Off-campus internet fee improves net access

□ The fee will be used to improve BG Net accessibility and convenience.

By TRACY WOOD
The BG News

University students, faculty and staff who are frustrated with the internet access can now look forward to the University's new service for off-campus internet access.

The University has reached a resolution regarding the off-campus internet access service.

People who would like to use the service must sign up and will be charged $12.95 a month for the new service. The charge can be bursarable and can either be paid on a monthly basis or all up front. There will be continuous sign-up for the service including the summer.

In addition, a first time sign-up fee will be charged to users, said Ann Marie Lancaster, vice provost for technology and chief information officer. She said the benefits outweigh the costs of the service.

"People can expect quality service from the new system," Lancaster said. "People will be able to get on the internet when they need to, at a much faster speed, with a new modem pool."

According to Lancaster, the complaints about the current modem pool from users are incredible and the implementation of this new service should put an end to the present dissatisfaction with the service.

Toby Singer, executive director of Information Technology Services, said he has received complaints about dissatisfaction with the current modem pool. People complain about not being able to get in when they need to, he said.

Singer said people have to wait a long time before getting connected.

"People should realize they will be paying for a totally new service, and once the new service is installed people should be able to get access to the service anytime," Singer said.

According to Singer, users seem anxious about having the new service implemented, especially those currently paying a higher fee with other services.

WBGU, WFAL offer musical variety

□ Two college radio stations compete for listeners, but stress the fun they have doing so.

AMYJO L. BROWN
The BG News

In 121 West Hall, located across the room from each other, campus radio stations WBGU and WFAL are battling for listeners. Despite years of rivalry, however, their strategies have changed.

Now, both college radio stations are fighting for the same cause — to reach every audience their frequencies can handle.

"In the past our sibling rivalry has been very unhealthy," said

Billy Peake, DJ and general manager for WFAL. "This year leadership has changed, and we now have a very healthy relationship. We try to help each other."

"Billy? He's great!" said Julius Kwolek, general manager for WBGU.

Each station's style of programming is its defining characteristic, and between the two frequencies, every kind of music can be heard.

When listening to WBGU, one can hear a range of music from polka to jazz to world music to hip hop to indie rock. (Indie rock is alternative music, however, it is a lot more mellow than many people believe, Kwolek said.)

"There are so many frequencies out there, and the music played is such a small fraction of what is out there, we try to play

Quench your thirst for culture

Latino foods and beverages give students a taste of another culture

By BRANDI BARHITE
The BG News

Latino students will break bread today in an attempt to share the Latino culture with the University.

The Latino Student Union (LSU) is offering a taste of diverse ethnic foods with free sangria and pan, traditional Mexican pastries, at the Union Oval from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Food is important to every culture and a way to share one's culture, Gabriel Marquez, LSU president said. He also said each Latino group has its own style of Mexican food. He said food can be used to bond Latino families.

"Food plays an important part in any culture," Marquez said. "Each Latino group has a culture and their own way of serving food."

He said LSU will be serving sangria, which is a fruit juice and pan (bread). Marquez said pan is sweeter than normal bread. He said its sweetness is what makes it unique. He also said the serving of bread and drink has a religious history, which many students can relate to.

Amanda Saldivar, freshman dietetics and sports management major, also said food plays an important part in Latino culture. She said in her family, preparing Mexican food is a tradition and a big part of their culture.

She said her family has a tradition of making tamales every Christmas. She said this cooking time also serves as a time for family bonding.

"Cooking is quality time to share with families," Saldivar said.

She said tamales are spicy meats wrapped with a corn husk shell and steamed. She said they normally take two hours to make, but usually take longer because it is family time. She said another family favorite is enchiladas.

Marquez said Toledo also has several authentic Mexican restaurants for students to sample a variety of Mexican food. He said the best Mexican food is home-cooked, yet students do not have to travel far to get a taste of authenticity.

El Tipico Restaurant, 1444 South Ave., is one restaurant that offers authentic Mexican food. Frank Villa, co-owner, said they are one of the few restaurants that offer authentic Mexican food and not American-Mexican food.

He said this family business has been around for 31 years and is one of the oldest Mexican restaurants in the Toledo area.

"Not only do white people come here, but Mexicans come here, and Mexicans do not go to Mexican restaurants unless it is good," Villa said.

