoff victory Saturday over the Indianapolis Colts.

"It's great to be in Cleveland today, home of the Browns. Congratulations on your big victory. When I was at Camp David on Saturday, I heard a lot of barking, and it wasn't coming from Nancy's dog," he said.

Ohio River returning to normal

by the Associated Press

Life was back to normal in eastern Ohio river towns Monday, only days after a diesel oil spill created water emergencies in cities that draw their water from the Ohio River.

"Things are running nice and smooth right now," said Robert Bomer, water superintendent in Bellaire, Ohio, across the river from Wheeling, W.Va. "We're back to normal. We're running some additional tests, but we don't anticipate any problems."

The fuel, which spilled Jan. 2 into the Monongahela River south of Pittsburgh, headed south from Wheeling to Sistersville, W.Va., Monday. The spill occurred when a 40-year-old Ashland Oil tank crumpled as it was being filled.

The slick has traveled more than 100 miles on the Monongahela and the Ohio through Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

2 win lotto jackpot

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two tickets were purchased correctly naming all six numbers drawn last Saturday night in the Ohio Lottery's semiweekly "Super Lotto" game.

The winning numbers were 16, 21, 29, 33, 35 and 43.

Jackpot winners will share a prize of $32 million. Each will be paid a total of $16 million, in 20 annual installments of $800,000.

There were 651 tickets, worth $1,000 each, correctly naming five of the six winning numbers. There were 33,409 tickets, each worth $84, naming four of the six winning numbers.

Sales from the game amounted to $22.5 million.

The manager of a suburban Cleveland delicatessen said a woman called him Sunday and said he had sold her a winning ticket in Saturday's drawing.

"I have no reason to believe it was a hoax," said Kevin Kelley, manager of Audrey's delicatessen in Parma. "There were sounds of celebration, shouting and laughing, in the background. She told me, 'I remember you sold me a ticket and I'm going to take care of you.'"

The delicatessen is the largest seller of lottery tickets in Cuyahoga County and three million-dollar winning tickets have been bought there since 1986.

The "Super Lotto" drawing Wednesday night is worth an estimated $3 million, lottery officials said.

In Saturday's daily game, "The Number," the winning number was 780.

The lottery reported earnings of $1,423,884.50 from wagering on the daily game. The earnings came on sales of $1,697,459.50, while holders of winning tickets are entitled to share $273,475.

In the "Pick 4" game, the winning number was 6344.

Occult, murder linked

JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A youth obsessed with Satanism committed suicide after stabbing his mother to death with his Boy Scout knife and trying to kill the rest of his family by setting a fire as they slept, officials said.

Thomas Sullivan Jr., a 14-year-old eighth-grader and Boy Scout, began reading books on the occult and Satan worship about a month ago, Morris County Prosecutor Lee S. Trumbull said Sunday.

His "mind was taken control of by his interest in the Satanism," Trumbull said.

The youth stabbed his mother, Betty Ann, at least two dozen times with his Boy Scout knife late Saturday, and then set fire to a sofa while his father and 10-year-old brother slept, Trumbull said.

Thomas fled, but his father, Thomas Sullivan Sr., awakened by a smoke alarm, put out the fire with the help of a neighbor, Trumbull said.

Sullivan then realized his wife and elder son were missing, and called police, Trumbull said.

Mrs. Sullivan's body was found in the basement; the boy's body was found Sunday morning in a neighbor's backyard. He killed himself by slashing his wrists and cutting his throat, the prosecutor said.

Investigators found a suicide note in which the boy indicated the murder and suicide were planned and influenced by his interest in the occult, Trumbull said. Also found were books on the occult and Satan worship, he said.

Lakers defeat, tie BG icers

by Al Franco
sports reporter

After stepping on number-one-ranked Maine two weeks ago in the Dexter Shoe Classic championship game, Bowling Green's hockey team was riding high. But Lake Superior quickly brought the Falcons back to reality last weekend by taking three of four points in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The LSSC onslaught included a 5-1 victory Saturday night and an impressive comeback to notch a 6-6 tie Friday night. The Lakers boosted their Central Collegiate Hockey Association-leading record to 13-3-4, while the Falcons dropped to sixth place with a 7-9-2 mark.

LSSC has now beaten BG in three of the last four meetings as the Lakers swept the Falcons at home three months ago.

LSSC dominated Saturday's action behind a standout goaltending performance by Bruce Hoffort. Hoffort gained first-star honors by turning away 43 of 44 BG shots to lead the Lakers to the 5-1 victory.

