Dan Dakich said last week he had found what he wanted in Bowling Green.

The University decided it wanted him as well, naming Dakich as the 14th men's basketball coach in its history Monday.

An assistant coach under Bob Knight at Indiana for 12 years - he also lettered four seasons there - Dakich, 34, succeeds Jim Larranaga as head coach of the Falcon program. Larranaga left April 1 to take over the George Mason program.

A finalist for other jobs in the past - most recently the Wright State position last month - Dakich pulled out late in each search.

But Bowling Green, he says, is different.

"I knew about the history," Dakich said Monday in front of a crowd of over 100 in the Ice Arena Lounge. "I want to be at a place where basketball has been played well and where basketball is important."

Red River's flood areas in search of clean water

□ Sanitary conditions are threatened as water treatment plants and sewage systems are shut down.

The Associated Press

GRAND FORKS, N.D. -- With a record flood filling most of the city with filthy water, city officials said Monday they were considering stringing a hose up to 22 miles across the prairie to bring in clean water so people could at least wash their hands.

"What people take for granted day to day, like taking a shower and washing clothes, isn't going to happen for quite a while," said National Guard Capt. Greg Bowen. "The sanitary conditions are primitive at best."

The Red River that had flooded 75 percent of the city also shut down the municipal water treatment plant, and there was no water service for the estimated 10 percent of the city's 50,000 inhabitants who hadn't left yet.

"The toilet part is the worst," said Richard George. "We just flush it with melted snow. We were melting snow on the barbecue grill."

Portable bathrooms and drinking water stations were scattered throughout the city's still-dry extreme west end. In public and motel restrooms, the stench built up until crews could periodically come by with flushing water.

The city also supplied most of the water for Grand Forks Air Force Base, where more than 2,000 of the city's refugees were staying.

The base, which still had a reserve of clean water, was pumping some water from a nearby small town and planned to bring in 20 large tanker trucks, said spokesman, Capt. Byron Spencer.

In the meantime, he said: "We're asking people not to use the washing machine, limit their shower usage, things like that."

President Clinton planned to fly over the flooded area and visit the Air Force base on Tuesday, the White House said.

City officials held a meeting Monday afternoon to discuss the proposal for a long water pipeline.

The city water treatment plant and sewer system are expected to be flooded for weeks, and Bowen said the temporary hose or pipeline also could be used to speed up the process of restoring service once the flood ebbs. The city uses about 8 million gallons of water a day.

The hose, probably about 6 inches in diameter, would be made of a rubber-like material with enough flexibility to conform to the contour of the land, officials said.

Students' lost items auctioned

□ Campus Police urge students to claim identifiable articles by Friday, prior to April 30 auction.

By SARAH BEDNARSKI
 The BG News

The Campus Police have scheduled an auction for next Wednesday, April 30. All unclaimed articles, ranging from bicycles to jewelry, will be auctioned off. Angela Slade, public safety records manager, said the auction is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. at the Reed Street Warehouse.

According to Barbara Waddell, University public safety officer, there are approximately 103 unclaimed bikes. Waddell said the police want students to claim their lost items but must do so by Friday, April 25. The bikes range from new models to older ones, Waddell said. "We want students to have a chance to come and find their stuff," Waddell said. "Often times students think if something is lost, then it's gone. In reality it might have been picked up by custodian, and they turned it in."

According to Slade, umbrellas, calculators, jewelry and watches are some of the items to be auctioned.

If a student needs something like a calculator and doesn't want to spend a lot, then the auction is a place to buy it, Slade said.

"We really hope that if someone lost something, they will come and look for it," Slade said. "There are several good pieces of jewelry, and we hate to see someone not recover their grandmother's ring."

Students who want to claim something must show proof of ownership, Slade said. She said a

Elective courses teach about HIV, AIDS

□ University offers classes to educate students about virus in response to inadequate degree of necessary familiarity.

By AMY JOHNSON
 The BG News

According to nationwide statistics, one in 500 college students are infected with the AIDS virus, and many do not even know it.

And since the fastest growing group of people contracting HIV are women and young people ages 13-21, the University offers elective courses to educate students about HIV/AIDS.

The University offers three sections in the Medical Technology department. These include Medical Technology 205, 370 and 380. These courses are open to all students.

Betsy Bunner, AIDS education director at the University College of Health and Human Services, instructs the introductory course, Medical Technology 205.

Bunner said this course is applicable to all students, no matter what their majors might be.

"This class may help educate students with any major," Bunner said. "For example, an attorney may be defending someone dealing with HIV discrimination; a doctor or dentist may have an HIV-positive patient; and a teacher may need to be educated about prevention methods for students. "The introductory course focuses on basic background information which students can take with them into their profession," Bunner added.

Judy Adams, associate professor of medical technology, teaches medical technology 380 - AIDS Education in Schools - during spring semesters.

Adams, who originated and proposed the class to the University, said this class caters to many majors but is especially important for education majors.

BGSU activists deserve recognition

When I give food to the poor, they call me a saint. When I ask why the poor have no food, they call me a communist.
-Dom Helder Camara

For a number of reasons, a lot of important community work is being done and those who do it rarely receive the recognition they should. Most often it is not recognition they seek. They are our local activists.

I am no cheerleader. I don't wish to push people into the limelight if they don't want to go. In fact, a lot of campus activism is a waste of time because it is not well thought-out. But there are some successes, and yet the work is usually ignored or dismissed by the larger community.

We must not forget that America has always held its gadflies in contempt. Could it be generalized that the older generation looks upon the meager attempts at social change by the younger generation with snide, conservative disdain? While generalizations are dangerous, some are lined with truth.

Our collective past indicates our collective suspicion when it comes to rabble-rousers, hippies, communists, muckrakers or what-have-you (choose your own disapproving nomenclature). Social change has almost always been viewed as the work of "misdirected youth."

The most visible form of activism, or the protest, has been seen as sort of a "politicized angst," a rebellion of sorts. Such work is part of "youth culture," a stage of development known as the "bleeding heart stage" which, like puberty, will pass.

Lately, social change has been given another name: liberalism (that's a whole other column).

What is the basis for this label of indignity that has been slapped on activists both locally and generally? I should clarify here. Activists take many forms, and I am not being a cheerleader for any one group. But I do not deny my leftist leanings, and I write about what I know.

What activism means is what it says: it is a call to action, a demand of redress or work for institutional change on small or large scales. Liberal activism demands attention to community ills. To idle onlookers, activism is inherently negative in nature by default, because our nation is built on a foundation of blind cocksureness. Negativity is as un-American as you can get.