Villa said they offer everything including appetizers, entrees and desserts. Some of their more popular items include nachos, burritos, chimichangas, arroz con pollo (corn with chicken) and molle.

Villa said molle is a dark sauce that is made with over 15 ingredients, including chocolate and peanut butter. He said it is sweet, spicy and unique. He said it is so popular that a family left his establishment because they were out of molle.

He said they also have vegetarian dishes that feature cheese and guatemola burritos.

Furthermore, they have their own special recipe, cheese crisp. Villa said cheese crisp is a flat floured tortilla with a layer of beans, lettuce, and four walls of beef, sour cream, guacamole, and cheese.

"We have every munchie you could think of," Villa said. They are open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Another Mexican restaurant, Casa Barron Mexican Restaurant, 209 Louisiana Ave., also offers an ethnic taste. Michelle Myers, manager, said Casa Barron is as close as Toledo can get to authentic Mexican food. She said they offer wonderful fajitas and every type of Mexican food imaginable.

"Students should come to our restaurant because it is a lot of fun and the food is wonderful," Myers said.

They are open Monday from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Expo uncovers job opportunities in business

□ The Business Opportunity Expo will help business students learn more about career opportunities in the field of business.

By TRACY WOOD
The BG News

The college of business administration is sponsoring a Business Opportunity Expo today, for students interested in pursuing a career in the college of business, but have not yet decided on a specialization.

Students are encouraged to attend if they are undecided about a major, need more information about a certain area, want to learn more about career opportunities in business or find out about the various business organizations students can join.

A College of Business faculty member from each department will be at the expo to answer question about their area. In addition, students from the various areas will attend the fair to share their experiences.

According to Linda Bakkum, academic adviser for the college, the expo provides an opportunity for students interested in business to find out more information about the classes they will need to take.

Bakkum encourages anyone interested in a business degree to attend the expo for more information.

"It is an opportunity for students to explore what's out there, and how many opportunities there are in business," Bakkum said.

In addition, representatives from the co-op office and career services will be available to provide information about different careers and jobs available with a business degree.

Sue Young, assistant director of the cooperative education program said it's never too early to start investigating different areas of specialization and career opportunities.

"It's really important and neat for students to know early on what their options are concerning co-ops, clubs and how they can use their academics in the marketplace, and get hands-on experience while earning a little bit of money," Young said.

Door prizes and refreshments will be available and students will have an opportunity to enter a raffle to win $50 in cash or savings bond.

Students who cannot attend, but would like to find out more information about specializing in business, should contact the College of Business Administration.

The expo is located in the 2nd floor lounge in the Business Administration building from 2 to 4 p.m.

I am writing in regards to an editorial which appeared earlier this semester. In this article, the writer proceeded to defend the homosexual lifestyle as a choice of sexual orientation that should be tolerated in today's "politically correct" society. I write to you to defend the Christian Coalition who the columnist so irresponsibly and capriciously attacked.

Homosexuality is considered a perverted, disgusting sin, an abomination in the eyes of God. Now, I am aware that not everyone believes in God, but I come from a home which preaches the Bible, and I was raised in a Baptist Church that upheld Biblical beliefs on homosexuality.

I am sick and tired of having to accept and tolerate what the bleeding-heart, everything-is-okay, if-it-feels-good-do-it, dogooders we commonly call liberals, feel is politically correct for today. I hold on to the idea that there is still a shred of morality left in this world and the Christian world, who she calls "right-winged homophobes," is attempting to maintain that sense of morality.

If homosexuals choose to "come out of the closet," then that is their choice as an American. Remember, however, that just as they are allowed to have gay pride, I am allowed to stand up for what I believe, that is, the right to condemn homosexuals for their utterly despicable lifestyle.

I believe that homosexuality is wrong and those who practice it are committing a great sin, pure and simple. I do not expect everyone to agree with me but I should hope that I am not the only one who feels this way. It is my hope that more people will be willing to make a stand against such an intolerable lifestyle. It is the mere idea that conservatives are unwilling to make a stand for something we deem as a sin that makes me ashamed to say I live in this country. Identifying a wrong, making a stand against that wrong, and attempting to eradicate it has never been a problem in our country before... why should I have to start acting differently now?

Superficial beauty for sale

It all started when I bought my first lip gloss back in the fourth grade.

