Welcome!

Hello!

Kate Larson, a sophomore elementary education major, and friends Brittany Diltz, 2, and Zack Gibson, 7, say hello during a campus stroll Wednesday.

ello. This is the first day of the rest of your life.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 23, 1997. Fall classes at Bowling Green State University begin in precisely four days.

Are you ready?

Whether you are a freshman walking on campus for the first time or a senior ready to (finally) graduate, this is a time of transition.

The collegiate experience is one that is rivaled by no other. A few thousand freshmen arrive on campus today nearly all of them moving away from home for the first time.

Well, folks, this IS home now.

For many, there will be frantic calls home. Most freshmen get homesick at least once during their first year on campus.

But take some advice from the "big kids." The homesick feeling will pass. In only a few years, many things about your hometown will become just a memory for you.

Wherever you may be headed - into education, into art, into computer science you should take some time to enjoy the "college experience".

College is about growing up - and by all means we should have fun while we're at it.

The President welcomes new students

Welcome to Bowling Green State University.

I very much appreciate this opportunity to say welcome via The BG News. Although it's only a substitute for the greeting I would prefer to give in person, it is appropriate to use the student newspaper because it is an important communication link in the University and a publication I hope you get into the habit of reading every day it is printed.

As you arrive on campus, ready to begin your life at Bowling Green, your hopes and enthusiasm understandably run high. You chose Bowling Green for reasons which I trust have something to do with its excellence — present or potential. But from this date onward, you become one of the most important criteria by which those outside the University judge its excellence.

Our Job, therefore, is to strive to not only measure up to your expectations but to set standards for even higher levels of achievementPRESIDENT for you and for us. But an excellent education cannot simply be given—it must be taken.

It is your job then, to become an active part of the learning process. You must attend ALL of your classes and get involved in class discussions. You must do your reading and homework assignments and be prepared to get the most from every class. You must ask questions, find answers, challenge assumptions — yours and others' — and make discoveries. In short, you must think.

This same attitude of aggressive inquisitiveness will serve you well outside the classroom. As a residential university. Bowling Green has much to offer in the way of extracurricular activities. There are hundreds of student organizations. There are music concerts, dance performances, opera and theater productions, film showings and art exhibits.

Organized sports are offered at the varsity, club and intramural levels and there is the Student Recreation Center and all of the other excellent facilities for physical activities. There are also hundreds of ways for students to volunteer their time and energy to help others.

Take advantage of all of them. There is an old saying that 50 percent of everything a student learns in college is learned outside the classroom. Make this part of your education a quality experience, also.

At Bowling Green you will find

One of our more notable successes is in the area of computer technology. Very few colleges and universities throughout the country offer its students the access to computers and computer technology that Bowling Green now offers.

We are also making great strides in offering better "student service." And I believe we are beginning to take many of the "hassles" out of being a student here at Bowling Green.

While this letter is intended for freshmen, I want to take an inch or two of space and address returning students and the faculty and staff.

To those students returning.

I want to offer a hearty welcome back. I hope this past year has been successful for you both academically and personally, and I hope you have returned to campus with a renewed commitment to get the most from your education. While all of us are hoping for the best, I am realistic enough to know that probably each of you will run into some "rough road" on your way to a degree. Remember that the University has many resources which stand ready to serve and help you. All you need to do is ask.

I look forward to meeting many of you as I go about campus. All signs point to an excellent year, and I assure you that all of us here will try very hard to measure up to the very high standards which you have every right to expect at Bowling Green.

I hope the qualities of this University — and a university does have its own special personality and style as well as its more easily defined academic strengths – will grow significantly during the period of time you are here. And I hope you will actively contribute to the growing of those strengths.

Students must debunk the cornfield myth

After spending all summer in Bowling Green, I can't help noticing how fast summer drops out of the picture. Mid-August creeps in, stealing the heat and BG's pleasantly desolate setting and replacing it with a fall breeze, tree lawns lined with stuffing-coming-out-of-the-cushions couches, and, of course, thousands of khakishorted and sandaled 21-year-olds. Soon, the freshmen will add to the landscape, and another BG summer will sneak out the door with its signature lazy half-wave. Good-bye. And welcome back, buzzing college town.

For the new students, the next few months will be pleasantly quick. Don't blink, I warn you. Even if you can already feel yourself missing home, or having difficulties adjusting to shower shoes and new friends, you'll have little time to worry about it. You can always have 60 hours of school work if loneliness necessitates it.

But most of you won't be so lucky. Your youthful lust for the "I decided to get excited about college. When else would I get to sit around and learn for four years?"

college experience will lead you ing Green and other college towns to porch party Friday nights and the drunken orgy that is any college town's bar scene. I know many of you are eagerly anticipating some good partying. But if you catch yourself waking up the next morning wondering what the streets of BG really look like, or whether or not you had a good time last night, don't say I didn't warn you. Don't get caught up in the false success of "going out." Life's too fast to trade genuine experience for hazy fleeting ones.

When you do go out, don't be a wimp. Take out your people-detector and find those wonderful people that just have to exist in a community of 18,000 young people. Then enjoy them when you are sober.

Kids here often say the emphasis on partying one sees in Bowling Green and other college towns is a result of having nothing else to do. This is the "cornfield" fallacy, which says if your town is surrounded by corn, there will be nothing to do except drink. Little do these people know that the only thing that would ever make Bowling Green boring are its people, who give up too easy.

Sooner than later, you will hear someone turn on the cynicism and ask you "why'd you choose this dump" or "come on ... it's only BG!" It might sound like these people are discouraging you from taking college here seriously. These people work for some evil enterprise. They want you to be dumb and predictable. They want you to find job skills and some good times here and that's it. They hope you'll leave Bowling Green as you found it. Please fight these bad people.

If there's one truth about this University, it's that there are resources here for a lot of personal growth and creativity. Besides the obvious hardware like good instructors (seek and you will find!), libraries, computers and student organizations, there is something else. I call it culture and its a luxury college kids can't afford to deny.

While it's unfortunate that we don't have a 5-to-1 student to instructor ratio, that we are known to much of the University by our POO numbers, or that we're not as chic as Ann Arbor, Bowling Green still has potential. Don't take for granted that you live in a town with plenty of people who think, who have the time to create music and art, read, experiment, talk, etc. This is something we must try and amplify, at least by supporting local culture. If you're in a hurry for job skills, I understand. But remember to try and get your money's worth.

TONY CAVALLARIO

Most of the advice you'll be given this year won't make sense right away. Like driving a car, making out and a host of other worthwhile activities. you can't expect a manual to save you.

I. too, was bombarded with talk about a well-rounded education,
about being a leader, and about applying myself.
About six months into college,

About six months into college, without a major, I felt like I was still in high school. I was taking some easy classes on purpose, napping compulsively, thinking about the weekend like a kid waits for Christmas ... all symptoms of the "State College Sneak-by," a trap that I regret having experienced. When a friend of mine from another school passionately told me how he would sneak into a class he wasn't even taking, just to learn, I wondered what I was missing.

Then suddenly the stars aligned and I figured out that I would just pick a major that was something that I could do if all my dreams fall through. I decided to get excited about college. When else would I get to sit around and learn for four years? Perhaps I have developed a little rugged individualism in college, most notably buying into the cliche that you get out of college what you put in it. I sure hope it's true.

One last piece of guidance: Someone once told me to use college to find yourself, then throw yourself at the world. If that sounds too risky and clumsy, then good. So is life!

Good luck from the Provost

I am pleased to accept the invitation of The BG News to convey my welcome to all new students as well as those who are returning to campus this fall. The beginning of the academic year is for me, as I hope it is for you, a time of renewed spirit and energy.

Reflecting back upon my experience over what is now a remarkable 35 fall semesters since I was a freshman back in 1962, it seems to me that the rhythms of the academic year juxtapose themselves nicely with the rhythms of the seasons. The fall is normally a time of consolidation and preparation for the rigors of winter. In the academy, the converse is true. The fall is a new time for explorations, fresh beginnings, and anticipation and hope for successful academic and personal endeavors for the ensuing nine months.

The work of the University - our teaching and learning, our scholarly and creative endeavors, and our outreach to the community through internships, public service etc. - has never been more important. Indeed, as we build community at BGSU, the success that you have as you pursue your degrees is a key component of the overall vitality of the University.

Never in my experience has it been more important for students to succeed at the University and to earn the degrees that come with that success. Indeed, both your own future and CHARLES MIDDLETON that of your family, not to mention the future of the United Sates countries, depends upon how well you do your work here today. Much is other at stake. Not only are your lifetime earnings greatly enhanced by the completion of a college degree but your ability to play an effective role in your communities and in your careers or occupation in the future is directly related to the quality of the academic foundation that you are laying today.

These are among the most important reasons, though assuredly they are not the only ones. why being a diligent student at BGSU is in your best interest. In fact, that success is not only measured by how well you do in your formal academic classes, but also by how well you play your role as a member of the community as a social group. Your active participation in extracurricular activities at the University is a vital part of the quality of your education. I cannot over state the importance of this fact. We are well aware, spend at least half (if not more) of your time outside the formal academic activities you engage in, that it helps to shape the quality of the academic experience that you have when you are more directly interacting with us in the classrooms, laboratories, studios, library, and offices.

All this is to say that it is important that you get involved in a systematic way and that you make something more of your academic experience than just going to class. If you do so, your years at BGSU will not only be a great deal more fun, they will also be more effective in contributing to your lifetime of success in the future after you graduate. For it is our expectation that you WILL graduate! This is our mutual goal. our mutual covenant.

So, in closing, let me reiterate what I have noted elsewhere. I, the other members of the administration, along with the faculty and staff of the University are pleased to have you here in Bowling Green after what we hope was a happy and successful summer. There is much to be done by all of us in the academic year and we look forward to working with you, just as I hope that you anticipate successfully engaging us in these endeavors. Welcome home.

Welcome from the Editor

Welcome to the city of Bowling Green and the BGSU campus. Today is the first day of the rest of your life.

I remember the day that I first stepped foot on the University campus. I was a naive, goofy little 17-year-old, bitter because all of the local clubs are – at best – 19-and-over. Since I wasn't able to go to Uptown until a few weeks into my sophomore year, one might say I was a late bloomer.

Today, I sit nine months away from graduating. A lot of water has gone under the bridge since that freshman year.

What I did during my freshman year set the course for the rest of my life. I was already on my way into journalism, but what transpired during that year really set up what I wanted to do with my

Looking back, there were two keys for me. One, I fell in with a group of friends that have become my family - whether they like it or not. Two, I got involved with little organization called The BG went out, hung out. fooled around and pretty much really enjoyed everybody's company There was about 15 of us who got to be really close and are still close today - three years and about 1,000 pizzas later.

As for The BG News, it gave me something that I could latch on to. I was a part of something. plus it fit right in with the career wanted to follow. I've done a lot of memorable things, too, working at this newspaper. Perhaps the greatest honors I've had in my entire life was having a front-row seat for just about every game of NBA Lottery pick Antonio Daniels' senior season as a Falcon.