Since those hearty Pilgrims braved choppy Atlantic waters and invaded the "New World," the very definition of "America" has been the conquering spirit. From the American Revolution to Lewis and Clark to the Louisiana Purchase and the settling of the frontier, America has been defined by rugged individualism and the drive for upward mobility.

Our history books are full of WASP bootstrap-pullers and go-getter types. Expansion and colonialism meant prosperity and superiority. And considering our history, who dares challenge the optimistic spirit our nation's founders worked so hard to pound into the brains of our ancestors?

This same spirit of conquering exists today, in the push for corporate expansion; in the T-shirts declaring "No Fear."

The work of many activists is a direct assault on that blind positivity made in the U.S.A. Pushing for social change becomes an exhausting gig in the belly of the red-white-and-blue-apple-pie beast. Who can forget the platitude, "Love it or leave it?" There is no room for criticism in this great nation of ours.

Yet who loves this country more than the activist? What better community member could you ask for than the one who demands that community problems be amended?

The real work is not being done by those wearing the red, white and blue (or the orange and brown), it is being done by those who want things to be better than they are. Therefore "Love it or leave it" makes no sense. The ones who "love it" the most are those who, despite public ridicule, work for the betterment of their communities without the promise of reward.

Activism is not resume-building. For many it is a way of life. At around this time every spring, many gifted students get awards and scholarships based on academic performance and community service.

I was actually one of them. But there are so many who do so much for the people of this city and campus who, for a variety of reasons, remain nameless.

Andrea Wood is a columnist for The News. Questions and comments can be sent to andrea@bgnet.bgsu.edu or 210 West Hall.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SQE sponsors forum on liberal education

You can tell it is spring when the phone lines become overloaded and everyone is scrambling to get to a phone to dial into Star-90.

Every semester I frantically page through my Arts and Sciences handbook to make sure I will satisfy all my requirements. I also make absolutely certain to take all the necessary classes so I will graduate on time.

But where do all these requirements come from? Why do I have to take a class that has an "international perspective?"

Every year you have heard the following phrase uttered by either yourself or your classmates: "Why do I have to take this class? How does it fit into my major?" What you really mean is the following: "How does this class get me any closer to landing a job related to my area of expertise?"

Although I value questioning one's education, I believe there are good reasons for taking classes which have nothing to do with one's major. Some classes that we are most hesitant to take sometimes turn out to be the most enlightening experiences.

On the other hand, I only have so much time and money to devote to my studies. It would be great fun to take any class I wanted, but that is not exactly practical. When it comes time to register, I have to make a choice, and those choices are usually facilitated by their applicability to my major.

The controversy surrounding class scheduling is an ongoing debate. This discussion is very closely related to the age old debate surrounding "liberal education."

Recently, the president of our University invited Dr. Stanely Katz to speak about the changing definition of liberal education in the 21st century. Although the lecture was targeted more toward the faculty members, the issue is most certainly relevant to the student population as well.

The issue of seeking a liberal versus a specialized education has received close attention recently. With the expansion of knowledge in most disciplines, college students are finding it more advantageous to specialize in a particular field.

Actively pursuing a liberal education is dangerous because you might have a difficult time securing a job with a liberal arts education than with a more technical, skills-oriented education.

The question thus arises: What is the purpose of a liberal education? How might apparently unconnected courses benefit students in the "real world?"

Although I will not pretend to have the answers to these questions, I would like to extend an invitation to all those interested to attend a debate being sponsored by Students for Quality Education (SQE) on Wednesday, April 23rd in the Campus room of the Union at 4:30. SQE will extend the conversation addressed in Dr. Katz's speech. The debate will feature, Dr. Nancy Kubasek of the legal studies department, arguing for a liberal education.

If there are any questions, please feel free to contact me at bobhaus@bgnet.bgsu.edu.

Housing plans misrepresented

In the April 11 issue of The News there was a cartoon depicting a man resembling Yasir Arafat standing in the middle of a bunch of houses which formed the shape of a noose. The caption was "Why the Israeli housing plan for Jerusalem makes some people nervous."

The cartoon's author has obviously been misinformed about Israel's housing policy.

The settlements that Israel is now building in Har Homa (a neighborhood in East Jerusalem) are already owned by Jewish Israelis. They are being built on privately owned Jewish land for Jewish and Arab settlers.

It is true that the majority of the dwellings will be going to Jewish residents and that this area of Jerusalem has an Arab majority, but if a Jewish neighborhood cannot be built near an Arab neighborhood and Arabs and Jews have no hope of living together then the entire peace process is a waste.

Another common misconception is that East Jerusalem has historically had an Arab majority. It was not until 1967 that East Jerusalem acquired an Arab majority. Censuses as early as 1840 and before show that there was a Jewish majority in East Jerusalem.

What happened to these Jews? When Jordan invaded Jerusalem the troops slaughtered many of these Jews. Many others left when the Jordanians destroyed the Jewish cemeteries and razed all 60 synagogues.

The Jews of Israel have been much kinder to Arab inhabitants than any Arab nation has been to Jews. Since 1970 the number of mosques in Bethlehem has grown from five to 70. Since 1967 the Muslim population has grown by 156 percent (compared to the 105 percent increase in Jewish residents).

These are just a few examples of how Israel has been kind to its Arab population. Israel has been kind enough that many Arabs leave Arab nations in favor of Israel. Most Arab Palestinians have roots in Israel that go back no more than three generations simply because there was no reason to be in Israel before the Jews made it tolerable.

Some might inquire why Palestinians are not treated as equals to the Jews in Israel. This is a valid question and a serious issue.

One answer is that the Palestinian Authority has not come through with any of the agreements it made with Israel in the Oslo treaty. The Palestinian Human Rights Commission has made over 400 inquiries with the Palestinian Authority, and none have been looked into by that organization.

The Authority has shut down 10 newspapers since the Oslo agreements. The Authority is still calling for the destruction of the state of Israel.

Though over 120 Jews have been killed by terrorists in Israel since the Oslo treaty, not even one terrorist has been prosecuted by the Authority. Between 1994 and 1996 Arafat made 56 anti-Israel speeches intending to incite violence.

The Authority has continually failed to disarm the terrorist militias affiliated with the group. Furthermore, the Palestinian Authority is unlawfully keeping its offices in the Orient House in Jerusalem.

Israel cannot give in entirely and then hope that the Authority will comply with its part of the bargain. In fact, there should be no further concessions made until the Palestinian Authority recognizes that Israel has the right to exist.

In conclusion, both the Israeli government and the Palestinian Authority must work to create peace in the Middle East. Nobody will get everything they want, but that is the nature of compromise.

There are no bad guys. There is simply too much red tape and not enough patience.