In the years since then, I have accumulated approximately a ton of beauty products. I've lotioned my skin, dyed my hair, curled and gooped my eyelashes, painted and repainted my nails, and used special soaps and skin products. I can hardly estimate the amount of time and money this has cost me.

But I still continue to take the time to do most of it, and buy the "beauty" products that allow me to feel better. It's pretty sad, but I think the cosmetics industry has a hold on the psyches of many women. Check out the average college woman's sink, shower, or vanity — I bet it's filled with hair and skin products. They target girls at a young age, with fun makeup. Some of it is just for pretend application; some is for you to apply to your doll. (Just for practice, til you are a big girl.)

I spent some of my First Communion money on nail polish. I secretly combed Sun-In through my hair. The strict junior high teachers made us scrub makeup off if they could see it. When I got to high school, I could see that getting ready for school was a pretty big deal. Look at all the pretty girls to compete with, and all the attention they got. Open the door to the girl's bathroom, and a cloud of hairspray would drift out as the girls applied just one more layer of mascara. Looking back on that, I think some girls spent more time in the bathroom "fixing themselves up" than studying.

Why does this fixation with looks hit girls so hard? I think it comes from peers, but also from pressures to be as beautiful as the examples set before them. Who gets the most attention from the guys? What kind of comments are made to girls who don't take the time to "look good?" Girls themselves get pretty catty in judging other females' worth by what they look like.

I feel that our society encourages to pay attention to your outside appearance more than your inside development. When other people judge you to be good-looking, it often implies competence. People treat you differently when they see you dressed up, even though just the outside has changed. I don't think it matters whether they know you or not.

I was greatly relieved to come to college because I felt like I could let my guard down in regards to always having to look good and impress someone. My friends in high school were glamour queens, taking hours upon hours to decide on what to wear, how to do their hair and how to select the proper fragrance. I got so aggravated waiting for them.

Now I generally have other things to think about, but going out on the weekends still means a good amount of preparation. Sometimes that's part of the fun, getting ready to go out with your girlfriends. It's a kind of bonding experience.

But does it make women more shallow to spend large amounts of time on their appearance? Isn't putting a major effort into looking good for others harmful, since you are only improving yourself temporarily?

But on the other hand, can I blame the bad media concepts if I buy into them myself? Can I blame other people for wanting to be around beautiful people? Or wanting to look good?

I see many extremes. Yesterday I stared at this girl who walked by with eighty-six layers of blush and eyeshadow. It was on the tip of my tongue to ask her why. But I know why — the beauty industry sold her on the idea that covering up her actual face with lots of makeup was better than what Mother Nature had given her. I think that points out the major problem here. We've been sold on the idea that we really aren't good enough naturally. Even if we look barefaced, we probably have some makeup on. All this bombardment has trained women to make looking good a priority. And we have a choice to reject it — but most of us feel too uncomfortable to do it.

There's really nothing wrong with wearing some moderate makeup, or using scented lotion or spending time making your hair look just right. But it does not need to be extreme. There must be a compromise between a lone bar of soap and six cabinets of beauty products. All that time in the bathroom could be spent in a zillion more productive ways.

Wild Talk Wednesday

Hungry, escaped snake almost snacks on cat

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — An escaped 9-foot boa constrictor that hadn't eaten in three weeks was caught before it could make lunch out of a neighborhood cat.

Wilma the snake was captured Sunday after neighbors noticed the cat acting strangely in a grassy lot. The snake had been on the loose since last Monday when it slithered out of a hole in its cage.

"The snake was in the grass, kind of spread around," said Charles Lang, a neighbor. "The cat was a few feet away. It looked like they were having a stare-down."

Fortunately for the cat, intervention came early. Police officers were able to catch the hungry snake by extending a baton and depositing it into a large plastic container.

Lang said the entire neighborhood will share his relief at Wilma's recovery — especially the cat.

Recipient of large misprinted check goes on spree

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The check was supposed to be for just $54 — a routine subsidy for a low-income resident from the Housing Authority of Winston-Salem.

Housing authorities suspect a new computer program that prints out the checks accidentally spit out the wrong amount — $28,000 extra, to be exact.

The recipient of the accidentally large check promptly went on a spending spree, which included a Toyota and furniture, officials said.