Dean Dyer, Kord Cernich, and Mark Vermette each tallied first period marks to give the Lakers a 3-0 lead after one period. Dyer's goal came only 50 seconds into the contest.

BG head coach Jerry York said the Lakers gained confidence from the three goals.

"Saturday started poorly for us. They scored a goal in the first minute and by the end of the period they were up 3-0," York said. "That gave them all the momentum in the world."

Jeff Jablonski gave the Lakers a 4-0 lead in the second period while Pete Stauber scored the Lakers' fifth unanswered goal at 10:25 of the third period.

Brent Regan broke Hoffort's shutout bid on a pass from Nelson Emerson at 12:50. The goal was Regan's 13th of the season.

While Saturday's contest was one-sided in favor of the Lakers, the Falcons showed Friday their previous victory over Maine was no fluke.

The two teams skated to a 2-2 tie after one period as all four goals came on the power play. The Lakers' Brett Barnett and Jim Dowd jumped LSSC to a 2-0 lead.

But the Falcons responded with two power play tallies of their own. Andy Gribble scored his team-leading 19th goal at 14:07 from Emerson and Don Barber. Brian Meharry tied the score at two as he picked up his 15th goal with Emerson notching his second assist of the contest.

BG owned the second period as they scored three unanswered goals to take a 5-2 lead after two periods.

Joe Quinn scored just 14 seconds into the period from Barber and Greg Parks. Marc Potvin scored the fifth power-play goal of the game at 6:03. The Lakers made a goaltending change after the goal as Mike Greenlay was replaced by Hoffort.

Geoff Williams made the score 5-2 with his fifth goal of the season just 20 seconds after Potvin's tally to close the scoring in the period.

In the third period, the two teams traded goals before the six-minute mark. □ See Icers, page 12.

Cagers drop 4th straight

by Ron Fritz
news editor

After winning the first two games of Christmas break, Bowling Green's men's basketball team has now lost four straight games with Miami University invading Anderson Arena tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Falcons' head coach Jim Larranaga said he will be looking for better shot selection from his team against the Redskins.

"We haven't been shooting the ball very well," Larranaga said. "As a result, we've been falling behind teams."

"A lot of it is that we just need to be better in our shot selection. We have been improving."

BG downed Detroit 63-49 behind Steve Martenet's 17 points. The Falcons followed with a 76-71 victory over Wagner in the first round of the Siena Invitational Tournament. Anthony Robinson had 26 points for BG.

However, in the championship game of the tourney, the hosts crushed the Falcons 73-52. Freshman Ed Colbert, who became eligible in early January, led BG with 14 points and nine caroms.

"We played well against Wagner," Larranaga said. "And we had a good first half against Siena."

Since then, BG has lost at Cleveland State, 84-70, despite Robinson's 23 points.

The Mid-American Conference opener didn't bring any better results for the Falcons.

Ball State beat BG 54-49, in Muncie, Ind. Joe Gregory had 13 points for the Falcons. Eastern Michigan hosted BG Saturday and crushed the Falcons 81-66. Lamon Pippin finished with 15 points for BG.