Library holds anniversary party

□ The University celebrated the opening of Jerome Library thirty years ago and recalls the changes that have occurred.

By JOHN STEBBINS
The BG News

After 30 years of studying quietly without snacks and drinks, 100 members of current and former faculty celebrated the anniversary of the Jerome Library's opening with wine and hors d'oeuvres served in the library's main lobby on Friday night.

The gala included a speech by University President Sidney Ribeau, a performance from the University Gospel Choir and a raffle to raise money for new furnishings in the first floor student lounge.

Ribeau said the greatest asset of the University was the people who made the library more than a place to store books.

"We have the most energized, enthusiastic staff here," he said. "That's what makes this place so special. It is they who set the standard and show students here what higher education is about."

Many of the current and former staff took advantage of the event to reflect on the changes that took place since 1967.

Sherry Gray, who is now in charge of the main circulation desk at the main door, has worked there for all of the building's thirty years. She remembered her first impression of the library.

"It was immense," she said. "Since then, the immensity has worn off, but it's still amazing with all the changes that have happened over the last thirty years."

Gray also reflected on the initial impact the Jerome Library first had. "The old library was in the McFall Center," she said. "We had closed stacks where the library employees had to search for books you requested. It usually took two hours or more to get the book you asked for and if it was the wrong book, people really got frustrated. When we first opened here, students were amazed when we told them they could walk through the shelves themselves."

Linda Dobb, dean of the library, said the number of people showed the library has been something special to the University.

"It makes it such a wonderful occasion to have so many people here involved in the library," she said. "It shows we have so many people who really care about making this library the main pillar in this university's pursuit of higher education."

Two killed in Delaware car accident

DELAWARE -- Two people died and a third was seriously injured Monday morning in a head-on two-vehicle accident just south of this central Ohio city.

Police spokeswoman Debi Drum said drivers Ronald Tossey, 51, and Ronald Shunk, 50, both of Delaware, died in the crash along U.S. 42. Shunk's wife, Charlene Shunk, was injured.

Mrs. Shunk, 48, was taken to Grant Medical Center where she was listed in critical condition Monday afternoon. Hospital spokeswoman Connie Stover said her injuries included a fractured left arm and head trauma.

Tossey was driving his pickup when he collided head-on with the Shunks' car about 6:30 a.m. The accident forced authorities to close the highway for about two hours.

Proposal to privatize county jails debated

MARION -- A proposal to allow some county jails to be run by private companies is receiving mixed reviews in Marion County, where a $10 million regional jail is planned.

Marion County Sheriff John Butterworth said the proposal has been tried and does not work.

"Companies come in with a low-ball figure then down the road they increase it," Butterworth said. "It drops right back into the community's lap."

The bill was introduced in February by state Rep. E.J. Thomas, R-Columbus. It would apply only to jails with 200 or more prisoners -- about 20 percent of the state's 81 county jails.

County Commissioner Larry Mumper said the legislation should be considered if it could cut costs while maintaining jail safety standards.

"I don't think privatization is necessarily out of line," Mumper said. "Anytime we can save money for the taxpayers we're always going to look at those options. For me to sit here and not say we'd look at other options would be irresponsible."

But Robert Cornwell, executive director of the Buckeye State Sheriff's Association, said the proposal strips sheriffs of their legal right to run the county jail.

"It's one of the statutory jobs of the sheriff to operate the county jail," Cornwell said. "It's our belief that you cannot privatize punishment."

Marion and Hardin counties in central Ohio are sharing the construction and operating costs of the jail, which is expected to open within two years.

Marion State Highway Patrol selects new commander

MARION -- An 18-year veteran of the State Highway Patrol and former Trooper of the Year has been selected as commander of the Marion post.

Lt. Daniel Greene, 40, a former sergeant at the West Jefferson post, was appointed to the post last week. He replaces Lt. Clarke Kiner, who transferred to the Delaware post.

"I just want to keep the image of the patrol up in Marion County," said Greene. "I think the patrol has a lot of respect here. I want to serve the community and just do what I've been doing."

Greene, an Albany native, joined the patrol in May 1979. He was assigned to the Ironton post in southern Ohio along the Ohio River, where he was selected Trooper of the Year in 1981.

Screening of McVeigh trial jurors concluded

The Associated Press

DENVER -- The final prospective jurors were screened Monday in the Oklahoma City bombing trial, with the judge telling them they could know within hours whether they are in the final jury pool.

"We're getting close here," U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch told a prospect, a retired Air Force man who works in retail. The judge said the man would be contacted Monday night or Tuesday morning.

The judge told another: "We'll be getting back to you soon for the selection of the jury."

These were Matsch's first public comments confirming that jury selection was winding down.

Sources have said opening statements are tentatively scheduled to begin Thursday, following the last private sessions in which jurors are dismissed for legal reasons and the exercising of peremptory challenges, in which attorneys can eliminate prospective jurors without stating a reason.

The judge, meantime, was considering empaneling an anonymous jury to hear the case against Timothy McVeigh, who faces the death penalty on murder and conspiracy charges in the April 19, 1995, bombing that killed 168 people.

Matsch was considering shuffling the numbers assigned to jury candidates who have undergone extensive questioning about their attitudes and backgrounds, sources told The Associated Press.

With the new numbers, it would be impossible to tell who actually was seated on the jury. Also, the judge has arranged for jurors to sit behind a large wall blocking them from the media -- but not from the public section of the courtroom.

Juror questioning continued Monday with four people brought into court by the lunch break. A total of 96 people had undergone questioning by the judge and the attorneys since March 31.

Among those questioned was a woman who said she struggled to determine her feelings about the death penalty.

An administrative assistant with a hospital background, the woman said she always considered herself a "proponent of the death penalty" -- until she got her summons in the McVeigh trial.

"I had many sleepless nights over it because I never thought that it would be my decision," she said.

She said she feels she could still recommend execution under "certain circumstances."

Study of warplane crash site impeded

Air Force Col. Denver Pletcher, from Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tuscon, Ariz., briefs the media in front of a snow-covered mountain in Eagle, Col., on Monday.

The Associated Press

EAGLE, Colo. -- Wind-driven snow Monday kept an Air Force recovery team known as the "Ninja brain surgeons" from dangling over a steep Rocky Mountain slope to examine the suspected crash site of a missing warplane.

A powerful helicopter needed to drop the team was grounded by the weather at an airport 40 miles away. A blowing snow advisory and howling winds whipped through the search headquarters here, about a mile below the snowy mountainside where shards of gray metal were spotted Sunday.

The weather was expected to improve Tuesday. But Air Force Col. Denver Pletcher said the new snow cover on the jagged, steep slope could make it too dangerous for the crew to lower searchers.