Marie Roseboro, the executive director of the housing authority, said the woman who received the check has agreed to pay the money back.

Billionaire golfer challenged by novice

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A billionaire joined one of the country's top golf teachers for a round — at a public course.

Rather than tee off at some posh country club, financier Warren Buffett and golf pro Gary Wren slung well-worn canvas golf bags over their shoulders Monday and walked the public Elmwood Park for nostalgia's sake.

Wren had won a junior golf event at the course at age 13 and knew that Buffett had played Elmwood often as a teen-ager. Neither had played the par-68 circuit in 50 years.

Buffett readily agreed to play Elmwood, joking that he would get to play holes No. 1 and 18 for the first time. He said he and other boys used to skip the first and last holes to avoid paying the 25-cent greens fee.

Kosovo, NATO arrive at agreement, threat remains

■ CAR ACCIDENT 18-year-old charged in fatal traffic accident

AKRON (AP) — An 18-year-old who loaned her car to an unlicensed 15-year-old boy was indicted by the Summit County grand jury Tuesday in a traffic accident which killed a passenger.

Melissa McCloud of Akron was charged with one felony count of involuntary manslaughter and one misdemeanor count of allowing an unlicensed driver to take the wheel.

Miss McCloud, who could get six years in prison if convicted, must appear in court for arraignment Friday morning. Miss McCloud, whose family has an unlisted phone number, could not be reached for comment.

She allegedly let an acquaintance drive her car Sept. 12. The speeding car ran off the road in nearby Franklin Township, hit a guardrail and crashed, police said. Audra George, 14, of Akron, was killed.

The driver has been charged in juvenile court with four counts of aggravated vehicular assault and one count each of aggravated vehicular homicide, reckless operation, involuntary manslaughter and driving without a license.

■ WHITE HOUSE School, family planning budget discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their differences dwindling but still knotty, White House and congressional budget bargainers hunted for agreement Tuesday on schools, family planning and other issues snarling a massive $500 billion bill for the new fiscal year.

Though Republicans were ready to provide the $1.1 billion President Clinton was demanding to reduce grade-school class sizes, the two sides fought over key details. Clinton wanted the money specifically set aside for hiring 100,000 teachers; Republicans wanted states to choose how to spend it and wanted money set aside for special education teachers.

Democrats also wanted to require most federal workers' health plans to cover prescription contraceptives, but Republicans wanted to let insurers opt out if they had moral objections. And Clinton — joined by Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D. — was continuing to insist on billions of dollars more for farmers reeling under plummeting crop prices.

■ SUPREME COURT Protection from discrimination denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court allowed Cincinnati to deny gay people specific protection from discrimination Tuesday in a case that seemed to contradict a ruling the court made two years ago.

The action, after the justices struck down as unconstitutional a similar measure in Colorado in 1996, will likely create confusion over government policies on gay rights.

□ Holbrooke wraps up a deal on Kosovo but the threat remains.

The Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Rushing to meet a deadline set by NATO, the government outlined its plan Tuesday to comply with a deal to solve the Kosovo crisis while foreign powers took the first steps to put 2,000 monitors in place to prevent cheating.

Threatened by NATO airstrikes, Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic agreed Monday to withdraw special forces from Kosovo, begin peace negotiations with separatist ethnic Albanians and allow international observers into the troubled Serb province.

But several agreements to put the deal into force are still to be finalized, and it wasn't clear when ethnic Albanians who have fled Yugoslav security forces might begin to return to their villages.

NATO officials said they hadn't called off the airstrikes yet, and that they could still bomb any time after Friday, the deadline for Milosevic's compliance.

"We hope that this will mark a turning point . . . but the truth is not in what I am saying here today. The truth is in compliance," U.S. envoy Richard Holbrooke said after wrapping up week-long talks with the president.

If honored, the commitments should end a seven-month crackdown against Kosovo Albanian militants in the southern Serbian province that killed hundreds — most of them civilians — and left up to 300,000 displaced.

In a rare televised address, the first since the 1995 Dayton agreements that ended the Bosnian war, Milosevic sought to portray the agreements as a victory, saying they "avert the danger of a military intervention against our country."

"The agreements . . . are entirely in accordance with the interests of our country," he added, citing "enormous pressures that we have been exposed to."