With that. I offer my two keys to success at this University: · Find a good group of people to hang out with. It's tough, but if you find the right group you'll have some great friends for a life-

· Get involved. It probably won't be at The BG News (we aren't for the faint of heart), but every incoming freshman should strive to find something that they can identify with or feel a part of.

I will guarantee that if you are the type of student that is here just to broaden your academic horizons, you won't make it - or if you do make it, you won't be a very happy camper. College is as much a social renaissance as it is an academic renaissance. Students should strive to find both.

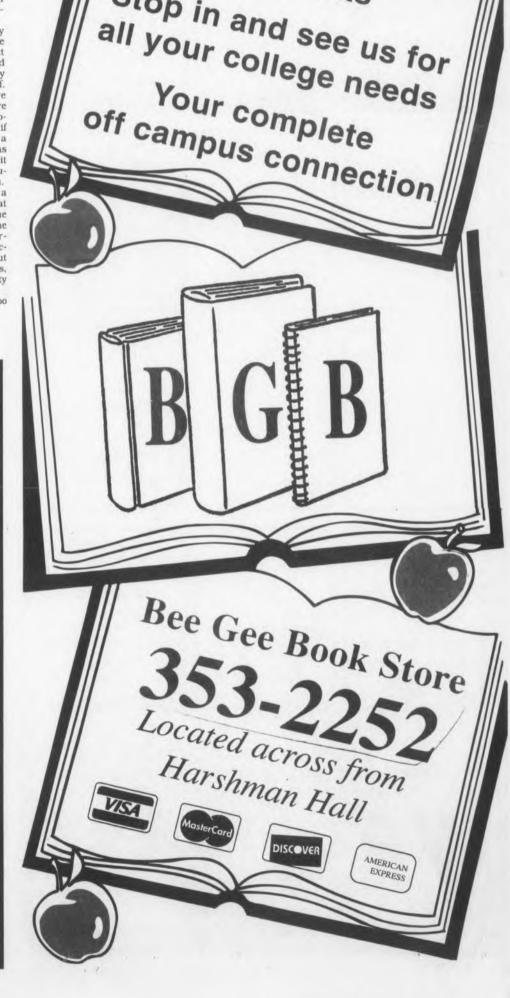

Get out! Get involved! Go to a football game. Sample a play at the theater department. Join the staff at the Key Yearbook, or the Bowling Green Radio Sports Organization, or Undergraduate Activities Organization. Check out one of BG's historic pizza parlors, or fill the lanes the University Bowling Alley.

After all, aren't you paying too much money just to sit there? Scott Brown is the Editor-In-

1: I haven't yet received my validation sticker. Can I still use the Recreation Center and borrow books from the library?

Dear Validation-less Victor,

Yes, you can bring along a copy of your class schedule and your BGSU photo ID. By Sept. 16, however, you will need to have your validation sticker. The validation stickers are delivered to the mailboxes in the residence halls and the on-campus mailboxes.

2: I know that I am enrolled in a college at the University. How can I learn more about what this means and where my college office is located?

3: I have heard that I have an academic advisor. How can I find out what academic advising can do for me? Dear Wondering Wanda,

There will be a session presented twice during Welcome Week that explains what academic advising is and what it can do for you. The sessions will be at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. on Monday in 115 Olscamp. You can find out who your academic advisor is by calling your college office. The phone numbers are listed above

4: I need spending money! I used up my savings from my summer job just to buy books. How do I find a job? Dear Mad for Money, Visit the Student Employment located at 315 Saddlemire Student Services Building. Part-time campus job openings are posted.

5: Help! I attended the first meeting of one of my classes and found that the course content is not what I thought it would be. It satisfies one of my General Education Core requirements, but I really don't like it. Can I take a different General Education Core course instead? Dear Dissatisfied Darla,

Yes, you can. The deadline to drop and add classes is Sept. 2. You can do this by phone utilizing the STAR-90 System. Or if you wish to, you can make schedule changes in person at the Office of Registration and Records. In addition to regular business hours, they will also be open on Aug. 30 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Aug. 31 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The office will be closed on Labor Day.

Involvement enriches education experience

☐ Student Life officials urge students to check out some of the over 170 campus organizations.

By DARLA WARNOCK The BG News

A simple question answers the problem of deciding whether or not to get involved on campus. Why not?

That's the answer Gale Swanka, director of student activities, tries to convey to inquiring stu-

Out of over 170 campus organizations, there are plenty of opportunities. The only question may be which one(s) to choose.

"It's just a fun thing to do," Swanka said. "Don't be afraid to try new things."

She said national studies show on average more than 90 percent of students are involved in at least one extra-curricular activity. That percentage of students had higher grades overall and a higher graduation rate at their particular college.

Dean of Students Gregg DeCrane explained that once students realize that their college education takes place both in and outside of the classroom, they will be more successful in both areas.

DeCrane advises students to take in all the opportunities they see while they still can.

"College may not be the greatest years of your life, but they are the years in which provide the most opportunities for you," DeCrane said. "You can develop skills which are going to be critical to you later."

Students will have the opportunity to meet and greet leaders of more than 100 of the student organizations on campus at the annual Organizations Fair on September 10. The fair, held in Lenhart Grand Ballroom, showcases the organizations and gives students a chance to get acquainted with all of their options.

"You can meet people in your field or just as a hobby for a good relief," Swanka said. "You're gonna make friends and learn skills like leadership, time management and budgeting."

The more a student gets involved in campus organizations, the more likely that person is to stay at the University, eventually affecting retention and graduation rates, DeCrane said.

A sense of belonging will come naturally with getting involved in a group of people with same interests, which again turns full circle and makes the student feel comfortable in staying at the University, he explained.

"The involvement helps to create a sense of comfort level," DeCrane said. "The chances to succeed once that happens start to become more likely."

A complete list of Student Organizations is located in the Student Handbook, and the majority of them will be represented in the Organizations Fair.

"Just go and find out exactly what is out there,"

In the case of inclement weather, the picnic will be forced indoors.

Sandra MacNevin, special assistant to the President, explained that in the case of uncooperative weather, lunch will still be offered for free. It will just be moved inside to each of the residence halls.

Either way, the idea is to get students to come together with faculty, staff and administrators and make a connection with the University and its community.

"We need to help out in any way we can to give students a good start at the beginning of the semester," Ribeau said. "On the social side, the opening day picnic is creating an atmosphere where students can feel comfortable and we can come closer to our vision."

The University vision is to become "the premier learning community in the state of Ohio and one of the best in the nation."

"It will be real nice to start the year off [coming closer to the vision]," Ribeau added.

SHARP hopes for easy crossover

☐ The office of Student Housing and Residence Programs works to make the transition to oncampus living as hasslefree as possible.

Living away from home for the first time can be a very nervewracking period, but if new housing director Bud Beatty has anything to say about it, it the transition to college life will be as smooth as possible.

The Department of Student Housing and Residence Programs (SHARP) has the job of being a surrogate parent, older brother or sister and counselor to students who are facing many new situations in what is often their first time living away from

Administrators continue "building community"

You may see them on campus. You may read about them in The BG News. Or you may even find yourself seeking their expertise in a number of areas.

They are your campus administrators. They are here to keep the inner wheels of the University turning so that students, faculty or staff don't get caught in the spokes. They are there to grease those wheels so they turn more smoothly. If a problem arises, it should be brought to their attention in order to create the best living and learning environment for students.

 Upgrades will make University's class registration system more user-friendly.

By SARAH BEDNARSKI The BG News

It's the beginning of the fall 1997 semester and the last thing on anyone's mind is registering for spring 1998.

Except for the folks in the Office of Registration and Records who have busily been updating STAR-90

The official phone number for STAR-90 is 372-8966.

University Registrar Becky

McOmber said one of the first upgrades to the class registration system is new computer system and the addition of 32 phone lines. The total number of lines has doubled to 64, McOmber said.

"The first changes of the system will be invisible except, of course, for the number of lines," McOmber said.

According to Ann Marie Lancaster, associate professor of computer science, the upgrading of the computer system is scheduled for completion in January

"We will install and test the new system this fall," Lancaster said. "The new system is more reliable and efficient.'

"The first couple of changes to the system will be invisible except, of course, the number of lines.'

The University is also looking to increase the number of services and applications available to students, McOmber said.

She said grade postings, financial aid, and housing information are some of the possible services to be available through accessing

STAR-90. 'By increasing the options it will enable us to help more students with problems," McOmber said. "We want students to call us if they are having problems with STAR-90.

Academic assistance available to students

☐ Help labs provide students with just that -help with a variety of problems concerning coursework.

By JOHN STEBBINS The BG News

Now that you're in college, you find that it's a lot more fun being able to pick which times to go to class and you only have to go for 12-18 hours a week. However, the downside to all of this is that the coursework is a little tougher and oftentimes it doesn't make sense.

Help is not on the way. It's already here.

The University campus has academic tutoring labs to help you with your problems with class material.

Dianne Abbott, director of the Math Lab in Moseley Hall, said the Math Lab offers a variety of ways to help math students, from one-on-one tutoring to simple study hall environments.

"We have tutoring assistance, study groups of up to five people, practice tests for all the 100-level classes, handouts and answer keys, computer software and a lending library of books and videos," she said. "It depends on what the student both wants and

Abbott added that there is an advantage to both hands-on and passive tutoring within the lab.

"Some students just come here and do their homework," she said. "Many also get into a study group that works at its own pace. We also have many people who take out our 'Math Made Easy series on video or take out a book of a lesser level for a more basic explanation to their problems."

The campus also has a Writing Lab for those who are having trouble writing a paper for a class. Though affiliated with the best out of your four years here? That won't happen if you pack up your laundry bags and go home to mom and dad every weekend. As you drive away, opportunities slip away. The con nection is broken. A sense of community is lost.

In order for you to be able to be an active part of the community, you have to participate. Think

Dining halls continue shift to food court atmosphere

University Dining Services offers variety of foods to quench any student's appetite.

By JOHN STEBBINS The BG News

Somewhere between going out to eat and staying home with mom's cooking lies the college cafeteria

The University Dining Services offers a variety of foods to accomodate any taste and diet from vegetarian to pizza and burgers. Bowling Green's Dining Services is the only two-time winner of the Ivy Award, presented by Restaurants and Institutions magazine for excellence in campus food service.

Ed O'Donnell, associate director of University Dining Services, said the variety of Univeristy menus is key to running a successful food system.

"We have been developing a food court style similar to a mall atmospshere so students can pick and choose from different stations," he said. "This style is generally preferred by both the students and staff who work in the kitchen. Most anything you nected to residence halls accept

O'Donnell added the menu for the Pheasant Room will be altered to cater to student tastes during the evenings.