"We weren't able to find it in the first place because of the snow ... fresh snow is the big problem," Pletcher said.

The Air Force believes the wreckage is the $9 million A-10 Thunderbolt warplane which vanished April 2. But there was no sign of Capt. Craig Button, who was at the controls when the plane left a Tucson, Ariz., base on a training mission and veered north toward Colorado. The site in the central Rockies, 15 miles southwest of Vail, is some 800 miles off course.

The only way to get a rescue team to the site -- at least until the snow melts this summer -- is to dangle them 100 to 200 feet below the helicopter, and one good gust could "whip them right into the mountainside," Maj. Gen. Nels Running said.

The helicopter from the Kirtland Air Force Base in New Mexico is powerful enough to withstand some high winds, and also can fly at altitudes of up to 16,000 feet and lift 20,000 pounds.

But Running said, "I'm not going to ask them to handle 45 mph winds."

The helicopter got as far as an airport in Leadville, which at 10,143-feet is home to the nation's highest airport. Once it reaches the search headquarters, the crew will confer with other pilots who have flown over the site and decide whether to drop the para-rescue team.

Parents complain about kids' easy math

Critics in California say schools create math dummies, low national standard

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- It's the kind of drill that drives math nerds crazy. And it wouldn't matter so much if these statisticians, scientists and others weren't parents as well.

The drill, as described in a California workbook for seventh-graders:

Students, in a group, must fill an imaginary recycling container with imaginary phone books. But the books and container have only two dimensions. And the kids also may use a calculator to figure out .75 times 600, part of the exercise. The text gives the answer, right next to the problem, just in case students can't get it with a calculator.

Critics like Paul Clopton, a 46-year-old statistician and angry San Diego parent, say 1992 changes in California math teaching, prompting such exercises, are creating math dummies. A state board is working on new standards this year.

And the issue has attracted angry parents' attention beyond California, because some of the teaching philosophy under fire would show up in voluntary national standards and tests that President Clinton supports.

Critics say the math curriculum reflects the handiwork of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, which in 1989 called for a national overhaul of math teaching.

The council, worried about America's math phobia and dropping test scores, hoped to make math more meaningful by changing from a dry-as-chalk focus on drills, postulates, definitions and proofs -- the memorization of tables and rules -- to a more real-world focus.

The council also recommended that all grades use calculators.

"All of the research that we've seen shows that children learn differently," said Jack Price, professor of mathematics education at California State Polytechnic University in Pomona and past president of the national group. "For some, direct instruction in the classroom works well.

For others, it doesn't.

"We have never said anywhere in any of our publications that children shouldn't know their basic skills," he added.

In an interview, though, Price questioned the need to learn the multiplication tables, or at least more than half of them. Why memorize 4 times 3 if you already know 3 times 4?

Why figure a square root without a calculator? Or long division for that matter? Why do a stack of division problems for homework?

Testimony continues in Aberdeen trial

Witnesses claim trainees wanted to have sex with Army drill sergeant

The Associated Press

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. -- Two trainees who accused a former Army drill sergeant of rape made no secret of wanting to have sex with him, witnesses testified Monday.

One of the women said she "thought he was sexy" and paraded by his office in short-shorts and a bikini top, Pfc. Divina Scott testified Monday at the court-martial of Staff Sgt. Delmar Simpson.

"She said she thought he was sexy and if the chance was given to her that she would have sex with him," added Pfc. Carnesia Jones.

Scott and Jones both characterized the woman as a compulsive liar.

Both said the other accuser told them that she, too, wanted to have sex with Simpson. Jones said she told her "he had a sexy bald head."

Simpson, 32, is one of 12 Aberdeen Proving Ground staff members charged with criminal sexual misconduct. He is charged with 54 crimes ranging from sexual invitations to rape involving 13 women from his former company.

Simpson has already pleaded guilty to having sex with 11 women subordinates in violation of Army regulations, and he faces up to 32 years in prison for those charges. He could be sentenced to life in prison if found guilty of a single rape conviction.

His lawyers, who began presenting their case Friday, contend the women participated willingly and Simpson is not guilty of rape. They have argued the women only pressed charges when investigators bullied them or offered them leniency in disciplinary cases.

One of Simpson's lawyers, Capt. Edward Brady, said he expected the defense to rest Tuesday. He said Simpson hasn't decided whether to testify.

In a major setback for the defense, however, the judge in the case ruled Friday that drill sergeants have so much power over trainees that they don't need to use a weapon or threaten force to be found guilty of rape.

The judge further stated that the women need not resist or object, either, for Simpson to be found guilty of rape.

Also Monday, an Army drill instructor at Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri pleaded guilty to posing for a nude photograph taken by two female trainees but pleaded innocent to other charges.

FLOODS

However, there were no decisions yet on where the pipeline would be placed or even exactly where the water would come from.

Across the river in East Grand Forks, Minn., Mayor Lynn Stauss said his city of 9,000 was "basically covered all the way."

"Some of the homes are floating off their foundations," he said.

Upstream at Fargo, N.D., however, the water was beginning to recede.

There have been minor problems with several dikes, "but for the most part, things are holding together," said Fargo Mayor Bruce Furness.

North Dakota Gov. Ed Schafer said the cleanup alone would easily cost more than $40 million. And Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., said the cost of repairs could exceed $1 billion.

The river, moving slowly north across the extraordinarily flat terrain of the Red River Valley, was edging toward an expected crest at 54 feet, 26 feet above flood stage. By Monday afternoon, it had reached 53.9 feet, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

The flood from the melting of the winter's record snowpack was flowing slowly toward the U.S.-Canada border, where the U.S. Customs Service said its border ports of entry at Pembina and Neche would be shut down during the night. Pembina, a major crossing on Interstate 29, is right along the river and Neche, a few miles west, has flooding on low-lying roads.

Farther north, about 140 miles from Grand Forks, the flood is expected to hit Winnipeg, Manitoba, in a couple of weeks on its way to vast Lake Winnipeg and eventually to Hudson Bay.

Students whose Grand Forks schools are closed started enrolling Monday at nearby rural schools, where they confronted unfamiliar textbooks and often lacked such basics as a pen or paper.

"They're in semishock. They just left their homes 48 hours ago," said Larimore school Superintendent John Jankowski. "When you're told to leave your home, do you think about taking your homework with you?"

Major changes not planned

Dakich plans to keep Keith Noftz on staff and stay with the Falcons' pressuring, up-tempo brand of basketball.

Stacey Noftz

By SCOTT BROWN
The BG News

Dan Dakich inherits a team that is geared to a run-and-gun, in-your-face pressuring style.

He won't attempt to tinker with that.