Since the crackdown began Feb. 28, Milosevic has insisted the crisis was an internal matter in which foreign powers should play no role. The crackdown was aimed at the rebel Kosovo Liberation Army fighting to wrest Kosovo away from Serbia, the dominant republic of Yugoslavia.

Holbrooke said the key to the accord was Milosevic's decision to allow a 2,000-member "verification mission" and to permit aerial verification by non-combat aircraft that could begin as soon as the end of the week.

"They are not monitors, not observers," Holbrooke said.

Educational gender gap decreases

□ Gender gap closes in math and science, but opens in technology.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Girls are closing the gap with boys in math and science achievement but lag in computer skills, a women's advocacy group said

Tuesday.

The American Association of University Women also said girls still choose jobs and careers based on stereotypes that persist. Guidance counselors are overworked to the point that they cannot steer girls into nontraditional fields, the group said.

The conclusions were among many in a 106-page synthesis of data, research reports and journal and newspaper articles.

The new publication, "Gender Gaps: Where Schools Still Fail Our Children," found that girls today are enrolling in more math and science courses while also taking more Advanced Placement courses in English, biology and foreign languages. In fact, a higher percentage of girls than boys studied geometry, biology and chemistry, according to 1994 data from the Education Department.

Still, there were some gaps. The same body of Education Department data showed that 27 percent of boys had taken physics, compared with 22 percent of girls. Twenty-three percent of boys had taken all three core courses — biology, chemistry and physics — compared with 20 percent of girls.

will be paying less than they are currently," he said.

on WBGU is usually music not heard on any other radio station. Having the ability to broadcast "underground rock" is one of the advantages to college radio, Kwolek said.

Another advantage to college radio, he said, is its accessibility to students. Anyone can participate at the station — behind the scenes or on the air.

"The station offers the ability of some kid to get on the radio for two hours and really put his heart into it," Kwolek said.

Compared to the collage of music that makes WBGU, WFAL has a more traditional approach to its programming, Peake said.

Music broadcast is similar to WBGU's indie rock, but it also includes major bands that got their start on college radio. Unlike WBGU, WFAL will play major labels along with the unknown artists, Peake said.

Differing also from WBGU, WFAL must provide its own funding through advertising and sponsors. To create a profit, WFAL airs commercials. WBGU is funded through the University and the public, and thus runs commercial-free.

Despite the differences between the two frequencies, and the competition, both stations love the opportunity they have to play the music they love.

"With the emphasis — especially in radio — on corporations, the small stations need to stick and work together," Peake said.

Thousands turn out to hear final message from Virgin Mary

A group from Mexico arrives in Georgia in time for the noon rosary where housewife and visionary Nancy Fowler says she receives messages from the Virgin Mary.

Believers gather at a Georgia farm to hear messages from the Virgin Mary.

The Associated Press

CONYERS, Ga. — More than 100,000 people descended on Nancy Fowler's farm Tuesday to hear the last of the annual messages the homemaker said she relays from the Virgin Mary.

Mrs. Fowler claimed that Mary had visited her earlier in the day inside her small farmhouse about 30 miles east of Atlanta.

"The future holds no concern to those who truly seek God and truly love him and remain in his favor," Mrs. Fowler, reading from handwritten notes, told the crowd.

From October 1990 to May 1994, Mrs. Fowler delivered the messages on the 13th of each month. Then she announced that the Virgin Mary would appear with a public message only once a year on Oct. 13.

The crowd has steadily increased over the years. Mrs. Fowler announced last October that this year's public message would be the last.

Mrs. Fowler, whose visions have not been endorsed by the local Catholic hierarchy, told the crowd that Mary told her she would not be permitted to visit with her again in the way she has since 1990.

The crowd responded to the message Tuesday with occasional gasps and scattered applause.

But for the most part they were quiet and attentive while Mrs. Fowler read for 30 minutes.

People fell to their knees, gasped and clapped when Mrs. Fowler said that a multitude of souls accompanied Mary in her vision. She said the souls were in purgatory but were being released into heaven in honor of Mary.

Mrs. Fowler attracts many visitors from Mexico to hear her messages, and most in the crowd Tuesday were women.

"We in Mexico and Latin America believe in the power of Maria and that's the only thing that can unify us," said Christina Peschard, who traveled to Conyers with her sister and mother from Zacatecas, Mexico.