Sharon Stewart, business manager for the University Dining Services, says the costs of providing meals is also balanced with quality of the menu.

Reception aims to ease transition for multicultural

Program geared to ease 'cultural shock' of entering a new environment.

A reception, "Linked to BGSU," will be held on the second floor lounge in the Student Services Building from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The event will orient students to what resources are available to them academically, socially and culturally. Members of the Office of Multicultural Affairs and Student Support Services are hosting the event.

"We hope to minimize the cultural shock of coming into a new environment," said Manny Vadillo, associate director of the Office of Multicultural Affairs and Student Support Services.

Active student leaders, such as members of the Latino Student Union and the Black Student Union, will also play a role in welcoming the freshman.

Although freshman orientation through the Office of Multicultural Affairs has occurred for 20 years, this will be the first time that University students have been involved in planning it. One of their roles will be to act as liaisons to their campus organizations.

In addition to the students, all minority faculty and staff at the University have been invited to the meeting, which will serve to link both students and fac-

The students will have an opportunity to meet these University leaders, who can be "identifiable role models" for them.

The role models, Vadillo said, are faculty and staff with an ethnic identity that is similar to the student. The event will give the students the chance to network with the University leaders.

Helping students become adjusted to college life without feeling alienated is just as important as networking, he

"In order to become a part of the University, you need to feel a part of the University and that is not an automatic process," he said. "So we're going to facilitate the process of becoming a part of the University."

Members of Vadillo's office will speak at the orientation, expressing their interest in the students' success and will inform them of the many resources available through the office. Staci McDaniel, coordinator of the event and academic counselor in the office, said many times students will enter the University without knowing what type of help is available to them.

UCS answers high-tech queries

□ University Computing Services aids students with computer questions.

By MAUREEN BARRY The BG News

University Computer Services provides services for the University community through supporting several levels of computer systems.

One of the services provided by UCS is the Computer Help Center, which opened three years ago to assist students with their questions about computers, according to Duane Whitmire, Computer Help Center analyst.

Students can call the Computer Help Center with questions at 372-0999 or go to 100 Hayes Hall.

The number of questions the help center fields makes it impossible for the consultants to answer every question, according to Toby Singer, interim executive director of University Computer Services and Telecommunications Services.

"The Help Center does a wonderful job; they field many, many questions," Singer said.

Pat Kania, Computer Help Center manager, said if questions are above the technical level of the consultants, students

If you're interested in fitness and athletics, congratulations. You've stumbled onto a campus with one of the premier fitness facilities in the nation. And it's

The Student Recreation Center, the funny-shaped building located on the East side of campus, is "among the best athletic facilities in the country," according to Scott Levin, operations director of the Rec Center. And over 1,100 people per day make use of the complex.

The 185,000-square-foot facility offers four levels open to students, including a 190-yard banked running track, four basketball courts and three half-courts, modern weight equipment, two swimming pools, 14 handball and racquetball corts, three squash courts, a light excercise room and a dance studio. The building also provides facilities for tennis, volleyball, badminton, golf and volleyball.

"The question is what don't we have," Levin said.

The Rec Center is free to all students with a valid ID and current validation sticker. Before receiving their validation stickers, students may substitute a schedule or a receipt from the bursar's office along with their

There are two primary func-tions of Fact Line: To control rumors and to be available to students in times of emergencies. Providing information to students that is needed to get through school to make their lives easier and more productive is of key importance.

"We don't even try to know everything; it's just impossible," McLean said. "But we do try to have the information available that most students need to make their lives easier.'

If Fact Line cannot answer your question, the operator will try to refer you to a contact that may have more expertise on the subject matter.

However, McLean warned that the service is not to be used as a game. If Fact Line is stumped, students do not win a prize. Those that use Fact Line for frivolous information are keeping others on hold, callers that may have a greater need for the ser-

There are three questions that will not be answered by Fact Line: they will not give an opinion, medical/legal advice, and they will not divulge the location of Fact Line. The reasons are simple: opinions are too varied, the operators are not qualified for giving out medical/legal advice, and security is an issue for the whereabouts of Fact Line. English department, Writing specialist Theresa Torisky said the lab will look at any paper for any class.

"We serve the whole campus community with its writing problems," she said. "We have one-onone tutoring for everyone who comes in with a paper for any class on any topic.'

Though many might see the lab as a place to come to find simple mechanical errors in spelling and grammar, she noted the focus of the lab is to help with the development of the writer as well.

"We aren't here to just proofread," she said. "Many people expect that when they come in, but what we do is help the writer find patterns in their writing so they can learn to identify problems and prevent them from happening again."

Torisky added the lab looks at the piece as a part of the overall growth of a writer.

"The student is empowered," she said. "They come in with a lot of anxiety about their paper and we help them solve it themselves. The lab also gives an informed audience to the writer to bounce ideas off of to make sure something is explained clearly or fully enough."

There is also a Language Lab on campus, but director Eric Graubart said it is only for the serious student of foreign language who is looking to fill speaking requirements for upper-level classes, though they will point you in the right direction to find a tutor for difficulties with a foreign language.

BG police offer security tips for students

 Campus, city officials warn students to be careful while attending school.

By SARAH BEDNARSKI The BG News

With students returning to school this weekend, both the University and city police want everyone to be careful and

And they have plenty of advice to offer new and returning students. According to Sgt. Cindy Loomis, University police, students need to be alert when walking at night. She said when a student being followed should proceed to a well-lit and congested area.

Bowling Green police chief Thomas Votava said students should walk in well-lit areas. If students have a problem they should flag down an officer, Votava said.

Loomis said students should always keep their doors locked.

Students think that if they just shut their doors to go to the restroom that's OK, but we have more things ripped off that way," Loomis said.

Loomis advises all students on and off campus to use a method of marking their belongings. She said students should put some sort of identity mark on electronic equipment, bikes and

"Books are like gold and students need to mark books not necessarily in the front or back but on a certain page near the binding," Loomis said.

According to Loomis, students should keep University IDs and house keys separate. She said most students carry them together and when one is stolen so is the other.

Students should take caution with large parties and other alcohol-related functions. Stories and graphic, page 22.

"Once a thief has both they know who you are and it's not hard to find out where you live," Loomis said. Both Loomis and Votava said that students should also secure bikes. Both advised students not to bring any expensive bikes.

"If it's a really expensive bike don't bring it here in the first place,"Loomis

Bowling Green police Lt. Brad Connor said students need to purchase locks for their bikes as well as register them. Students can register them at the city police station or at the University police office. The cost is $3.

Loomis, Votava and Connor all agree students should secure belongings in their cars.

"Students should go out and check their cars a couple times a week and take all valuables out of their car," Loomis said.

Downtown comes alive after night falls in BG

 Bowling Green nightlife offers something for everyone with a variety of bars, coffeehouses and movie theaters.

By BRANDON WRAY The BG News

One of the most important aspects of University life happens after classes are over and the homework (hopefully) is done.

Bowling Green nightlife is certainly attractive to new students. With nearly 15 bars within walking distance of campus, as well as coffeehouses and several movie theaters, there is never a lack of something to do when another night of reading that dry textook sounds like torture.

Bowling Green's bar culture attempts to offer something for everyone. Although it doesn't always succeed, there is certainly a lot out there to take in.

Themes such as 70s and 80s nights are popular at places like Gargoyles and Uptown, which are also the best places to go dancing. Many bars including Tuxedo Junction feature theme nights which specialize in certain types of music, such as country or Grateful Dead night.

For the more musically ambitious Uptown offers alternative night. Karoake night at Downtown is a treat for those who are

That brings up another imporage. Many bars will not let anyone in who is under 21. The bars which an underager can get into are Gargoyles, Uptown, upstairs at Tuxedo Junction, Brathaus, the rest aurant side of BW-3, and Howards Club H. Easy Street is 19-and-over.

Of-age bars are Downtown, Bigshots, Ziggy Zoomba's, Brewster's, Trotter's, the bar at BW-3, and the downstairs at Tuxedo Junction.

Easy Street and Howard's are two of the best places in town for live music. Both feature bands usually every night and occasionlly a big name will play at one of the two when they stop in Bowling Green.

These years will be the most exciting and educational of your life

BRANDON WRAY City Editor

Okay, I admit that "city" may not be the best word to describe this place.

College town, charming little country burg, something like that would be more accurate. Labels aside, this "place" is going to be where many memories will be made as you become an adult.

As school starts this year I really have become quite nostalgic of the position many of you are now in. You are just beginning, I am nearing the end and really am not ready to give up this life. This life is something you should treasure and completely immerse yourself in while here. You are given a gift, a four-

(maybe five- or six-) year vacation from the rest of the world all its problems. College certainly isn't problem-free but compared to the downward spiraling modern world - it is. There are many opportunties that will be offered to you in your time here. It is your call whether or not you will take advantage of the the opportunty.

The first few years of college will likely be the most exciting time of your life. I remember when I was a freshman the first month seemed like a cool youth movie like "Reality Bites" or Dazed and Confused." There is so much freedom that you never even realized you could have.

You will meet many new people and be exposed to new things. You have the freedom to stay up all night talking about God, politics or music.

My advice to you right now is to be very spontaneous and open to doing anything in the first few weeks. Meet everyone. Go everywhere in town that you have time for. Make the first few weeks a time where you really take in everything you can about

Religious outlets plentiful, diverse for student worship

City and campus offer multitude of religious options for students.

By ROCHELLE CONVERSE The BG News

Students who are looking for a place to worship and meet others of similar faith have a lot to choose from in Bowling Green.

Presently, there are 12 campus organizations committed to the spiritual growth of students.

The following is a synopsis of those groups:

Active Christians Today
Active Christians Today is a nondenominational Christian student organization, according to campus minister David

The group meets regularly and is made up of believers who are united by their re lationship with Jesus Christ. Warner said the group wants to provide an atmosphere for Christian students at the University as well as for any college student who has an inter-

Regular meeting times include Mondays at 7 p.m. in the Alumni Room on the third floor of the University Union and Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the campus house, 612 East Wooster.

Meetings include singing, worship, Bible study and fellowship. ACT has weekly social activities, annual mission trips to Haiti over spring break, and a drama and music team. The campus house has a full kitchen, television and is usually open through the week

Catholic Student Connection for students to hang out or study Brothers and Sisters in Christ

BASIC, Brothers and Sisters in Christ, is a ondenominational full-gospel organization. s purpose, according to Student Adviser Mike Lyon, is to "help students know and experience the love of God and to find their personal destiny through teaching, prayer, worship and service."

The group meets on Thursdays at 8 p.m. in the Taft Room on the third floor of the University Union. Meetings include worship, prayer and Bible study. The group is open to any campus student including international

The group has several retreats through The group has several retreats through the year and openly invites students to attend the church that the group is affiliated with. Mission trips to such places as New York City are also common.

transport students to the services.

Campus Crusade for Christ

Campus Crusade for Christ is a nondenominational Christian ministry and one of the larger groups on campus, according to Michael Brown, director of the group.