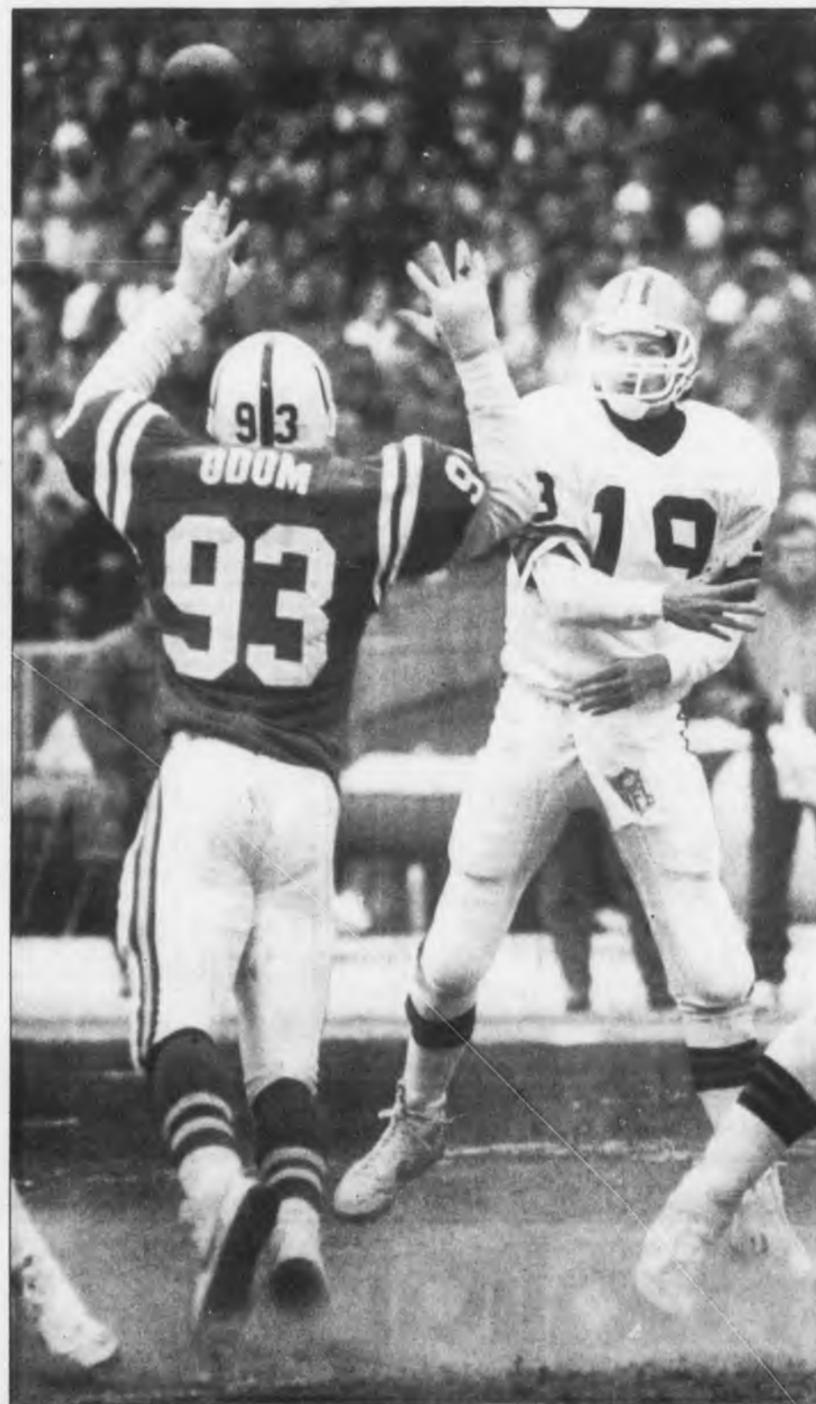

"I thought the break was going to be very good for us," Larranaga said. "I thought we'd have a lot of time to concentrate on nothing but basketball."

"But for some reason or another it didn't work out quite as well. You have to start to wonder if we had

Love 'em or hate 'em, the Cleveland Browns will be hot off the tongues of most BG students the entire week leading up to this Sunday's showdown with the Denver Broncos. Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar is shown here passing to Ozzie Newsome (not seen) in the Browns' victory over Indianapolis last week.

Browns prepare in west

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — The home-field advantage that seemed to mean so much to the Cleveland Browns for the AFC championship game a year ago has suddenly become less important to Coach Marty Schottenheimer.

"I always like to play at home in front of our fans, but I don't really think it matters where the game is played," Schottenheimer said yesterday before the Browns left for Albuquerque, N.M., for four days of preparation for Sunday's conference title game at Denver.

"You're still going to take 45 guys on each team, put them on the field and tell them to run and pass and block and catch," Schottenheimer said. "The team that does that best is going to win."

Schottenheimer said his team, a 38-21 winner over Indianapolis Saturday, was moving its workouts to the University of New Mexico so the players could adjust to the two-hour time difference between Cleveland and the Mountain time zone. The Browns also are hoping for better weather in the Southwest than they would be likely to have in Cleveland.

The Broncos beat the Browns 23-20 in overtime last year in the AFC championship game at Cleveland Stadium, after Denver quarterback John Elway drove his team 98 yards to tie the game on a 5-yard touchdown pass to Mark Jackson with 37 seconds left in regulation time.

Schottenheimer said he was haunted by that loss only during the two weeks leading up to last year's Super Bowl. He said he did not review videotapes of the Denver game until months later.

"What's the sense of looking at it? It's over, and there was nothing to prepare for," the coach said. "I did look at it once a couple of months after the game. During the two weeks leading up to the Super Bowl, I thought about it. But once the Super Bowl was over, I forgot about it."

That game will undergo much closer scrutiny. □ See Browns, page 12.

Falcons road winners again

by Andy Woodard
assistant sports editor

Winning on the road is usually a tough thing to do.