Dakich was named the new men's basketball coach Monday, completing a three-week search. Longtime coach Jim Larranaga left BG earlier this month.

"I won't play slow," Dakich said, adding that he has played up-tempo most of his basketball life. "That's the way I like to play. We're going to get the ball down the floor."

Falcon forward Anthony Stacey, the leading scorer returning from last season's MAC championship team, expressed satisfaction with Dakich's hiring. "I think Coach Dakich is the kind of coach that will take us to the next level, which is the NCAA Tournament," Stacey said. "We're ready for that. We're looking forward to getting prepared to play next year."

"What we know of him, we really respect him. We feel comfortable with him, and that is all you can expect of a new coach."

Dakich said Monday that Keith Noftz, the top assistant under Larranaga who has been with the program for three years, will stay on. The capacity that Noftz will fill is still uncertain, but he is happy to come back regardless of being the top assistant or not.

"I've said from the beginning I would like to return, so I'm extremely pleased," Noftz said. "Most of all, I'm glad we have the position filled. The past few weeks have been very trying."

Noftz was basically a one-man staff the past three weeks, recruiting as well as coordinating the Falcons' on-campus activities. "Dan and I have really seemed to hit it off," Noftz said of Dakich. "I've been very impressed. I'm really looking forward to working with him and these players."

Dakich said he hopes to have the rest of his staff filled by the end of this week or the beginning of next week.

"I'm not without options," Dakich said. "One of the things I've been able to do in coaching is make a lot of friends. Coach Noftz is going to stay with me, and I'm thrilled to death about it, quite frankly."

"Keith wanted to stay and I asked him to stay."

Noftz's return also pleases many of the Falcon players, who have said from the start they wanted him to be a part of the program.

BG's schedule is yet to be completely filled for the coming season. When asked if he would consider scheduling a game with Indiana and Knight, Dakich's response drew laughter from the interview room.

"He's always said when I was an assistant with some of the suggestions that I made that he couldn't wait to schedule me," Dakich said.

When asked if he would like playing under "another Bob Knight," Stacey could only laugh.

"He explained to us about playing for Coach Knight," Stacey said. "We're excited about it. We don't think he's going to be the next Bobby Knight. I'm sure they have some similarities, but I'm sure he won't take everything with him."

"The bottom line is, we want to win."

DAKICH

Iowa assistant coach Rich Walker -- a former Falcon player and assistant coach -- were the finalists and each interviewed on campus last week.

"His warmth, his honesty and sincerity ... the way he came across and presented himself, very open, very frank, great recruiting ties out there in the Midwest," Zwierlein said of the things that made Dakich stick out from the rest of the candidates.

"I think the cream really rose to the surface. We had a difficult choice, but I really felt comfortable about the final decision and getting Dan to join the BG staff."

Zwierlein noted that terms of the agreement had yet to be finalized, but did acknowledge that Dakich will receive a multi-year deal.

Zwierlein came to a joint decision -- which he considered "very close" -- along with University President Sidney Ribeau Saturday afternoon. That decision, Zwierlein said, also factored in the reactions of other members of the University community who had met with each finalist last week.

Ribeau, while he didn't attend

"Dan did as good a job as any assistant coach that I've had at Indiana. He has been a tremendous part of the successes of Indiana basketball over the last 16 years, from his four years as a player to his last 12 as a coach. There is no one I've hated to see leave more than Dan. But the job at Bowling Green is a tremendous opportunity for him, and there is no one that will do a better job than him."

Bob Knight

Indiana men's basketball coach

Monday's press conference, did issue a short statement: "I am delighted that Dan Dakich has accepted the position as head coach. I believe he will be a real asset to our basketball program because he brings with him the zest to see our young athletes succeed academically, as well as on the basketball court. We all wish him well, and welcome Dan and his family to our University community."

With Dakich came the inevitable comparisons to Knight, the oft-controversial Hoosier coach who Dakich has either played or coached under for the past 15 years.

Dakich did not shy away from that stigma.

"If [the University] hired Bob Knight ... the school would be enhanced money-wise, reputation-wise," Dakich said. "The basketball program would have won every championship that it has played for. The players would all be successful."

"I hope to do that. If that means being like Coach Knight, then that is what I want to do."

He has served as Knight's top assistant since 1990.

"Dan did as good a job as any assistant coach that I've had at Indiana. He has been a tremendous part of the successes of Indiana basketball over the last 16 years, from his four years as a player to his last 12 as a coach," Knight told The Associated Press.

"There is no one I've hated to see leave more than Dan. But the job at Bowling Green is a tremendous opportunity for him, and there is no one that will do a better job than him."

Dakich averaged just 3.6 points a game during his career, but is best known for a defensive stuffing of Michael Jordan in Indiana's upset of North Carolina in the 1984 Mideast Regional.

The Falcons return three starters from last season's 22-10 team which won the MAC regular-season championship.

"Nobody is going to expect to win more than I'm going to expect to win," Dakich said. "I'm not going to make any grand promises other than that I'm going to do the best that I can for the players and the University."

The Falcon throwers had an excellent showing at the MAC Relays, leading the team with three first-place finishes as BG won the meet.

Women's track wins MAC Relays

□ Throwing and jumping events are the keys to the Falcon victory. The Falcons edge Miami by half a point.

By BRETT THOMPSON
The BG News

The high-flying Falcon tracksters sent a message to the rest of the MAC last weekend by cruising to victory at the MAC Relay Championships.

Bowling Green established itself as a contender in the MAC title race with its impressive showing at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Propelled by dominating performances in the throwing events and jumps, the Falcons raced to a first place finish, edging Miami by just half of a point.

BG overcame a much-improved Miami team by racking up 103 points. The Redskins settled for second with 102.5 points and Western Michigan took third with 102. Ball State finished a distant fourth with 97.5 points.

The Falcons and coach Steve Price initially thought they had tied for second, but a scoring mistake was discovered late yesterday and gave BG a much-deserved championship.

"We had a great meet," Price said. "I knew we had the best relay team in the MAC. There were some places where we could have done a little better, but there were several good things that happened, including quite a few personal records."

According to Price, the mistake in scoring was understandable.

"It was a difficult meet to score, because they scored it by adding the top two placers from each team and comparing them," Price said. "I'm just really excited that we did end up winning. The girls worked hard and they deserve it."

The meet was highlighted by several outstanding individual performances.

Nikki Sturzinger continued to annihilate MAC competition as she notched a double win in the shot put and discus.

Sturzinger won the shot put with a heave of 46 feet, 10.75 inches and won the discus with a throw of 155 feet, 9 inches.

For her efforts, Sturzinger was named top performer of the meet.