They meet each Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in Room 115 of the Education Building. The meetings usually average 250 students and Brown is expecting a larger number to attend the first week of classes, at least 300 students.

"It's a place where real students can hang out and ask real questions and get real answers about real life," Brown said, referring to the mission statement of the group.

The meetings vary and include not only a short message but also bands, interactive games and other activities designed to engage the student.

The group seeks to help students on camber develop the privitival associated their lives.

pus develop the spiritual aspect of their lives. They have a variety of other activities available, including Bible studies in every residence hall throughout the week. Parties, weekend trips and leadership retreats are some activities they offer

Catholic Student Connection is an organization that promotes social, educational and spiritual activities, which are held during the academic year according to Sarah Bishop, outreach coordinator for St. Thomas More University Parish.

Although regular meeting times have not been set, the group usually meets monthly for evening Mass, followed by dinner at the parish, 425 Thurstin Ave. A variety of events are available for students including picnics, retreats and other social activities.

The group seeks to loster growth of the whole person, whether it be spiritually, emotionally, intellectually or physically, Bishop said. They also want to take the Catholic experience beyond the "church walls."

Mass services are also held each Tuesday at 12:05 p.m. in Prout Chapel on the Universtry campus.

Christian Students
BG Christian Students is another Christian organization that includes people from a vanety of religious faiths and even those who have no religious affiliation, said Campus Director Jim Poorman.
As an interdenominational group, they seek to provide an atmosphere for any college student whose faith may anything from

lege student whose faith may anything from Christian to atheist

"We want to open it up to students of any ligious background and to the unchurched, hiests and skeptics," Poorman said. "We want people who are genuinely interested."

The main goal of the group is to communicate Christ. They meet every Thursday at 8 p.m. in the lounge at the BGSU loc Arena.

"Thursday Night Live" includes bands that range in music from country all the way to "several curk". Recording to Proportion range in music from country all the way to "speed punk," according to Poorman. Poorman usually talks to the group and top-ics are about different issues that college students may be facing. Other events are held through the college year and small groups usually meet in resi-dence halls. Sunday worship service is at 11 a.m. in the Bryan Recital Hall at the Moore Musical Arts Building.

The Link offers crisis hotline, walk-in counseling

□ Trained volunteers staff BG's crisis intervention center, newly merged with other social services.

By CYNTHIA LEE SHECKLER The BG News

It's your first time away from home, you're experiencing some anxieties and need to talk -- just pick up the phone and call The Link hotline at 352-1545 or 1-800-472-9411.

This service is free for University students and anyone in the BG community.

This 24-hour, seven-day-afed by trained counselors cil on Alcoholism and Drug through Behavioral Connections of Wood County. It is available for anyone who is in need of assistance whether it be for counseling, clothing, shelter, or personal safety.

Volunteer Coordinator Karen Wallack said over 65 volunteers who staff the hotline are trained individuals attempt to be caring, understanding and nonjudgmental.

"The crisis consultant on duty talks with you, accesses any other emergency services you may need and makes referrals to other agencies that can assist in your behalf," Wallack said.

Wallack said on Oct. 1, 1996 the week confidential hotline is staf- Mental Health Center, the Coun-

Abuse, and The Link merged to create Behavioral Connections of Wood County. This merger was done so there was one central location that could coordinate all of these social services.

Mary K. Theil-Kimmett, director of Intake and Emergency Services, said in 1996 The Link handled 7,850 contacts (phone calls or walk-ins), of which 5,640 of them were crisis.

Some of the reasons individuals call are because of relationship problems, stress over finals, substance abuse, pregnancy, family problems and emotional distress, according to Theil-Kimmett.

The Link is an integral part of Behavioral Connections and is open to the public at all times. Wallack said all calls, regardless of subject matter, are confidential.

"Our function is to help the person in need, not to report the crime," Wallack said.

According to Julie Broadwell, SAAFE Coordinator (Sexual Assault Awareness for Empowerment Program) when someone has been victimized they should be taken to a "safe place" and put in touch with an advocate from the "safe program."

Behavioral Connections is located at 315 Thurstin, near the Ridge intersection. Volunteers are being sought who are diverse in ethnicity, age, gender and life experiences. Its business office can be reached at 352-5387.

Meet your city administrators

The city of Bowling Green is governed by a group of people that come from diverse backgrounds. The top positions in the city are mayor, municipal adminstrator, police chief, and there are seven city council members. City Council is broken up into four members representing wards, and three who represent the city at large.

WES HOFFMAN has served as mayor of Bowling Green since 1992

After serving in the military for twenty-four years Hoffman taught geography at the University in the late 60s. He then worked as Safety-Service Director and Municipal Administrator before his election as mayor.

Hoffman recieved his Master of Arts from the University in 1971.

ROBERT McGEEIN is in his first term on city council as an at large council member.

Fawcett settled in Bowling Green after serving in the military and living in places like Hawaii, Thailand, and South Korea. Fawcett has a bachelor's degree in pyschology from Ohio State, and a master's in Organization Development from the University.

As municipal administrator Fawcett directs all city operations. Fawcett has a daughter who will be a first-year student at the University.

THOMAS VOTAVA was named police chief in February of this year after the retirement of Galen Ash. Votava has been overseeing a department that has undergone a lot of change in recent

He was originally hired in 1971 and was named assistant chief in 1986.

JOHN MURA is in his third term on council representing the Fourth Ward. He is seeking election this year as an at-large member.

Mura, a Democrat, is a 1969 graduate of the University. He is the chairman of the Planning, Zoning and Economic Development committee. He also serves on the Finance and Ways and Means committee as well as the Transportation and Safety committee.

He is the owner of Falcon House Sporting Goods in downtown Bowling Green.

CHET MARCIN is in his first year of a four year term on council as an at-large member.

The Democrat is chairman of the Public Lands and Buildings committee. Marcin also serves on the Finance, Ways, and Means committee and on the Planning, Zoning, and Economic Development committee.

He attended the University of Toledo for his undergraduate and graduate degrees. He now practices law in Bowling Green.

JOYCE KEPKE is in her fifth term on city council. Kepke, a Democrat, has been council President for the last six years. She is the chairman of the Finance and Ways and Means committee and also serves on the Community Improvement and Public Lands and Buildings committees high school gave me a card that 'You are on your way.'

I think I am still on my way and closer to where I want to be than I was when I started. I also am much farther away from the beginning point of my journey. You will be too if you make the right decisions. You grow so much in college that you will wonder what you did during the first 18 years of your life.

When you are finally done with college you will be a person, not just your parents' child or someone's little brother or sister. You will have had your fill of par-ties, all-night study sessions, bar crawls, cafeteria food and take-out pizza. You will have a degree in something you hopefully love. You will have life-long friends and a thousand memories of what you did here.

So you are here now. Step up and establish yourself on this campus. High school is over.

Keep in contact with your close friends but make a new life here that is your own. Why not?

There is no reason why you shouldn't. Don't go home every weekend and turn yourelf into a student who literally just goes to school here. There is too much to do. You have a responsibility to yourself and whoever is paying for you to be here. You need to become your own person and this is the place to do it.

It may seem scary at first. There is not one person on this campus who didn't cry when their parents left after dropping them off. Take a moment to settle vourself down and then step out into the world of Bowling Green

clude coffeehouses like Cosmos and Grounds for Thought. Both located downtown, the coffeehouses offer an intellectual and more conversation-friendly environment. Coffeehouses also have event nights where one can find bands playing acoustic or open-microphone poetry nights.

Kelly Wicks, owner of Grounds for Thought, sees coffeehouses as good places for new students to get acclimated to the area.

"Places like Grounds for Thought and other coffeeshops are places where students can meet a wide variety of people such as other undergraduates, graduate and international students as well as townspeople." Wicks said. Coffeeshops also serve as an alternative to the bar scene, according to Wicks.

"Coffeeshops can be an alternative to bars but they can also be seen as an addition in that many people come to drink coffee and hang out before they go to the bars," Wicks said.

Many a place to eat in BG

 Bowling Green has over 50 restaurants to choose from.

By JOHN STEBBINS The BG News

Your food card's taking a beating, or you feel like going offcampus and eating something other than cafeteria food. Maybe your parents are up and are willing to foot a bill for a meal.

Where do you go?

With over 50 places to eat in Bowling Green, there are many options to fit most any budget and taste, from pizza and burgers to vegetarian fares, sometimes under the same roof.

One place most students go before leaving is the Corner Grill, on the corner of Court and Main Streets, in the middle of downtown.

A veritable institution of the community, "the Grill" has been offering students a simple fare in a diner atmosphere for over 50 years. Owner Linda Stacy said it is this simplicity which has brought continued success.

"Everything here is homemade. Our recipes were handed down to me from my mother and grandmother," she said. "All our products are fresh and we make everything here."

She added that with its laidback atmosphere, the Corner Grill is a good place to introduce themselves to the Bowling Green community.

"I love it when the kids come back. They are my business," she said. "Most of the come in on second and third shift during the week and many come in on Saturday for breakfast and lunch."

Another place downtown to eat after a night out or get delivery from a night in is Mister Spots, a two-link chain with a sister store in Ann Arbor, Mich. Known for their hoagie fries and philly sub sandwiches, "Spots" offers a break from pizzas and burgers.

"We're mostly a good place to eat after going out," said general manager Mark Koldan. "We have a large delivery business, but most of our delivery as well as eat-in business is college kids.

"Spots fits in a little niche," he added. "We are the only place that delivers (buffalo) wings. It's obviously not a pub atmosphere, but it's still casual."

And what would a college town be without a pizza joint? Bowling Green has over ten places that sell pizza. Aside from the major corporate chains like Domino's and Pizza Hut, the city can fill any slice of your pizza appetite.

Students offered three book locales

 University Bookstore, Bee Gee Bookstore and SBX are three locations where students can buy

The BG News

Students have three locations to choose from when purchasing textbooks and other backto-school items in Bowling Green.

The University Bookstore, Bee Gee Bookstore and Student Book Exchange (SBX) offer all of the necessities facing students when headed back to school. Each establishment offers textbooks, school supplies and assorted BG-embroidered apparel.

The stores will be open extended hours over the next two weeks to handle what is traditionally their largest load of the year (see related chart).

John Buckenmyer, director of the University Bookstore, said they are intalling new computers to make the process of buying books more efficient.

"We're trying to install a new computer system to register quicker," he said. "It will be ready by early fall if not by the first week."

The University Bookstore is the only of the three bookstores to be located on campus. It is on the first floor of the Saddlemire Student Services building, located north of the Art Building and between Memorial Hall and Kreischer Ouad.

Kent Kokomoor, manager of Bee Gee Book Store, is prepared for the increased business.

"We will have a lot more dorm decorations for sale," he said.

Bee Gee is located at 1424 East Wooster, directly across the street from Harshman Quad.