However, the Bowling Green women's basketball team has made it commonplace over the last month, with the latest victory coming at Eastern Michigan 76-69 on Saturday in a Mid-American Conference game.

The win raises the Falcons' record to 8-3 overall, 2-0 in the MAC, and gives BG six wins in seven outings on the road this season, including the last six.

McGuire Backstrom

The Falcons captured the Whitman Cougar Classic at Washington State on December 11-12, defeating Baylor (78-63) and WSU (83-73, OT). They won at Akron (80-78, 2OT) on Dec. 20, at Michigan State (69-52) on Dec. 30 and at Ball State (76-66) last Wednesday in a MAC game.

Also, BG lost at home to Michigan (67-64) on Dec. 22, before downing Cincinnati in Anderson Arena by a score of 69-54 on Jan. 4.

Forward Megan McGuire said the key to the road wins was the team unity on the court.

"We haven't done well at Eastern the last few years, so we needed to get together and start playing as a team," she said. "We've been playing a little as individuals the last two weeks and we're finally developing a team concept."

The Falcons displayed the team concept in the EMU game.

Forward Jackie Motycka led the squad with 28 points and 10 rebounds, followed closely by fellow front-line teammates, McGuire (14 points and 11 rebounds) and center Angie Bonner (14 points and eight rebounds).

Point guard Paulette Backstrom handed out eight assists, while McGuire made six assists.

Bonner's four-straight free throws in the last 20 seconds sealed the win.

BG coach Fran Voll said the entire team has played well over the Christmas break, with the improvement coming to a head against the Hurons.

"The players are starting to assert themselves," he said. "Angie has become a front-line center for us; Megan McGuire has had some very good games of late at the forward spot and Paulette has really grown in experience in the short season we've had so far."

Jackie is basically picking up where she left off (last season) and even doing more."

Motycka is averaging a MAC best 22.0 points per game and a team-leading 8.4 rebounds per game. She has scored 20-plus points in six of the last seven games and needs 72 markers to tie former teammate Stephanie Coe (1984-87) for second place on the all-time BG scoring list. She needs 130 points to become the school's all-time leading scorer.

Motycka has accomplished this despite starting the season shooting poorly from the field.

"It was hard for me at the beginning of the season getting back into it after not having played with everybody for a while," Motycka said. "The first couple games were slow, but after that I started working harder to get the ball and the girls were passing it to me."

McGuire said the backcourt players are looking for Motycka, but she added players such as Backstrom, guard Chris Mossing and herself look to score as well.

"We're looking a lot for Jackie to score and keep shooting, but we're trying to work on our outside game as well," McGuire said. "We want to draw the defense out so our inside people will be open more often."

In addition to the starters, Voll said he is pleased with the recent play of his reserves.

Against the Hurons, guard Teca Thompson contributed four points and nine rebounds, while center Dawn Eastman and guard Heather Finrock scored two points each. □ See Road Wins, page 10.

Motycka player of week

Bowling Green forward Jackie Motycka has been named the Mid-American Conference player of the week, the MAC office announced yesterday.

The 1987 MAC Player of the Year scored a total of 75 points and grabbed 24 rebounds in MAC road wins over Ball State and Eastern Michigan, and a non-conference home win over Cincinnati.

She has now scored 20-plus points in six of the last seven games and ranks third and fifth, respectively, on the BG and MAC all-time scoring lists with 1,291 markers.

BG enjoys warm break

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports reporter

While most Bowling Green students spent Christmas break in their cold, blustery hometowns across the Midwest, the Bowling Green's swim teams escaped to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The adventure was not exactly a vacation for the tankers, though, as they worked out two to three times each day and competed in the International Swimming Hall of Fame Invitational. The men finished first while the women placed second in the field of 60 teams. But the Invitational was not the sole purpose of the trip according to head swim coach Brian Gordon.

"We hoped to get some good training done down there and we did," he said. "We needed to get prepared for the remainder of the season."

The team headed south on a good note after defeating Kent State in a Mid-American Conference dual meet on Dec. 11. The men outscored KSU, 70-43, while the women were 68-45 victors.

"The Kent State meet was not one of our tougher meets," Gordon said. "We were in a kind of tough situation, though, with finals the next week. But we did what we had to do to win."

The men received a stellar performance from Steve Haugen, who placed first in the 1000-yard freestyle and 200-yard butterfly events. First-place finishes were also turned in by Dane Burton (200-yard freestyle), Rich Foster (50-yard freestyle), and Craig Janeck (100-yard freestyle). The relay team of Tim Wagner, Tom Solomon, Andrew Layne and Corky Thein placed first in the 400-yard medley relay.