Washington team deserves 0-6 start

Fans at the Washington-Philadelphia game hung a sign saying, "May the worst team lose."

Well, the Eagles won 17-12. I guess that makes Washington the worst team in the NFL at 0-6. They are one of the "Last of the winless teams." The other team is Carolina (0-5).

Some people are glad to see Washington 0-6. Obviously, the main ones are their NFC East (least) division rivals and fans.

However, did you ever consider the Native American protesters who dislike the use of Native American stereotypes as mascots? They dislike the Washington mascot. If you remember the 1992 Super Bowl won by Washington, there were huge protests outside the stadium because of its use.

People may not understand why it is demeaning but let's look at the word as "Red"skins. The term enforces the stereotype that Native Americans were warrior-like, had dark hair and the skin color of red — a false image. In my eyes, it is the same thing as calling a team the "Whiteskins" or "Blackskins." Society would not allow those nicknames.

Many high schools and colleges have changed their nickname because of image. Most notably, Miami of Ohio changed to the RedHawks in 1997 because of huge protests.

Besides the false image and ugly uniform colors, here are some other reasons to dislike "that Washington team."

- This team spent $57 million just to sign two players — Dana Stubblefield (from San Francisco) and Dan Wilkinson (from Cincinnati) to strengthen its defensive line because Washington was horrible against the rush last season. Boy, what a great result. After the sixth game, Washington ranks 29th out of 30 teams in total yards given up on the ground, being trampled over for 979 total yards. Washington also ranks 28th in total rushing average yards per game with an average of 163.2. In total yards, they rank 27th in the league, giving up a total of 1988 total yards.

Here's another interesting stat: Washington has been outscored 186-86 thus losing by an average score of 31-14.3. I think Washington should spend money on players with desire and a love for the game instead of pure talent.

Washington also has a QB controversy. Anyone who has followed the NFL for a long time knows what that means — losing, losing and more losing.

Even worse for Washington, they travel to Minnesota Sunday. Hmm! Best versus worst in the NFC? My prediction: Vikings win 56-7 or worse. Randy Moss and Chris Carter will have monster days and Robert Smith might contribute a few touchdowns.

After that, Washington has four games remaining against their NFC East counterparts. However, it would be interesting to see Washington battle Carolina on Dec. 13 if both teams are 0-13. Then, there would be "The Loser Bowl." It could mean an 0-16 season for the NFL's TRUE loser.

Bad pitching hurts Cleveland

Yankees are headed back to the World Series with 9-5 win.

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Revenge complete. The American League pennant is back in the Bronx.

Yankee Stadium rocked long and hard Tuesday night, as New York reached the World Series for a record 35th time by beating the Cleveland Indians 9-5 to win the AL championship series in six games.

It was a little strange, and a little sloppy.

Scott Brosius seemed to finish Cleveland off with a three-run homer for a 6-0 lead in the third inning. But David Cone nearly gave it all back, allowing a grand slam to Jim Thome that pulled the Indians within a run.

Derek Jeter then restored the safety margin with a two-run triple in the sixth, a drive to right that Manny Ramirez tried to snag with a leap at the top of the wall — only the ball landed on a hop at his feet.

New York, which opens the World Series at home Saturday night against Atlanta or San Diego, won an AL title at home for the first time since the Reggie Jackson-Thurman Munson-Ron Guidry team in 1978.

Cleveland, which beat the Yankees in the first round last year and came within two outs of winning its first World Series since 1948, failed to force a seventh game because it allowed five unearned runs.

Other game highlights: another controversial umpiring call, a line drive that hit an umpire on the backside and a pumped-up crowd that took every opportunity to make up for the taunts David Wells endured in Cleveland last week.

After going 114-48 during the regular season and sweeping

Texas in the first round, the Yankees felt pressure to reach the Series, which they won in 1996. Cleveland felt pressure, too, after losing Game 7 of the World Series to Florida last October. But after falling behind two games to one, New York turned it around at Jacobs Field behind strong pitching from Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez in Game 4 and by Wells in Game 5.

By the eighth inning, fans were taunting the Indians with chants of "1948." Responding to a remark by Cleveland's David Justice that the only way Yankees fans could get tougher would be if they brought Uzis to the ballpark, one fan hung pictures of a machine gun from the upper deck for each strikeout by Cone, who fanned eight.