SBX will have two sidewalk sales along with its extended hours. SBX is also the only of the three establishments that will be open on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 (Labor Day).

SBX is located at 530 East Wooster, across the Wooster-Thurstin corner from Founders Shopping Center offers many studentoriented products and services.

The BG News

Mediterranean cuisine, five movie theaters, a post office, a hair salon, an ATM, an arcade, a dollar tree and a Fashion Bug are just a few of the features you will find situated at Woodland Mall.

Located at the north end of town on North Main Street, Woodland Mall houses 61 stores. It is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

The mall offers free use of wheelchairs and strollers, gift certificates and membership to the Mallwalkers Club at the customer service desk.

Ryan Cadwallader, assistant manager of Woodland Mall Cinema, said every Friday there is a new movie introduced. All shows are $3.25 before 6 p.m. There are refreshments and an arcade available in the lobby.

Radio Shack sales repre-sentitive Joe Foster said his store is the local center for 360 cellular service, major name brand repair service, and offers students many accessories that become residence hall necessities, such as phones, televisions, and VCRs.

The candy shop "In Good Taste" offers over 200 varieties of sweets, plush animals, mugs, cold sodas, gift bags, balloons, spices, trail mixes, novelties for teachers and music buffs, stickers, a sugar-free section, and jelly bellies, according to sales representative Beth Newman.

"We are real sweet," she said. "Come in and visit us."

Beware...

Many students assume that, since they are away from home, they have a license to go nuts. But be careful...

Parties can be tempting, but one mistake could be costly

 Drinking irresponsibly at parties can have some serious ramifications on students.

By SARAH BEDNARSKI The BG News

It's your first time away from home and you can't wait to experience THAT college party. Partying with all your friends with a few kegs of beer on hand sounds like fun, right?

According to Sheila Harris, a wellness and prevention counselor, there are serious drinkingrelated health issues many students aren't aware of or don't take seriously and should.

She said alcohol poisoning is one result from over-drinking. Often times students are afraid to help their friends because they don't want to anger them, but Harris explained it is more important to save their life. Their anger will die down after they sober up.

Alcohol not only has affects on Drug and Alcohol Survey. He the intoxicated person but also on the people around them, such as a roommates, Harris said.

There are two different types of drinking, according to Harris. Moderate drinking is defined as one drink per day for women and two drinks per day for men. Binge drinking is having four or more drinks per occasion for women and five or more drinks per occasion for men.

"This doesn't mean that you can not drink for seven days and then have 14 beers in one day,"

Binge drinking often results in impaired judgement which leads to injury and aggressive behavior, she said.

"Often when a student is impaired there is a greater risk of sexual assault as well as a greater risk of STDs," Harris

According to Dr. Josh Kaplan, director of Health Services, the University was one of 98 schools to participate in the U.S. Department of Education's Core said 893 students participated in the survey.

Kaplan said the results of the survey show that 91 percent of students had consumed alcohol within the last year and 81 percent of students under 21 consumed alcohol within the last 30

"I was astonished and discouraged by the results," Kaplan said. "I knew students were drinking but I didn't realize how extensive

Since most freshman are not going to be 21, Harris said, each student should become aware of the risks and consequences of underage drinking.

Despite the statistics, Harris wants to dispel the myth that all college students drink and party. She said it is false and there are ways of having fun without alco-

"Not all college students drink and by educating the students on the dangers of alcohol we're hoping to make it socially unacceptable," Harris said.

□ Alcohol isn't the only worry that students should have.

All students want to avoid problems with the law. For some it's easier than for others.

The University and the city of Bowling Green want to help students avoid such problems.

Sgt. Cindy Loomis, University police, said underage drinking is a problem that many University students run into. She said if a student is underage and drinking then they are taking the chance.

"If a student is underage and they have alcohol in their rooms then they are taking the chance of getting caught," Loomis said.

According to Bowling Green city police chief Thomas Votava, students as well as others in the community often have trouble following parking and traffic signs.

Votava said the city has a parking problem and the streets are overcrowded.

"We are very strict in the enforcement of traffic rules because of the problem," Votava said.

Votava said students should be "mindful" of the speed limit follow those posted. He also advised students not to park on the grass but in a parking lot.

It is illegal for students to park on a public street for more than 24 hours, Votava said.

"I don't think many students are aware that they can't leave their vehicle on a public street for over 24 hours," Votava said.

According to Votava, there is an noise ordinance in the city which prohibits playing music too loud.

"Radios shouldn't be heard from more than 50 feet away from your vehicle," Votava said. Both Loomis and Votava said students are responsible for their actions. They advise students to stay calm and not be argumentative with an officer if they are stopped.

"Not cooperating with the officers can make situations worse,' Votava said.

Party hosts beware

The BG News

With students returning to Bowling Green this weekend, party plans are in the works.

Sgt. Cindy Loomis, University police, and Bowling Green police chief Thomas Votava said students should be responsible and know the rules. Both said when a student is hosting a party they are responsible for everyone attending.

Loomis said hosts should know everyone at the party.

"They should know who they're serving to and check IDs," Loomis said. "Even if the person is of age but they have had too much to drink the host of the party is responsible for that per-

Loomis said if a student is found to be furnishing alcohol to a minor they could face up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

According to Votava, if a student is having a party they should talk with neighbors, keep music down, and pick up afterwards.

Both Votava and Loomis said students need to be aware of who they are with.

"Students need to watch out for each other," Loomis said. "Be aware of who you are drinking with."

Votava said students should also be aware of who they are going home with

"When people say no or even maybe it means no," Votava said. Students should be courteous and cooperative when stopped by a police officer, Votava and Loomis said.

According to Sheila Harris, wellness and prevention counselor, said if a student is caught underage drinking on campus, the judicial affairs office deals with them. "Viewpoints is one educational program in which students caught underage must attend," Harris said.

Beatty said that one way SHARP tries to aid students in by helping them learn to make independent decisions.

"We try to provide students with resources they need to make decsions on their own," Beatty

Resident advisors are a very important tool for SHARP because they have the most direct access to students, Beatty said.

"RAs are leaders in shaping the residential community they live in and serve as problem solvers when situations arise," Beatty said. "They offer suppport to students who need help or someone to talk to. RAs also maintain a consistency in their community in terms of confronting behavior that may not be appropriate or moderating a roommate conflict."

Newman agreeed that RAs are important becuase they are often the first person a resident who needs help goes to.

"RAs are not experienced counselors but they can do what they can and then point the student in the right direction to get help, whether it is emotional, academic or personal help that they need," Newman said.

Beatty said that another important way SHARP tries to help students is through the Residential Computing Connection.

"Coming from a school where everyone had their own computers, I know know how important computers on campus are," Beatty said. "The Residential Computing Connection is very important for students."

SHARP also works with other groups besides first-year students, such as transfer students, who are new to the University community.

'Transfer students have different needs that first-year students," Beatty said. "The challenge with them is adjusting to a new culture. Transfer students are usually a little older and have some experience already with college."

If you are what you eat, why not cut back on fat?

roles," Newman said. "They serve as a counselor to residents who need help. They plan educational and social activites for their floor and they try to build community on their floor and in the entire hall.

"Building community is usually what the RAs take the most pride in."

Michelle Riley, second-year RA in Dunbar, agreed that RAs play many roles especially when working with mostly first-year students.

"I found myself playing the role of friend, mother, dictionary, STAR-90, and computer consultant to my residents," Riley said.

Building community is especially important in a primarily freshman hall because it the first time away from home for students

"The friends a student makes the first year in college in their hall are the ones that will they will tend to stick with throughout their college career," Newman said.

community that exists in the hall, the more likely students are to stay at the University.

"It seemed that if there was a good community and the residents were involved they were less likely to go home or transfer after the fall," Riley said.

Brent Merriman, second-year RA in McDonald West, said that planning good programs really helps in trying to build communi-

"In Mac West last year we had a lot of success with our 'Singled Out' program which was fun and had the message that prom-iscuous sex is dangerous," Mer-riman said. "This year we want to give more social options on the weekends besides going out to the bars. We are hoping to plan activities like bringing bands into the dining halls."

There are many misconceptions about RAs according to Newman. The first is that RAs like to play the role of police officers in the halls.

"The judicial aspect of the job is usually the RA's least favorite part of the job," Newman said. 'Contrary to popular belief RAs Riley added that the better do not like to be police officers."

Riley said that the part of the job she liked the least was the discipline aspect.

"When I interviewed potential RAs in the spring a lot them had the idea that RAs were supposed to be policemen," Riley said.

With the opening of the Chapman Living and Learning Community, RAs in that hall will have the opportunity to be more involved with helping their residents on an academic basis. In Chapman, RAs are called junior or senior tutors and focus more on academics and learning outisde of the classroom according to Emily Roach, a junior tutor who also was an RA for two

"We serve as a liaison between faculty and students in Chapman," Roach said. "Some of the things we will be doing include Wednesday afternoon 'field trips' where we will be going to different cultural places around the area like museums and symphonies. We also want to bring guest speakers."

Roach said that in Chapman the emphasis really is on creating a very academic atmosphere. All students in Chapman are required to take the class Journeys of Imagination in the building in a effort to create community.

"The class will be a good way for students to learn to work together." Roach said. "The staff will encourage students to form study groups and discuss what they do in the classroom in their free time. The whole idea of Chapman is to have a new type of living community focusing on academic growth where it is possible to do things like eat lunch with a professor.'

Although much of Chapman's programming be will academicrelated, Roach said she still wants to plan social activites to maintain a balance in the hall.

"I'm still planning things to meet the needs of my floor that go outside the realm of academics," Roach said.

An RA's floor often reflects the personality of the RA, according to Merriman.

"As the year progresses the floor does take on the personality of the RA," Merriman said. "You also find cliques developing, which aren't always bad, but the main goal for an RA is to try to build a community that goes beyond everyone just knowing each others' names."

Riley said her attitude will rub off on the residents.

"My floor last year was really outrageous and wacky and ended up being a great place to live," Riley said.

One thing that RAs really want people to understand is that they are regular students, according to Merriman.

"We have to study too and we like to go out," Merriman said. "We put our pants on one leg at a time just like everyone else.

Unlike Canseco, we are looking for your support

Welcome to Bowling Green. You are entering a magical place. Never again will you have as much latitude, as much freedom and as many opportunities as you have right now. All you have to do is recognize it. Care about yourself, care about others, get involved, and you'll have a great time.

Take an example from my sports experience.
I had an internship this summer which allowed me to be in close contact with a number of baseball players at Jacobs Field. When the Oakland Athletics visited town, Jose Canseco actually said to me, "I don't need other people's approval. I don't care what they think of me.'

"Out of Bounds" Jim Tocco BG News Sports Editor

And then he made up some unimaginitive quote, which was something like, "he who needeth approval from others, receiveth not approval from himself."