On the boards for the men, Mike Poindexter finished first at both one and three meters. Todd Everett placed second on the three-meter board and third on the one-meter board.

Stargell good bet for Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitchers could not stop him, and only the first-ballot jinx may prevent Willie Stargell from being elected to baseball's Hall of Fame.

Stargell, a leader on and off the field throughout his career, hoped to become the 17th player to be enshrined on the first try. Voting results were to be announced at 11 p.m. EST today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"Just the words 'Hall of Fame' give me chills," Stargell said. "It's almost impossible to think it could happen to you."

Stargell seems certain for Cooperstown, probably this year. Jim Bunning, who came close in last year's election, appeared the only other candidate among 45 nominees with a chance.

Orlando Cepeda, Roger Maris and Tony Oliva all fell short last year of being named on 75 percent of the 400-plus ballots. Luis Tiant and Sparky Lyle join Stargell as first-year contenders.

Willie McCovey was the last player to make it on his first try. He hit 521 home runs and was elected in 1986.

Stargell hit 475 homers with 1,540 RBI and a .282 career average in 21 seasons with the Pittsburgh Pirates. His last full season was 1979, which he capped off by becoming Most Valuable Player in the Pirates' World Series victory over Baltimore. He also shared the National League's MVP award that year with Keith Hernandez.

Stargell led the NL with 48 home runs in 1971 and joined with Hall of Fame teammate Roberto Clemente in leading the Pirates over Baltimore in the World Series. Stargell batted .315 with three homers and eight RBI in Pittsburgh's two Series appearances.

For all of his accomplishments, Stargell was equally regarded for his intangible qualities. He was a leader in the clubhouse and was affectionately called "Pops" later in his career.

Even when he left the Pirates' organization and rejoined former manager Chuck Tanner as a coach in Atlanta in 1986, Stargell continued to be a major presence in the Pittsburgh area. He is actively involved in both local and national civic and charity organizations.

Bunning, 224-184 as a nine-time All-Star pitcher, moved from the major leagues to the House of Representatives. He is a Republican congressman from Kentucky.

In January, Bunning missed election to the Hall of Fame by 21 votes. It was his best showing in 11 tries.

"I came closer than I've ever come before and I'm encouraged by it, I really am," Bunning said at the time. "I've got to squeeze out 5 more percent. You can get the 47 percent or so in an election, but it's the rest that's tough."

Tiant was 229-172 and was a 20-game winner four times. He led the American League with a 1.60 earned run average in 1968, the most dominant pitching year in since the dead-ball era.

Lyle is fourth on the all-time save list with 238 and won the AL Cy Young in 1977.

Also on the ballot again are Vada Pinson, Maury Wills, Bobby Bonds, Ron Santo and Harvey Kuenn.

Road Wins

"We seem to be getting an awful lot of help from the bench — all of them," Voll said. "Teca Thompson is starting to become a real good support player and, Dawn Eastman, we can now count on her as being a real, real strong back-up center."

But the offense isn't the only thing which BG has improved upon. The Falcon defense is allowing 67.4 ppg, while the opposition is shooting only .418 from the field. BG is outrebounding its opponents by just over six-and-a-half rebounds per game.

"We've been working a lot with defense and concentrating on defense," Mossing said. "We've did a lot of defensive drills in practice and worked real hard."

Following Motycka in rebounds per game is Bonner

(7.9), McGuire (6.6) and Backstrom (3.7). Backstrom leads the squad in steals with 27, followed by McGuire (21 steals), Motycka (19) and Mossing (12).

Bonner and McGuire pace the Falcons in blocked shots with 24 and 14, respectively.

Wildcats upset Indiana

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Terry Buford and Jeff Grose sank four free throws apiece over the final three minutes and Northwestern made all 21 of its second-half free throw attempts to upset 15th-ranked Indiana 66-64 last night in the Big Ten Conference.

The Wildcats erased a 27-21 Indiana halftime lead from the free throw line. Northwestern took its first lead of the second half at 52-51 after Brian Schwabe canned four straight free throws, the last at the 7:18 mark.

The lead changed four times over the next four minutes. The Hoosiers last led 61-58 after a pair of free throws by Dean Garrett.

But Buford converted a pair of free throws with 2:51 left to pull Northwestern within 61-60. Garrett then picked up his fourth foul, sending Buford back to the line with 1:10 remaining.