"I expected Nikki to win both those events," Price said. "She's easily the best shot putter in the conference, and her main competition in the discus is from Kent State, which wasn't at the meet." Sturzinger combined with Heather Nordgren to win the discus championship for BG. Nordgren placed fourth overall.

Nordgren saved her best for last in the hammer throw, as she had to come from behind to win it on one of her final throws.

Nordgren took top honors in the hammer by launching a throw of 149 feet, 11 inches. She combined with Elyse Roethlisberger for another Falcon championship in the event.

A third BG championship was captured in the high jump by Jodi Rafferty and freshman Stephanie Heldt. Rafferty soared to second place with a jump of 5 feet, 7.75 inches and Heldt was not far behind with a jump of 5 feet, 5.25 inches, good for seventh.

"We really showed what we are capable of doing this weekend," Heldt said. "Personally, I've progressed a lot this season and so has the rest of the team, and it was evident at the MAC relays. I think Kent State and Eastern Michigan and the other top teams in the MAC might be a little intimidated by us now."

The distance squad came through with one of its best meets of the season. Sophomore Jessica LaFene came back from not placing in the 1500-meter run to place second in the 3000-meter run with a time of 10 minutes, 3.44 seconds.

Senior Renee Strayer was named most improved athlete of the meet by running a personal record in the 5000-meter run.

Strayer finished fourth with a time of 17 minutes, 21.54 seconds.

Freshman Nikki Monroe had her biggest meet of the year by setting two personal records.

Monroe grabbed sixth in the 3000 with a time of 10 minutes, 16.6 seconds and also ran a personal best of 4 minutes, 46.34 seconds in the 1500.

Other placers for the Falcons include: Kristin Inman, second in the 400 hurdles; Emily Cokinos, second in the javelin; Becky Barnett, fifth in the long jump and sixth in the javelin; Brook Miller, eighth in the long jump and sixth in the 400 hurdles; Nikki Litz, eighth in the triple jump and Michelle Mueller, sixth in the 800.

Heldt attributed the victory to depth and consistency and added that the win was a confidence booster for the team.

"We have been very consistent all season long," Heldt said. "I think this weekend proves that we can definitely contend for a MAC outdoor championship."

BG runners are runners-up

□ The Falcon men's track team places second out of eight teams at the MAC Relays, winning four events and dominating the sprints.

By TOD McCLOSKEY
The BG News

The Bowling Green men's track team is moving up the charts in the Mid-American Conference this week with an excellent second-place finish at the MAC relays.

The meet remained a close battle between Bowling Green and Central Michigan, but the Chippewas pulled away in the end, finishing with 130 points. Bowling Green managed 113.5, outlasting Miami, who placed third with 111 points.

"Even though we were 16 and a half points behind Central Michigan, we could have won this meet," Falcon coach Sid Sink said.

Placing second may look nice, but the Falcons know that this performance must be improved before the MAC Championships roll around.

"We did not have a good meet," Sink said. "It is good that it happens now. Hopefully, we'll bounce back and put it together."

Even though MAC frontrunners Eastern Michigan and Kent were not at the meet, strong performances by other teams, including the Falcons, indicate that the MAC is a very tough track and field conference.

As has been the case all year, the Falcon sprints coasted over all the MAC teams. Three of the four Bowling Green first-places were sprinting events.

"Once again our sprinters came through," Sink said, "which shows a dominance with our team."

Rah'Sheen Clay and Damon Holmes ran to second and ninth places, respectively, giving the Falcons a second overall place in the 100-meter dash.

In the 200-meter dash, Clay came back to win the event in a close NCAA provisional time of 20.9 seconds. With a seventh-place finish from Holmes, Bowling Green won the event.

Clay was out for a bit of revenge in the 200. "[Toledo's] Dorian Hooker beat me in the 100, so I was able to come back and get him in the 200," Clay said.

"I was very happy with our performance," Clay said. "We've been improving in the sprints and I'm hoping to make provisional times in the 200, as well as in the 400-meter and 1600-meter relays."

The 400 relay of Holmes, Darren Braddix, Terry Rivers and Clay continued their need for speed, as the talented foursome won a tough race.

The 1600 relay, composed of Braddix, Pat Miller, Rivers and Clay, complimented the 400 relay by breaking through to a first-place victory with a time of 3:15.4.

"Damon Holmes had a big contribution in this meet, scoring 11 and a half points," Sink said. "He's been getting better and better."

In another sprint event, 400-meter dash, Braddix and Rivers placed third and fourth overall, respectively, to boost the Falcons to second place.

"Darren Braddix did a good job; he's been improving in the 110-meter hurdles," Sink said. "Then 15 minutes later after the 110 hurdles, he ran a 400 and finished third overall."

As for the distance events, Bowling Green is slowly creeping up on the top runners in the MAC.

Craig Nieset and Jim Weckesser teamed up in the 1500-meter run to lift the Falcons to an outstanding second place.

Nieset also ran the 800-meter, run with Miller and their combined effort resulted in a third place for the Falcons.

One major highlight from the field events was provided by Adam Rose and Geoff Fiedler in the shot put. Rose threw 55 feet, 1/4 inches and Fiedler tossed 53-3 1/2 to win the event for Bowling Green.

"Our shot putters were a big highlight for us," Sink said. "Geoff Fiedler had a seasonal best throw, which helped win the event."

Chris Stueve added another great performance, competing in the triple jump and 400-meter intermediate hurdles for the first time ever.

Sports Briefs

Wolf earns MAC honors

Bowling Green senior pitcher Jennifer Wolf was named the Mid-American Conference Pitcher of the Week, the league announced Monday.

Wolf appeared in six games over the week and went the distance in four of them. In those four complete games, she allowed only one earned run in 31 1-3 innings for a mesmerizing ERA of 0.22.

The Boulder, Colo. native earned both wins in Saturday's doubleheader at Ohio to run her season record to 7-13.

In last Monday's game against Detroit, Wolf matched her career high for strikeouts by fanning 13 Titan batters in a 1-0 Falcon loss. Wolf leads the MAC in strikeouts with 108 and is the Falcon career leader in the category with 472 punchouts. She is also atop the BG charts in victories (51) and shutouts (23).

Women's basketball team doles out awards

Several awards were presented and a few goodbyes were said at the Bowling Green women's basketball banquet, held Saturday night at Kaufman's.

Juniors Sara Puthoff and Charlotta Jones shared the Long's Cleaners Player of the Year award. Puthoff made good on a preseason All-MAC selection by earning first-team honors, while Jones grabbed a spot on the second team.

Puthoff also snatched the Free-Throw Award. She led the nation in foul shooting this season with a 89.7 percent clip. She made 101 of 107 charity tosses in MAC contests.