What a load of garbage. I wonder if Jose has ever realized that there's a reason why he hasn't been happy in any of the cities he's played in. Since he fails to go after other people's approval, he fails to receive it. Besides, why should I take advice from someone whose head is emptier than the streets of Green Bay on game day?

That night, Jose Canseco hit a home run in the ninth inning to beat the Indians and win the

I didn't care. He doesn't need my approval, so he doesn't get it. And I hope everyone back in Oak land felt the same way. Canseco will never be happy in Oakland, and neither will you if you take that attitude.

So appreciate where you are, and let others appreciate you. Get involved in campus life and it will come back to you tenfold.

The best way to get involved with the sports on campus is to pick up your (free) copy of The BG News and flip to the sports

We'll be covering over 500 sporting events this season, start-ing right here in our own backyard and ranging as far as the hockey team's three-day trip to Alaska-Fairbanks.

If you followed us last year, you followed the chronicle of three Bowling Green athletes on their way to impressive careers

(and even more impressive paychecks) in the pro sports world. We followed Steve Klein, Bowling Green's all-time leading scorer in soccer, to New England, where he became a second-round draft pick of Major League Soc-cer's Revolution. We followed hockey winger Mike Johnson, who inked a deal with the Toronto Maple Leafs worth $1.2 million the very day after he finished his career at Bowling Green. And we followed basketball sensation Antonio Daniels, who arose from tragedy to become the fourth overall pick in the NBA's 1997 draft. Now he's kicking back in Vancouver, waiting for a big breakout season with the GrizzAnd even if you never draw a million-dollar paycheck like those guys, there's a chance for your own glory with Bowling Green's huge intramurals program. Ten times the amount of students participate in intramu rals than in intercollegiate athletics. And, oh yeah, we'll be cover-

Great things happen on this campus. Make them happen. And if you don't, at least you can read about them in the sports section of The BG News.

Dakich has brightened future for BG hoops

□ The Falcon coach is pulling no punches in his first summer on the job.

By SCOTT BROWN

The new carpet in the Bowling Green men's basketball of-fice probably won't find its way into any home remodeling manuals or interior decorator's catalogs.

But Dan Dakich, the new boss in the office, could care

"Every day, there are goofy little decisions that have to be made, like what color carpet to put in," said Dakich, a former Indiana player and assistant coach who was hired April 21 as BG's head coach.

"I don't care. I just want it bright. I don't care what it is, just brighten the place up a little bit.'

The office is brighter, both in look and in feel. Dakich, after 11 years with the oftmorose Jim Larranaga at the helm, has brought some vivacity to the BG program. The Fal-rese from last year's team, which finished 21-10 and shared the MAC cons return three starters and the Dakich regularseason championship.

Dakich played four years under Bob Knight at Indiana and was an assistant coach there the next 12, including the last five as Knight's top assistant. At 32, he brings a youthful exuberance to the Falcon office.

And his goal is clear: take Bowling Green back to the NCAA Tournament. The Falcons last appeared in the Big Dance in 1966 and blundered away a golden opportunity a year ago.

"I could use all the coachspeak and say we just want to improve and want to do this or that," Dakich said. "But the way I've been brought up, by my parents and by coach Knight, has been that you should always strive to win whatever championship you are playing for. That's what you coach for.

"People always ask why we didn't press at Indiana. Pressing beats bad teams. (Former Kentucky coach Rick) Pitino wins a national championship once he stopped doing all that

Falcons looking for respect

After two years of mediocre football, the Falcons hope to reassert themselves in 1997.

By SCOTT BROWN

There is a fire in Kevin O'-Neill's stomach.

The football program that the Falcon senior entered as a walkon in 1993 has floundered of late. A program that averaged nearly nine wins each of the previous four years has won just nine over the past two.

Falcon football has become synonymous with mediocrity and O'Neill isn't very happy about it.

"Right now, Bowling Green is an afterthought for people," said O'Neill, team co-captain and All-American candidate at linebacker. "I guess, deservedly so considering how the last two seasons have fared.

"We're going to surprise people this year. I think you're going to see the Bowling Green of old, Anything less than a MAC championship is a disappointment this O'Neill is a big reason why the Falcons might not end up disappointed this season. He heads perhaps the best linebacking corps in the conference - if not the region.

In all, 15 starters return on either side of the ball for a team that - despite a nightmarish 4-7 campaign a year ago -- was only a touchdown away from winning five of those seven losses

"You can sense that this is a much different football team than the past couple of years," seventh-year head coach Gary Blackney said. "The kids are very committed and dedicated. There is just a different atmosphere."

The critics aren't impressed, however. BG has been picked to finish fourth in the MAC's new Eastern Division and preseason polls from some nationwide publications have BG as low as 106th in Division I-A.

There are only 112 Division I-A schools in college football. "I don't even pay attention to that," O'Neill said, bristling. "Those people know about as much about football as my sister which isn't much. "If anything, they fire you up."

The past two years have seemed like a bad dream for Blackney. Over his first four years at the helm, the Falcons won 34 games and went to two bowl games.

The past two years have each een promising starts - 2-1 in 1995, including an upset of Missouri, and 3-1 last year - but the Falcons have fallen apart down the stretch.

"I feel a lot of pressure on myself because I think of myself as a very competitive person, a person who is success-oriented," Blackney said. "I'm not a perfectionist per se, but success is important to me and I've been very disappointed and frustrated.

"That doesn't mean that I'm go ing to change my coaching style, but for me once again -- just like when I took this job - there is a sense of urgency this year. I'm excited. I feel good and can draw energy off that."

Blackney's first year, in 1991, saw the Falcons picked as an also-ran in the conference. All BG did then was go 11-1 with a MAC title and California Bowl victory.

The chances of that happening this year hinge on a variety of factors, including the a muchmaligned offensive line, an oftburned secondary and the maturation of junior quarterback Bob Niemet.

But perhaps more importantly than that, the Falcons are in search for the confidence that pervaded the program during the early part of Blackney's tenure.

'We're not looking to get back to .500, we're not looking to be 7-4, we're looking to win this thing outright," O'Neill said. "That's the only thing we have on our mind. We have the seniors, we have the talent."

BG athletics has premier facility in Field House

☐ The University Field House gives athletes and students somewhere to go on a rainy day.

By JIM TOCCO The BG News

Did you ever wonder why a baseball player can seemingly thaw out in the spring, hit the field, and be at the top of his game? Or wonder what the football team does during one of those gale-force horizontal ice storms that Bowling Green is so famous for?

The University Field House, a 127,000-square-foot, state-of-theart facility on the northeast corner of campus, allows Bowling Green's intercollegiate teams to practice in a climate-controlled environment, and also caters to "drop-in" usage by all students. Derek Dickinson, director of the Field House, has been involved in campus athletics for 30

"All the former athletes come back here with arthritis and they can not believe what these kids today have available to them," Dickinson said. "Likewise, the kids today don't realize sometimes what they've got."

And what have they got? Just to name a few, the Field House contains a 90-yard-long, 54-yardwide turf football field, basketball courts, batting cages and golf nets, in addition to facilities for tennis, soccer and volleyball. The Field House also plays host to practice for the Falcon Marching Band on rainy days.

The Field House is also Bowling Green's home of intramurals, providing the playing space for almost all indoor intra-collegiate competitions.

According to office manager Jodi Laubis, the best time for a person not involved in campus athletics to stop in is between noon and 1 p.m. on weekdays, or any time on the weekends. The Field House is open from noon to 7 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 9 p.m. on Sunday. It is also open Monday through Thursday from 7 a.m. to between 11 p.m. and midnight and Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Schedules for drop-in usage will be posted, but the best way to find out if the facility is open is to call ahead. The number is 372-7512.

Organized groups may also pick up a request form at the Field House offices for scheduled usage.

'When intramurals are going on, it's not unusual for 300 people to be in here at one time," Laubis said. "So it can be a great social environment too."

Tee times, etiquette stressed at golf course

The BG News

Forrest Creason Golf Course, located on the northeast corner of the main campus at the corner of Poe Road and I-75, is one of the premier 18-hole layouts in the

The course is open seven days a week and offers special rates to BGSU students.

Student rates are charged only if students bring their University ID with the current semester's validation sticker. Rates are $7 for nine holes and $10 for 18 holes during the week and $8 and $11 on weekends.

Forrest Creason is named after the former golf coach at the University. The course was built in 1963 and features a 6,400-yard, par-72 layout.

Students are urged to make tee times at least a few days and up to a week in advance of playing. Reservations are generally necessary and students should arrive a few minutes before their tee time to allow enough time to check in.

Golf etiquette is strictly enforced at Forrest Creason. Each player must have their own set of clubs to play. In addition, playing groups of five or more are not permitted.

Forrest Creason also has a driving range, across Poe Road from the clubhouse. Rates at the driving range are $2.50 for a small bucket and $4 for a large.

Golf carts are available for rent, at $10 per nine holes. Forrest Creason also has a complete pro shop, with all kinds of golf merchandise available. Rental clubs are also available.

Students with University IDs and current validation stickers may charge golf to their bursar account.

Athletic opportunities abound with intramural sports

20 intramural sports attract over 10,000 participants each year.

By JASON McMAHON The BG News

So that football scholarship to the Big Ten school didn't come through, but you still don't want to hang up your cleats. Or maybe you don't have the time to commit to varsity athletics, but you still have the desire to compete. Or maybe you just want to have some fun and meet some new people. Intramurals -- one-stop shopping for the 10,000 athletes looking for all that and more.

BGSU offers an immense intramural sports program that has drawn around 4,200 participants in some 20 sports in each of the past few years. When the sports are broken down into more specialized categories (i.e. singles vs. doubles tennis, etc.) the number of opportunities available jumps to about 55. The total number of participants -- when every athlete is counted regardless of whether he or she was counted in a prior sport - has hovered in the

"For the size of our school, it's one of the biggest programs that I'm aware of in terms of sports offered and numbers of participants," intramurals director Thad Long said. "We've been fortunate to see our numbers stay pretty steady."

Not surprisingly, the biggest number of participants comes each year from the freshman class. Long explained that intramurals are great activities to get involved with upon arrival to BG, as they have benefits for not only newcomers but all

"It gives these people an opportunity to really get to know some people," Long said. "It also provide a way to keep those competitive juices flowing. A lot of our participants were varsity athletes in high school and they're not ready to give it up."

And that includes faculty and graduate students. According to intramural office figures, 50 faculty members and 187 grad students participated in the program last year. Long would like to see that

Volleyball team to hold tryouts

Bowling Green's women's volleyball team will hold an open tryout on Sept. 2 at 4 p.m.

Players interested in a walk-on position on the team should see assistant coach Tom Hanna in Memorial Hall, room 201, by 3 p.m. on Aug 28. Each player participating in the tryout must also have a physical at the Health Center, which will cost $15.

Anyone with questions can call coach Hanna at 372-7413.

University to celebrate 'Antonio Daniels Day'

On Sept. 4, a city and a university will celebrate a team and the player that made it great.