He calmly sank both free throws, his fifth and sixth points of the night, to give Northwestern a 62-61 lead.

Grose, who led the Wildcats with 18 points, then jumped into the free throw shooting act, hitting a pair with 28 seconds left to build Northwestern's lead to 64-61.

Indiana's Joe Hillman failed on a three-point attempt and then fouled Grose, who sank two more free throws for Northwestern's final points.

Northwestern, which snapped a six-game losing streak to the Hoosiers, improved to 6-6 overall and 1-1 in Big Ten play.

Indiana, which got a team-high 20 points from Keith Smart, slipped to 8-4 and 0-2.

(200-yard freestyle), Suzanne Church (200-yard butterfly), and Deidre Heer (100-yard freestyle) were all first-place finishers for the women. The 200-yard medley relay team of Williams, Patty Kosinski, Jennifer Lakins, and Andrea Guidi won with a time of 1:54.79.

The women also had an impressive showing on the boards. Mary Pfeiffer, Sue Cleveland, and Cathy Kurela placed first, second, and fourth, respectively, on both the one- and three-meter boards.

The tankers return to action Friday, as the men host Toledo at 7 p.m. Saturday the men host Ashland and Windsor while the women take on Ashland. The action begins at 2 p.m.

Cagers

Against Miami, Larranaga said BG will look to put up a solid defensive front and then be patient and get good shot selection.

The Redskins, 3-9 overall and 1-1 in the MAC, are led by center Lamon Hanna's 9.4 points a game.

BG, 4-8 overall and 0-2 in the league, is paced by Robinson's 13.8 points a game. Martenet is averaging 12.8 and Gregory 11 points a game.

According to the second-year Falcons' coach, the best example of that is playing to an opponents' tempo.

"If they slow it down, we slow it down," he said. "If they want a fast tempo, we run with them. We want to play at our pace and control the tempo."

Graham MAC's best

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University junior Paul Graham has been named the Mid-American Conference men's player of the week.

Graham, a 6-foot-6 forward from Philadelphia, scored 30 points and grabbed 11 rebounds in OU's 79-62 victory over Toledo Wednesday. Graham made 13 of 19 field goal attempts and 4 of 5 free throws.

Browns

"I don't think either team is dramatically different," Schottenheimer said. "We both have the same principle people, the same basic systems."

The biggest change in the Browns' system this year has been the addition of the "Bear" defense, a run-oriented formation popularized by the Chicago Bears that puts as many as eight defenders near the line of scrimmage.

The Broncos, whose defense has always been adjustable from game to game, have changed their offense slightly to include more running plays out of the shotgun formation. But Schottenheimer said the Denver offense is not significantly different than it was a year ago.

"They have a complete package that they can use from the shotgun," Schottenheimer said. "They're running the same plays they ran a year ago. They're just doing it from the depth of the shotgun."

The Browns' trip to Denver will be a homecoming of sorts for Schottenheimer, who was working as a real estate developer in Denver for two years in the early 1970s before Broncos' defensive coordinator Joe Collier helped him get a job as a player-coach with the Portland Storm of the World Football League.

"The irony of it is, when I played for Joe (with the Buffalo Bills) we didn't get along very well, because he didn't let me play," Schottenheimer said.

Icers

With less than 15 minutes left in the contest, BG still had a three goal lead, but the lead was quickly squandered as LSSC scored three power play goals to tie at six. Penalties by Emerson, Kevin Dahl (5 minutes for slashing), and Potvin each accounted for a LSSC power play which resulted in a goal.

Barnett, Anthony Palumbo, and Stauber each scored on the power play for the Lakers. Neither team was able to score in overtime, and the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

"Friday, we played marvelous," York said. "It was as good and solid of a game we've played all year and it was fun to watch. It was similar to the Maine game, but we didn't capitalize on our scoring chances in overtime. The two late penalties hurt us when it was 6-4."

York also said sophomore goalie Paul Connell played an exceptional game. Connell made 36 saves including five in the OT period.

The Falcons host the Mike Orr-led Miami Redskins twice this weekend. BG escaped Oxford in the first half of the season with two OT wins.

Cancellations after this time will be considered a no-show. You are encouraged to carefully consider employers before signing up for interviews.

If you did not honor your scheduled interview, you are required to send a letter of apology to the employer for missing the interview, file a copy of this letter with the University Placement Services, and meet with a placement counselor before scheduling any additional interviews. Any student who "no-shows" twice will be denied interviewing privileges for the remainder of the academic year.