Others claiming awards were: junior Brooke Belcher, Scholar/Athlete Award (3.73 grade-point average in pre-med/biology); sophomore Jacki Raterman, Most Improved Player Award; sophomore Jenifer Gafford, Hustle Award; senior Candy Day, Most Inspirational Player Award; and seniors Michelle Terry and Maureen Ryan, a four-year manager, who each picked up the prestigious Falcon Award, given for outstanding contributions to the women's basketball program.

Falcon tennis hot entering MAC Championships

□ The Falcons sweep a pair of conference matches in preparation for MAC Championships.

By RYAN JOHNSON
The BG News

With the start of the Mid-American Conference Championships just two days away, the Bowling Green men's tennis team couldn't have picked a better time to be playing its best tennis of the season.

The Falcons are doing just that after beating conference foes Eastern Michigan and Toledo this past weekend at Keefe Courts. BG defeated both squads handily 7-0, to notch its fifth and sixth shutouts of the season.

With the MAC tournament looming days away, the Falcons (11-7, 4-2 MAC) were able to concentrate on defeating the over-matched Eagles and Rockets. BG took 30 of 31 sets over the weekend, with only one singles match going to a third set.

"We definitely took it to them," junior Dave Anderton said. "We had to make sure that we didn't come out flat and lose the matches we should win."

Senior Adam Tropp and sophomore Radu Bartan once again played strong at the top two flights, breezing easily past their opponents. At No. 3 singles, senior Joel Terman cruised to a pair of victories over the weekend, increasing his record number of career wins to 137.

Terman

At No. 4 singles, junior Ryan Gabel picked up a pair of victories to improve his team-leading singles record to 13-3.

In the bottom flights, the Falcons' strength all season, sophomore Matt Wiles, earned two wins, while Anderton and freshman Sonny Huynh each won one match in the No. 6 slot.

The Falcons also turned in solid performances in the doubles matches over the weekend, highlighted by a shutout of Toledo in the No. 2 flight by Terman and Bartan.

Wiles pointed out that the matches against weaker opponents could have been detrimental, but the Falcons were able to get the job done.

"They're good in that they build confidence if you're not playing well," Wiles said. "But they could be bad if you lose your focus."

With the weekend sweep, BG finishes the season with four victories in MAC dual play, which gives the Falcons the third seed at the MAC Championships. The year-ending tournament gets under way Thursday in Akron.

This year's MAC Championships will be the first time the tournament will be a team-style format instead of an individual format. Teams will play head-to-head with all members advancing with a team win.

Ball State holds the top seed and will get a first-round bye on Thursday. BG will likely square off with sixth seed Akron on Thursday in opening-round action. The Falcons defeated the Zips earlier this month, 6-1.

With a win, BG will likely advance to the semifinals against second-seeded Miami.

"We have to get off to a good start and use the first round as a warm-up for Miami," Anderton said. "We can beat Miami if we match up better against them."

The Falcons, who have won 10 of their last 13 matches, believe they can carry their late-season success into the MAC Championships.

"We need to go one match at a time," Gabel said. "If we put everything together, our goal is to win the whole thing." BG has finished either third or fourth as a team at the MAC Championships for six straight years. Last year, Terman and Gabel each finished third in their flight, while Tropp,

Bowling Green has a rough weekend on the golf course

□ The Falcon golfers struggle over the weekend, finishing 10th of 12 teams at the Illini Spring Classic.

By MATT SPECHT
The BG News

This was a very busy weekend for the Bowling Green golfers, as both the men's and women's teams were in action.

The women competed at the Illini Spring Classic at the University of Illinois. This was the final weekend of golf for the women as they finished the season with a disappointing showing.

Competing against a field of 12 teams, the Falcons finished 10th, ahead of Grand Valley State and Lewis University. In the first day of action, BG scored 331, but dipped to a 345 the second day for a two-day total of 676.

"We had a very good first day, but the second day we didn't play as well," assistant coach Kurt Thomas said.

The eventual winner of the match was Illinois. The Illini scored a 310 on the first day and 316 on the second day for a total of 626.

The Illini's consistency led to their victory, shooting 42 over par. Bowling Green, however, finished 92 above par.

Leading the Falcons was Kate Kolesnik. She scored an 82 the first day and an 84 the second day, for a total of 166.

"Kate improved her putting a lot and worked real hard," Thomas said.

Other scorers included Amy Miller, 167; Shannon Sharp, 172; Shawna Weaver, 174; Heidi Hanson, 178; and Missy Hinds, 181.

"I was not pleased with my play, as it was the last tournament of my career at Bowling Green," senior Shawna Weaver said.

Now the women look to the summer off-season for improvement.

"The main thing we need to improve on is our short game and our putting," Thomas said.

The men were hitting the links at the Legends of Indiana tournament. Bowling Green finished a disappointing 17th out of 18 teams, but great individual performances from Scott Cashell and Mike Kotnik made up for the team scores.

Cashell finished 20th overall with a score of 220, while Kotnik placed 36th, shooting a 224.

"We didn't get the job done as a team. We only had two individuals perform well," coach Todd Brunsink said. "I was very happy to see consistency and good golfing from Scott and Mike."

As a team, the Falcons scored a 306 on the first stage of play, a 311 on the next, and finally a 300 on the third day for a grand total of 917. BG's score was well behind Northwestern, who won the meet with a total score of 858.

"This was one of the toughest meets of the year," Brunsink said.

Competing at the Legends were several Big Ten teams and many of the Mid-American Conference teams.

Also scoring for BG were Jason Carbone, 237; Ian Windsor, 243; and Jeff Hunt, 247.

The men continue play on Monday, looking for improvement at the Wright State tournament in Dayton.

Editor's Note

Welcome to the final edition of the Campus Buzz for this semester. We hope that our publication has helped in the planning and awareness of events on campus each week. Please look for the Campus Buzz next fall for more upcoming campus events.

I would like to thank April Dagg and Jackie Stuart for all their hard work during the semester. Thanks to all of the writers who volunteered throughout the semester, and a thank you to all of you who submitted ideas through email.

Finally, thanks to Bob Bortel and Paul Oblinger, Programmers Council and UAO. I hope that this is just the beginning of good things to come for the Campus Buzz.

Remember, look for the Campus Buzz in the fall.

Conference to examine evolving Latino issues

The third annual Latino Issues Conference is set for all day Friday, April 25, in 101 Olscamp Hall. The conference will examine issues regarding multiculturalism and looks to discuss "the inaccurate meaning and the ideological implications of the words Hispanic, ethnic minority, marginal and third world, and the role they play in the current reformulations on the debate on race and class in the name of ethnic diversity and multiculturalism."