"Antoinio Daniels Day" will be celebrated at a luncheon in Olscamp Hall from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in honor of the recent graduate who became the fourth overall pick of the Vancouver Grizzlies in June's NBA Draft.

Daniels and his 1996-97 teammates will receive their MAC Championship rings at the luncheon.

Tickets for the luncheon are $7 and can be purchased at the Memorial Hall Ticket Office (372-2762), the Best Western Falcon Plaza Hotel, the Student Book Exchange, the Copy Shop and Kaufman's Downtown.

The surge salvaged a season that appeared to be headed for disaster after the Falcons had lost four of five games. Clark gambled on youth and inserted freshmen Jaymee Wappes and Sherry Kahle into the starting lineup. The gamble paid off with six straight wins.

□ Women's soccer makes its debut this year as a varsity sport

No respect.

That's what Bowling Green's women's soccer team is getting in its first year as a varsity program. Having been ranked fifth in the nation among club teams last season, the team finds itself ranked in a tie for fifth in the preseason coaches' poll of the eight teams participating in the Mid-American Conference's inaugural season.

"I don't necessarily agree with the way the polls came out," said coach Tom Piccarillo, hired a year ago to build the team from the ground up. "I think the polls were maybe based a little more on experience than anything else.

This statement isn't too far out in left field, when you consider that the poll results are arranged in exact order of varsity experience, with the four first-year teams (Bowling Green, Miami, Ohio and Kent) ranked fifth through eighth, and Northern Illinois (four years experience) first, Eastern Michigan and Toledo (two) second and third respectively, and Western Michigan (one) ranked fourth. What makes you believe Piccarillo even more is that Northern Illinois, picked to win the con-ference, finished an abysmal 6-14-0 last season.

Four BG players from last year's top-echelon club team and a host of new faces are out to prove the pollsters wrong.

"I think a lot of teams are coming out here with the philosophy that Bowling Green is as a first-year program," Pic-carillo said. "We're going in with the philosophy that we're a team that's going to take a shot at the title.

"I think a reasonable prediction for us is that we'll be playing November 7 in the MAC Tournament, which means we were one of the four best teams."

This certainly would be an achievement, since the team contains just one senior, one junior and 23 underclassmen, including 16 freshmen.

"Our feeling is not that we want to end up with a .500 record and say but we were young." Piccarillo said. "Our goal is to make a run, win the MAC title and say, '... and we were young. Deal with us in the years to come."

In the meantime, the new team has scheduled some stiff competition. The docket has 18 games, all against Division I-A schools, and three against Big Ten teams.

"Looking at some other progams' schedules - they scheduled some games against Division III and NAIA schools," Piccarillo said. "My feeling is that you have nothing to gain from those games."

As for now, the Falcons can look forward to a scrimmage Monday against Findlay, and their first regular-season game Aug. 29 at Kent.

A week ago, Piccarillo said that when the Falcons hit the field for their first match, only two positions in the lineup will

"I'll be the coach and Julie [Reule] will be my assistant," he said. "Beyond that, things are wide open."

While he admits that this is still for the most part true, he lauded the efforts of a few of his players on the practice field. Piccarillo said four freshmen in particular - midfielders Autumn Harris and Janice Mentrup, forward Rachel Clark and defender Stefanie Sizemore -- are making a name for themselves in the number increase.

"You really get to see them in a different light," Long said. "We really encourage the faculty and staff to get out there."

While many intramural activities only take place once a week for a month or two, Long said there still is a very evident team atmosphere. Many teams will stick together for numerous sports and some even have T-shirts and hats made for mem-

"I think that's really neat," Long said. "It provides them with a real sense of camaraderie."

Students interested in competing in intramurals are urged to contact their resident advisor for information and sign-up sheets The next step is to assemble a team from among friends, neighbors, classmates, coworkers b anyone who wants to play.

While the easiest way to assure participation is to join an established team, students can also visit the intramural office in the University Field House or call 327-2464 if they're interested in participating but don't have any specific team in mind.

'It's possible for them to just walk into our office and sign up there," Long said. "I call it our free agent list. When a team captain comes in, if he's looking for players we can put him in touch with the people on the list."

There are also officiating opportunities for students in the program. You can stand on the playing field with a whistle and be a part of the game without winning or losing. And here's the bonus -- you get paid.

We provide year-round employment opportunities for students as officials," Long said. "Hopefully, we can get people that will want to jump from sport to sport, but if they only want to officiate one season, that's fine.

"I get asked a lot if being an official means you can't play. Not at all. You can both play and be an official, just not in the same game.

For those seeking a little more competitive arena, club sports are offered. Club teams usually practice and compete more often than intramurals, and also battle teams from other colleges.

BG currently has 20 active clubs. Each team finds its own opponents and some join area leagues. There are also grade requirements, akin to varsity athletics, and tryouts and dues are usually involved.

Thad Long To get involved with a club team, Long said you can go Intramurals Director through the intramurals office. They will put you in touch with a representative from the club you're interested in joining.

Long said the office will listen to suggestions for additional sports and opportunities, but he feels the program is fairly comprehensive and doesn't see any new sport arising because most of them are already covered.

"We're about maxed out, quite frankly," Long said. "We've been talking over the whitewater rafting, skiing trips, and more of the weekend activities. We've been putting our emphasis on new programs into that area."

Assisting the intramurals office with these new programs is Special Events Coordinator Cat Cramp. The position is new this year, and Long said it has "been a perfect piggyback with our office." Cramp can be reached at 372-7481.

Long said most of the teams he has watched have been very competitive, but none have lost sight of the real purpose to intramurals: to have fun.

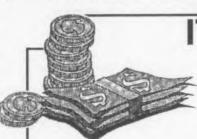

"People try to get out of it what they want," he said. "But at the same time they're not too worried about the winner and loser at the end. They just want to have a

1997 Freshman "Welcome" Issue

C'mon, Bowling Green's got things to do ... really!

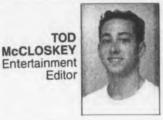

If you haven't been told yet, I'm sure you'll hear it very soon from many upperclassmen – "There is nothing to do in Boring Green."

Over the years, BG has come to be known as the little college surrounded by miles and miles of corn. Not a weekend goes by that I don't hear the same thing over and over, that there is nothing to

But don't let those pessimistic college veterans fool you.

With about 20,000 students on hand here, Bowling Green offers an array of things to do, night-in and night-out.

For those of you that are nocturnal and release school frustrations through partying, BG will accomodate your needs. Typically for freshmen, the easiest way to find parties is to just walk the streets. Upperclassmen who own houses are usually more than likely to invite youngsters in to

Some of the best streets around for parties include South College, East Merry and Manville Street. Columbia Courts and Frazee Apartments (over by Offenhauer Towers) are always pumping with music and parties, especial-the school workload is light. Once the residential parties die down around midnight or so, new students can find a great variety of bars within stumbling distance in downtown BG.

Now, if you feel that dancing and partying up until all hours of the night isn't for you, BG still can provide lot of other things

For all those exercise junkies, the Rec Center may be just your place. It is a great place especially later in the day, when you feel like you need to work off some of those Pringles.

Since the Rec Center doesn't provide rollerblading facilities and you don't feel like dodging people on campus as you blade, there is an alternative for you. There is a bike, running and rollerblading trail on Gyspy Lane (street directly before Wal-Mart off Main Street), which is a great way to get exercise without having to watch for cars or many

Now, if you are more the theater type, BGSU theatre will give you great shows throughout the year. They open up with the famous "Death of a Salesman" Oct. 8 at Eva Marie Saint Theatre in University Hall. After you go to the theater, downtown BG has some great small coffee shops that are perfect for provoking great conver-

And for all you movie nuts, BG has the Woodland Mall Cinema and Cla-Zel Theater. On campus, Gish Theater and Olscamp Hall show movies on weekend nights throughout the year if you don't have the transportation to venture further out.

This brings up another point, transportation. If you have a car or you know someone that is willing to walk out into the far reaches of the parking lot, Toledo (one of the largest cities in Ohio) is only a 20-minute drive north on interstate.

OK, so you can't get to Toledo. no problem. BG does have a decent amount of shops that can provide you with what you want.

If you love music, BG has some really great and unique shops. Finder's and Mad Hatter, both have fantastic selections for current releases and hard to find CDs, as well as used CDs. For all those music majors, Bowling Green's Music and Sound (on East Wooster, across from Mad Hatter) has nice selection of in-

Woodland Mall - or the "Small" as we affectionately call it -- has name-brand shops for clothing or whatever you like (they may not have Abercombie and Fitch, but some of the selections are OK). The Goodwill store is also another good shop with all kinds of deals. By far, BG's most popular store, The Shed is right by campus and contains great clothing. jewelry and other wacky stuff.

Now, these are just some things to do in BG. So, it is obvious that there are things to do if you just open your eyes and look around a

And, if none of these ideas are interesting, you can always go cow-tipping around town

Theatre dept. to perform in 77th season on stage

☐ A variety of shows will be offered this season.

By JAMIE BUDZICK The BG News

As the curtains are raised on another school year, the University theatre department will take the stage for a variety of produc-

Entering its 77th theatre season on campus, the department is providing not only entertainment for all members of the community, but a chance to get involved in each production.

The first of 13 productions kicks off at the Eva Marie Saint Theatre, named in honor of Academy Award-winning actress and University graduate Eva Marie Saint, with Authur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" at 8 p.m. on Oct. 8-11 and Oct. 12 at 2 p.m.

The other two productions that will be performed in the Eva Marie Saint Theatre include "Arms and the Man" by G.B. Shaw and "Twilight, Los Angeles" by Anna Deavere Smith.

"Arms and the Man" will be presented at 8 p.m. Dec. 2-6 and on Dec. 7 at 2 p.m. "Twilight, Los Angeles," which is the final theatre production of the season, begins at 8 p.m. on April 22-25 and 2 p.m. on April 26.

Ticket prices for all Eva Marie Saint productions are $5 for seniors/students and $7 for

If you can not make it to any of the Eva Marie Saint shows, have no fear. The University also offers several other productions at a couple of smaller theatres around campus.

"We have a big variety, and different stages," said Nancy Myers, the theatre department's administrative secretary.

The Joe E. Brown Theatre will be the site of several productions throughout the year as well, including the annual children's theatre production, "The Tortoise and the Hare: A Story about Sportsmanship." Johnny Faustus adapted and F. Scott Regan directs this play.

These productions are not quite as large as those at Eva Marie Saint, and many of the shows are produced by graduate

"We give students a lot of opportunities; probably that theatre areas around don't have," said

All Joe E. Brown tickets are $4 with advanced reservations available.

If you want to get really close to the action, the Elsewhere Theatre, Room 411 South Hall, is the intimate setting that you are looking for. Featuring a variety of productions throughout the year, including the annual Shorts Festival, the seating capacity is

Cinematic offerings abundant in town

Starting fresh at a new school can be a hectic endeavor to just about anyone. Time is torn between classes, sleep, homework and fun. The always important question is what to do when the bar is not open and the homework is finished?