Umpires again were in the center of controversy. Ted Hendry, the second-base umpire, appeared to blow a call in the third inning, ruling New York's Chili Davis safe on a force play, claiming Omar Vizquel was pulled off the base by the throw. Two outs later, Brosius' homer made it 6-0.

Brosius' homer came after Williams' leadoff single and the controversial call by Hendry.

Ball possession crucial for BG

The Falcons need to hold onto the ball the beat Toledo.

By TOD McCLOSKEY
The BG News

Bowling Green wants to forget Miami.

After posting a 35-7 win over Ohio, the Falcons fumbled away their first loss in the Mid-American Conference 24-12 to the Red-Hawks.

The Falcons turned the ball over four times against Miami, the most of any game this year. BG had three against Ohio and Penn State.

Freshman Godfrey Lewis' fumble late in the second quarter cost BG a chance to close the four-point Miami lead. And Cohen returned a Ricky Schneider pass 56 yards on the Falcons first possession in the second half to take a 17-6 lead.

But, in order to beat Toledo on Saturday BG knows it can't give the ball away.

"It's a significant problem and it's happened too much," coach

Gary Blackney said of the turnovers Saturday. "It takes away any chance you might have against a really good football team like Miami."

Defense

BG held Miami running back Travis Prentice to 135 yards and only 37 at halftime. Toledo has been struggling with the run this year, at least before Saturday's win over Ball State. In the game, sophomore Chester Taylor rushed a career 182 yards, including a 56-yard touchdown run.

The Falcons have given up an average of 201.8 rushing yards a game this year. The Rockets aren't much better, averaging 196.5 per game.

But, senior tailback Wasean Tait is expected to return to the Rockets lineup this week. Tait, the school's all-time leading rusher suffered a broken jaw against Miami and has missed two games.

Tait's last game against BG came in 1995 when he rushed for 224 yards and one touchdown.

BG quarterback Ricky Schneider (1) looks to pass in BG's win against Ohio earlier this year.

Injuries

The Falcons have remained healthy for most of the year and have only a few major injuries going into the Glass Bowl Saturday.

Safety Shawn Rice is doubtful for Saturday's game with a shoulder injury. Guard Eric Gildo pinched a nerve in his spine and is doubtful to play against the Rockets.

Specials: good and bad

Jason Strasser leads the MAC with a perfect 4-for-4 on field goal attempts and is 9-for-9 on extra point conversions. Senior punter Andy Pollack is first in the MAC and third in the nation with a 46.6 average.

BG is placing closer attention on its kickoff return coverage this week after Miami's DeMario Jones returned a kickoff 72 yards to set up a 42-yard John Scott field goal last Saturday.

Falcons start off road trip with hard loss

After a 7-1 loss at Oakland, BG hopes to regain confidence

By PETE STELLA
The BG News

"What doesn't kill you only makes you stronger," a wise man once said.

After the devastating loss to Oakland 7-1 Monday, that is what the Bowling Green women's soccer team should be thinking.

After the loss, the Falcons fall to 6-6-1 overall and 3-3-1 in the Mid American Conference. The Falcons continue their five game road trip with their next stop at Marshall Friday.

Oakland dominated BG

in every aspect of the game, with the shot total ending up 22-17 in favor of the Golden Grizzlies. BG freshmen goalies Sarah Gawel and Sarah Marchant made three saves a piece, but let seven shots get past them combined.

"It was a great team effort, but on the negative level," said BG coach Tom Piccirillo. "It was pretty much a team nightmare and nobody on our team really showed up to play."

BG's lone goal came from freshman midfielder Leah Rosner with three minutes remaining in the match. Rosner took the pass from sophomore midfielder Jamie Eshleman and put the ball in the net. Mackenzie Williams also had an assist on the play.

"It was just one of those games where nothing went right," Rosner said. "We all worked hard. Things just didn't go our way."

One of the positive aspects of the game was that 22 out of 25 players on the BG roster saw some quality playing time. Freshman defenseman Cari Combs and freshman forward and BG points leader Tracy Gleixner were both sidelined because of injuries.

"We really need to get our confidence up again," Piccirillo said. "When we lost bad to West Virginia, we came out for our next game and played the best we did all season so we need to do that again."

The Falcons travel to Marshall on Friday for a 5 p.m. contest.