One session will address the issue of English as the official language of the United States and the conference also will examine issues of concern in education, the arts and theater. The conference coordinators hope to create an extensive dialogue on these topics and invites the public to join in an educational journey to continue to edify a less exclusive universe of discourse.

Approaching the 21st century, Latinos will be the largest ethnic group in the country and by virtue of this demographic change, doors are opening for Latinos that were once closed. But it is not clear whether the old ways of viewing, studying, classifying and stratifying the sociological construct named "Latino" will change.

More precisely, should Latino's question "the historical portrayal of the U.S.A. as the land of opportunity, where success was within reach of anyone who worked hard enough, and where personal achievement was limited only by an individual's ambition, drive, ingenuity and entrepreneurial skills" (Oscar Lenning).

Check-in and continental breakfast for the conference program is at 7:45 a.m. with opening remarks starting at 8:30 a.m. Keynote Speaker, Dr. Suzanne L. Oboler, Brown University, will be discussing, "Politics of Labeling."

Session II begins at 10:30 a.m. with moderators speaking on the English Only Movement in the United States. A one hour lunch break will occur with Session III beginning at 1:15 p.m. Sessions follow throughout the day ending at 9 p.m.

Farewell

'Beyond BG' a celebration for graduating seniors

Warmer weather and the days getting longer are not only sure signs of the approaching summer but of the end of spring semester as well. That means commencement is right around the corner. But before this year's graduating class passes on into the professional world, the University is providing a "last stop" of celebration with "Beyond BG."

"Beyond BG," a senior farewell is 6:30 -9:30 p.m. April 24 in 101B Olscamp and was created so that graduating seniors can celebrate their accomplishment of graduation. It is free and open to anyone who wants to join in the festivities.

The farewell will be centered around a coffee house theme with couches set up and Grounds for Thought supplying coffee and other various coffee drinks. Hors d'oeuvres will also served.

Throughout the evening, the jazz band Ool-Ya-Koo and the folk band Molly Monahan will provide musical entertainment. And there will be board games set up for the first hour and a half.

Bill Dallas, a 1997 BGSU graduate, will be the evening's featured guest speaker. Dallas is CEO of First Franklin Financial in Silicon Valley, Calif.

Prizes, including a trip to Toronto, will be given away throughout the evening. Emcee Rick Robers will keep the attendees entertained.

When "Beyond BG" concludes at 9:30 p.m., those attending will receive free admission to Junction to finish off the evening.

This event is being promoted through all organizations on campus. Some participants include Sic Sic, Freddie and Frieda Falcon and the BGSU cheerleaders. "Beyond BG" is sponsored by UAA and University Ambassadors.

Graduation

Graduation ceremonies features diverse speakers

Graduation is a little more than two weeks away and many seniors are beginning to anticipate the sound of their name being called as they receive their diplomas. This year, several changes are being initiated. Graduation is being held indoors in Anderson Arena with separate ceremonies planned for the colleges and different speakers scheduled for each ceremony.

Nearly 2,000 students will be receiving degrees in May, including some 328 graduate students. President Sidney Ribeau and Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs

Charles Middleton will take part in all four ceremonies.

Speaking at the Graduate College Commencement will be Douglas Neckers, distinguished research professor of Photochemical Sciences and executive director of the University's Photochemical Sciences Center. This ceremony is 7 p.m. Friday, May 9.

That same evening more than 50 students will receive degrees at Firelands College where George R. Mayer, president of Key Bank will speak.

On Saturday, May 10 more than 1,600 undergraduates will receive degrees at one of three ceremonies on the main campus. Seniors in the Colleges of Business Administration, Health and Human Services, and Technology will graduate at 9 a.m. and those in Musical Arts and Education and Allied Professions will receive degrees at 1 p.m.

The College of Arts and Sciences, which has the largest number of graduating seniors, will have ceremonies at 5 p.m.

Speaking at the 1 p.m. ceremony will be composer Samuel Adler, a visiting distinguished professor of music composition and history.

Stuart Givens, a professor history and university historian will give remarks at the 5 p.m. graduation. For graduating seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences, tickets can be picked up Monday, April 28 at the University Bookstore.

One result of the college-level planning is that faculty representation for individual ceremonies will be high.

Congratulations Seniors!

Olympic medalist, national champions skate this weekend at Ice Horizons '97

The Bowling Green Skating Club will host an ice skating exhibition titled "Ice Horizons '97" this weekend at the BGSU Ice Arena. Show times are 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 25 and 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 26.

Guest skaters at the exhibition include Elizabeth Manley, 1988 Olympic silver medalist, and the 1996 National Junior Pair Champions Natalie Vlandis and Jerod Guzman.

Divided into four different sections, the show offers a variety of great skating at all ages. The first section is "Girls, Girls, Girls," with adult and young girls performing together.

The youth skaters have a skit to "The Wizard of Oz" in the second section and in the third section, "European Vacation," will feature adult club skaters skating to various music, highlighting European culture.

The final section of the show includes all BG club skaters performing in a "United States Theme."

Tickets are $10 general admission and $12 for reserve seats and may be purchased at the BGSU Ice Arena box office. For additional information call 372-2264.

Students and Faculty sought for Rec Sports Golf Classic April 25

Grab your friends and co-workers and make plans to compete in the 1997 Rec Sports Golf Classic this Friday, April 25, at Forrest Creason Golf Course, with tee times beginning from 12:30-2 p.m. and 2-3:30 p.m.. The tournament is open to golfers of all skill levels, but you must turn in all entries by 4 p.m. April 23, at the Perry Field House.

The Recreational Sports Golf Classic is open to all university students, faculty and staff. Participants can register as a team or as individuals. Those individuals who register will be placed with three others to form a team. Team placement will be made at the participants meeting, to be held in the Perry Field House Meeting Room, 5 p.m. April 23. Tee times will be issued at the meeting.

Prizes will be awarded to the overall lowest team score as well as prizes in each of the following areas: longest drive, longest putt, closest to the pin, and non-competitive prizes.

Entry fees for the golf classic will cost an individual student $10, an individual faculty/staff $15, a team of students (4 players) $35, and a team of faculty/staff $45 dollars. All proceeds from the tournament will be donated to the Recreational Sports Student Employee Board Book Scholarship. Cash, check, or bursar accounts are acceptable for entry fee.

Entries are accepted on a first come, first serve basis. Tee times are limited in number. In the event that the golf classic is rained out, each entrant will receive a voucher good for one free round (nine holes) of golf at the Forrest Creason Golf Course. All participants will receive their tournament t-shirt.

For more information contact Dale Hartenburg, Graduate Assistant-Recreational Sports, at 372-8110.