Many of the University students looking for something to do in Bowling Green turn to the cinema. Movies provide momentary relief from the hustle and bustle of college life and can take you places far from the cornfields of Bowling Green. Luckily all you need is a VCR or a few dollars, and you're home free.

The city of Bowling Green has two main theaters that offer several first-run pictures. The first is the Woodland Mall Cinema 5, located at the Woodland Mall on North Main Street. Offering five theatres to choose from, it will cost you $3.25 before 5 p.m. and $6.25 after.

The other is the Cla-Zel Theatre, located in downtown Bowling Green on North Main.

This historic theater shows one picture at a time and offers tickets for only $3 for students with a college ID.

Also showing at the Cla-Zel each and every Saturday at midnight is the Rocky Horror Picture Show, for which all seats are

If these movies are still a little tight for your pocket book, there is still hope, thanks in part to the University Activities Organization (UAO). It offers free movies to students throughout the year at Olscamp Hall. The times and feature movie will be listed in The BG News throughout the year.

For those students who are bound to their room or like watching movies in privacy, there are several video rental stores in Bowling Green to choose from.

Free memberships are offered at all stores and one store, Late Nite Video, 140 East Wooster, even offers delivery and pickup services. Many of the video stores also offer low prices on old releases for around $1.

crazy giving up the points off the full-court press."

The Falcons could again be contenders this season, with sec-ond-leading scorer Anthony Stacey back along with MAC Defensive Player of the Year De-Mar Moore.

But to be successful, the Falcons will have to buy into Dakich's Indiana-like scheme - and by all accounts, things are going

"I thought they had a pretty good summer," Dakich said. "I think it was tough of them when I got here because they didn't have a coach for a while. Keith was a one-man crew. They had a successful year.

"Players left at their own devices won't do squat. They're going to play a little bit and stop when they get tired. When I came here I think they were all just planning on going home and having a good summer. That changed. They all stayed here and did well."

Dakich says he has been happy with his acceptance in town. He has made numerous apperances around town and, particularly earlier in the summer, was seen often out on the town.

"My wife wasn't in town," Dakich said, smiling. "I had to eat out every night."

He realizes, however, how quickly things can change.

"I want to be part of the community," Dakich said. "I'm a basketball coach, and that's great. But you're also part of the community.

"People have been nice, but I'm smart enough to know that can change overnight," Dakich said. "What I like about the town - and I may be crazy - but this is the kind of town I wanted to be in. It's just a typical Midwest town with a lot of nice people.

Dakich credits the Falcon support staff -- namely academic coordinator Mike Bartley and strength coach Mike Ward - for making his transition a lot smoother.

"Those guys are just great," Dakich said, adding that he had initially been concerned about the academic and strength areas but upon seeing Bartley and Ward at work was satisfied.

Employment Eligibility 11

Frequently Asked Questions 12 Come to the 1997 Fall JOB OPPortunity Fair, Tuesday, August 26, 1997!
The JOB OPP will be held in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom, Student Union,
11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

This is your opportunity to meet with a variety of on-campus employers, possibly interview and get hired all in one day. Student Employment staff will be available to verify your eligibility to work. If you will be a first time BGSU student employee, you must provide proof of eligibility and picture identification before you can begin working on campus.

Sponsored by the Student Employment Program.

STEPS On Campus Job

- Check the job listings in the Job Guide, on the Career Services homepage at www.bgsu.edu/offices/careers, or the job board at 315 Saddlemire Student Services Building.
- Determine if the position is a Regular (REG) or Federal Work Study (FWS) position.
- If you are eligible and meet the qualifications, call the department contact to arrange an interview.
- Once hired, deliver the Hire Form (provided by the hiring department) to the Student Employment Office, 315 Saddlemire Student Services Building, along with the appropriate documents to complete the I-9 Form (see page 11—Verification of Employment Eligibility).
- There are a number of forms to be completed prior to your beginning work. These are completed at the time you deliver the Hire Form.
- Student Employment processes the required forms and notifies your employer that you may begin to work.
- Your employer will contact you regarding a date to report to work.
 YOU MAY NOT BEGIN WORKING UNTIL ALL PAPER WORK HAS BEEN PROCESSED.

IMPORTANT NOTICE — It is the student's responsibility to confirm that all paper work is completed and submitted to Student Employment. If you work prior to completion of all paper work, there will be a delay in processing payment for work performed.

EXPECTATIONS student employees

Be Dependable

As a student employee, you are expected to report to work on time. You must complete your timesheet each day that you work. If you become ill and cannot work, or are going to be late, it is your responsibility to call the office as soon as possible and leave a message with your immediate supervisor.

Be Loyal

Believe in Bowling Green State University and your department, and inform others of its services and programs.

Pro-Active Attitude

Research indicates that the number one reason for job failure is a poor attitude. Be cooperative, take initiative, be willing to learn new tasks and learn as much as you can about your department. If you complete an assignment ahead of schedule, ask for another project.

Be Courteous and Professional

Everyone wants to be respected, but to receive respect you must be willing to give respect. All visitors to your department should be treated with the utmost courtesy. Here are some tips to remember:

- When the person you need to see is with an appointment or working behind a closed door, please leave a message.
- If an office door is closed, do not disturb unless advised otherwise. If urgent, either knock quietly on their door or telephone them.
- If the person you need to see os on the telephone, do not disturb him/ her. Wait a few minutes and return.
- Never interrupt a staff member when he/she is talking with a student or employee.
- When working on team project keep conversation to a minimum. Talking can be distracting, which leads to unnecessary mistakes.

- If you are asked a question you cannot answer, tell the individual you will get the answer for them. Write the question down, seek the answer from a staff member and inform the customer.
- Always dress in appropriate office attire. Try to be neat and clean in appearance at all times. The dress code might vary from office to office.
- If you have any questions, ask your supervisor for clarification of the office policy
- If you are a new employee, you will have many questions regarding procedures and policies. If you are unsure, do not hesitate to ask staff members for assistance. NO QUESTION IS A DUMB QUESTION.
- Do not hover around a person's desk if you see he/she is busy.
- Be respectful of other staff member's property. If you borrow an office supply, return it after using.
- Limit personal calls at work

VERIFICATION employment eligibility

Federal regulations require that a student's legal right to work be documented. To complete the required verification of employment eligibility (I-9 Form), a student is required to present specific documents.

Acceptable documents include:

■ U.S. Passport, Certificate of U.S. Citizenship, Certificate of Naturalization, Unexpired Foreign Passport, Unexpired Temporary Resident Card, or Unexpired Employment Authorization Card.

OR

■ Driver's license, ID card issued by federal, state or local government agencies, School ID with a photograph, Voter's Registration Card, U.S. Military Card, or Military Dependent's ID Card.

AND

U.S. Social Security Card (this card cannot be laminated), Certification of Birth Abroad, Original or certified copy of a birth certificate, U.S. Citizen ID card, ID card for use of Resident Citizen in the United States, or Unexpired employment authorization document issued by the INS.

IMPORTANT — Any student who plans to work while attending the University must bring originals of the above documents with them to campus. Photocopies of documents and laminated Social Security Cards are not acceptable. I-9 Forms must be completed at Student Employment, 315 Saddlemire Student Services Building before a student may begin to work.

QUESTIONS about working on campus

Who is eligible to work on campus? How many hours can I work?

Any Bowling Green State University student enrolled at least half-time (6 credit hours for undergraduates, 4 credit hours for graduate students) may work on campus. Student Employment recommends that you work no more than 20 hours per week for all of your student employment jobs
during the academic year.
Most students work between 10 and 15 hours per week.

How do I find out about on-campus job openings?

Job vacancies are posted on the job board outside the Student Employment Office, 315 Saddlemire Student Services Building, and listed on the Career Services web page at www.bgsu.edu/ offices/careers. Determine if the opening is a Regular (REG) or Federal Work Study (FWS) position. If you are eligible and meet the qualifications, call the departmental contact to arrange an interview.

What do I need to do before I can start working on campus?

Once hired, it is your responsibility to deliver the Hire Form (provided by the hiring department) to the Student Employment Office along with the appropriate documents to complete the I-9 Form. (See page 11 - Verification of Employment Eligibility, for a list of acceptable documents.) In addition to the I-9 Form you must complete the following forms: state and federal income tax withholding, and retirement exemption.

What is Federal Work Study?

Federal Work Study is a form of federal financial aid. To obtain a federal work study award, you must file the FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid). If you have financial need, work study may be included as part of your financial aid package—contact the Office of Student Financial Aid, 231 Administration Building, for more information.

What's the difference between Regular and FWS jobs?

A Regular job simply means that your employer pays 100% of your earnings out of the department's budget. If you are hired into a FWS job, that means that you have FWS as part of your financial aid package and your earnings are jointly paid by your employer and the FWS program. When looking for a job, contact employers whose jobs are listed as FWS or Work Study only if you have applied for financial aid and have been awarded FWS. if you do not have FWS, apply for jobs listed as Regular or REG.

What kinds of jobs are available? Can I find a job related to my major?

Jobs are available in almost every on-campus administrative office, academic department, and service area. Jobs such as library assistants, research assistants, typists, lab technicians, lifeguards, clerical assistants, tutors, dining service assistants, computer operators, mail carriers, and tour guides are available.

Review the vacancies posted on the job board outside of the Student Employment Office or listed on the Career Services web page (www.bgsu.edu/offices/careers) to determine jobs which match your skills and interests. If you do not find vacancies in your field or areas of interest, contact the departments to inquire about anticipated or future openings.

Can I be a lifeguard?

Lifeguards are hired through the Student Recreation Center (Rec Center). The Rec Center interviews and hires the majority of their student employees during the spring semester—you may have to wait until your second semester to apply for a job there. For vacancies at other times of the year, consult the student employment job postings or check with the Rec Center.

How many jobs can I have?

You can have more than one job but remember that the total hours you work each week should not exceed 20. When you are hired, make sure that you find out from the supervisor the number of hours per week she/he is expecting you to work.

Can I get raises and promotions?

Yes. Merit raises and promotions are given based on outstanding job performance and are at the discretion of your supervisor. Longevity raises are given to you automatically after every 800 hours of work.

If I quit my first job, can I still get another one on campus?

Yes, if you resign from one job on campus, you can get another job either right away or at a later time.

What will be my pay rate?

The hourly rate of pay varies depending upon the knowledge, skills and experience required to perform the position duties. Beginning August 24, 1997, the minimum hourly rate of pay for all BGSU student employment jobs will be $5.15 per hour.

When and how will I be paid?

The money that you earn through your student employment job is paid directly to you on a bi-weekly basis. You can either pick up your check at the Bursar's Office, 132 Administration Building, on the pay day or have it deposited directly into your bank account.
